

PILLARS Gifts Help Plant Seeds of Hope that Grow into Lasting Change

In Sri Lanka, where families have continued to struggle following economic crisis and the pandemic, PILLARS who provide support through the Hunger and Poverty Alleviation Impact Fund have enlivened the partnership between the Presbyterian Hunger Program and the Praja Abhilasha Network.

Together, they've created community seed banks that provide indigenous seeds at no cost, helping farmers grow healthier crops using sustainable methods instead of expensive chemicals.

The results reach far beyond a single harvest. Families are improving food security, preserving native seeds, and building stronger, more self-sufficient communities.

Jesus reminds us that even the smallest act of faith causes incredible transformation. "The kingdom of heaven is like a mustard seed that someone took and sowed in his field; it is the smallest of all the seeds, but when it has grown it is the greatest of shrubs and becomes a tree, so that the birds of the air come and make nests in its branches." — Matthew 13:31–32

Like the mustard seed, a recurring gift may seem small, but when combined with the gifts of other Pillars, it grows into something life changing for people all around the globe. Through the Hunger and Poverty Alleviation Impact Fund, justice, compassion, and hope is nurtured in communities around the world.
