In 2013, The Presbyterian Church of Chestnut Hill in Philadelphia planted 331 crosses with tee shirts bearing the names of those killed in Philadelphia by guns in 2012. Many were killed with illegal guns. A large sign urged the mayor to act against gun violence. Thousands of residents witnessed the memorial on the busy street.

Introduction

August 2019 Updated Edition

“Putting an end to America’s gun violence is not an either/or, winner-take-all kind of discussion. To get there, those who hate guns must be willing to sit down with those whose livelihoods depend on them for food or safety and whose culture has praised guns for generations, while those who have never seen a gun they didn’t like must be willing to listen to the fears of children in our inner cities who hear gunshots before they go to sleep at night and are afraid to go to playgrounds because that’s where kids get shot. We must talk together to heal our land.”

--James E. Atwood, Gundamentalism and Where it is Taking America

Since the Presbyterian Peace Fellowship offered this Gun Violence Prevention Congregational Toolkit in 2017, almost 1,100 Presbyterians have acquired it in all 50 states. Everywhere in America, the students, parents, faith communities and others are responding to gun violence by mobilizing for change. PPFer Jim Atwood has received the Distinguished Writer Award of the Presbyterian Writers Guild for books that first sounded the alarm. PPF offers a monthly e-newsletter on congregational gun violence prevention work. Each month brings news of churches taking action: forming a study group; posting a “No Guns in God’s House” sign, hosting a nonpartisan candidate forum on gun violence. The PC(USA) General Assembly voted to send a prayer for local church action to every Presbyterian congregation. We are educating ourselves and our neighbors on the need for gun sense laws. We are waking up.

At the same time, almost 40,000 Americans were killed by guns last year, from the near-weekly mass shootings and school shootings to the less publicized daily deaths through murder, suicide, family violence and accidents -- young people, old people, people of color, children.

In calling Rev. Deanna Hollas as the first minister of gun violence prevention, PPF learned that the nation is yearning for help and leadership from the church on this issue. See some of the media coverage at <https://www.nytimes.com/2019/07/28/us/minister-gun-violence-church.html>

We offer this Toolkit to encourage local churches to join in a new era of action. Thank you to everyone who has shared their ideas and case studies. If you are new to the Toolkit, we invite you to reach in, pick the best education resources for your setting and just start! We offer print and online resources, films to screen in your community, and three small group studies. We affirm the power of small groups of thoughtful people to explore difficult issues in ways that transform, and that build community and commitment. A small group might be 30. It might be 3. It might be an adult or youth group, or for Advent or Lent. Just start the conversation, invite the Spirit in, and see where it calls you. Pastoral and worship tools are also included for your use.

In terms of action, the Toolkit offers action projects with Presbyterian roots – and also some that move us to grow new roots. We encourage you to share your action projects with us. National groups provide key leadership, and we include their information as essential. But the real change on gun violence must come from local communities in every state, city, and community. And guess what? That’s exactly where the church of Jesus Christ is located!

Who are we? The Presbyterian Peace Fellowship is a nation-wide community of Presbyterians who trust in the nonviolence of Jesus. Since 1944, we have promoted the practical search for cooperation and peace, including achievable steps to prevent gun violence. Please join us in this search. We give full permission for you to re-print and make multiple copies of this Toolkit for your use in churches and communities. Send us your ideas and stay in touch through www.presbypeacefellowship.org or @presbypeace or info@presbypeacefellowship.org

The PC(USA) & Gun Violence Prevention Policy

A Presbyterian Prayer for Action

Sent to all Congregations by the 223rd General Assembly, PC(USA), June 2018, Marking 50 Years of General Assembly Calls to Prevent Gun Violence

Gracious God,

whose mercy never ends,

whose Spirit brings the Kairos moment for change:

We confess our past willingness to abide the deaths of over one million, six hundred thousand souls lost to gun violence in the last 50 years:

the children,

the parents,

the distraught,

as well as millions more injured,

ruined,

orphaned,

widowed.

Help us to comprehend this carnage and not become numb.

We give thanks for the long witness of the General Assembly and all Presbyterians who are already engaged in preventing gun violence.

We thank you for raising up the students to lead us with marches, walk-outs and a passion born of pain.

We call upon you, Lord;

we have nowhere else to turn.

Galvanize all of us,

every congregation in the Presbyterian Church.

Wake us up in our pews and our lives;

do not let Christ find us asleep on this watch.

Rather, Lord, grant to our church members, both those of us who own guns and those of us who do not, a unity of purpose to change the national debate on gun violence.

Show us the path.

At all the places where you are proclaimed, give us courage to stand against principalities and powers.

Grant us the joy of using the gifts that you provide – energy,

intelligence,

imagination

and love—

to help our communities and our nation heal from this tragedy and sorrow.

In Christ's name we pray, Amen.

Responsive Prayer Adapted by Cheryl and Doug Hunt, Stockton, CA

For 50 years, the PC(USA) and its predecessor bodies have addressed gun violence through the actions of many General Assemblies. Beginning in the late 1960's, in response to the assassinations of public leaders, the General Assembly called for "....control [of] the sale and possession of firearms." Similar resolutions were passed again in 1976, 1988, 1990, 1991, 1996, 1998, 2008, 2010, 2014 and 2018. These resolutions have called on the church to be involved in education and advocacy at the federal, state, and community level to prevent gun violence, as well as to offer pastoral care for the victims of gun violence. The Assembly has never advocated the elimination of guns used in hunting or shooting sports.

Gun Violence, Gospel Values:

Mobilizing in Response to God's Call, PC(USA) Advocacy Committee on Social Witness Policy

This report, approved by the 219th General Assembly (2010), challenges our society's fatalism and numbness in accepting the world's highest gun death rates and proposes a new "spiritual awakening" to support needed laws. It examines our culture of violence, of fear, desperation, and suicide, and advocates a public health approach to halt spread of guns and gang violence. Download at:

On Gun Violence Prevention, PC(USA) General Assembly Action, 2014

The 2014 General Assembly called the church to speak out on a variety of legislative matters to reduce gun violence; it encourages Presbyterians to learn more about the theological issues involved in gun violence; respond pastorally to situations of gun violence, and to claim a bold witness against gun violence by placing signage on church property declaring it a gun-free zone.

Gundamentalism & Where It Is Taking America

By James E. Atwood, Discussion Questions by Jan Orr-Harter

Gundamentalism and Where It Is Taking America offers an immensely readable overview of the issue of gun violence. While written from a faith perspective, the book is designed also for a broader audience, including college, law, medical and public health schools; law enforcement agencies; local government and community groups. James Atwood is a retired Presbyterian pastor and an avid deer hunter for half a century. He has been in the forefront of the faith community's fight for two constitutional rights: the right to keep and bear arms and the right to live in domestic tranquility, free of gun violence. Atwood explains why guns mystically control so many of us. Chapters include: How Did We Get Here?; Straight Talk to Anyone Buying a Gun for the First Time; Policing the Inner City; Can Guns be Made Safer? The book will provoke honest reflection and discussion for the building of a safer and saner America.

America and Its Guns: A Theological Exposé by

James E. Atwood, Foreword by Walter Brueggemann

James Atwood, right, cautions that an absolute trust in guns and violence morphs easily into idolatry. Having spent 40 years as a Presbyterian pastor fighting against the easy access to firearms, one of which took the life of a friend, he uses his biblical and theological understanding to graphically portray the impact guns have on our society. He documents how we have been deceived into believing that the tools of violence will provide our ultimate security. He closes with a wake-up call to the faith community to unmask the extremism of the Gun Empire and to claim the moral role of the church on what is often considered to be a “hands-off” political issue.

Presbyterian Peace Fellowship Study Guide in Six Sessions for America and Its Guns: A Theological Exposé
 by James Atwood

Suggestions for studying this book in a church small group setting:

The group convener can be one person or can be rotated. The convener's role is to start and end the meeting, to ask the suggested questions, to move discussion forward and to make sure that everyone in the group is heard fairly. Each session opens with a question for each person to answer. Thereafter, just take turns. Everyone may not wish to address every question. Sessions will be about 90 minutes each. Group size can be 4-12 persons. If larger, divide into two groups. Suggested group field trip: a gun show in your community.

1. Session One – A Call to Conversation Preface, Chapters 1, 2, 3, 4 (read beforehand)

Convener welcomes everyone, opens with prayer and invites each person to introduce themselves by answering:

1. How do you feel about entering into a discussion about gun violence? Have guns impacted your life, family, friends?
 2. On p. 14 Atwood writes that "Gun violence is no more a political issue than drunk driving, selling crack cocaine or arson." How do we Americans determine the issues we will discuss and those we will avoid? How does not talking about gun violence impact the "peace, unity and purity of the church?"
 3. On p.19 a National Rifle Association (NRA) executive said: "You would get a far better understanding of the NRA if you were approaching us as one of the great religions of the world." Is there, or has there ever been, something in your life that has served as an idol? Why would an NRA leader make such a statement?
 4. On p. 20-21 Atwood lists indications of possible gun idolatry. Do you agree or disagree? Can a person of faith serve two masters—that is, can we claim another ultimate value in addition to loving God and neighbor?
 5. Share a passage in these chapters that especially spoke to you—and why?
 6. Chapter 4 covers efforts to find common ground to reduce gun violence over 4 decades and asks the question, "Can the church bring gun rights and public safety zealots together in the same space to start an honest conversation?" Is this study group such a conversation? Who needs to be in the same space to discuss this in your community/state?
 7. On p. 18 Atwood writes, "What our nation needs is balanced legislation that respects two fundamental constitutional rights: the right to keep and bear arms and the right to enjoy domestic tranquility as one pursues life, liberty and happiness." Are there other examples in American life of "balanced legislation" or a balanced approach to difficult issues or competing rights?
- Convener asks a group member to close the meeting with prayer. Homework: Read chapters 5, 6, 7

2. Session Two – Violence Chapters 5, 6, 7

1. Convener opens with prayer and asks: Do you agree with Atwood that violence as entertainment helps us to see gun violence as normal? Do you personally enjoy violence as entertainment? Do others in your family? Why?
2. Chapter 5 discusses children and guns. Make a gun with your thumb and finger and shoot it to kill everyone in the group, saying, "You're dead!" Did you do this as children? Did/do your children? How does it feel to do it as an adult?
3. Look at the phrases on p. 45-47. Do you hear yourself or your loved ones in these expressions?

4. Atwood states that the violent language of some politicians and talk show hosts has abetted both gun violence and the militia groups who target law enforcement as “foot soldiers of the federal government.” Do you agree or not? Why?
 5. See the Appendix on p. 227-228 and update it with: Iraq War Deaths 2003-2009: 4,400 and US gun deaths 2003-2009: 202,500 (p.194). Does anything surprise you in these numbers? Were you aware that gun deaths have been above 30,000 per year for decades? Why is this high level of civilian gun death so peculiarly American?
 6. Describe in your own words what is meant by the phrase “redemptive violence,” p. 63-66. Give examples.
 7. If violence is part of our American DNA, what does that suggest to you about gun violence prevention efforts? What does it suggest to you about the purpose of the church in the United States today?
- Convener asks a group member to close the meeting with prayer. Homework: Read Chapter 8, 9, 10

3. Session Three – The Principalities & Powers Chapters 8, 9, 10

1. Convener opens by reading Ephesians 6:12 and asks everyone: Each person give one word that describes the “principalities and powers” (King James Version) that Paul addresses.
 2. Is the absence of sensible gun laws in America related to the Principalities and Powers? What is relation between these spiritual and earthly powers? Have you ever experienced these powers in relation to guns?
 3. With any smart phones, search for images of “Jesus with assault weapon” and share. What is at the root of a human desire to attribute the blessing of guns and violence to God? Does anything in these chapters make you angry?
 4. Do you agree that US racial-ethnic diversity is one reason some people feel a need to acquire a gun? (p. 92)
 5. Did the marksman and sporting era of the NRA (1871-1976) play a role in your family history? Were you aware of its change of focus since 1977 and the Cincinnati Revolt? Why is the NRA so successful at promoting gun sales?
 6. Atwood documents that the oft-repeated “20,000 gun control laws on the books” is untrue. Why does it persist?
 7. Have you faced up to a significant fear in your life? Why is fear so powerful? How did faith help you face up to fear?
- Convener asks someone to read Ephesians 6:10-20. Close with open prayer. Homework: Read Chapters 11, 12, 13

4. Session Four – The Impact of Idolatry Chapters 11, 12, 13

1. Convener opens with prayer and asks everyone: Do you have concerns about guns and the children and youth in your life? Have you done anything about this? Why or why not?
2. Were you surprised at the high rate of gun violence and deaths among those with concealed carry permits? Were you surprised about the statistics on gun suicide? (p. 111) Does anything else surprise you in these chapters?
3. Can you describe the sense of identity and power that guns appear to convey? Can you identify with or have you experienced the “prison” of violence in poor urban neighborhoods? What is the connection between guns and identity?
4. How can we better help veterans who return home transformed by violence? Who else suffers from PTSD?

5. How do you react to Atwood's suggestion that the cost of unfettered gun access is a form of human sacrifice—"between 82 and 84 Americans, ten of whom are children and youth under 18, are killed every day by guns?" (p. 128) This book was published months before the Newtown, CT killings. Has Newtown, CT changed you in any way?

6. Any other items you wish to discuss from the book so far?

Convener reads Exodus 20:2-3 and asks a member to close with prayer.

Homework: Read Chapters 14, 15, 16 and the gun sellers' voluntary "Code of Conduct" at www.heedinggodscall.org

5. Session 5 – Our Gun Laws Today & Our Impact Abroad Chapters 14, 15, 16

1. Convener opens with prayer and asks everyone: How do you interpret the Second Amendment and its role today?

2. If left unencumbered, what is the NRA's vision for America? Where are they trying to take us? Are we there yet?

3. In the 50 laws and policies in Chapter 15, do any seem justifiable? Which do you see as most dangerous? Why?

4. Should states continue to have the option to withhold information on mental illness in background checks?

5. Define a "straw purchase." What steps could change the gun show and gun dealer culture to reduce gun violence?

6. How can the US church best respond to the appeal from the Presbyterian Church of Mexico? (p. 181)

7. Do you share Atwood's vision for moving the mountain of gun violence, listed at the end of p. 168? Why or why not?

Convener asks everyone for a word to describe where they are now with the issue of gun violence, closing with prayer. Homework: Read chapters 17, 18, 19. Find out how many gun shows and licensed gun dealers operate in your state.

6. Session 6 – The Spiritual Alarm Clock--Will We Wake Up? Chapters 17, 18, 19

1. Convener opens with prayer and asks everyone: What did you learn about gun shows and dealers in our state?

2. How have you or others in your community responded to local gun violence or national mass shootings?

3. Why are so many NRA members silent on their support for responsible gun laws and adequate law enforcement?

4. In stopping the Senate compromise on expanding background checks (April 2013), did the gun empire overreach?

5. What in Bob Ricker's story impresses you? Can you see yourself or anyone you know in his story? (p. 200-202)

6. Share anything in this group study experience that has changed your views on gun violence.

7. What are the risks if your church moved from words to action for responsible gun laws? Of not doing so?

8. Where, if at all, do you see God in the crisis of gun violence in America? Are there other issues to discuss?

9. Is this our last meeting or should we do something? Discuss possible next steps and make a plan. Convener thanks all for participating, closes with open prayer and a benediction.

Presbyterian Peace Fellowship Gun Violence Curriculum

A Five Session Study

This Curriculum was created by Rev. Margaret Leonard, with revisions in 2017 by the PPF Gun Violence Prevention Working Group. It gives an overview of the gun violence issue without the need for participants to read a book. There are several aspects of gun violence prevention not covered by this study, such as access to guns by children, gun accidents, guns and domestic violence and the economic motivation of the gun and ammunition industry. Look for future additions to the Curriculum.

Gun Death Story - For Sessions 1-4, the leader or another member of the group will tell a Gun Death Story to discover the name and personal story of a recent gun victim. The goal is to put a human face on their gun death statistic. To prepare each Gun Death Story, bring a news clipping about a recent local gun-related death and/or select a national story from the news site that lists daily gun violence across America, trying to pull out details about who this person was, their life and their relation to others.

See <http://www.newser.com/tag/22994/1/gun-violence.html>

Documentation – Why do we cite sources that seem old? Documentation sources cited here on gun violence go back several years. In recent years, the National Rifle Association and its congressional allies have been successful at cutting off funding for research into the data and causes of gun violence, threatening agencies such as the Centers for Disease Control with even further funding cuts if they pursue this research. Into this vacuum of information, several new non-profit research groups are being launched by universities, hospitals and others. This new data will become available in the years ahead.

Session 1

Gun Violence 101 & The Citizen's Test

Goals & Objectives:

To explore the issue of gun violence in America, becoming more aware of it as a problem, and discerning how our faith community may be called to address it.

By the end of the session, participants will have:

- studied national gun violence statistics.
- named initial unease or concerns with the issue.
- identified how it has touched us individually or communally.

Setting	Adult Christian Education Forum, small group or committee meeting
Materials	<input type="checkbox"/> Candle <input type="checkbox"/> Match <input type="checkbox"/> A Gun Death Story <input type="checkbox"/> Computer w/internet connection	<input type="checkbox"/> Citizen's Test on Gun Violence in America <input type="checkbox"/> Paper <input type="checkbox"/> Pen/Pencil <input type="checkbox"/> Bibles

Opening

- Share a Gun Death Story and light a candle in memory of this person.
- Lead the group in this or your own prayer:
Holy God, we come together today to learn more about our world and your presence in it. We ask that you be with the families and friends of (naming people about whom we have just read). We pray also for the perpetrators, broken people, just like ourselves. Please give us ears to hear and eyes to see your light in the midst of this pain and darkness. Amen.
- Read Romans 12: 9-21.

Presenting & Exploring

- Watch video:

- Take the Citizen's Test. Go over the answers together.

Lead the group in discussion, going around the room to answer the following questions.

—Note: allow a moment of silence after each question is asked so that all may have the opportunity to consider their answers. It is okay for the discussion to veer from these specific questions as the Spirit leads.—

- o What, if anything, makes you nervous about this topic?
- o Where do you think that nervousness comes from?
- o How has gun violence touched your life? Has it hit close to home? When was the first time you remember hearing about gun violence? Do you think that experience has shaped your view or perception of gun violence?
- o Do you think this is an appropriate topic for churches to discuss? Why or why not?

Closing

- Reread Romans 12: 9-21.
- Invite the participants to reflect on what they've learned and how they feel called to move forward in the coming week.
- Name a time to come back together for further discussion.

- Close with prayer:

God, may your life-giving Spirit move through us and inspire us. It is hard to hear about the suffering of our world. We know that you promise a better life, a better way of being together. Help us to find hope in the midst of such sadness and hear your call to action. Amen.

CITIZEN'S TEST ON GUN VIOLENCE IN AMERICA

(Revised, 10/2016)

ANSWERS AND SOURCES FOR CITIZEN'S TEST

Updated October, 2016

1. False: These entities never express opposition to hunting, sports shooting, or gun ownership. Our mission is to keep dangerous weapons out of the hands of dangerous people. We do advocate for a ban on assault weapons and large magazine clips.
2. True. Center for Disease Control. National Vital Statistics Report and the U.S. Department of Defense. See also www.politifact.com; Mark Shields of PBS; and Congressional Research Services, America War and Military.
3. D. $229 billion. Follman, Mark. "The True Cost of Gun Violence to America." Mother Jones. April 15, 2015. See also Gun Violence: The Real Costs, by Philip J. Cook and Jens Ludwig, Oxford Press, 2000. In 2000 the documented cost was $100 billion.
4. False. Individuals on the FBI's Terrorist Watch List can legally buy firearms from licensed dealers, as long as they can pass the National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS) database. If they cannot pass, they can buy guns from private sellers in more than 40 states and at 5,000 gun shows throughout the country.
5. D. Each year, more than 33,000 people are killed by guns in the U.S. More than half the deaths are by suicide. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, WISQARS tool, <http://www.cdc.gov/injury/wisqars/index.html>
6. A. Handgun. FBI, 2008 Uniform Crime Report, Expanded Homicide Data Table 8, http://www.fbi.gov/ucr/cius2008/offenses/expanded_information/data/shrtable_08.html Firearms: 67.8 %; Knives or other cutting instruments: 13.4%; Personal weapons (hands, fists, feet, etc.): 5.7%; Blunt objects (clubs, hammers, etc.): 3.9%; Other dangerous weapons: 9.2%

FBI, 2013 Uniform Crime Reports, Crime in the United States by State, https://ucr.fbi.gov/crime-in-the-u.s.-2013/tables/5tabledatadecpdf/table_5_crime_in_the_united_states_by_state_2013.xls The most dangerous state in the US is Louisiana; the most dangerous city for African Americans is Omaha, NE.
9. A. a friend, acquaintance or family member. . 2014 FBI Uniform Crime Report, Expanded Homicide Data Table 10, <https://ucr.fbi.gov/crime-in-the-u.s/2014/crime-in-the-u.s.-2014/offenses-known-to-law-enforcement/expanded-homicide>
10. False. The Supreme Court in 2008 interpreted the Second Amendment as an individual right, overturning 200 years of judicial history. Justice Antonin Scalia, writing for the 5-4 majority stated, "Like most rights, the Second Amendment right is not unlimited. It is not a right to keep and carry any weapon whatsoever in any manner whatsoever and for whatever purpose: For example, concealed weapons prohibitions have been upheld under the Amendment or state analogues. The Court's opinion should not be taken to cast doubt on longstanding prohibitions on the possession of firearms by felons and the mentally ill, or laws forbidding the carrying of firearms in sensitive places such as schools and government buildings, or laws imposing conditions and qualifications on the commercial sale of arms." <http://www.scotusblog.com/wp/wp-content/uploads/2008/06/07-290.pdf>

11. C. 22 times. Lengthy studies indicate every time a gun in the home was used in a self-defense or legally justifiable shooting, there were four unintentional shootings, seven criminal assaults or homicides, and 11 attempted or completed suicides. Cited by Rowen, James. "Guns in Homes Pose Greater Risk to Families than Intruders, Data Shows." Milwaukee Journal. December 20, 2012.
12. D. 80% of NRA members and 87% of non NRA members regard these and other measures as complementary, not contradictory to their second amendment rights. "Gun Owners Poll" Frank Luntz-Republican Pollster, July, 2012.
13. True. CPSC can regulate teddy bears and toy guns, but not real firearms and ammunition. Consumer Products Safety Act, 1972.
14. False. A recent North Carolina study of gun owners indicated 43% did not use trigger locks or safely store weapons. (ABC News, May 1, 2015.) 40 % of gun owners keep their guns loaded and unlocked at all times. A 2005 study showed 73% of children under 10 living in homes with guns know the location of their parent's guns. A frequent result of unsecured weapons is suicide.
15. D. 5% of licensed dealers engage in gun trafficking, accept straw purchasers, hire nefarious personnel and lose thousands of guns every year out the back door.
16. False. For decades, the NRA drafts legislation to decrease the regulatory authority, budget, and manpower of the ATF. e.g. In 1972, ATF had 2,500 agents charged with inspecting 60,000 dealers. An inspection is likely every 8 years. Agents are still at 1972 levels for the entire nation while the NYCPD has 35,000 officers for the city.
17. True. "Setting the Record Straight: The UN and Small Arms," New York, June 26- July 7, 2006, and William Hartung and Rachel Stohl, "Hired Guns", Foreign Policy, May/June 2004. As guns and small arms are placed in the hands of vindictive militias and child soldiers, even if the country should side with us in "our global war on terror," the already high death rates of women and children in those regions escalate even further.
18. True. Increasing numbers of "insurrectionist" gun owners carry their guns as a show of force. The CEO of the NRA, Wayne LaPierre, declares, "The people have a right to take whatever measures are necessary, including force, to abolish oppressive government." At the 2009 Conservative Political Action Conference he added, "The guys with the guns make the rules."
19. True. Thirty three states support the Castle Doctrine. One is not obliged to retreat if one's home is attacked. Most states have expanded the law to assert a person has no duty to abandon a place where he has a right to be. These laws have given birth to a shoot-first-ask-questions-later mindset.
20. C. 18 %. An analysis, published in 2006 by the Rand Center on Quality Policing at the request of Police Commissioner Raymond Kelly, (NYC) found that in the years 1998-2006, the average hit ratio for officers involved in a shooting where the subject does not fire back was 30 percent. During a gunfight, where the target is shooting at officers, the study reported that the hit rate falls to just 18 percent. (Dahl, Julia. Session 2

Guns in the USA Today & “Battleground America”

Goal & Objectives:

To understand the evolving relationship of the American public to guns today.

By the end of the session, participants will have:

- explored the historical and contemporary interpretations of the Second Amendment.
- considered implications of gun policy on our community.
- thought about how the role of guns has changed in our society.

Setting	Adult Christian Education Forum, small group or committee meeting
Materials	___ Candle ___ Match ___ Gun Death Story ___ copies of “Battleground America” summary* ___ Paper ___ Pen/Pencil *If possible, ask the participants to read the article before you meet. http://www.newyorker.com/magazine/2012/04/23/battleground-america

Opening

- Share a Gun Death Story and light a candle in memory of this person.
- Lead the group in this or your own prayer:
Holy God, we come together today to learn more about our world and your presence in it. We ask that you be with the families and friends of (naming people about whom we have just read). We pray also for the perpetrators, broken people, just like ourselves. Please give us ears to hear and eyes to see your light in the midst of this pain and darkness. Amen.
- Read Isaiah 58:1-12.

Presenting & Exploring

- Introduce the article “Battleground America,” asking who had a chance to read it, stating its author and where it was printed (Jill Lepore, printed in The New Yorker on April 23rd, 2012), and explaining that the following points for discussion are taken directly from it. (All points are direct or paraphrased quotes.)
- Pass out the summary of the article so each participant has a copy. Going around the room, ask for volunteers to read each point.

- Discuss The New Yorker article, “Battleground America” by answering the following questions as a group (a summary of the article is included should someone have forgotten to read it):

—Note: allow a moment of silence after each question is asked so that all may have the opportunity to consider their answers. It is okay for the discussion to veer from these specific questions as the Spirit leads.—

- o Did anything in this article surprise you?
- o How aware have you been of society’s shift in attitude regarding gun control?
- o Do you think anything was represented unfairly?
- o Does the article change your understanding of the issue? Why/why not?
- o Why do you think this issue is not discussed freely among friends, family, or in church?

Closing

- Reread Isaiah 58:1-12.
- Invite the participants to reflect on what they’ve learned and how they feel called to move forward in the coming week.
- Name a time to come back together for further discussion.
- End the group in this or your own prayer:
God, may your life-giving Spirit move through us and inspire us. It is hard to hear about the suffering of our world. We know that you promise a better life, a better way of being together. Help us to find hope in the midst of such sadness and hear your call to action. Amen.

A Short Summary of BATTLEGROUND AMERICA One Nation, Under the Gun

By Jill Lepore, The New Yorker, April 23, 2012

The Second Amendment

The Second Amendment: “A well-regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed.”

Demographics

- There are nearly 300 million [393 million in 2017] privately owned firearms in the United States: 106 million handguns, 105 million rifles, and 83 million shotguns. That works out to about one gun for every American.”
- T.J. Lane, the teenager who killed his classmates at Chardon High, found the gun he used in his grandfather’s barn. It belonged to his uncle.
- The United States is the country with the highest rate of civilian gun ownership in the world. “The second highest is Yemen, where the rate is nevertheless only half that of the U.S.”
- Men are far more likely to own guns than women are, but the rate of gun ownership among men has fallen since 1980 while it has remained the same for women in the same stretch of time....Gun ownership is higher among whites than blacks, higher in the country than in the city, and higher among older people than among younger people.
- In many states, to purchase a gun from a licensed dealer you need a permit, which requires you to complete firearms-safety training. People who buy guns from private sellers at gun shows or through other private exchanges aren’t required to take a firearms-safety class. These exchanges fall under what is called the “gun-show loophole.”
- 40% of the guns bought in the United States are bought from private sellers, not licensed dealers.
 - Arms are military weapons. A firearm is a cannon that you can carry as opposed to artillery so big and heavy that you need wheels to move it, or people to help you...the firearms used by a well-regulated militia (at the time the Second Amendment was written) could be discharged only once before they had to be reloaded.
 - The Second Amendment was drafted by James Madison in order to assure the Anti-Federalists that the people would have the right to form a militia. The original version read: “The right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed; a well armed and well regulated militia being the best security of a free country: but no person religiously scrupulous of bearing arms shall be compelled to render military service in person.”
 - None of this (the debate over the Second Amendment) had to do with hunting. People who owned and used long arms to hunt continued to own and use them...As Garry Wills once wrote, “One does not bear arms against a rabbit.”

America’s Evolving Relationship to Guns

- Firearms have been regulated in the United States from the early days. “Laws banning the carrying of concealed weapons were passed in Kentucky and Louisiana in 1813, and other states soon followed: Indiana (1820), Tennessee and Virginia (1838), Alabama (1839), and Ohio (1859). Similar laws were passed in Texas, Florida, and Oklahoma. As the governor of Texas explained in 1893, the ‘mission of the concealed deadly weapon is murder. To check it is the duty of every self-respecting, law-abiding man.’ ”

- Although the laws were occasionally challenged, they were rarely struck down in state courts.
- The National Rifle Association was founded in 1871. For most of its history, the NRA was chiefly a sporting and hunting association.
- The first major federal gun control legislation pieces were the 1934 National Firearms Act and the 1938 Federal Firearms Act. Taken together, they created a licensing system for dealers and prohibitively taxed the private ownership of automatic weapons. The NRA supported both.
- In 1939, The Supreme Court upheld the constitutionality of the 1934 act, unanimously agreeing with solicitor general Robert H. Jackson that the Second Amendment is “restricted to the keeping and bearing of arms by the people collectively for their common defense and security.”

The Modern Gun Debate

- Gun-rights arguments have their origins not in 18th century Anti-Federalism but in 20th century liberalism. They are the product of what the Harvard law professor Mark Tushnet has called the “rights revolution,” the pursuit of rights, especially civil rights, through the courts.
- In the 1970’s, the NRA began advancing the idea that the Second Amendment guarantees an individual’s right to carry a gun, rather than the people’s right to form armed militias to provide for the common defense.
- Fights over rights are effective at getting out the vote. Describing gun-safety legislation as an attack on a constitutional right gave conservatives a power at the polls that, at the time, the movement lacked.
- Ronald Reagan was the first Presidential candidate whom the NRA endorsed. His election made it possible for conservatives to begin turning a new interpretation of the Second Amendment into law.
- Orrin Hatch became the chair of the Subcommittee on the Constitution, and commissioned a history of the Second Amendment, which resulted in a 1982 report, “The Right to Keep and Bear Arms.” The authors of the report claimed to have discovered “clear—and long-lost—proof that the Second Amendment was intended as an individual right of the American citizen to keep and carry arms in a peaceful manner, for protection of himself, his family, and his freedoms.”
- In 1986, the Firearms Owners Protection Act was passed, repealing parts of the 1968 Gun Control Act (passed largely in response to the assassinations of Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King, Jr.) and giving new legal authority to the NRA’s interpretation of the Second Amendment, and a growing body of scholarship funded by the NRA.
- Chief Justice Warren Burger said that the new interpretation of the Second Amendment was “one of the greatest pieces of fraud, I repeat the word ‘fraud,’ on the American public by special-interest groups that I have ever seen in my lifetime.”
- Between 1968 and 2012, the idea that owning and carrying a gun is both a fundamental American freedom and an act of citizenship gained wide acceptance and, along with it, the principle that this right is absolute and cannot be compromised; gun-control legislation was diluted, defeated, overturned, or allowed to expire; the right to carry a concealed handgun became nearly ubiquitous.

Session 3

Illegal Gun Sales

Goals & Objectives:

To explore the issue of illegal gun sales, specifically becoming familiar with the practice of “straw purchasing.”

By the end of the session, participants will have:

- learned how guns are illegally traded in the US.
- reflected on our relationship to the illegal gun market.

Straw Purchasing Handout

The International Association of Chiefs of Police has called for US legislation that would help stop illegal gun trafficking, which is accomplished in part through straw purchases.

What is “straw purchasing?”

A straw purchase is an illegal firearm purchase where the actual buyer of the gun, being unable to pass the required federal background check or desiring to not have his or her name associated with the transaction, uses a proxy buyer who can pass the required background check to purchase the firearm for him/her.

Courtesy of Francois Polito

The straw purchasing cycle is the most common way that guns are trafficked and sold to individuals who are restricted from owning them. According to a 2000 report, “nearly 50 percent of ATF (Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms) investigations involved firearms being trafficked by straw purchasers either directly or indirectly.”¹

So what’s the big deal?²

“Virtually every crime gun in the United States starts off as a legal firearm,” according to then-Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF) director Bradley Buckles in 2000.³

In a 1997 report, the ATF looked at how guns then “pass through the legitimate distribution system of federally licensed firearms dealers” before ending up in the hands of criminals. The ATF concluded, in part, that, “there is a large problem of diversion to the illegal market from licensed gun establishments.”⁴

When a gun is recovered in a crime, the ATF can use the serial number on the gun to trace back to where it first left the legal market - tracing from the first sale of the firearm by an importer or manufacturer, to the wholesaler or retailer, to the first retail purchaser. In some cases, that first retail purchaser is the link between the legal and illegal markets.⁵

Looking at trace information from 1998, the ATF found that “a small group of dealers accounts for a disproportionately large number of crime gun traces.”⁶

More than 85 percent of gun dealers in the U.S. had no crime guns traced to them at all in 1998, while about 1 percent of licensed firearm dealers accounted for 57 percent of traces that same year.⁷ The ATF also concluded that “sales volume alone cannot be said to account for the disproportionately large number of traces associated with those dealers.”⁸

Guns get from dealers to criminals in part through trafficking. “ATF’s trafficking investigations show that trafficked firearms are diverted to prohibited persons and are subsequently used in serious crimes,” according to an ATF report.⁹

In trafficking investigations between 1996 and 1998, 25 percent involved guns used in an assault and 17 percent involved guns used in homicides.¹⁰ Nearly 5 million Americans were victims of violent crimes committed with firearms between 1993 and 2005.¹¹

The ATF examined gun-trafficking investigations from July 1996 to December 1998 and found that 46 percent of trafficking investigations during this period involved straw purchasers.¹² This was nearly double the percentage of the next closest source. (Gun: Enforcing Federal Law Against Firearms Traffickers. Washington, D.C.: Department of the Treasury, 2000).

Our Security is Connected

Advocates for gun violence prevention actions should acknowledge regional differences in gun usage and gun violence prevalence. Many guns used on the streets of cities were originally purchased in rural areas. Similarly, illegally sold guns frequently flow across state lines as well. Gun sales in one area can affect gun violence in others. As Martin Luther King Jr. once said, “Injustice anywhere is a threat to justice everywhere. We are caught in an inescapable network of mutuality, tied in a single garment of destiny.” Even if we do not see this activity, we must stand with those in our community who suffer.

STRAW PURCHASING—the short version

STEP 1:

Illegal arms dealer seeks out someone with a clean record to make firearms purchase in their stead. This buyer is called the “straw purchaser.”

STEP 2:

Illegal arms dealer provides the straw purchaser with money, both to pay for the firearms and their services.

STEP 3:

The illegal arms dealer sells the guns to individuals who would not otherwise be able to buy weapons legally.

STEP 4:

When guns used in a crime are traced back to a straw purchaser, they claim the guns were lost or stolen. In some states, this gets them off the hook and they are able to continue supplying guns to the underground market.

Session 4

Guns and Suicide

Goals & Objectives:

To explore the issue of suicide, especially the relationship between guns and suicide.

By the end of the session, participants will have:

- learned about suicide demographics, influences, and prevention techniques.
- discussed the taboo topic from a faith and pastoral perspective.
- reviewed suggestions for limiting access to lethal means of suicide.

Opening

- Share a Gun Death Story and light a candle in memory of this person.
- Lead the group in this or your own prayer:
Holy God, we come together today to learn more about our world and your presence in it. We ask that you be with the families and friends of (naming people about whom we have just read). We pray also for the perpetrators, broken people, just like ourselves. Please give us ears to hear and eyes to see your light in the midst of this pain and darkness. Amen.
- Read Romans 14: 7-9.

Presenting & Exploring

- Watch the video:
<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QUzzyyG0H08>
- Review the National Suicide Statistics handout and the article on “Limiting Access to Lethal Means” from the Brady Campaign.
- Lead the group in discussion, going around the room to answer the following questions. Allow a moment of silence after each question so that all may have the opportunity to consider their answers. It is okay for the discussion to veer from these specific questions as the Spirit leads.
 - Did you ever think that you would talk about the issue of suicide in church? Why or why not?

- Was there anything that surprised you in the video or the readings?
- Have you had any personal connections to this topic?
- What emotions are stirred up for you when talking about the issue of suicide?
- How do you think theologically about this issue?
- What does good care look like for the friends and family of someone who committed suicide?
- Often suicides are committed with a gun that still has its price tag, just purchased. With half of all suicides committed with a gun, suicide prevention could be the greatest result of universal background checks, waiting or “cooling off” periods and closing the gun show loophole. How does this impact your thinking about gun regulations?

Closing

- Reread Romans 14: 7-9.
- Invite the participants to reflect on what they’ve learned and how they feel called to move forward in the coming week.
- Name a time to come back together for further discussion.
- *End the group in this or your own prayer:
God, may your life-giving Spirit move through us and inspire us. It is hard to hear about the suffering of our world. We know that you promise a better life, a better way of being together. Help us to find hope in the midst of such sadness and hear your call to action. Amen.*

National Suicide Statistics

Figures from the National Center for Health Statistics.

- Over 36,000 people in the United States die by suicide every year.
- Suicide is the fourth leading cause of death for adults between the ages of 18 and 65 years in the United States.
- Currently, suicide is the 10th leading cause of death in the United States.
- A person dies by suicide about every 15 minutes in the United States.
- Every day, approximately 101 Americans take their own life.
- Ninety percent of all people who die by suicide have a diagnosable psychiatric disorder at the time of their death.
- There are four male suicides for every female suicide, but three times as many females as males attempt suicide.
- There are an estimated 8-25 attempted suicides for every suicide death.

Firearms and Suicide

While murders, accidents and mass murders are visible through the news, suicide is often not reported. According to the Brady Campaign, there are over 23,000 gun suicides in the U.S. every year, more than 60 every single day. That's more than half of all suicides. It's also two-thirds of all gun deaths. Preventing gun suicide is probably the area where reasonable gun regulations can make the most difference.

Research shows that a gun in the home makes a suicide three times more likely than for homes without guns. There are a few reasons why the presence of a gun in the home is a risk factor for suicide. First is the surprising impulsivity of many suicide attempts. Guns are also so much more lethal than other methods. Most people who survive a suicide attempt do not go on to die by suicide. But because guns are so effective, only one in 10 people who attempt suicide by gun get that second chance.

Limiting easy access to a gun for someone who considers or even attempts suicide can literally be the difference between life and death. And, in addition to the loss of life, suicide deaths impact the future of families, especially children.

- There are over 23,000 gun suicides in the U.S. every year, more than 60 every single day.
- Although most gun owners reportedly keep a firearm in their home for "protection" or "self-defense," 83 percent of gun-related deaths in these homes are the result of a suicide, often by someone other than the gun owner.
- Firearms are used in more suicides than homicides.
- Death by firearms is the fastest growing method of suicide.
- Firearms account for over 50 percent of all suicides.
- Only some states require a waiting period between purchase and acquisition of a firearm, but making it a federal requirement would decrease gun suicides nationwide, as well as the ability to cross state lines to obtain a gun in suicide crisis. Defeating mandatory waiting periods is a key legislative goal of the National Rifle Association.

Youth

- Suicide is the sixth leading cause of death among those 5-14 years old.
- Suicide is the third leading cause of death among those 15-24 years old.
- Between the mid-1950s and the late 1970s, the suicide rate among U.S. males aged 15-24 more than tripled (from 6.3 per 100,000 in 1955 to 21.3 in 1977). Among females aged 15-24, the rate more than doubled during this period (from 2.0 to 5.2). The youth suicide rate generally leveled off during the 1980s and early 1990s, and since the mid-1990s has been steadily decreasing.

- Between 1980-1996, the suicide rate for African-American males aged 15-19 doubled.
- Risk factors for suicide among the young include suicidal thoughts, psychiatric disorders (such as depression, impulsive aggressive behavior, bipolar disorder, certain anxiety disorders), drug and/or alcohol abuse and previous suicide attempts, with the risk increased if there is situational stress and access to firearms.

Older Adults

- The suicide rates for men rise with age, most significantly after age 65.
- The rate of suicide in men 65+ is seven times that of females who are 65+.
- The suicide rates for women peak between the ages of 45-54 years old, and again after age 75.
- About 60 percent of elderly patients who take their own lives see their primary care physician within a few months of their death.
- Six to nine percent of older Americans who are in primary care settings suffer from major depression.
- More than 30 percent of patients suffering from major depression report suicidal ideation.
- Risk factors for suicide among the elderly include: a previous attempt, the presence of a mental illness, the presence of a physical illness, social isolation (some studies have shown this is especially so in older males who are recently widowed) and access to means, such as the availability of firearms in the home.

Depression

- Over 60 percent of all people who die by suicide suffer from major depression. If one includes alcoholics who are depressed, this figure rises to over 75 percent.
- Depression affects nearly 10 percent of Americans ages 18 and over in a given year, or more than 24 million people.
- More Americans suffer from depression than coronary heart disease (17 million), cancer (12 million) and HIV/AIDS (1 million).
- About 15 percent of the population will suffer from clinical depression at some time during their lifetime. Thirty percent of all clinically depressed patients attempt suicide; half of them ultimately die by suicide.
- Depression is among the most treatable of psychiatric illnesses. Between 80 percent and 90 percent of people with depression respond positively to treatment, and almost all patients gain some relief from their symptoms. But first, depression has to be recognized.

Alcohol and Suicide

- Ninety-six percent of alcoholics who die by suicide continue their substance abuse up to the end of their lives.
- Alcoholism is a factor in about 30 percent of all completed suicides.
- Approximately 7 percent of those with alcohol dependence will die by suicide.

Medical Illness and Suicide

- Patients who desire an early death during a serious or terminal illness are usually suffering from a treatable depressive condition.

- People with AIDS have a suicide risk up to 20 times that of the general population.
- Studies indicate that the best way to prevent suicide is through the early recognition and treatment of depression and other psychiatric illnesses.

...The research presented thus far convincingly demonstrates that ready availability of a firearm increases the likelihood of suicide.^{66,67,68} Given this stark connection, making firearms less available would seem to be a logical strategy for prevention. Since many suicides are impulsive, separating someone from the means to self-harm takes away their ability to act on what otherwise might have been a fleeting impulse.^{69,70,71,72} Suicidal crises are often triggered by an immediate stressor, such as the loss of a job or the breakup of a relationship.^{73,74,75} However, the urge to act is fairly short-lived, typically lasting a few minutes to a few hours.⁷⁶ That’s why delaying access to a gun is critical; it allows time for the suicidal impulse to pass without being realized.

However, the urge to act is fairly short-lived, typically lasting a few minutes to a few hours. That’s why delaying access to a gun is critical; it allows time for the suicidal impulse to pass without being realized.

Intervention during this time of acute risk is key to saving lives. Most people who attempt suicide don’t really want to die, they are just so overwhelmed by their emotions they feel unable to cope.⁷⁷ Indeed, the vast majority of people who make it through a suicidal crisis do not go on to die by suicide. A systematic review of 70 studies following patients after a non-fatal attempt found that, on average, only 7 percent (range: 5 to 11 percent) eventually died by suicide, whereas 70 percent did not attempt again.⁷⁸

“ People have told us that if Arlyn had not taken the gun, she could have killed herself another way. That’s possible. It’s also possible that the delay as she looked for another way would have given her mind time to move out of the suicidal trance she was in at the moment. That lost opportunity took away our chance to help and save her.”
—KARYL, ARLYN’S MOTHER

of people who attempt suicide and survive do not go on to die by suicide.

A common misconception is that people who want to die will find a way to kill themselves, with or without a gun. However, studies suggest that the risk of method substitution is low. If a person’s preferred suicide method is unavailable, it is unlikely they will switch to a different one.⁷⁹ Even if another method is used it is likely to be less lethal, thus increasing the odds of survival.⁸⁰

Reducing access to the methods people use to kill themselves can save lives. Research shows that making lethal suicide means less available or less deadly, leads to decreases in suicide rates by that method and, in some cases, lowers overall suicide rates as well.^{81,82}

Studies have documented substantial decreases in method-specific suicide rates following firearm regulation, detoxification of domestic gas, construction of barriers at jumping sites, mandatory use of catalytic converters in vehicles, modifications in drug packaging and toxicity, and restrictions on pesticides.⁸³ In fact, suicide rates have been shown to decrease by as much as 30 to 50 percent. Means reduction is more likely to impact overall suicide rates if the method is highly lethal and makes up a substantial portion of suicide deaths.⁸⁴

One of the earliest examples comes from the detoxification of domestic gas in England and Wales in the 1960s and early 1970s. Researchers found that reductions in the carbon monoxide content of domestic gas were followed by dramatic decreases in suicides by that method, while overall suicide rates decreased by approximately one-third.^{85,86}

In a systematic review of suicide interventions, an international panel of experts found that means reduction was one of only two approaches with proven effectiveness.⁸⁷ In the United States, the potential impact of means reduction is greatest for strategies involving firearms, which are the leading cause of suicide death.⁸⁸ Means reduction encompasses a broad range of interventions that can occur on a population or on an individual level. Population-based approaches include policies designed to regulate the distribution and safe storage of firearms. At the individual-level, means reduction is targeted at specific groups or individuals. Strategies can include health education and promotion in the form of mass media campaigns and individual counseling by healthcare providers.

Research has shown that reducing firearm availability can lead to reductions in firearm suicide rates.^{89,90,91,92} In one study, researchers measured the impact of changes in household firearm ownership on suicide rates in the United States between 1981 and 2002. They found that each 10 percent reduction in firearm prevalence was associated with significant declines in rates of firearm suicide (4.2 percent) and overall suicide (2.5 percent). The effect was even greater among children ages 0 to 19.⁹³ A more recent study of suicide on college and university campuses between 2004 and 2009 revealed substantially lower suicide rates for students compared to all 20- to 24-year-olds. These differences were attributed to the nine-fold decrease in firearm availability on campuses versus homes.⁹⁴

Much of the available research on means reduction initiatives targeting firearms has focused on legislation. In 1976, legislation was passed regulating the purchase, sale, and possession of handguns in Washington, DC. Adoption of the law was associated with a prompt 23 percent decline in firearm suicide rates, with no corresponding changes in rates of non-firearm suicide. Moreover, no declines were seen in adjacent areas of Maryland or Virginia, where legislation had not been passed.⁹⁵ A decrease in suicide rates among persons 55 and older was seen following passage of the Brady Handgun Violence Prevention Act, which required purchasers to undergo a background check and, for a few years, specified a five-day waiting period for firearm purchases.⁹⁶

In a recently published study, researchers found lower rates of suicide by firearm, as well as lower overall suicide rates, in states with restrictive firearm laws (e.g., background checks on all gun sales, mandatory waiting periods, safe storage requirements) compared to those with few restrictions. Although this study yielded some preliminary findings, the analysis may be flawed because it only partially accounted for potential confounders.⁹⁷

Limiting access to firearms has been shown to reduce suicide rates in many countries outside the U.S., including Australia,⁹⁸ Canada,⁹⁹ Israel,¹⁰⁰ and New Zealand.¹⁰¹ A study of the Israeli Defense Forces found that a change in policy, requiring firearms to be stored on base while soldiers took their weekend leave, resulted in a 40 percent decrease in suicide. Much of this decrease could be attributed to the policy change since the weekday suicide rate did not change significantly.¹⁰² Following a 1996 firearm massacre in which 35 people were killed, additional regulations were passed that made gun laws stronger and more uniform across Australia. The reforms included a ban on semi-automatic and pump-action rifles and shotguns, a national gun buyback program, registration of all guns, and background checks on all gun sales. Researchers found that the new gun laws accelerated the rate of decline for suicide by firearm, doubling it from 3 percent to 7.4 percent per year.¹⁰³

Suicide is a complicated issue that requires a comprehensive approach. Most suicide prevention efforts focus on identifying those at risk and treating the underlying issues that lead to suicidal thoughts and behavior. However, the enormity of the problem and the complex interplay between risk factors make it difficult to predict who will actually attempt suicide and when. That's why it is so important that suicide prevention efforts focus not only on why people take their own lives, but the ways in which they attempt suicide as well.

Session 5

Action: What Does the Lord Require of Us?

Goals & Objectives:

To explore options for action as a church community.

By the end of the session, participants will have:

- learned about several action proposals with Presbyterian roots.
- evaluated which action/s, if any, seems best for your context.
- discussed a plan for next steps, schedule and responsibility for follow up.

Setting	Adult Christian Education Forum, small group or committee meeting
Materials	___ Candle	___ copies Toolkit "Take Action!" section 3
	___ Match	___ Pen/Pencil
	___ Copies of the GA 2014 Action	___ Bibles
	___ (read beforehand)

Opening

- Light a candle to represent the presence of Christ in the room with you
- Lead the group in this or your own prayer:

Holy God, we come together today to look to you in helping us respond to what we have learned about gun violence. We ask you to be with us as we seek a first step and we thank you for one another as a community living in your name. Please give us ears to hear and eyes to see your light pointing our way. Amen.

- Read John 21: 15-19.

Presenting & Exploring

- Review the action ideas offered by the General Assembly in 2014 in On Gun Violence Prevention and the PPF toolkit Section 3, Take Action!
- Lead the group in discussion, giving everyone a chance to participate. It is okay for the discussion to veer from these specific questions as the Spirit leads.

- Can someone summarize the No Guns in God's House Sign Project? What would be pros and cons of proposing this idea in your church? What steps would be needed?
- Can someone summarize the Offering of Letters Worship Service Project? What would be pros and cons of proposing this idea in your church? What steps would be needed?
- Also review the Case Studies for Oak Park, Stony Point Presbyterian Churches and Elizabeth Presbytery. Do these examples give you any ideas?

- What other ideas for action have occurred to you? Do/could your particular elected officials play key roles?
- Discern if one idea seems to rise above other ideas for helping your church or community act to prevent gun violence. What initial steps are needed? By whom?
- Do you need to meet again? When? If you plan to meet again, try to discover who, if anyone, in your community is already working on this? What are they doing? Who might join in your effort? Review the contacts for national and local groups before you meet again.

Closing Invite each participant to lift up in a prayer of gratitude for what they most appreciated in this study experience. Close by singing The Doxology.

On Gun Violence Prevention

As Adopted by the 221st General Assembly (2014) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)

In response to Gun Violence, Gospel Values: Mobilizing in Response to God's Call, which calls us to “encourage the church at every level—from individual member to congregation, presbytery, synod, and national church—to become informed and active in preventing gun violence” and urges that “the church take responsibility to build public awareness of gun violence and the epidemic of preventable gun-related deaths” (Minutes, 2010, Part I, pp. 830ff, electronic version), the Presbytery of Hudson River, Synod of the Northeast, Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), respectfully overtures the 221st General Assembly (2014) to do the following:

1. Direct the Presbyterian Mission Agency to
 - a. provide models for congregational and local ecumenical forums to explore the dynamics of gun violence in their areas, and to select appropriate initiatives for witness and action in their communities, and
 - b. assist in the formation of support, healing, and advocacy groups for those who have experienced gun violence in their families.

2. Encourage synods, presbyteries, and seminaries to develop educational programs that include
 - a. the theological and pastoral care issues raised by murder, suicide, domestic violence, and wounding by gun violence,
 - b. a means of public acknowledgement of grief and repentance in worship and in communal events, and
 - c. links between those who have suffered from gun violence and existing support, healing, and advocacy groups.

3. Commend Presbyterian Mission Agency for the development and dissemination of the film Trigger: The Ripple Effects of Gun Violence, and the inclusion of mass shootings among the disasters addressed by PDA disaster response teams; and encourage the continuation of these important efforts.

4. Direct the PC(USA) and its constituent parts to recommit itself to work with federal, state, and local legislators to:
 - a. oppose legislation that exempts gun manufacturers and marketers from legal liability and/or financial accountability for the medical and security costs of predictable gun misuse and availability to criminals, the unstable, and the self-destructive;
 - b. support the disclosure of funds spent by gun manufacturers on lobbying, campaign contributions, and other legislative strategies that serve to undermine the protection of U.S. citizens from the highest rates of gun violence in the world;
 - c. oppose “stand your ground” and other legislation that may entitle gun owners to shoot before taking alternative measures (such as relying on law enforcement and/or other de-escalation techniques) in perceived defense of persons or property;
 - d. oppose legislation designed to permit and encourage the carrying of weapons in all areas of life, including houses of worship, noting that those in possession of guns are four times more likely to experience gun violence;
 - e. support legislation to require licensing, registration, and waiting periods to allow comprehensive background checks, and cooling-off periods;
 - f. support legislation to close the ‘gun show loophole’ by requiring background checks for all gun buyers;
 - g. support legislation to ban semiautomatic assault weapons, armor piercing handgun ammunition, and .50 caliber sniper rifles;
 - h. support legislation to advocate for new technologies to aid law-enforcement agencies to trace crime guns and promote public safety;
 - i. support legislation to raise the age for handgun ownership to the age of twenty-one;
 - j. following the recommendation of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, support laws to ‘require judges and law enforcement to remove guns from situations of domestic violence, as well as from people whose adjudicated mental illness, drug use, or previous criminal record suggests the possibility of violence,' and to increase police training in nonviolent proactive intervention;

k. advocate that federal and state governments enact legislation to regulate ammunition, guided by Gun Violence Gospel Values, as approved by the 219th General Assembly (2010);

l. Support the development, promotion, and use of 'smart gun' and 'smart ammunition' technologies that will help to prevent unintended and accidental shootings and aid law enforcement in reducing gun violence.

5. Consistent with Gun Violence, Gospel Values: Mobilizing in Response to God's Call, Recommendation 9 (page 2; see also Minutes, 2010, Part I, p. 831, electronic version), which reads "we recommend that churches and other entities prominently display signs that prohibit carrying guns onto their property," we strongly encourage

a. the session of each PC(USA) congregation to declare their particular premises and gatherings to be gun-free zones by voting to adopt the following (or similar) policy and recording it in their minutes: "Individuals (other than active law enforcement officers) are prohibited from carrying guns onto this property," and to publicize this policy by prominently displaying appropriate signage, such as one of the samples attached, which can be downloaded from a website such as the Presbyterian Peacemaking Program, Presbyterian Peace Fellowship, etc.; [See sign samples in this Toolkit, Action Resources, and on the back cover]

b. all PC(USA) entities that own property (including but not limited to the Office of the General Assembly (OGA), synods, presbyteries, camps and conference centers, educational institutions, etc.) to declare their particular premises and gatherings to be gun-free zones by adopting the following or a similar policy as indicated by official vote and recorded in the minutes: "Individuals (other than active law-enforcement officers) are prohibited from carrying guns onto this property," and to publicize this policy by prominently displaying appropriate signage, such as one of the samples attached, which can be downloaded from a website such as Presbyterian Peacemaking Program, Presbyterian Peace Fellowship, etc.; [See sign samples in this Toolkit, p. 52 and on the back cover]

c. individual Presbyterians to bear witness to the gospel value of peacemaking and to build safer and more secure communities by advocating for similar gun-free zone policies in their workplaces, schools, neighborhood businesses, and gathering places.

(2014 General Assembly Vote: 484 affirming, 87 opposed, or 85% approval) Action was item 09-07 and can be found here: <https://www.pc-biz.org/#/search/4627>

Rationale [for the GA Action Above]

This rationale reaffirms the two basic arguments for church involvement in the matter of gun violence: the scale of this ongoing tragedy and the biblical and theological bases for engagement by Presbyterians.

The Scale of the Ongoing Tragedy The scale of gun violence in the United States includes, annually, the deaths of at least 3,000 children (often underreported) and 25,000 adults (with suicides underreported), with more than 100,000 wounded, often seriously. Beyond the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)'s booklet, *Gun Violence; Gospel Values*¹, extensive data and detailed policy considerations can be found in the recent book, *Reducing Gun Violence in America*².

Biblical Basis Christian opposition to gun violence begins with Jesus' teaching and example: that we should love our neighbors, love our enemies; that all who take the sword will perish by the sword; that peacemakers are blessed and will be called children of God. These (and other) statements are echoed in the New Testament letters: that our bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit; that we should be holy in all our conduct; that we should love righteousness and hate wickedness; and leave vengeance to the Lord. Further, the prophetic tradition identifies the need for broader social change: that we should turn our swords (guns) into plowshares and our spears (rocket launchers) into pruning hooks and learn war no more. Overall, through the Spirit, we hear the blood of those senselessly slain crying out from the ground for us to act and not be weary. The first letter of John challenges us not to love in word or speech but in deed and in truth. We must struggle with how to implement the vision, a challenge that was taken up by John Calvin as well. At the very core of his theology was an understanding that the intentions of God should be implemented on earth.

Theological Basis The theological position that guns are idols in our society is put forward most directly by former PC(USA) missionary, Jim Atwood, a hunter and gun owner himself, in America and Its Guns: A Theological Expose.³ Atwood and others seek to explain why it has been so difficult to pass responsible legislation, despite public opinion polls showing large majorities in favor. This theological explanation does not claim that all gun owners are idolatrous, but that economic and ideological (and politically polarized) explanations are not enough, and that gun violence must be put under the sovereignty of the Lord of life. It is not necessary, of course, to subscribe to any particular theological account to seek to reduce gun violence in the U.S. and in the world.

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has been concerned about the frightening gun violence phenomenon, and has consistently spoken out about it for three decades, as have our sisters and brothers in virtually every other faith tradition. This overture expands upon the existing policy of the General Assembly by providing specific ways for individuals and congregations to have a voice and take action in confronting the gun violence crisis. As stated in the last paragraph of Gun Violence, Gospel Values, “The Call to Action” (pp 19–20; see also Minutes, 2010, Part I, p. 842, electronic version),

God has provided us with the elements to be agents of change in the world. The change needs to be comprehensive: we need to address the idolatry of guns, the violence that permeates our culture, our obsessions with personal rights over public responsibility, the practices of widespread and indiscriminate sale of military style weapons, as well as the legislation necessary to regulate the accessibility and sale of military weapons disguised as “sporting guns.” We must keep our “eyes on the prize,” of preventing gun violence and the unnecessary deaths and injuries that result. Enough blood has been spilled. We affirm that through good organizational effort, animated by the passion for justice that comes to the people of God through the Holy Spirit, gun violence can be dramatically reduced.

So far, our denomination’s efforts to affect change have been largely focused outside the church walls on advocacy efforts toward gun-shop owners and legislative change. Sadly, in 2013, we have seen how unwilling our legislators are to carry out the will of the American public regarding background checks and other laws that would restrict the ownership of assault weapons and ammunition. We believe that we need to provide a stronger witness in the world by living out our commitment to nonviolence within our buildings and equipping our members with resources to effect change in their local communities.

Recent expanded provisions in concealed carry laws in many states now allow guns to be carried into places never before considered appropriate, including into houses of worship. It is important that our churches, at the grassroots level, stand firm against the deception that more guns in more places makes us somehow safer and more secure. Gun manufacturers and guns rights advocates routinely claim that more guns in the hands of “good guys” will make the world safer. However, statistics actually show that where there are more guns, there is more violence.⁴ It is time for the faith community to have its say.

Gun violence can be a difficult subject to talk about in any context, but it finds particular resistance within the walls of the church, where many people believe “political” issues should not be discussed. (Jim Atwood’s America and Its Guns: A Theological Expose, Chapter 2, “Closing the Door on Discussion,” discusses the particular difficulty of talking about gun violence as a spiritual rather than political issue.) As a result, very little meaningful discussion is happening in the church or elsewhere. We are hopeful that this overture will boldly stimulate healthy and helpful conversation, as well as create “constructive, nonviolent tension” as encouraged by the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., in his Letter from a Birmingham Jail:

You may well ask: “Why direct action? Isn’t negotiation a better path?” You are quite right in calling for negotiation. Indeed, this is the very purpose of direct action. Nonviolent direct action seeks to create such a crisis and foster such a tension that a community which has constantly refused to negotiate is forced to confront the issue. It seeks so to dramatize the issue that it can no longer be ignored. My citing the creation of tension as part of the work of the nonviolent resister may sound rather shocking. But I must confess that I am not afraid of the word “tension.” I have earnestly opposed violent tension, but there is a type of constructive, nonviolent tension which is necessary for growth.

(http://www.africa.upenn.edu/Articles_Gen/Letter_Birmingham.html)

In recent months an advocacy group called “Moms Demand Action for Gun Sense in America” started an on-line campaign asking Starbucks to prohibit guns in their stores. It only took a short time for the company to change its policy. This demonstrates the power of average citizens to claim their right to “life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness.” Encouraging individual Presbyterians to build safer and more secure communities by advocating for similar gun-free zone policies in their workplaces, schools, neighborhood businesses, and gathering places, allows them to bear witness to the gospel value of peacemaking with concrete action.

Similarly, in A Social Creed for the 21st Century, the 218th General Assembly (2008) approved the following, which also shows a strong commitment to working together for peace in our country:

We—individual Christians and churches—commit ourselves to a culture of peace and freedom that embraces nonviolence, nurtures character, treasures the environment, and builds community, rooted in a spirituality of inner growth with outward action. We make this commitment together—as members of Christ’s body, led by the one Spirit — trusting in the God who makes all things new.

Tapestry: Reweaving the Fabric of Community After Public Violence

The Tapestry film looks at the effects of public violence events in congregations and the communities of which they are a part. It is framed through the lens of Presbyterian Disaster Assistance National Response Team members who have responded to public violence events and support those communities of faith and their leaders as they walk through the valley of the shadow of trauma and its aftermath and begin the process of healing. 21 minutes.

Recovering From Un-Natural Disasters: A Guide for Pastors and Congregations After Violence & Trauma

By Laurie Kraus, David Holyan & Bruce Wismer

Recovering from Un-Natural Disasters is a must-read handbook for pastors and church leaders of communities who could or perhaps already have experienced an un-natural disaster, such as gun violence, suicides, or sexual abuse.

Unlike natural disasters, un-natural disasters deal with the concept of sin and require a different recovery strategy. In this book, readers will explore the four phases of human-caused disaster — Devastation and Heroism, Disillusionment, Reforming, and Wisdom — and receive step-by-step suggestions to use with their faith community during the recovery process. Example worship resources, including prayers, music suggestions, and sermons that are appropriate to use during periods of trauma and recovery, are included. To purchase the book:

Scripture Passages for Addressing Gun Violence

OLD TESTAMENT

- Genesis 1:27 - We are created in the image of God
- Exodus 20:13 - Thou shall not kill
- Leviticus 19 - God's shalom to reign in all aspects of life
- Deuteronomy 21:1-9 - Take Responsibility for a murder
- Deuteronomy 30:11; 19-20 - Choose life that you may live
- Isaiah 2:3-4 - Beat swords into plowshares
- Isaiah 9:5-7 - Unto us a child is born
- Isaiah 11:1-9 - A vision of peace
- Isaiah 30:9ff - Those who spurn God's call to righteousness
- Isaiah 40: 1-11 - Comfort for God's people
- Isaiah 58:12 - Being a repairer of the breach
- Jeremiah 29: 1ff - Seek the Welfare of the City
- Zechariah 8:1ff - Zechariah's vision of New Jerusalem

NEW TESTAMENT

- Matthew 5:9 - Blessed are the peacemakers
- Matthew 5:13ff - You are the salt of the earth, light of world
- Matthew 6:10 - Thy Kingdom Come on earth
- Matthew 19:19 - Love your neighbor as yourself
- Matthew 26:52 - Those who live by the sword die by it
- Luke 10:25-28 - Thinking is important The Great commandment
- Luke 22:47-53 - Jesus and Violence
- I Corinthians 13 - Greatest of these is love
- II Corinthians 5:16ff - God gave us the ministry of reconciliation
- Galatians 6:7-10 - Don't lose heart
- Ephesians 6:10ff - Wrestling against a gigantic evil
- Philippians 2:1ff - The Mind of Christ
- Revelation 5:9-13 - The victor over evil is Lamb who was slain
- Revelation 11:15 - Kingdoms of world become kingdoms of Christ
- Revelation 19:6 - God's certain victory over evil

These texts certainly do not exhaust the Biblical witness against humanity's bent to call evil good and good evil. The Bible presents God's recurring call for us to love mercy and do justice and to fight against violence, injustice and exploitation as we trust in the ultimate victory of God over all that negates and degrades human life.

The Bible brims with hope because God is sovereign. "Though the wrong seems off so strong, God is the Ruler yet." God's word encourages us to be a reconciler, a peacemaker, to love neighbors, to do justice, to build shalom--the well-being of all people in human society.

Tune: O WALY WALY 8.8.8.8

Hymn text by Carolyn Winfrey Gillette

All rights reserved. Church use granted.

If we just talk of thoughts and prayers
And don't live out a faith that dares,
And don't take on the ways of death,
Our thoughts and prayers are fleeting breath.

If we just dream of what could be
And do not build community,
And do not seek to change our ways,
Our dreams of change are false displays.

If we just sing of doing good
And don't walk through our neighborhood
To learn its hope, to ease its pain,
Our talk of good is simply vain.

God, may our prayers and dreams and songs
Lead to a faith that takes on wrongs —
That works for peace and justice, too.
Then will our prayers bring joy to you.

Call To Worship

Leader: Come let us go to the mountain of the LORD,
that we may walk the path of the Most High.

People: That we may beat our swords into ploughshares,
and our spears into pruning hooks.

Leader: We gather today in remembrance of all those killed or harmed by gun violence in _____ just this week.

People: We mourn the loss of nearly 40,000 of our brothers and sisters, killed by guns in our country this year.

Leader: We are a nation at war with ourselves, a people who have forgotten who we are.

People: We gather today to remember that we are each a child of God.

We gather to claim our belonging to each other and our commitment to living the way of God's peace.

Leader: Come let us go to the mountain of the LORD,
that we may walk the path of the Most High.

People: That we may beat our swords into ploughshares,
and our spears into pruning hooks.

Leader: Neighbor shall not lift up gun against neighbor.
Neither shall they learn violence any more.

All: And none shall be afraid, for the mouth of the Lord of Hosts has spoken.

Opening Prayer

Gracious God,

Inspire us with the gift of shalom,
the gift of wholeness and the promise of your presence.

Give us wisdom to seek nonviolence as an answer to the violence of our lives and world.

Give us courage to seek wholeness in a fractured and divided world, to find reconciliation rather than revenge, to abandon the instruments of violence and death and entrust our lives, our homes and our families to you.

May your presence fill us and others with the thirst for unity, wholeness, and the desire to see all people valued as created in your image.

May we and others receive your Shalom that we might be faithful instruments of your love. Amen.

Hymn: God of Mercy A Hymn Lamenting Gun Violence

Scripture Reading

Psalm 46

God is our refuge and our strength, who from of old has helped us in our distress.

Therefore we fear nothing – even if the earth should open up in front of us and mountains plunge into the depths of the sea, even if the earth's waters rage and foam and the mountains tumble with its heaving.

There's a river whose streams gladden the city of God,

the holy dwelling of the Most High.
 God is in its midst, it will never fall –
 God will help it at daybreak.
 Though nations are in turmoil and empires crumble,
 God's voice resounds, and it melts the earth.

The God of Hosts is with us –
 our stronghold is the God of Israel!

Come, see what Yahweh has done –
 God makes the earth bounteous!
 God has put an end to war,
 from one end of the earth to the other,
 breaking bows, splintering spears,
 and setting chariots on fire.
 "Be still, and know that I am God!
 I will be exalted among the nations;
 I will be exalted upon the earth."

The God of Hosts is with us –
 our stronghold is the God of Israel!

Hymn: Amazing Grace

We Remember...

Time of Reflection and Remembrance

During this time, you may offer a brief reflection or remembrance.

Litany of Remembrance

Leader 1: Let us remember all who have been harmed by violence.

We acknowledge the strength of those who survived and of those still struggling to heal.

For their sake and for ours, we commit ourselves to building each other up and to healing – together.

Leader 2: Let us remember the families and loved ones of those who have died from gun violence.

We acknowledge their pain and their deep grief.

They too, are part of our community, and need our love and help towards healing.

Leader 3: Let us remember the perpetrators, and the families of those who commit violence.

We acknowledge that their lives, too, are devastated and their hopes dashed.

For their sake and for ours, we remember that pain goes in many directions from each act of violence.

All: We will stand up to violence.

We stand together expressing our unity, our connection to each other and to the divine;
 our hope for healing and for transformation.

Let the Spirit of our Creator move through us.

Help us to transform and heal our communities.

And let us begin by transforming ourselves. Amen.

We Hope...

Scripture Reading

Matthew 5:1-12

When Jesus saw the crowds, he went up on the mountainside, and after he sat down and the disciples had gathered around, Jesus began to teach them. He said:

Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

Blessed are those who mourn, for they will be comforted.

Blessed are the meek, for they will inherit the earth.

Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, for they will be filled.

Blessed are the merciful, for they will be shown mercy.

Blessed are the pure in heart, for they will see God.

Blessed are the peacemakers, for they will be called children of God.

Blessed are those who are persecuted because of righteousness, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

Blessed are you when people insult you, persecute you and falsely say all kinds of evil against you because of me.

Rejoice and be glad, because great is your reward in heaven, for in the same way they persecuted the prophets who were before you.

We Pray...

Closing Prayer

Let us be at peace with our bodies and our minds.

Let us return to ourselves and become wholly ourselves.

Let us be aware of the source of being, common to us all and to all living things.

Evoking the presence of the Great Compassion, let us fill our hearts with our own compassion – towards ourselves and towards all living beings.

Let us pray that we ourselves cease to be the cause of suffering to each other. With humility, with awareness of the existence of life, and of the sufferings that are going on around us, let us practice the establishment of peace in our hearts and on earth.

-- Thich N'hat Hanh

Hymn: The Canticle of the Turning

We Act...

Write a message on a prayer flag,* soon to be sent to the people of _____ .

Sign letters to our legislators.

Join us as we mobilize in response to God's call.

 The prayer flags were pieces of fabric, (5 x 7) in different colors. Participants used permanent markers to send a short symbol or prayer. The flags were sent to the Presbyterian Church or Presbytery office nearest the gun violence attack, inviting them to hang the flags outside their building, as a sign of our mutual grief and support.*

A Litany on the Tragedy of Gun Violence

Written for Martin Luther King Day by Rev. Mark Koenig for the Presbyterian Peacemaking Program

One: We celebrate and give thanks for the life and witness of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Many: Who proclaimed a vision of all people living together, and bore witness to the power of non-violence,

One: We gather, to remember his words, his commitment, his life and to rededicate ourselves to addressing the evil of gun violence,

Many: which claimed his life and which continues to plague our country and the world.

One: Nearly 40,000 Americans die by guns each year in the United States.

Many: And we grieve.

One: An average of 100 people is killed by guns every day, including thirteen children.

Many: And our hearts break.

One: Guns kill some 1,000 people each day in the developing world.

Many: And we mourn.

One: An American child is twelve times more likely to die by a gun than are the children who live in all twenty-five industrialized nations combined.

Many: And we weep.

One: The annual economic cost of gun violence in America is estimated to be at least $100 billion. Medical costs, decimated families, the court system, our jails and prisons, and security measures in airports, schools, and public buildings all contribute to this sum.

Many: And sorrow sweeps over us.

One: Since John F. Kennedy was assassinated in 1963, more Americans have died by gun fire within our own country than American servicemen and women who were killed in all our wars of the 20th century.

Many: And we pray.

One: Faced with gun violence,

Many: We grieve for those are killed and those whose lives are forever changed; We seek to comfort for those who have lost loved ones; We pray for a change of heart for those who resort to violence.

One: Faced with gun violence, may we

Many: Educate; Organize; Advocate;
And in all the ways we can, work for that day when Guns and weapons of destruction
Are transformed into instruments of healing.

One: May it be so.

Many: May we so do.

When You Fear Someone May Take Their Life

This section is not offered as medical advice or to replace professional medical intervention and help. These are suggestions from the American Foundation for Suicide Prevention.*

Most suicidal individuals give some warning of their intentions. The most effective way to prevent a friend or loved one from taking his or her life is to recognize the factors that put people at risk for suicide, take warning signs seriously and know how to respond.

The National Suicide Prevention Lifeline at 1-800-273-TALK (8255).

Know the Facts

PSYCHIATRIC DISORDERS

More than 90 percent of people who kill themselves are suffering from one or more psychiatric disorders, in particular:

- Major depression (especially when combined with alcohol and/or drug abuse)
- Bipolar depression
- Alcohol abuse and dependence
- Drug abuse and dependence
- Schizophrenia
- Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD)
- Eating disorders
- Personality disorders

Depression and the other mental disorders that may lead to suicide are -- in most cases -- both recognizable and treatable. Remember, depression can be lethal.

The core symptoms of major depression are a “down” or depressed mood most of the day or a loss of interest or pleasure in activities that were previously enjoyed for at least two weeks, as well as:

- Changes in sleeping patterns
- Change in appetite or weight
- Intense anxiety, agitation, restlessness or being slowed down
- Fatigue or loss of energy
- Decreased concentration, indecisiveness or poorer memory
- Feelings of hopelessness, worthlessness, self-reproach or excessive or inappropriate guilt
- Recurrent thoughts of death or suicide

PAST SUICIDE ATTEMPTS

Between 25 and 50 percent of people who kill themselves had previously attempted suicide. Those who have made suicide attempts are at higher risk for actually taking their own lives.

Availability of means: In the presence of depression and other risk factors, ready access to guns and other weapons, medications or other methods of self-harm increases suicide risk.

Recognize the Imminent Dangers

The signs that most directly warn of suicide include:

- Threatening to hurt or kill oneself
- Looking for ways to kill oneself (weapons, pills or other means)
- Talking or writing about death, dying or suicide
- Has made plans or preparations for a potentially serious attempt

Other warning signs include expressions or other indications of certain intense feelings in addition to depression, in particular:

- Insomnia
- Intense anxiety, usually exhibited as psychic pain or internal tension, as well as panic attacks
- Feeling desperate or trapped -- like there's no way out
- Feeling hopeless
- Feeling there's no reason or purpose to live
- Rage or anger

Certain behaviors can also serve as warning signs, particularly when they are not characteristic of the person's normal behavior. These include:

- Acting reckless or engaging in risky activities
- Engaging in violent or self-destructive behavior
- Increasing alcohol or drug use
- Withdrawing from friends or family

Take it Seriously

- Fifty to 75 percent of all suicides give some warning of their intentions to a friend or family member.
- Imminent signs must be taken seriously.

Be Willing to Listen

- Start by telling the person you are concerned and give him/her examples.
- If he/she is depressed, don't be afraid to ask whether he/she is considering suicide, or if he/ she has a particular plan or method in mind.
- Ask if they have a therapist and are taking medication.
- Do not attempt to argue someone out of suicide. Rather, let the person know you care, that he/she is not alone, that suicidal feelings are temporary and that depression can be treated. Avoid the temptation to say, "You have so much to live for," or "Your suicide will hurt your family."

Seek Professional Help

- Be actively involved in encouraging the person to see a physician or mental health professional immediately.
- Individuals contemplating suicide often don't believe they can be helped, so you may have to do more.
- Help the person find a knowledgeable mental health professional or a reputable treatment facility, and take them to the treatment.

In an Acute Crisis

If a friend or loved one is threatening, talking about or making plans for suicide, these are signs of an acute crisis.

- Do not leave the person alone.
- Remove from the vicinity any firearms, drugs or sharp objects that could be used for suicide.
- Take the person to an emergency room or walk-in clinic at a psychiatric hospital.
- If a psychiatric facility is unavailable, go to your nearest hospital or clinic.
- If the above options are unavailable, call 911 or:

The National Suicide Prevention Lifeline at 1-800-273-TALK (8255).

Follow-up on Treatment

- Suicidal individuals are often hesitant to seek help and may need your continuing support to pursue treatment after an initial contact.
- If medication is prescribed, make sure your friend or loved one is taking it exactly as prescribed. Be aware of possible side effects and be sure to notify the physician if the person seems to be getting worse. Usually, alternative medications can be prescribed.
- Frequently the first medication doesn't work. It takes time and persistence to find the right medication(s) and therapist for the individual person.

Talking about Suicide

Give accurate information about suicide

- Suicide is a complicated behavior. It is not caused by a single event such as a bad grade, an argument with loved ones, or the breakup of a relationship.
- In most cases, suicide is caused by an underlying mental disorder like depression or substance abuse. Mental disorders affect the way people feel and prevent them from thinking clearly and rationally. Having a mental disorder is nothing to be ashamed of, and help is available.
- Talking about suicide in a calm, straightforward manner does not put ideas into other people's minds, adults or kids.
- Address blaming and scapegoating. It is common to try to answer the question "why?" after a suicide death. Sometimes this turns into blaming others for the death. Ultimately, this question is impossible to answer.
- Do not focus on the method or graphic details. Talking in graphic detail about the method can create images that are upsetting and can increase the risk of imitative behavior by vulnerable individuals.
- If asked, it is okay to give basic facts about the method, but don't give graphic details or talk at length about it. The focus should be not on how someone killed themselves but rather on how to cope with feelings of sadness, loss, anger, etc.
- Address anger. Accept expressions of anger at the deceased and explain that these feelings are normal.
- Address feelings of responsibility. Reassure those who feel responsible or think they could have done something to save the deceased.
- Encourage help-seeking. Encourage individuals to seek help from a trusted family and a counselor if they or a friend are feeling depressed or suicidal.

Supporting Those Who Grieve

1. Coping with Loss

Survivors, the ones left in the wake of death, often experience a wide range of grief reactions, including some or all of the following:

- Shock is a common immediate reaction. You may feel numb or disoriented, and may have trouble concentrating.
- Symptoms of depression, including disturbed sleep, loss of appetite, intense sadness, and lack of energy.
- Anger towards the deceased, a perpetrator, another family member, a therapist, or yourself.
- Relief, particularly if there was a suicide following a long and difficult mental illness.
- Guilt, including thinking, "If only I had..."
- These feelings usually diminish over time, as you develop your ability to cope and begin to heal.

WHAT DO I DO NOW?

- You may find that it helps to reach out to family and friends. Because some people may not know what to say, you may need to take the initiative to talk about the suicide or gun violence, share your feelings, and ask for their help.
- Even though it may seem difficult, maintaining contact with other people is especially important during the stress-filled months after a loved one's death.
- Keep in mind that each person grieves in his or her own way. Some people visit the cemetery weekly; others find it too painful to go at all.
- Each person also grieves at his or her own pace; there is no set rhythm or timeline for healing.
- Anniversaries, birthdays, and holidays may be especially difficult, so you might want to think about whether to continue old traditions or create some new ones. You may also experience unexpected waves of sadness; these are a normal part of the grieving process.
- Children experience many of the feelings of adult grief, and are particularly vulnerable to feeling abandoned and guilty. Reassure them that the death was not their fault. Listen to their questions, and try to offer honest, straightforward, age-appropriate answers.
- Some survivors find comfort in community, religious, or spiritual activities, including talking to a trusted member of the clergy.
- Be kind to yourself. When you feel ready, begin to go on with your life. Eventually starting to enjoy life again is not a betrayal of your loved one, but rather a sign that you've begun to heal.

“One learns to live with the loss, the tragedy, the waste, and the gaping hole in the fabric of one’s life.

There is no closure, nor would I want one. I want to remember him all my life, vividly: his laughter, the smell of his sneakers under his bed, his moments of joy, his humility, and his integrity.”

Excerpted from Surviving Suicide Loss: A Resource and Healing Guide.

2. Practical Coping Strategies

Encourage survivors to think about specific things they can do when intense emotions such as worry or sadness begin to well up, including:

- seeing a therapist or a group for survivors
- thinking about how they've coped with difficulties in the past and reminding themselves that they can use those same coping skills now
- for survivors of loss to gun violence, participating in relationships and shared concerns with other gun violence survivors for support and action groups
- simple relaxation and distraction skills, such as taking three deep slow breaths, counting to 10, or picturing themselves in a favorite calm and relaxing place
- exercising, journaling
- writing a list of people they can turn to for support
- writing a list of things they're looking forward to
- focusing on individual goals, such as returning to a class or church, or spending time with mutual friends

3. Being Present With Those Who Grieve

Suggestions for writing a note:

- Keep it brief and simple
- Communicate your support and care
- Share memories of the bereaved
- and/or communicate appreciation for their life
- Affirm the grieving process
- Write what you are feeling in your heart.

EXAMPLE:

Dear _____,

I was so sad to learn about your loss of _____, I can't imagine your pain right now. I hope that with time with the kids, or anything else, please don't hesitate to call. I'll call you in a couple weeks when things have calmed down.

With love, _____ Your phone number _____

4. Reminders about being with those who grieve:

- Be a good listener and affirm the feelings of the bereaved—if they are sad, angry, or happy
- Silence is okay.
- Let them guide you in their needs—they might want to tell a story, hear a joke, or have some-one sit with them while they cry. People grieve differently and they may grieve differently than you. In the aftermath of gun violence grief, some may want to join in a gun violence prevention group and some may not.
- Offer practical help.
 - It doesn't all depend on you—the blessing of living in community is that different people can offer care in different ways.
 - Be patient!—everyone goes through their own process in their own time.
 - Remember that holidays are hard, as is the first anniversary of the death.

Keeping checking in with them in the months ahead.

"No Guns in God's House" Sign Project PC(USA) General Assembly Proposal to Congregations, 2014

Gun Violence now causes nearly 40,000 deaths each year in the United States and more than 100,000 injuries, accompanied by an unquantifiable amount of trauma, grief and fear. The scope of the problem can be overwhelming, leaving many people feeling paralyzed, numb and hopeless to act. Although Americans typically categorize gun violence as a political issue, it is in fact, a spiritual and theological issue.

That's why the 221st General Assembly of the PC(USA) asked congregations to post "No Guns in God's House" signs and decals. This action offers churches an entry into dialogue about the spiritual issues of gun violence and our call as Christians to be peacemakers. The signs also offer churches a vehicle to witness to the way of nonviolence and to declare church property to be a sanctuary, free from violence and fear.

Trinity Presbyterian Church,
Harrisonburg, VA

No Guns in God's House FAQs

Why should we declare church property to be a Gun-Free Zone?

Our denomination's efforts to affect change have been largely focused outside the church walls on advocacy and legislative change. Sadly, we have seen how unwilling our legislators are to carry out the will of the American public. We believe it is time to provide a stronger witness by living out our commitment to nonviolence within our buildings and equipping members with resources to affect change.

Recent expanded provisions in concealed carry laws in many states now allow guns to be carried into places never before considered appropriate, including into houses of worship. It is important that churches stand firm against the deception that more guns in more places makes us somehow safer and more secure.

Gun violence can be a difficult subject to talk about in any context, but it finds particular resistance within the church, where many people believe "political" issues should not be discussed. As a result, very little meaningful discussion happens in church or elsewhere about guns. We hope that this signage will stimulate healthy and helpful conversation that will embolden congregations to witness for love and peace, and stand against fear.

Which sign should we use?

The square & circle images offer options for your congregation to choose. Or you can create your own sign. The rectangular image includes some space for you to post necessary language to meet local codes, if you opt to include it. You may want to specify in the rectangle that the church is a gun-free zone except for active law enforcement officers.

Will these signs meet code to be legal where we are?

Check your local requirements. Municipalities, counties and states are writing new laws all the time regarding gun-free zone signage. Research all levels of government that have jurisdiction over your community before deciding which image is the right option for you and whether or not your congregation intends to comply with these codes. Many of these codes are designed to make no-guns signage so large and unwieldy that businesses and other locations will not post it. But we are the church. Have courage! Posting your signs on your property is an act of faith and witness. Study the rules and prayerfully determine the right step for you.

Does a Session vote on this or do we need a congregational vote?

The Session has spiritual and policy-making authority in a congregation, so it is appropriate for the Session to vote on use of these signs. Sample policy language, suggested by the 2014 GA, to record in minutes: "Individuals (other than active law-enforcement officers) are prohibited from carrying guns onto this property." This is, however, a very important conversation for congregations to have – what does it mean to you to post these signs on church property? There are many resources available to sessions and congregations to engage these issues from a spiritual and theological perspective. Talk about it, together!

New.... Count Me In! Campaign

The PPF Working Group on Gun Violence Prevention has launched the Count Me In! Campaign to encourage more and more Presbyterians to make a commitment to do something in their local church and community to help prevent gun violence. We are looking for thousands of local Presbyterians to hear God's call to action.

The campaign resources below can be used in your local church or presbytery, as helpful to you. Prayer is a key part of this campaign, asking God to help us become active solution-finders and not passive observers of the gun violence epidemic in our country.

Count Me In!

10 Ways Your Church Can Help Prevent Gun Violence

1. Form a study group with the help of the Gun Violence Prevention Congregational Toolkit presbypeacefellowship.org/gun-violence/resources
2. Invite church youth to form a chapter of Students Demand Action
3. Host a screening of the documentary Trigger or The Presbyterian Outlook webinar, "Engaging the Holy Work of Gun Violence Prevention" at pres-outlook.org
4. Hold an "Offering of Letters" service.
5. Take and share the Citizen's Test on Gun Violence in America. See tinyurl.com/ppfgvpquiz
6. Visit elected officials on background checks & banning assault weapons
7. Hold a prayer vigil for victims of gun violence
8. Create a public display, like a t-shirt memorial.
9. Host an open candidates' forum on the topic of gun violence.
10. Post a No Guns in God's House sign.

A Presbyterian Prayer for Action

Gracious God, whose mercy never ends, whose Spirit brings the Kairos moment for change: We confess our past willingness to abide the deaths of over one million, six hundred thousand souls lost to gun violence since 1968 -- the children, the parents, the distraught, as well as millions more injured, ruined, orphaned, widowed. Help us to comprehend this carnage and not become numb.

We give thanks for the long witness of the General Assembly and all Presbyterians who are already engaged in preventing gun violence. We thank you for raising up the students to lead us with marches, walk-outs and passion born of pain.

We call upon you, Lord; we have nowhere else to turn. Galvanize all of us, every congregation in the Presbyterian Church. Wake us up in our pews and our lives; do not let Christ find us asleep on this watch. Rather, Lord, grant to our church members, both those of us who own guns and those of us who do not, a unity of purpose to change the national debate on gun violence. Show us the path.

At all the places where you are proclaimed, give us courage to stand against principalities and powers. Grant us the joy of using the gifts that you provide -- energy, intelligence, imagination and love-- to help our communities and our nation heal from this tragedy and sorrow. In Christ's name we pray, Amen.

Offering of Letters

Worship Service for Gun Violence Prevention

The Offering of Letters Service was created for the Presbyterian Peace Fellowship by Rev. Sara Dorrien-Christians.

OPTIONS FOR MOVING FORWARD

For congregations already committed to preventing gun violence, use the worship outline below. You could invite members of the Presbytery and other local churches to join you for the service. After the service, invite those who are interested in learning more or committing to action to meet immediately following the service or a week later at a predetermined location. As a group, work your way through PPF's "Gun Violence Prevention Curriculum" or Jim Atwood's book, "America and Its Guns: A Theological Exposé," using the study guide questions created by Jan Orr-Harter. (See this Toolkit, Educational Resources)

For congregations who are committed to reform but want to learn a little more before offering their letters in a worship service, you might want to screen the 54 minute movie Trigger, followed immediately by an "Offering of Letters" Worship Service. (See Toolkit Educational Resources) After the service, invite those who are interested in learning more or committing to action to meet a week later at a predetermined location. As a group, work your way through PPF's "Gun Violence Prevention Curriculum" or Jim Atwood's book, "America and Its Guns: A Theological Exposé," using the study guide questions.

For congregations that aren't as familiar with the issue and need more time to learn, digest, and discern how they are called to respond, you might plan a screening of the movie Trigger OR an educational session using PPF's "Gun Violence Prevention Curriculum," Session # 1. After the meeting, explain what the Offering of Letters worship service is, and provide the participants with the sample letter. Invite the participants to join you for the service, set at a later date. If they feel called to do so, they may write their letters in advance or write them within the service itself. Then hold the Offering of Letters Service, as outlined below, and afterwards invite those who are interested in learning more or committing to action to meet a week later at a predetermined location. As a group, work your way through PPF's "Gun Violence Prevention" Curriculum or Jim Atwood's book, "America and Its Guns: A Theological Exposé," using the study guide questions.

WHAT YOU'LL NEED for the Offering of Letters Service

1. Review Worship, Scripture and Hymn suggestions in this Toolkit, next page.
2. Include the following items in your bulletin:
 - a. A list of relevant Senators or Representatives from your district with their addresses. To determine relevancy, consider the following: -What district/districts are likely to be represented by those gathered? Is it more beneficial to write to a Congressional Representative or a Senator right now?
 - b. Paper to write on, a pen, a stamped envelope.
 - c. A Sample Letter. (See below.)

Outline for OFFERING OF LETTERS SAMPLE SERVICE

Call to Worship (1 John 3:18)

One: Little children, let us love, not in word or speech,
Many: but in truth and action.

One: Let us worship God.

OR (Luke 1:78-79)

One: By the tender mercy of our God,

Many: the dawn from on high will break upon us.

One: Giving light to those who sit in darkness and in the shadow of death,

Many: to guide our feet into the way of peace.

Opening Hymn

Call to Confession:

Friends, we are reminded constantly that Rachel still weeps for her children. Our hearts are heavy as we consider those who are wounded and die this very week, this very day, this very hour on our city streets, in our schools, and in our homes. We have hurt each other by our action, and by our inaction. In penitence and in abiding faith for our world made whole, let us confess our sin before God and neighbor. Let us pray.

*Selected portions in Spanish from the bilingual Offering of Letters Service at College Hill Community Church, Dayton, OH.
Over 90 letters were written at the service.*

Líder: Amigos, constantemente recordamos que Raquel sigue llorando por sus hijos. Nos pesa el corazón al considerar a los heridos y muertos de ésta misma semana, éste mismo día y ésta misma hora en las calles de nuestra ciudad ... en nuestras escuelas y en nuestros hogares. Nos hemos herido unos a otros por nuestra acción y por nuestra inacción. En la penitencia y en fe permanente para nuestro mundo en su totalidad, confesamos nuestros pecados ante Dios y el prójimo. Oremos

Prayer of Confession:

God of justice and of grace, sometimes we feel far from bearing your image. Although we can sense that things are not right, we prize the comfort of familiarity over the risk of the unknown. Although we know the numbers and statistics, they largely remain just that, failing to leave an imprint on our heart and conscience. We hear but we don't listen, see but we don't behold, feel but we don't act.

In your steadfast kindness and mercy, forgive us. Hasten us to know ourselves as claimed in spite of our darkness, and free us to be agents of your peace. Amen.

OR (especially for services NOT preceded by a screening of Trigger or any educational forum)

Prayer of Confession:

One: God of justice and of grace, sometimes we feel far from bearing your image. 90 people die of every day from gun violence in the U.S. 10 of these are children. Lord, in your mercy,

Líder: Dios de justicia y de gracia, a veces nos sentimos lejos de llevar tu imagen. 90 personas mueren todos los días a causa de la violencia con armas de fuego en los EE. UU. 10 de estos son niños. Señor, en tu misericordia,

Many: Forgive us. Todos: Perdónanos.

One: God of justice and of grace, sometimes we feel far from bearing your image. The U.S. rate of firearms deaths for children is twelve times higher than 25 other industrialized nations combined. Lord, in your mercy,

Líder: Dios de justicia y de gracia, a veces nos sentimos lejos de llevar tu imagen. La tasa de muertes por arma de fuego en los Estados Unidos para los niños es doce veces más alta que las otras 25 naciones industrializadas juntas. Señor, en tu misericordia,

Many: Forgive us. Todos: Perdónanos.

One: God of justice and of grace, sometimes we feel far from bearing your image. 30,000 Americans die from guns every year in the U.S. This is far more than the total of servicemen and women killed in the war in Iraq. Lord, in your mercy,

Líder: Dios de justicia y de gracia, a veces nos sentimos lejos de llevar tu imagen. 30,000 estadounidenses mueren a causa de las armas cada año en los Estados Unidos. Esto es mucho más que el total de hombres y mujeres muertos en la guerra en Iraq. Señor, en tu misericordia,

Many: Forgive us. Todos: Perdónanos.

One: God of justice and of grace, sometimes we feel far from bearing your image. 40% of the guns bought in the United States are bought from private sellers, mostly at Gun Shows. Neither background checks nor firearms safety classes are required in these private exchanges. Lord, in your mercy,

Líder: Dios de justicia y de gracia, a veces nos sentimos lejos de llevar tu imagen. El 40% de las armas compradas en los Estados Unidos se compran a vendedores privados, principalmente en Gun Shows. No se requieren verificaciones de antecedentes ni clases de seguridad con armas de fuego en estos intercambios privados. Señor, en tu misericordia,

Many: Forgive us. Todos: Perdónanos.

Words of Assurance (The Minister may use the words that are most familiar to him/her)

Prayer for Illumination: God, it is by the power of your Spirit that these words still live. Subordinate in us any voice but your own, and grant us understanding.

The Word Read (A list of scripture suggestions can be found below)

The Word Proclaimed

(Because time needs to be left for the Offering of Letters, the message should be on the shorter side, about 10 minutes.)

Offering of Letters

Introduction

(At this point, a worship leader should introduce the offering, explaining where to find the sample letter in the bulletin, the list of congressional representatives and their addresses, and the envelopes. He/She should also make it clear that if a worshipper does not finish his or her letter within the time allotted, they may finish it and add it to the plate after worship. Those who do not feel called to offer a letter at this time should be acknowledged, affirmed, and invited to use the time for prayer or meditation.)

Letter-writing

(Instrumental music, so as not to distract, may be played. This should take approximately 10 minutes.)

Procession of the Letters (Music: Canticle of the Turning)

(As they are led, worshippers should take their letters to the offering plates at the front of the sanctuary. Ushers may pick up letters for those confined to their seats. Instructions of this sort should be included in the bulletin and/or stated in the introduction.)

Prayer of Dedication:

God, it is by your grace that we offer our voices in praise and in service. In your infinite wisdom and love, accept and use our offerings in service to your indwelling kingdom, that they may be one step toward making your world more whole. Amen.

Closing Hymn

Charge and Benediction: (Ephesians 3:18-20)

One: I pray that you may have the power to comprehend, with all the saints, what is the breadth and length and height and depth, and to know the love of Christ that surpasses knowledge, so that you may be filled with all the fullness of God.

Many: Now to God, who by the power at work within us is able to accomplish abundantly more than all we can ask or imagine, to God be the glory in the Church and in Christ Jesus to all generations, forever and ever. Amen.

Scripture Suggestions: Psalm 140 Romans 12:2 Isaiah 11:9 Psalm 25:4 Galatians 5:1 Isaiah 58:6-9

SAMPLE LETTER

(Date)

Dear Senator _____ or Rep. _____,

Greetings! My name is _____. I write as a concerned citizen and as a follower of Jesus Christ. Recent, violent events in our country have made it clear that the time for action to reduce gun violence is now. I urge you, Senator/Representative _____, to support and pass sensible gun control measures that will save lives. Nearly 40,000 Americans are killed every year by guns. That includes 13 children per day. Even one is too many.

There are things we can do to prevent more deaths, and we must. I urge you, as our elected servant of the common good, to work especially for the passage of universal background checks and closure of the “gun show loophole” as well as the renewal of the ban on assault weapons and high-capacity magazines. Neither will infringe on the rights of responsible gun owners and both will keep us safer.

(If you have a personal story to share, insert it here. Be brief and honest.)

Jesus said, “Blessed are the Peacemakers.” As a follower of him, I strive to fulfill that calling every day, and I will continue to advocate for that which creates peace in our society. I urge you to join me in this mission, following whatever or whomever it is that compels you to live in light of love instead of fear.

Sincerely, _____

Nonviolent Direct Action

“Our thoughts and prayers are no longer enough. What will it take?”

--Sen. Tammy Baldwin, WI during the Senate’s 14 Hour Filibuster on Gun Violence in 2016

What will it take? Rarely does significant social change happen without some form of nonviolent direct action. The March for Our Lives and Student Walk-Outs at schools are the most visible direct actions on gun violence prevention so far. How can Presbyterians lend support to these and other direct action steps?

2018 Walkout, Wachtung High School, Wachtung, NJ

Examples of Nonviolent Direct Action from other efforts would include the Colombia Accompaniment Program; Rosa Parks and the Montgomery, AL Bus Boycott; divestment from companies and banks supporting apartheid in South Africa; risking arrest by witnessing at the School of the Americas or the US Nuclear Weapons Test Site. The March 24, 2018 March for Our Lives indicates broad support for nonviolent direct action to reduce gun violence. What forms of direct action will emerge? What will work to move the conscience of America?

In his Letter from the Birmingham City Jail, Martin Luther King, Jr., wrote, “Nonviolent direct action seeks to create such a crisis and foster such a tension that a community... is forced to confront the issue. It seeks to so dramatize the issue so that it can no longer be ignored.” How do we apply this to gun violence prevention?

Learn more at https://kinginstitute.stanford.edu/sites/default/files/lesson-activities/six_steps_for_nonviolent_direct_action_2.pdf

PPF has worked for many years with the group Christian Peacemaker Teams. CPT offers “To Wake the Nation,” a comprehensive essay on nonviolent direct action by Catholic Tom Codaro, with direct action ideas that may be adapted to gun violence prevention. <https://www.cpt.org/resources/writings/codaro>

If you or your congregation have suggestions for discerning nonviolent direct action on gun violence prevention, please contact PPF. This is not a simple issue. It will take multiple strategies and repeated acts of conscience to finally, finally, finally get Americans to wake up and work together to prevent gun violence.

Elections & Voter Education

As a non-profit organization, the church does not engage in partisan politics, speaking or acting for or against any party or candidate. However, the church can offer the important service of voter education. Efforts that non-profit organizations are allowed to do include:

1. Voter Registration Campaigns
2. Voter Turn Out efforts, including education on location of polls, early voting options and ID requirements.
3. Provide local media with questions for candidates on gun violence prevention. Encourage media to ask questions about candidate approaches to the issue of gun violence.
4. Distribute nonpartisan questionnaires to the candidates and share the results.
5. Sponsor nonpartisan candidate forums or debates, open to all candidates.

While individuals may do all of the following things, the church itself cannot: endorse, oppose, recommend, rate, give funds or volunteer time for candidates. This includes not planning activities for a single candidate. All must be invited. Learn more about Dos and Don'ts for non-profit groups in an election year at https://www.advocacyandcommunication.org/wp-content/uploads/2018/03/DOs_and_DONTs_of_Electoral_Advocacy.pdf

Host an Open Candidate Forum

Resources:

The American Association of University Women & the League of Women Voters have long traditions of nonpartisan candidate forums to educate voters. According to the AAUW:

How to Organize a Candidate Forum: Plan Ahead. Pick a time and date to host your forum. Invite the Candidates. Send an invitation letter to the candidates well before the planned event and follow up with a phone call. Select a Format and Moderator. Fill the Seats. Reach Out to Diverse Organizations. Generate an Audience. ...Learn more at <https://www.aauw.org/resource/how-to-candidate-forum/> or <https://www.lwv.org/elections/educating-voters>

Another idea is to provide space at the church for one of these groups to sponsor their candidate forum. Share with them your special interest in learning gun violence prevention strategies of each candidate.

Examples of Church-Based Candidate Forums:

1. Students in New Rochelle, NY organized a forum in the local church sanctuary. View the forum at: <https://www.lohud.com/videos/news/local/westchester/2018/04/10/video-students-host-candidates-gun-violence-forum/501683002/>

2. Unpacking Gun Violence: A Candidate's Forum, Colorado
<https://www.rmpjc.org/single-post/2018/05/08/Unpacking-Gun-Violence-A-Candidates-Forum-May-20th>

Sample Questions:

- If elected, what will you do to help prevent gun violence?
- Do you support re-instating the federal assault weapons ban? Why or why not?
- If elected, would you support raising the age for purchasing a gun to age 21? Why or why not?
- Polls show that 80% of NRA members and 87% of the general public support background checks on all gun sales. If elected, would you support universal background checks and closing the gun show loophole?
- Do you think that the federal government should continue to ban all research by government agencies on the causes and ways to prevent gun violence? Why or why not?
- What other steps would you support at the state or federal level to prevent gun violence?

Case Studies of Presbyterian Congregations & Projects

First United Church of Oak Park, IL

<http://www.firstunitedoakpark.com>

Just west of downtown Chicago, this merged Presbyterian/United Church of Christ congregation borders the city with one of the highest levels of gun violence in America. With the support of the church's Faith in Action Committee, a small group gathered to discern the response of the church to social justice concerns. Their first step was a congregational survey, asking members to rank issues of concern. Gun Violence ranked highly and the committee decided to create a simple, faith-based project that would raise awareness in the church and the larger community about gun violence. The Scroll idea was born.

The Scroll

Each month a different group in the church is asked to write on a long paper scroll the names of all who died by murder over the previous month, over 90% of whom died from gun violence. On the first Sunday of the month, the names are read as part of the congregation's communion worship service. Each month the scroll gets longer. Word got out into the community that this church cared about these victims and their families.

The photo, right, was taken at the Maundy Thursday Service by congregation member Cathy Cerniglia. The Scroll hangs on the cross which has been placed on the top row of the choir loft. The scroll has the 462 names of all Chicago Murder Victims September 2016 - April 10 2017.

Members of the congregation were invited to memorialize friends and family who had died from gun violence as a part of the annual All Saints Day service of remembrance in November. The All Saints memorials and the Scroll touched people in a prayerful and worship-centered way. It was a traditional role of the church, remembering the dead, anchored in faith.

To assist the congregation in their response, the small group asked the Adult Education Committee to plan an educational program on gun violence. A schedule of five weeks of Adult Education was planned. Their process was to invite in speakers. Speakers included a Presbyterian leader for community collaborations, who spoke of our engagement with gun violence as it fits into the larger theme of justice. Rev. Wilson discussed the connection of who we are with what we do. She raised the questions of how personal faith becomes communal, how we engage and build community, and how we make justice a way of life. Another presentation described gun violence as a public health issue ---that violence is a contagious disease--- and featured a "Violence Interrupter" from the group CeaseFire IL. The Violence Interrupter's job was to mediate in the community and to talk with young people in efforts to de-escalate violence.

A commitment to help reduce gun violence runs deep in this congregation now. Some members are involved daily in a neighborhood program that mentors and provides after school support to youth in neighborhoods that suffer high levels of gun violence. The church has initiated a "Gospel Music Concert to Stop Gun Violence," with the goal of creating community between largely white and largely black neighborhoods next to each other. Their vision is to fill the church's 800 seat sanctuary with neighbors united to end gun violence.

Still others are part of state-wide advocacy efforts, working to convince the Illinois General Assembly to initiate mandatory state licensing of guns dealers. While the Federal level of gun law enforcement has been rendered weak and understaffed, this would allow the State of Illinois to take its own action to enforce current gun laws. Gun shops that consistently sell guns that are used in crimes would be monitored and could lose their license if they do not comply with background check rules and the prohibition of straw purchases.

A Ministry of Transformation - Swords into Plowshares

Columbia Presbyterian Church, Decatur, GA

The ancient biblical vision of turning swords into plowshares and spears into pruning hooks has stirred the modern-day imagination of Columbia Presbyterian Church in Decatur, Georgia. Like the prophet Isaiah, the people of Columbia envision a world where devices associated with death are turned into implements of life.

So they are converting guns, instruments used to inflict death, to rope pumps, tools used to access life-giving water. This effort sends a powerful message of peace to people in the United States and helps meet an urgent need for water in Malawi, South Sudan and Niger. The congregation asked its members and people from the surrounding community to donate guns to the project. The guns were taken to a local artistic blacksmith who forged working rope pumps with metal from the guns.

The pumps are displayed around the community to symbolize the congregation's conviction there are too many guns in society and too few resources devoted to meeting human needs. Those who agree with the message are invited to make donations toward the purchase African-made rope pumps to provide clean water in those drought-stricken countries.

"We are trying to address the gun issue by saying 'enough is enough' and then do something positive," says Columbia's pastor, Tom Hagood. The congregation is promoting the effort within the Greater Atlanta Presbytery and through area media. "We're saying we need guns off the streets because people are dying in Atlanta, Decatur and elsewhere," Tom emphasizes. "If we can prevent one death and help a village get water, it's worth our effort."

Hundreds of thousands of people in Africa lack access to a reliable source of clean drinking water.

More people die from water-related diseases like typhoid, cholera and hepatitis A than from AIDS. In recent years, erratic rainfall and flooding have added to these challenges. Crop yields are down significantly, and many villagers have been left without a reliable source of nutritious food. Rope pumps can help mitigate both of these problems by providing safe water for African families and irrigated water for their crops.

John and Jodi McGill, PC(USA) Mission Co-Workers in Malawi, have a longstanding relationship with Columbia Presbyterian Church. They told the congregation about the life-saving benefits of rope pumps, an ancient technology that, with new materials and designs, provides an effective and low-cost pump option for water supply and crop irrigation.

At Columbia Presbyterian, the guns-to-pumps project is an invitation to its community to join them around God's table of transformation. God has set this table around the world and made it a place where evil is turned into good.

Stony Point Presbyterian Church Stony Point, NY

Our congregation committed to study gun violence after the shooting of Rep. Gabrielle Giffords and 18 others, six of whom died, including nine-year-old Christina Taylor Green, in Tucson, AZ in Jan. 2011. Our year of discernment ended with the shooting of Trayvon Martin, an unarmed 17 year-old in Sanford, FL.

Due to historical issues in the congregation, we knew that addressing a controversial topic could be divisive and damaging. So we designed a “curriculum” that would invite open, theologically-based dialogue, minimizing the polarizing rhetoric that often dominates – and shuts down – any discussion about gun violence. We based our curriculum on the PC(USA) document, Gun Violence, Gospel Values: Mobilizing in Response to God’s Call (GVGV) and sought input from the congregation on gun violence issues during a Lenten reflection during worship. We then used the congregation’s input to design a year-long monthly curriculum. The curriculum was approved by session in May 2011 and endorsed by the congregation at our Annual Meeting in June 2011.

In Sept. 2011, Rev. Jim Atwood (one of the GVGV authors) came and preached at worship and led an afternoon kick-off event introducing the document and the reasons it was written. In the following months, a study group, which ranged from teenagers to senior citizens and varied in racial, ethnic, socioeconomic backgrounds and political beliefs, grew to include 14 congregants and several guests. We engaged in theological discourse and scripture-based reflection about the spiritual impact of the pervasive violence in our culture. We learned, lamented, resisted and grieved. We were challenged, as the document asked us, to wake up and to act. “To honor the silenced voices we must pay attention, speak out, and give witness to God’s ‘No’ to gun violence” (GVGV, p. 18). We learned, to our enormous shock, that even in our small, “safe” suburban community, that each and every one of us had been touched by gun violence at some point in our lives.

This realization led the group to tell their stories and raise awareness in the larger congregation of the many ways that gun violence has touched our lives. We wrote up a bulletin insert that gave an update on our process, notifying the congregation that group members would be giving testimonials during worship throughout Lent. We invited the congregation to join our group, pray with us and pray for us as we continued learning together. It was at this point that we experienced some “push-back.” It was fine for us to study the issues of gun violence after worship as a group, but it became a problem when we began to witness “publicly.” This uncomfortable situation gave us the opportunity to address underlying reasons for the resistance and find compassionate, pastoral ways to stay in relationship in a time of disagreement and distress. It was a time of healing and relationship building, as well as a strengthening of resolve for members of the GVGV group.

After Easter, we met to plan our next steps as our study period drew to a close. We decided to write a “position statement” to describe the process we had been through together, to state where we agreed, disagreed and the kinds of actions we feel called to, as a result of our study together, as people of faith. It took a few drafts to find the right words that accurately expressed our process, feelings and commitments. The dialogues involved in writing this statement proved to be another high point of the process. We demanded theological reasoning from each other for the writing and editing in a painstaking effort to avoid inflammatory and divisive rhetoric.

One of the group members (who is also a ruling elder) brought the statement to the session. She spoke with eloquence, asking the session’s approval of the statement and the group’s desire to take action in response to what we have learned. During a Spirit-filled discussion, we wrestled with the same historical issues that have caused us anxiety for decades. After everyone had the opportunity to express their views, we voted on the motion before us. The motion to approve the position statement and the group’s actions was passed unanimously. We stopped to pray and acknowledge what a significant step this was for us in the life of our congregation. Then the position statement was presented to the congregation at our Annual Meeting. After one amendment to clarify wording, the congregation unanimously passed the position statement.

With “permission” from our faith community to act, our group will soon meet to plan how to live out our Christian witness with loving, non-violent action. We won’t be alone in doing so. We’ve received a request from another church to help them undertake a similar process; our 4-church youth ministry coordinator will soon address the issues of gun violence with our youth and their families; and we have been invited to make a presentation at a presbytery meeting. The mustard seed grows! In Christ, Rev. Margery Rossi, Pastor, 2012

Detroit Community Clergy Alliance

<https://www.facebook.com/Detroit-Community-Clergy-Alliance-399004803471912/>

In 2012 a gathering was held at a local Detroit church (Solomon's Temple). Resource speakers came from Boston (Ten Point Coalition) and PICO (People Improving Communities thru Organizing). The focus was gun violence. At the end of the gathering, attendees marched into the streets. This gave birth to the Detroit Community Clergy Alliance. The Alliance, in cooperation with CeaseFire (a program of the DOJ of the federal gov't.), has consistently marched since then.

Ours is a ministry of presence. We always start at an anchor church and walk the neighborhood. We do not proselytize, yet the host pastor is always present and those we encounter are introduced to their neighborhood church/leaders. We pray as we walk. We invite those we encounter along the way to pray with us. Our message is this: we want you to live and be free (not die or go to jail with a gun felony). We take the message of peace, asking the community to put down their guns.

– Rev. Kevin Johnson, Pastor, Calvary Presbyterian Church

Over 200 people walk on St. Mary's Street Peace Walk

Church of Reconciliation, Chapel Hill, NC

For the spring of 2018, the Reconciliation Peace Community (RPC) of the Church of Reconciliation initiated several activities concerning gun violence for interested members of the congregation and larger community. On March 4, members of the RPC led an Adult Sunday School hour on the Christian response to gun violence in the United States. Discussion leaders offered national, regional, and local information on gun violence as a prelude to considering what those in attendance felt are the most fruitful and faithful responses to the endless tragedies we read about weekly. In particular, we focused on how our faith as well as our actions can sustain us when cynicism or a numbing despair about these tragedies seem so widely embraced in our culture.

On March 11, members of the RPC led a follow-up Adult Sunday School session that asked the question, "What does the Lord require of us?" After once again exploring the emotional and spiritual toll that gun violence has taken on us as individuals as well as on the Christian church and communities across the nation, the leaders of this session distributed resources to all attendees who seek concrete ways to combat gun violence. The resources pointed to active efforts underway within faith as well as non-faith communities to enhance education about causes and responses to gun violence, to engage in public witness against gun violence, and to lobby legislators for laws that will curb the violence.

After worship on March 11, the Reconciliation Peace Community hosted a lunch for anyone in our congregation and the larger community to hear from Congressman David Price, who represents Chapel Hill in the U.S. Congress, to learn more about what the Congress has done or may do to address this epidemic. Meanwhile, at the request of the RPC and on approval by our Session, the Church of Reconciliation has posted in several places in our main church building signs that read "NO GUNS IN GOD'S HOUSE." We hope these signs will send a clear message as to our position with regard to guns in the corporate life of our church.

New Mexicans to Prevent Gun Violence

Co-led by Dr. Harry Eberts, Pastor of First Presbyterian Church in Santa Fe, NM, New Mexicans to Prevent Gun Violence (NMPGV) is a nonpartisan regional group working to reduce firearm injury and death through public health, education, advocacy and public awareness. Their programs include:

1. The Student Pledge to discourage students from bringing guns to school and the Gun Owners Pledge:

I understand that as a gun owner there are inherent responsibilities in owning a gun. I promise that my firearms will never be accessed by vulnerable persons. I will always maintain supervision of my firearms when there are children or teenagers on my property. I will insure that my stored firearms are locked and unloaded when I am not home. (NMPVG also provides free gun locks and safety information)

2. Murals to End Gun Violence – an awareness effort that brings together students, artists and activists

3. The Guns to Gardens Project, which organizes gun buy-back programs (below) and then remakes the guns into garden shovels and spades with the help of a national gun transformation group, RAWtools www.rawtools.org

4. Other projects include: Disarm Hate Vigils, Public Service Announcements and a Firearms-Free Business Zone Campaign.

First 30 minutes of a Gun Buy-Back Day

5. In Legislative Advocacy, NMPGV supports initiatives that:

- Allow safe, legal use of guns
- Restrict access to people with a history of violence
- Focus on monitoring gun sales
- Limit guns in public places

These legislative guidelines had led NMPGV to support legislation to close gun show loopholes, provide a gun-free State Capitol building and gun-free schools, prevent child gun access and limit concealed carry permits.

Benton Township, MI

On the fifth anniversary of the Sandy Hook School shootings, Presbyterian Peace Fellowship member Rob Burgess helped organize a vigil in his community of Benton Township, MI. The vigil was small, but by sending information to local media, the message of the vigil reached across the community.

Faith Presbyterian Church, Austin, TX

To remember the Sandy Hook School anniversary, Faith Presbyterian Church offered a "Minute for Mission" on gun violence during worship and distributed the PPF gun violence brochure with the worship bulletins. They followed up by posting additional "No Guns in God's House" signs in more buildings on their campus, including the fellowship hall which is used by many community groups.

God Before Guns, Cleveland Heights, OHIO

Presbyterian Robert Ault helps to lead God Before Guns, which organizes faith groups to take initiative to prevent gun violence and to keep the most deadly weapons off of the streets of Ohio. Projects have included a regional conference with PPF's Jim Atwood as speaker; vigils after mass shootings; a community march on Gun Violence Awareness Day in June; partnering with community and student groups; and promotion of films on gun violence such as And Then I Go and Five Awake (LA women take on domestic violence gun users). In 2018 they will distribute 30,000 Gun Safety Cards, see card front and back below. They advocate for universal background checks and to improve the background check reporting system, to ban armor-piercing bullets, to improve gun safety and legislation for "Extreme Risk Protection Orders" that allow law enforcement to temporarily seize weapons of people who are a danger to themselves or others. On their website find an excellent "Statement of Opposition to Concealed Carry" in religious buildings. See www.godbeforeguns.org

Five Easy Ways to PROTECT Your Family, Community and Yourself from GUN VIOLENCE

KEEP YOUR KIDS SAFE:

Just talking to your child about gun safety is not enough. Children are naturally curious and open to peer pressure. With a gun in 40% of homes with children, to keep your child safer:

TIP 1: Always ask if there is a gun in another family's home and, if so, how it is secured, before sending your child over to play or your teen to a party. If you have doubts, invite the children to play at your house.

TIP 2: If you own a gun, secure it: Unload it, lock it up, lock ammunition in a separate lockbox, and keep the keys with you at all times. It will take less than a minute or two to unlock and load if needed.

- Always check to be sure there's no bullet in the chamber before cleaning a firearm.
- When handling or cleaning, never leave a gun unattended, not even for a moment.
- Make sure that no one who is staying or living with you is keeping an unsecured firearm in your house.
- Most school shooters use firearms taken from a relative's home. Don't let that weapon be yours.

PREVENT SUICIDES:

- Two thirds of all firearm-related deaths in the U.S.—more than 20,000 a year—are suicides.
- Suicide is often an impulsive act spurred by a break-up, job loss, legal trouble, etc. From teens to seniors, all ages are at risk.
- 85%-90% of suicide attempts with firearms result in death.
- Less than 5% of suicide attempts using most other methods succeed, and 90% of survivors will not die by suicide later.

TIP 3: Store firearms off-site if you suspect a friend or family member may be suicidal. You may save a life.

PREVENT ACCIDENTAL SHOOTINGS OR HAVING YOUR GUN USED AGAINST YOU:

- For each time a firearm is used in home self-defense, there are seven assaults or murders, 11 suicide attempts, and four accidents involving guns in or around a home.
- A person carrying a gun is 4.5 times more likely to be shot in an assault than one not carrying.
- A woman's chances of being killed by her abuser increase over 7 times if he has access to a gun, including her own.

TIP 4: Consider pepper spray to defend yourself and your home or workplace instead of a firearm.

- Pepper spray causes tears, burning pain, and impaired vision and breathing, disrupting an attack and letting you escape to safety.
- Pepper spray can cost as little as $10 and may be carried in places where firearms can't.
- Be sure to watch training videos and practice before use.

PROTECT YOUR COMMUNITY:

TIP 5: Don't buy firearms for another person ever.

Being a 'straw buyer' for a person who is not allowed to buy a weapon is a felony: Punishment can include $250,000 in fines and 10 years in prison.

- Straw purchasing is the most common way criminals get guns.
- Never buy firearms for your friend, boyfriend, husband or anyone else. A safer community starts with you.

YOUR VOICE MATTERS:

Finally, let elected representatives know you want sensible laws to keep firearms away from criminals, abusers, and the mentally impaired. Elected officials count every call, letter or email they receive. Speak up and tell them where you stand.

We can keep our families and communities safer from gun violence today by taking simple precautions and calling for commonsense laws. Please share these tips with friends and loved ones.

Case Study of a Presbytery – Elizabeth Presbytery

The Peacemaking Committee of Elizabeth Presbytery in central New Jersey had dwindled to about two members. Well, exactly two members. Then Newtown, CT happened.

One of the two members was Shannan Vance-Ocampo, mother of a school-age daughter, pastor of Watchung Ave. Presbyterian Church in North Plainfield and a member of the Presbyterian Peace Fellowship. Shannan had just been elected Vice-Moderator of the Presbytery. “I thought that preventing violence like Newtown should be the business of the church,” she says. So at a January 2013 meeting, she suggested a special called meeting of Elizabeth Presbytery to discuss the issue of gun violence. The meeting was called, with the only stipulation that the program not be politicized. The date was set for Palm Sunday afternoon. “As far as I know,” says Shannan, “Elizabeth was the first presbytery to ever have a special called meeting on gun violence---and certainly on Palm Sunday.”

At left, is the flier inviting delegates and other church members to the meeting. On a Palm Sunday afternoon in New Jersey, 85 people showed up from 16 congregations. The program began and ended with singing hymns by PPFer Carolyn Winfrey Gillette (see Pastoral Resources) and everyone viewed the TV documentary Trigger: The Ripple Effect of Gun Violence, created by Presbyterian Disaster Assistance.

“Trigger is amazing,” says Shannan, “because it shows the ripple effect that each act of gun violence has on so many people. When it was over, people didn’t move. They didn’t talk.” Rick Ufford-Chase, PPF Executive Director and Moderator of the 216th PC(USA) General Assembly, had been invited to lead a discussion. Sitting at round tables, everyone had a chance to discuss gun violence and to listen to others. Rick posed these 6 questions to guide each round-table discussion:

1. What affected you in the movie?
2. When you think about gun violence and how you could respond to it, what is your scriptural grounding? What scripture verses come to mind?
3. The film views gun violence as a public health crisis. What are your responses to viewing gun violence as a public health crisis?
4. What do you think the role of the church should be?
5. What do you think we should do next as a presbytery?
6. Are you willing to serve on a Gun Violence Action Team of the presbytery?

Every church received a notebook prepared by the presbytery office with these resources:

1. Fact Sheet on Gun Violence by Bryan Miller, Director of CeaseFire New Jersey
2. PC(USA) policy on Gun Violence
3. Info on the current denominational Peace Discernment Process.
4. Info on study-action resources from The Thoughtful Christian and on the Gun Violence Prevention Toolkit created for churches by the Presbyterian Peace Fellowship.

“We also had Jim Atwood’s wonderful book for sale, America and its Guns,” said Shannan. “Ten people are now on the team to plan the presbytery’s next steps, including a young police detective who seemed very moved by the experience.” At the end, Shannan greeted each person at the church door, including an older man. “He and I had never visited much before,” she says. “He gave me a big hug and was very emotional. He told me that he was a retired doctor and that when he was in his 20s just starting out, two small children were playing with a gun. One killed the other. ‘I had to identify the body,’ he said, ‘and then go and tell the mother that her child was dead. Thank you for having this event today. It helped me.’” Shannan reflects that “I don’t think he had ever spoken about this trauma before.”

Step One to Prevent Gun Violence:
Start the Conversation in Your Community.

Lincoln Park Presbyterian Church, Chicago Gun Violence Prevention, Dedicated to Monna Ray, 1930-2018

Gun violence first came to LPPC's consciousness in the early 1980's, when church member Katherine Zartman led an effort to have churches in the city be centers to receive handguns that people would surrender, with no questions asked. A local artist welded 75 handguns to an antique plow, creating a symbol of anti-gun violence: "They shall beat their swords into plowshares," (Isaiah 2:4). This sculpture still adorns the offices of the Illinois Council against Handgun Violence, originally founded by its then Executive Director, Kathy Zartman.

Fast forward several decades... Another church member, Monna Ray, brought the issue to the forefront again. Monna and a friend of LPPC, Marianne Nesler, attended a remembrance service for Chicago victims of gun violence at a nearby Presbyterian Church in June, 2011. They came away inspired to get our congregation involved. We began posting names of young gun victims on a kiosk we have at the rear of our sanctuary. With a pastoral transition at LPPC, Monna and Marianne met with our interim pastor to discuss ways our church might explore the city's gun violence further, especially the large number of young gun violence victims.

In 2012 our Church and Society team had a brainstorming session on ways to advocate against gun violence. We reached out to other churches nearby and in sections of the city more affected by gun violence, especially in African American neighborhoods, to seek advocacy partners. Several LPPCers took part in "CrossWalk", an ecumenical, city-wide walk/demonstration/rally against the plague of gun violence in Chicago. There were speakers – some were anti-gun violence advocates, some were clergy, and some were family members of gun violence victims. In June we held an Anti-Gun Violence Sunday worship, reading aloud the names of young gun violence victims in Chicago, each name followed by the ringing of a bell. After the service, congregants were asked to sign pledges, with a variety of commitments, from daily prayers to participating in demonstrations. For the rest of that year and into the next, there were prayer remembrance cards on tables in the sanctuary with the names, ages and neighborhoods of young gun victims, for people to take home for prayer. We began praying for young gun violence victims in worship, during the Prayers of the People, a practice which continues weekly to this day. That summer Monna and Marianne gathered signatures on a petition for background checks and gun registration. We participated that summer in a Peacewalk, sponsored by CrossWalk. That fall, 25% of our Peacemaking offering went to the Illinois Council against Gun Violence.

In 2013, we joined again in the ecumenical CrossWalk. We showed the film "The Interrupters" at a lunch gathering after worship to showcase the work of Ceasefire. That summer several of us were part of "Fierce Women of Faith's" rally and walk against gun violence on the far south side of the city. We were among only a few white people at that action. Our new pastor Beth Brown was installed and her leadership was important in our advocacy. We held another "Remembrance Sunday" worship. Each person received a flower with the name and age of a young gun victim attached, as well as a bulletin insert listing the name and age of each of the young gun victims and ages of each of the young gun violence victims during the past year. At that worship service, we also read aloud a list of commonly-used phrases that reflect and/or reinforce gun violence (examples: "shoot her an email", "I'll give it my best shot", "time for a photo shoot", and lists are "bullet points").

In 2014 the Session put signage on our church doors to prohibit guns in the church building. The Lincoln Park Community Shelter, housed in our building, was urged to install those signs as well, which they did. The Session also adopted a policy regarding guns, which had been submitted by the ministry team. The team provided congregants a handout on the two upcoming referenda in the state legislature about guns and ammunition, and encouraged people to contact their legislators about these referenda. In 2014 we began to use the Chicago Marathon weekend (held on Columbus Day weekend) for a public display on our front yard about young victims of gun violence in Chicago. Our church is on a major pedestrian route to watch the Marathon, a very good site for drawing public attention. We had a T-shirt display hung across our front yard of all those under the age of 19 who had been killed by gun violence from Oct. 1, 2013 through Sept 30, 2014. The T-shirts had the names and ages of each young person, as well as the date they were killed. This front lawn garnered the attention of our neighborhood, and was also on the Marathon followers' route to see the runners. That Sunday, we once again had a gun violence memorial service. Each worshipper was invited to the communion table at the front of the sanctuary to take a printed commitment card to end gun violence – from praying to working with a community-based task force to advocate against gun violence. In 2014 we also built a connection with a north side community group that had an anti-gun task force doing advocacy work.

In 2015 we hosted a Sunday lunch speaker from the organization Ceasefire, which was providing interruptions to gang violence, especially handgun violence, on the north side of the city. Sadly, we later learned that state funding for Ceasefire had been eliminated, and that our presenter had lost his job. Once again that year, on Marathon Sunday, we remembered Chicago youth who died from gun violence with an exhibit of T-shirts on the front lawn. Each of the 56 shirts displayed the name and age of a Chicago gun violence victim under the age of 19. And each Sunday we remembered those victims in worship by naming them during our prayers of concern. We continued urging people to write, call or otherwise contact legislators to support legislation banning assault weapons, to oppose illegal gun dealers, and a number of other efforts.

In Chicago in 2016 the number of gun violence victims was far higher than it had been in recent years. Once again, we chose the Chicago Marathon weekend to call attention to the plague of gun violence, focusing on children and young people under the age of 19 who had been killed by guns that year. For our display on the front lawn we located photographs of as many of the young victims as we could, and developed an installation with the young gun victims' images, names and ages (83 victims in total). Beginning on Saturday, passersby viewed this installation on our front lawn. But this year we wanted to help the community understand that the problem of gun violence in our city does not belong solely to the south and west sides of Chicago. The killing of our youth is everyone's problem. So we developed partnerships across the city with a number of groups, agencies, political leaders, public spokespersons and celebrities advocating for ending gun violence, and asked for their help in planning a Vigil against Violence. The Vigil was held early Sunday evening of Marathon weekend. It began outside with prayer in front of the photo installation and a call-out of each victim's name. Participants then went inside the sanctuary where there was gospel singing and rapping, led by students from neighboring DePaul University, and speeches and calls to action by various civic leaders. Speakers included the city's chief public defender, the executive director of the Illinois Council against Handgun Violence, and our alderwoman. The featured speaker was Che "Rhymefest" Smith, whose presence and publicity had generated much attendance. The powerful program ended with Rhymefest talking about his personal experience with the Chicago police, performing his song "Glory", and leaving us with the message of "truth and reconciliation".

In 2017 we kept at our practice of remembering young victims of gun violence, as well as their families, friends and communities in prayers in Sunday worship. Plus, the names, ages and neighborhood of each youth were posted on the kiosk in the sanctuary, along with the total number of Chicago homicides during the year. In April, two members of the team attended the Presbyterian Peace Fellowship Activist Council retreat to learn about gun violence prevention resources for congregations. We discovered that PPF had created a curriculum ("Toolkit") for congregations to engage in study and action against gun violence. One effort they encouraged was placing a sign on church doors, with a message against the presence of guns. When we went home, we created our own door banner, which says: "Blessed Are the Peacemakers: Choose Non-Violence", and its symbol is a handgun in a red circle with the universal sign for peace super-imposed on it.

Again we mounted a display on the church's front lawn during the Marathon weekend, featuring photos and the names and ages of each of the 106 children and youth killed by gun violence in the past year (a record-breaking number). We received many supportive comments from those who stopped to view the display. Our Sunday evening vigil was held entirely on the front lawn, inspired by materials in the PPF Toolkit. It included five movements: We Grieve, We Pray, We Hope, We Sing, and We Act. Our City Council alderwoman led a portion of our liturgy. We left our display up on the front lawn for the next week. We were deeply moved by a family who left a tribute to the youth by placing a flower under each photo. In our continued commitment to end gun violence, the congregation participated in a letter-writing campaign to our Springfield elected representatives, urging them to support legislation to make Illinois gun dealers more accountable. Finally, we dedicate this case study to the memory of Monna Ray. She persisted! And so do we. —Gail Russell, Lincoln Park Presbyterian Church

Presbytery of Detroit Rev. Barb McRae birdnestspirit@gmail.com

Four years ago, I joined Moms Demand Action in Michigan. They asked me, as a clergyperson, to be the Faith Outreach Lead for the group. I started reaching out to my own Presbytery of Detroit. I posted announcements of GVP-related events and resources, including the Peace Fellowship Congregational Toolkit and Moms Demand Action informational flyers, on our bi-weekly presbytery email blast. I invited other presbytery members to create a GVP Work Group under the presbytery's Social Justice and Peacemaking Team. Three of us began planning a vision for the work group: Rev. Kevin Johnson of Calvary PC, Detroit, Pam Frucci, Social Justice and Peacemaking Chair for Presbyterian Women of the Presbytery of Detroit (PWPD), and me.

We organized an educational event for the Presbytery at our June meeting. Each of us had a different perspective to offer in the workshop. Rev. Johnson told the story of his father-in-law's murder by gun violence and the effects it had on his wife's family. He shared his work with the Detroit Community Clergy Alliance (DCCA), which leads Peace Walks around church neighborhoods. During these walks, pastors from around the city meet, talk and pray with people about gun violence on their streets. DCCA also recommends people to the Detroit Ceasefire program which gives them the option and the help to restore their lives without guns, instead of going to jail. Pam Frucci spoke of the work Presbyterian Women in Detroit had done in bringing the issue of hi-capacity magazines to GA through an overture to the 2014 General Assembly. PWPD had also featured a group that made quilts remembering gun violence victims. I spoke about current national statistics, state and local legislation, and factors that lead to the highly armed society in the US. I walked attendees through PC (USA) resources and gave information on the work of Moms Demand Action, nationally and locally.

Following the workshop, our work group received requests for taking our presentation to individual churches and Presbyterian Women groups, which we did. We also supported a presentation of the video, The Armor of Light, at a local church. Our work group ended last year due to Kevin's retirement and my increased work load. But I continued to post events and new resources in our presbytery's emails. People would contact me for information on how to address the issue. I also posted downloadable resources on our presbytery website.

However, following the Parkland shooting, I was again asked to make a presentation in a workshop after a presbytery meeting. More people attended this time and, due to their responses, I'm scheduled to preach, invite speakers, and facilitate small group discussions within the body of our June presbytery meeting. The focus will be on action. I'm hoping now to re-form the work group as a result of the increased interest in working within churches to address gun violence in our country.

T-shirt memorials make a powerful visible witness. There are many steps involved. When the Presbyterian Church of Chestnut Hill, PA does a t-shirt project (see Toolkit cover), there is a part of the project to involve every group in the congregation, from Youth Group to Presbyterian Women: getting the t-shirts, building the display, writing names on the shirts, assembling the display, media work and more.

First Presbyterian Church, Villisca, Iowa – The Sign Project

Last October I received the newsletter of the Presbyterian Peace Fellowship and noticed the article on The Sign Project, working to get “No Guns in God’s House” or similar signs in 100 churches. I was immediately intrigued and on board. I took the idea to our session, of which I am a member. I would say the immediate reaction was about 50/50. They did give me permission to send for The Congregational Toolkit. I remember one question “Does it cost anything”? We received two Toolkits, which made it easier to circulate to the members’ homes for them and their spouses to read. This took a while. Then we ran into Advent season and we let the sign project lapse over Christmas.

When it was put back onto session agenda in January, we had a good discussion. I did start out with what I wanted to say written down. I think out seven elders, we might have still had one or two not in favor. Their points were 1: It wouldn’t do any good, a sign won’t stop them, 2: if a gun is worn into the church, what do we do? And all the other questions you have heard, even down to where are the signs to go and what size? I saw all this as incidental to the main issue: “Where is our Faith in God!!”

I got permission to present to the congregation. Our minister, Sandy Wainwright Rossander, formulated a church service for Feb. 11th around the presentation by me of the NO GUNS in GOD’S HOUSE sign proposal. I tried to stress the “step out in faith” basis. I quoted from J. Herbert Nelson, James Atwood, and a Leonard Pitts, Jr. editorial from the Miami Herald. Our congregation was impressed with the 100 churches number. Many members spoke up that day and I was surprised at the number in favor. We voted by paper ballot and the count in favor of signage was 19 for and 3 against. This is an average attendance number for our congregation.

Since then I have copied the signs from the PPF website because I can change the size to what we wanted and have had them laminated and placed on door and sign board in front of church. We have a narcotics group that uses our church basement once a week. They come and go through a door with the gun and red hash mark through it sign. These are town people. Never a word has been said to anyone in our church. So that is our story. I think the effort did bring us together in prayer and in thought for a better world because of the actions of one small church. God is with us, and we must step out and be counted. And so the story goes.....

An aside.... Has anyone found a sign that will not fade in the sun?

If so, contact info@presbypeacefellowship.org

Connecting with Others

National Groups & Contacts in all 50 States

There are many ways to get involved in preventing gun violence. You can find or start a group or chapter in your church or with others in your community. You can find or start a student group and lend your support to them. Below we list national groups, as well as a contact in each state, someone already working near you on this issue. These groups work together on significant anniversaries, such as the Dec. 14 anniversary of the Sandy Hook School Shooting, the Feb. 14 anniversary of the Parkland, FL school shooting and the anniversary of the Orlando Nightclub shooting on June 12. Many groups provide resources for “National Gun Violence Awareness Day” in June and for holding “Gun Violence Prevention Sabbath” in your community on various days throughout the year.

Coalition to Stop Gun Violence - <http://www.csgv.org> 202-408-0061 Founded in 1974 in Washington DC, this coalition of 47 national organizations is one of the largest groups working on education and policy to prevent gun violence. The Presbyterian Church (USA) is a member and Presbyterian author Rev. Jim Atwood is on the national board of directors. Associated with the CSVG: The Educational Fund to Stop Gun Violence.

Everytown for Gun Safety - <http://www.everytown.org> 646-324-8250 A merger of Moms Demand Action for Gun Sense in America and Mayors Against Illegal Guns, Everytown has contacts in every state in the US, with an “every state” strategy for saving lives. Everytown promotes National Gun Violence Awareness Day in June, asking us to wear orange and to create local events to raise awareness. Its networks include: -Moms Demand Action <http://www.momsdemandaction.org> Moms Demand offers the Moms Demand Gun Sense Action Network in every state and the Mother’s Dream Quilt Project. -Students Demand Action <http://www.studentsdemandaction.org> High School and College students organize to “turn outrage into action.” Locate, start or support a local school chapter; learn about voter registration and using social media for gun violence prevention. -The Gun Violence Survivors Network & Mayors Against Illegal Guns

March for Our Lives - <http://www.marchforourlives.com> Launched by students after the Parkland, FL school shooting Feb. 14, 2018, March for our Lives inspired 2 million people to join in March 24, 2018 events nationwide and a massive voter registration campaign among teens and young adults. See info on how teens can start a “Local Activism Club,” the Vote for Our Lives project and school walk-outs to protest inaction by adults to reform gun regulation. “America’s mass shooting generation is mobilizing.”

Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence - <http://www.bradycampaign.org> 202-370-8... and Sarah Brady and sponsor of the Million Mom March in 2000, the Brady Campaign has launched a goal to cut American gun deaths in half by 2025 through a combination of public policy, safety and public awareness changes. Based in Washington DC, they also sponsor the Legal Action Project to use the court system to support sensible gun policy. With 94 chapters across the US, they maintain an on-line map that shows local affiliates across the nation. Their website offer worship resources under “God not Guns.”

States United to Prevent Gun Violence - <http://www.ceasefireusa.org> or <http://www.supgv.org> Established in 2010 to create a 50 state solution on gun violence and a clearinghouse on state gun laws and advocacy. With networks in 32 states, they can help you get started in your state. Programs include safe gun storage to prevent child gun deaths and support for steps to prevent domestic gun violence against women.

Giffords - <http://www.giffords.org> Founded by Gabby Giffords and Mark Kelly in 2012 as Americans for Responsible Solutions, Giffords now sponsors education, advocacy and a significant Political Action Committee (PAC), as well as the Giffords Law Center to Prevent Gun Violence. The Law Center has worked for over 20 years to mobilize lawyers to help strengthen gun laws. Topics covered range from universal background checks to gun design safety and standards to regulations on reporting lost and stolen guns. The Giffords Law Center maintains an on-line resource and scorecard on the gun laws in each of the US states. Click on your state to find current regulations. www.smartgunlaws.org/search-gun-law-by-state

The Newtown Action Alliance - <http://www.newtownactionalliance.org> Founded in Newtown, CT after the 2012 Sandy Hook school shooting, the Newtown Alliance provides “comfort, education, scholarship and other support and resources to people and communities impacted by or living in the aftermath of gun violence..., and to help them lead the way toward positive cultural change.” Actions include efforts to reduce the use of violence in entertainment and to ask politicians to refrain from accepting donations from the NRA.

Gun Violence Archive - <http://www.gunviolencearchive.org> The GVA provides free public access to accurate reporting on gun-related incidents in America, updated daily. Not an advocacy group, GVA gathers near real-time data from over 2,000 media, law enforcement, government and commercial sources daily. Results are published at www.facebook.com/gunviolencearchive

Sandy Hook Promise - <https://www.sandyhookpromise.org/fag> Founded after the Newtown, CT Sandy Hook school shooting, Sandy Hook Promise seeks to find middle ground in the search for solutions, with a focus on community-based mental health and crisis intervention programs, as well as legislation to allow law enforcement to temporarily remove guns from individuals deemed a danger to themselves or others.

Faiths United to Prevent Gun Violence - <http://www.faithsunited.org> Over 50 national religious groups have agreed to work together to sponsor Gun Violence Prevention Sabbath each year and other mutual projects to lessen the grip of gun violence and the gun industry on America. Their website “Other Resources” includes an excellent Gun Violence Guide for Faith Leaders. PPF and the PC(USA) are members of Faiths United.

Violence Policy Center - <http://www.vpc.org/> The VPC does investigation and analytical work to provide accurate statistics on gun violence, information on the gun industry and research-based steps to prevent gun violence on topics ranging from murder-suicide to self-defense gun use.

The students resisting gun violence inspire us all. At the March 24, 2018 March for Our Lives Day, students asked for support from churches, such as:

1. Meeting space and working space
2. Charter a chapter of Students Demand Action or March for Our Lives at your church
3. Connect youth to existing advocacy groups
4. Support internships and fellowships for this work. Invest financially in the youth of the church.
