THE JOURNAL OF THE 217TH GENERAL ASSEMBLY (2006)

Thursday, June 15, 2006, 1:00 P.M.

The 217th General Assembly (2006) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) was convened by Moderator Rick Ufford-Chase, in Exhibit Halls 2 and 3 of the Birmingham Jefferson Convention Center, Birmingham, Alabama. Moderator Ufford-Chase led the assembly in the convening prayer. Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick led the commissioners in a Call to Discipleship.

Commissioning of Commissioners and Advisory Delegates

Moderator Ufford-Chase, Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick, Steve Grace, moderator of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, and Catherine Ulrich, moderator-elect of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, led the assembly in a Service of Recognition of Commissioners and Advisory Delegates, which included a litany of enrollment and commitment to faithful fulfillment of their service as commissioners; and a charge to commissioners.

Enrollment and Quorum

Moderator Ufford-Chase recognized Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick, who advised the Moderator that Standing Rule D.2. permits that the roll be established by registration. Stated Clerk Kirkpatrick recommended that the roll of the 217th General Assembly (2006) be established by the list of those who have registered or will register. Based on pre-registration with General Assembly Meeting Services, there will be present at this assembly

- 534 commissioners from 173 presbyteries
- 163 youth advisory delegates
- 25 theological student advisory delegates
- 8 missionary advisory delegates
- 12 ecumenical advisory delegates

The assembly approved that the roll of the 217th General Assembly (2006) be established by the list of those who had or would register. Stated Clerk Kirkpatrick then informed the Moderator that the Book of Order, G-13.0105, establishes that the “quorum of the General Assembly shall be one hundred commissioners, fifty of whom shall be elders and fifty of whom shall be ministers, representing presbyteries of at least one fourth of its synods.”

Moderator Ufford-Chase informed the assembly that at a later time, before taking any additional votes, a quorum of commissioners present at this assembly would be established by the use of the electronic voting system.

The Roll of the General Assembly

The roll of the General Assembly can be found on page 1489.

Seating of Corresponding Members

Stated Clerk Kirkpatrick announced that in accordance with Standing Rule B.3., corresponding members are designated and present at the General Assembly. The list of corresponding members can be found on page 1496.

Moderator Ufford-Chase welcomed the corresponding members.

Report of the Committee on Local Arrangements

The report of the Committee on Local Arrangements of the Presbytery of Sheppards and Lapsley was presented by its moderator, Dana Waters, and vice-moderator, Jane Carmichael.

Orientation for Commissioners and Advisory Delegates

Commissioners and advisory delegates were divided into three groups. In honor of the 300th anniversary of the first presbytery meeting, these groups were given names important in the early history of Presbyterianism—Calvin, Witherspoon, and Knox. The three groups were oriented to their service in three segments as follows:

1. Common Mission in the Life of the Church, led by General Assembly Council (GAC) Executive Director John Detterick and Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick. This session included sharing of hopes for the gifts that this assembly might offer to the renewal of the Presbyterian church and its mission.

2. Common Work of the Denomination, presented by elected leaders of the six agencies of the church, including the Office of the General Assembly, General Assembly Council, Presbyterian Foundation, Presbyterian Loan and Investment Program, Inc., Board of Pensions, and Presbyterian Publishing Corporation. This segment introduced the joint annual agency report with suggestions as to how it could be used as a teaching tool in presbyteries and congregations.

3. Common Life, led by Moderator Ufford-Chase and Associate Stated Clerk Gradye Parsons. This segment included information to help those who make up the General Assembly learn about the various kinds of assistance available to them, and to become familiar with a few of the procedures by which the assembly would deal with the business coming before it; information regarding logistics, including health needs, safety precautions and instructions, the service provided by the General Assembly of simultaneous interpretation of the proceedings into Spanish and Korean, as well as for the hearing impaired; and reimbursement procedures. Information regarding the worship life of the assembly, which provides spiritual enrichment for the time shared at this assembly, was also highlighted. This segment included an introduction on how to work together to accomplish the work of the assembly and instruction on use of the electronic voting pads, the significance of different paddle colors, and other logistical information unique to plenary.

Associate Stated Clerk Kerry Clements made a presentation concerning features of the newly developed Les system.

Associate Stated Clerk Parsons introduced the people on the platform and on the floor that would assist with the business of the assembly:

Platform managers, Barbara Murphy and Conrad Rocha; platform assistant, Don Lincoln; Moderator's assistant, Frank Deming; platform parliamentary advisors: Alyson Janke, Gradye Parsons and Mark Tammen; parliamentary advisors assistants: Doska Ross and Kristine Valerius; Journal clerks, Loyda Aja, Kerry Clements, Joyce E. Evans, and Mary Ruth Phares.

Greeting from the Cumberland Presbyterian Church and the Cumberland Presbyterian Church in America

Moderator Ufford-Chase recognized Stated Clerk Kirkpatrick, who introduced Army Daniel, Moderator of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church in America, and Robert Rush, Stated Clerk of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, who brought greetings from their respective denominations.

Report of the Moderator

General Assembly Moderator Rick Ufford-Chase called upon Vice-Moderator Jean Marie Peacock to assume the chair. The Vice-Moderator recognized the Moderator of the 216th General Assembly (2004), Rick Ufford-Chase, who presented the report of the Moderator.

Loaves and Fishes Church Growth Fund

Vice-Moderator Peacock recognized John Detterick, Executive Director of the General Assembly Council, who introduced Elder Stan Anderson of Denver, Colorado. Anderson announced that by the end of November 2006, a gift of $150,000,000 would be deposited with the Presbyterian Foundation to establish the Loaves and Fishes Church Growth Fund. The interest generated by the investment with the Foundation will provide the funds for the oversight and guidance for the fund. The focus of the Loaves and Fishes Church Growth Fund is church growth, as well as racial ethnic church growth and church transformation. One percent of each presbytery grant will go toward the Theological Education Fund. Presbyteries will receive additional information concerning application for a Loaves and Fishes Church Growth Fund grant in the coming months. In order to be eligible for a grant, a receiving presbytery must match both the 10 percent in mission money and the 1 percent for the Theological Education Fund.

An oversight committee will be appointed as follows: three members by Stan Anderson, three members by Stated Clerk Kirkpatrick, three members by John Detterick, and three members by the Moderator of the 217th General Assembly (2006).

The assembly was led in a prayer of thanks by Allison K. Seed, incoming chair of the General Assembly Council.

Following the prayer, Moderator Ufford-Chase assumed the chair.

General Assembly Nominating Committee

Moderator Ufford-Chase recognized Melva Costen, moderator of the General Assembly Nominating Committee, who described the process by which the General Assembly Nominating Committee places names in nomination and the procedure for making nominations from the floor.

Actions to Convene Assembly

Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick instructed the advisory delegates in the use of their keypads and directed them to use their keypads to establish the number of advisory delegates present.

According to the count, there were present:

- 151 youth advisory delegates
- 22 theological student advisory delegates
- 8 missionary advisory delegates
- 5 ecumenical advisory delegates

Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick then instructed commissioners to use their keypads to establish that there was a quorum of commissioners present. There were 448 commissioners present and the Stated Clerk announced the quorum requirements of G-13.0105 had been met.

Moderator Rick Ufford-Chase declared a quorum was present and the 217th General Assembly (2006) was ready for business.

Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick recommended, and the assembly approved, in accordance with Standing Rules E.1.c., that the committee assistants be appointed, as follows: Ruben Armendariz, Mary Gene Boteler, Becky Cavallucci, Judy Fletcher, Sally Hinchman, Eric Hoey, Dee Hoge, Craig Howard, Jill Hudson, Susan Krummel, Don Lincoln, Carol McDonald, Kevin Porter, and Carl Schlich.

Assembly Committee Structure

On recommendation of the Stated Clerk, the assembly approved the assembly committee structure, Item 00-02. (See page 68.) The committees are as follows:

- 00 Plenary
- 01 Business Referrals
- 02 Bills and Overtures
- 03 General Assembly Procedures
- 04 Church Orders
- 05 Church Polity
- 06 Ecclesiology
- 07 Ecumenical and Interfaith Relations
- 08 Mission Coordination
- 09 Social Justice Issues
- 10 Health Issues
- 11 Peacemaking and International Issues
- 12 Church Growth and Christian Education
- 13 Theological Issues and Institutions
- 14 Review of GA Permanent Committees
- 15 Board of Pensions and Presbyterian Foundation

Announcements

Stated Clerk Kirkpatrick made several announcements, including a reminder that the deadline for business to be submitted to the assembly was 1:00 p.m., Friday, June 16. He also announced that the Presbyterian Publishing Company had provided the commissioners and advisory delegates with copies of These Days, a devotional booklet that includes prayers and biblical reflections from the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and Cumberland Moderators.

Closing Prayer

The Moderator called upon Nick Valadez, theological student advisory delegate, and a student at San Francisco Theological Seminary, who offered the closing prayer for this session of the General Assembly.

Recess

The assembly recessed at 5:40 p.m.

Thursday, June 15, 2006, 7:30 P.M.

The 217th General Assembly (2006) reconvened at 7:30 p.m. with Moderator Ufford-Chase presiding. Moderator Ufford-Chase reminded commissioners that as the assembly meets this year, it celebrates the 300th anniversary of the Presbytery of Philadelphia. He then introduced Mary Ellen Frazier Lloyd, moderator of the Presbytery of Philadelphia, who brought greetings from the presbytery and opened this meeting of the assembly with prayer.

REPORT OF THE ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON BUSINESS REFERRALS

Moderator Ufford-Chase recognized the moderator of the Assembly Committee on Business Referrals and the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures, Judy Wellington, who presented the committee's report. The assembly approved Item 01-01, the proposed docket. (See page 73.) The report was arrested.

Moderator Ufford-Chase recognized Joey Bailey, deputy for Mission Support Services of the General Assembly Council, for an explanation of the financial implications process and how the process will help inform the decisions made by the assembly.

The report of the Assembly Committee on Business Referrals and the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures was resumed. The assembly approved Item 01-02 (plenary consent agenda), 01-03 (list of referrals of business). (See pages 75, 121.) The assembly disapproved referral of Item 01-04 (approve report and recommendations of Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity ad seriatim). (See page 133.) The assembly then approved Items 02-01 (referral of two overtures) and 02-02 (suspend Standing Rule A.2.a. to receive late business). (See page 135.) This concluded the reports of the Assembly Committee on Business Referrals and the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures and a summary of the reports are as follows:

Item 01-04. On the Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church—Disapproved referral. (See page 133.)

Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures

Item 02-01. Recommendation to Refer Two Overtures to the Assembly Committee on Ecclesiology—Approved. (See page 135.)

Item 02-02. Suspension of Standing Rule A.2.a. to Receive Late Business—Approved. (See page 135.)

Moderator Ufford-Chase recognized Steve Grace, moderator of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly. Grace reported that the Moderator candidates' campaign expenses had been reviewed and found in order.

Election of the Moderator

Moderator Ufford-Chase announced the election of the Moderator of the 217th General Assembly (2006) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), as required by Book of Order, G-9.0200, and Standing Rule H.1.a.(2). The Stated Clerk described the procedure for this election.

Four candidates were placed in nomination: Tim Halverson, Presbytery of Peace River, who was nominated by Carol Divens Roth, Presbytery of Pittsburgh; Joan Gray, Presbytery of Greater Atlanta, who was nominated by Judith Pingel, Presbytery of Sierra Blanca; Kerry Carson, Presbytery of North Central Iowa, who was nominated by Leslie Day-Ebert, Presbytery of Los Ranchos; Deborah Block, Presbytery of Milwaukee, who was nominated by J. Oscar McCloud, Presbytery of New York City.

With no additional nominations from the floor, the nominations were then closed and each candidate was afforded an opportunity to address the General Assembly for a time not to exceed five minutes. The order of the nominating speakers and candidates to address the assembly was determined by lot. The most recent past Moderator present, Susan Andrews, Moderator of the 215th General Assembly (2003), assisted with the drawing after leading the moderatorial candidates in prayer.

At the conclusion of their presentations, the candidates responded to questions from the floor. At the expiration of the time allotted for this process, the candidates were escorted from the hall by former Moderator Andrews. Stated Clerk Kirkpatrick explained the electronic voting procedures.

Joan Gray was elected Moderator of the 217th General Assembly (2006) on the third ballot, receiving a total of 307 votes. Of the total votes cast, Deborah Block received 152; Tim Halverson received 20, and Kerry Carson received 19.

Moderator Ufford-Chase declared that Joan Gray was duly elected to the office of Moderator of the 217th General Assembly (2006).

After being escorted back into the hall by former Moderator Andrews, elected Moderator Gray was accompanied on the platform by family members and friends.

Installation Service and Presentation to Newly Elected Moderator

Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick and retiring Moderator Rick Ufford-Chase installed Joan Gray into the office of Moderator. Catherine Gonzalez led the assembly in prayer for its newly elected Moderator.

Retiring Moderator Ufford-Chase then presented Moderator Gray with the moderatorial stole and Celtic crosses that have been worn by all Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Moderators since 1983.

Moderator Gray then addressed the assembly briefly and introduced family members who were present.

Presentations to Retiring Moderator and Vice-Moderator

Moderator Gray recognized Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick for a special presentation. Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick presented to retiring Moderator Rick Ufford-Chase a framed picture and a replica of the Celtic crosses that have been worn by all Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Moderators since 1983, and retiring Vice-Moderator Jean Marie Peacock with a chalice and paten inscribed with the seal of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). Ufford-Chase addressed the assembly briefly.

Announcements and Recess

Stated Clerk Kirkpatrick announced that Nelson Erwin, elder commissioner from the Presbytery of Tres Rios, died this evening. A prayer was offered by Moderator Gray for the life of Erwin and the members of his family. After prayer offered by Matthew Hogg, youth advisory delegate from the Presbytery of Whitewater Valley, the assembly recessed at 11:00 p.m. to be reconvened at 9:00 a.m. on Monday, June 19.

Friday, June 16, 2006, 9:00 A.M.

The assembly met in committees from 9:00 a.m. until 12 noon; from 1:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.; and from 8:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m.

Friday, June 16, 2006, 6:45 p.m.

Commissioners, advisory delegates, and other participants assembled for worship in the Concert Hall of the Birmingham Jefferson Convention Center at 6:45 p.m. Rick-Ufford Chase, Moderator of the 216th General Assembly (2004) preached the sermon. The Scripture readings were from Isaiah 56:1–8 and Mark 9:14–29.

Commissioning of Mission Personnel

The worship service included the recognition of mission personnel retiring, Global Partners in Mission in the U.S.A., and members of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) appointed to serve in mission in North America and worldwide.

Saturday, June 17, 2006, 9:00 A.M.

The assembly met in committees from 9:00 a.m. until 12 noon; from 1:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m., and from 8 p.m. to 10:00 p.m.

Ecumenical Service of Worship

Commissioners, advisory delegates, and other participants assembled in the Concert Hall of the Birmingham Jefferson Convention Center for an Ecumenical Service of Worship. The Reverend Dr. Bernice Powell Jackson, president of the World Council of Churches, preached a sermon, entitled, “Inside Out.” Scripture readings were from 1 Samuel 15:34–16:13 and 2 Corinthians 5:6–10, 14–17.

The offering received at the Ecumenical Service of Worship was designated for youth and young adult participation in the World Council of Churches.

Sunday, June 18, 2006, 9:00 A.M.

Commissioners, advisory delegates, and other participants worshiped in local Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Cumberland Presbyterian Church, and Cumberland Presbyterian Church in American congregations.

Following worship in local congregations, commissioners and others participated in various afternoon events, including a time of celebration and greeting the Moderator of the 217th General Assembly (2006).

Sunday, June 18, 2006, 6:00 P.M.

Worship and Service of Holy Communion

Commissioners of the concurrent General Assemblies of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, and the Cumberland Presbyterian Church in America, and other participants assembled for a joint worship service on Sunday, June 18, 2006, at 6:00 p.m. in the Birmingham Arena of the Birmingham Jefferson Convention Center, Birmingham, Alabama. Setri Nyomi, general secretary of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches and a member of the Evangelical Presbyterian Church, Ghana, preached the sermon. The Scripture readings were from Micah 6:6–8 and Hebrews 11:29–12:2. Ministers and elders from Sheppards and Lapsley assisted in the distribution of communion elements.

The offering received during this worship service was designated to support three different ministries: the Coalition for Appalachian Ministry (CAM), Presbyterian Council for Chaplains and Military Personnel (PCCMP), and the AIDS ministry of the Presbyterian Church in Kinshasa. The CAM and PCCMP are supported by all three of the denominations that have jointly planned this worship service. The AIDS ministry at the Presbyterian Community in Kinshasa is one that the three denominations have agreed addresses a vital need in our global community.

Ice Cream Social

Following the worship service, commissioners, advisory delegates, and other participants attended an ice cream social in the piazza of the Birmingham Jefferson Convention Center sponsored by the General Assembly Committee on Local Arrangements.

Monday, June 19, 2006, 9:00 A.M.

The 217th General Assembly (2006) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) was reconvened at 9:00 a.m. with Moderator Joan S. Gray presiding. Moderator Gray began the session with a reading from the desert fathers. Moderator Gray then recognized Neal Presa, commissioner from the Presbytery of Elizabeth, who led the assembly in the opening prayer.

Moderator Gray expressed appreciation to chairs and vice chairs of assembly committees and the Moderator candidates, Deborah Block, Kerry Carson, and Tim Halverson, as well as vice-moderator candidates and nominating speakers.

Announcement

Moderator Gray reminded the assembly that headsets for Korean and Spanish translation of business or for hearing amplification were available at the Special Services Booth in the East Lobby.

ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON BILLS AND OVERTURES

Moderator Gray recognized Judy Wellington, moderator of the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures, who presented a report from the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures.

Wellington reported that the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures examined the minutes of the General Assembly from the time of its convening on Thursday, afternoon June 15, through the end of business on Thursday evening, June 15, and found them in order. All had been done in compliance with the Standing Rules. (See p. 135.) Item 02-04 (referrals of commissioners' resolutions) was received. (See page 135.) Item 02-05 (revised docket) was approved. (See page 136.) The 217th General Assembly (2006) approved the docket of the General Assembly with revisions:

- Assembly Committee on General Assembly Procedures (03) (Financial Implications)
- Assembly Committee on Mission Coordination (08) (Financial Implications)
- Introduction of San Jose Committee on Local Arrangements

Closing Prayer

ADJOURN

Ecumenical Greetings

Moderator Gray recognized Michael Livingston, president of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. (NCCC), who brought greetings to the assembly from the NCCC. Livingston addressed the assembly briefly.

CONFIRMATION AND INSTALLATION OF THE VICE-MODERATOR

Moderator Gray introduced Robert Wilson from the Presbytery of North Alabama whom she appointed to serve as Vice-Moderator of the 217th General Assembly (2006). Wilson addressed the assembly. The assembly confirmed Wilson as Vice-Moderator of the 217th General Assembly (2006) and installed him into the position.

Presentation by the Committee on Local Arrangements

Moderator Gray recognized Dana Waters, moderator, and Jane Carmichael, vice-moderator, of the Committee on Local Arrangements, who presented gavels to the Moderator and Vice-Moderator on behalf of the Committee on Local Arrangements of the Presbytery of Sheppards and Lapsley. The Moderator and Vice-Moderator's gavels were handmade for this 217th General Assembly (2006). Each gavel and accompanying sound block are made of two woods, Alabama cherry and African Blackwood, symbolizing the ongoing connection between the Presbytery of Sheppards and Lapsley and the peoples of the Congo. The gavel bags are constructed with insets of Kuba cloth.

Stated Clerk's Orientation

Moderator Gray recognized Stated Clerk Kirkpatrick, who presented a brief orientation of commissioners. This session of the orientation included procedures for conducting business in plenary, for use of microphones and the speaker recognition system, for making a motion, for participation in dialogue, for use of parliamentary procedures (using the most recent version of Robert's Rules of Order), for use of protests and dissents, for use of consent motion, for handling of minority reports, for distribution of reports, and for the electronic voting procedures.

FINANCIAL IMPLICATIONS UPDATE
REPORT OF THE ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON GENERAL ASSEMBLY PROCEDURES

Moderator Gray recognized Vincent Thomas, moderator of the Assembly Committee on General Assembly Procedures, for a report on financial implications to the per capita budget of actions taken at this assembly. Thomas announced that the total financial implications of actions recommended by assembly committees amounts to: $36,705 for 2006; $198,660 for 2007; and $107,414 for 2008. In terms of the per capita apportionment rate, this would present an increase of approximately 9 cents in 2007 and 5 cents in 2008. Since per capita cannot be increased for the mid year 2006, the amount of $36,705 may have to be absorbed in the current year's budget. On Thursday morning, the committee will present to the assembly its final recommendation for balancing the per capita budget for 2007 and 2008.

FINANCIAL IMPLICATIONS UPDATE
REPORT OF THE ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON MISSION COORDINATION

The report of the Assembly Committee on Mission Coordination was presented by its moderator, David Norton. Norton reported the total financial implications of actions under consideration by the assembly for the mission budgets was: $8,384 for 2006; $46,918 for 2007; and $36,534 for 2008.

REPORT OF THE ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON

The report of the Assembly Committee on Board of Pensions and Presbyterian Foundation was presented by its moderator, Alan Ford. Ford informed the assembly that the committee acted on Items 15-A–15-F in accordance with the committee's responsibilities, and that they are presented for information only.

Ford introduced Robert Maggs, president of the Board of Pensions, who addressed the assembly. Ford continued the report of the Assembly Committee on Board of Pensions and Presbyterian Foundation. The assembly approved Items 15-01 and 15-04. (See page 1319, 1320.) Ford then introduced Robert Leech, president of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation for a presentation on the Presbyterian Foundation. The assembly approved Items 15-02, 15-03, and 15-05. (See pages 1319, 1321.)

The report of the Assembly Committee on Board of Pensions and Presbyterian Foundation was concluded, and a committee summary is as follows:

Video Presentation

Moderator Gray recognized Curtis A. Kearns Jr., director of the National Ministries Division, who addressed the assembly regarding the goal of the 208th General Assembly (1996) to raise racial ethnic membership to 10 percent by 2005 and 20 percent by 2010. Kearns presented a video called Glimpses of a Growing Diversity, showing the great variety of styles, languages, and traditions in worship on any given Sunday in Presbyterian churches.

REPORT OF THE ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON THEOLOGICAL ISSUES AND INSTITUTIONS (13)

Moderator Gray recognized Nancy Olthoff, moderator of the Assembly on Theological Issues and Institutions, who presented the committee's report. Olthoff informed the assembly that Item 13-14 is a footnote to clarify Latin translation. The assembly approved the consent agenda: Items 13-03, 13-06, 13-07, 13-09, 13-12, 13-13, 13-14, and 13-16.

Nancy Olthoff introduced Jim Kitchens, chair of the Committee on Theological Education, who reported on behalf of the Committee on Theological Education. Olthoff then introduced Laura Mendenhall, president of Colombia Theological Seminary, who presented an award for excellence in theological education to Catherine Gonzales. Gonzales addressed the assembly briefly.

Jeffrey Bullock, corresponding member and president of Dubuque Theological Seminary, continued the report of the Assembly Committee on Theological Issues and recognized Sam Calian, retired president of Pittsburgh Theological Seminary. Calian addressed the assembly briefly, and introduced the new president of Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, William J. Carl, who also addressed the assembly.

The assembly approved Item 13-08. The assembly approved Items 13-11 (as amended) and 13-10.

Irving Moxley, commissioner from the Presbytery Scioto Valley, continued the committee's report. The assembly approved Item 13-15. The assembly approved Item 13-01, as amended. The assembly approved Item 13-04, as amended and with comment.

Nancy Olthoff continued the committee's report. Olthoff presented Item 13-05. She then called on Jonathan Lovelady who presented a minority report concerning Item 13-05. Nancy Olthoff and Dan Migliore spoke to the main motion. Jonathan Lovelady spoke to the minority report and introduced Ken McDevitt, youth advisory delegate from the Presbytery of Blackhawk who spoke to the report. The floor was opened for amendments to the main motion. The main motion was amended as follows: "in Recommendation 1, strike out 'Approve' and insert 'Receive'"; and "to amend the last sentence of the first paragraph under "Baptism" section so that it reads: 'With the exception of the baptismal formula itself, we are also free to supplement this language with additional Trinitarian images to reflect the expansive grace, love, and communion of the one God.'" The main motion was declared perfected. The floor was opened for amendments to the minority report. The moderator declared the minority report perfected. The merits of the main motion and the substitute motion were debated. Moderator Gray placed before the assembly the question, "Shall the minority report be substituted for the main motion?" The minority report was defeated. The assembly approved Item 13-05 as amended. The assembly approved that Item 13-02 be answered by the action taken on Item 13-05.

The report of the Assembly Committee on Theological Issues and Institutions was concluded, and a committee summary is as follows:

Dissents

The following commissioners filed a dissent from the action taken on Item 13-05 of the Assembly Committee on Theological Issues and Institutions: Jolie Berry, Presbytery of South Louisiana; and Chandler M. Willis, Presbytery of South Louisiana.

Announcements

Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick made several announcements: That the offering from the ecumenical worship service totaled $4,507, to be used for youth and young adult programs of the World Council of Churches; and that the offering from the previous night's worship celebration totaled $25,111, which Rick Ufford-Chase, Moderator of the 216th General Assembly (2004), by agreement with officials of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church and the Cumberland Presbyterian Church in America, had designated the offering for the following programs: The Coalition for the Appalachian Ministry (CAM); Presbyterian Council for Chaplains and Military Personnel (PCCMP), and AIDS ministry at the Presbyterian Community in Kinshasa. Kirkpatrick encouraged commissioners to complete the forms available to evaluate this General Assembly. He also announced that the Red Cross would conduct a blood drive on Tuesday, 11:30 a.m.–4:00 p.m.

Memorial Minute for William P. Thompson

Moderator Gray recognized J. Oscar McCloud, commissioner from the Presbytery of New York City, who offered a Memorial Minute for William P. Thompson, Moderator of the 121st General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church in the United States of America and Stated Clerk of the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) from 1966–1983.

Memorial Minute for William P. Thompson

William Phelps Thompson was a strong, bright light in the Presbyterian church and its ecumenical endeavors for more than two decades. He died April 27, 2006, perhaps the most widely known and respected Protestant churchman of his time.

Mr. Thompson's service to and through the national church began with his election as Moderator of the denomination's General Assembly in 1965 (although a colleague later reflected that "it's hard to remember when Bill wasn't in the midst of anything worthwhile that the church was doing").

He left a law practice in Kansas to accept election as Stated Clerk (chief executive officer) of the General Assembly—the first layperson to hold that position since 1883. In the years following, he would be involved in myriad of Presbyterian activities as varied as membership on the General Council to participation in local chapters of Presbyterian Men.

From the beginning his hours were long and challenging. A friend said of him that "Bill Thompson had the toughest job in the church—and loves it."

Early in his tenure a Christian Century article said of him that "anyone who dares to be a registered Democrat in Kansas can't be all bad." Appropriately he was in the front lines as his church entered struggles over civil rights, women's rights, and opposition to the Vietnam War. He supported an early General Assembly action against the ordination of self-affirming gay and lesbian persons but later changed his mind and publicly said so.

He worked tirelessly for the reunion of the Presbyterian family in America—accomplished in 1983—and for a less-successful merger movement, the Consultation on Church Union. All the while his ecumenical involvements brought him elections and accolades. He was president of the National Council of Churches, a president of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches (Presbyterian and Congregational) among others.

Thompson held a Doctor of Law degree from the University of Chicago Law School and honorary degrees from a half dozen other colleges but never used those titles.

His interests and points of service and leadership encompassed the local and the worldwide. Even in the sunset years he was engaged in the Community Chest, the Midwest Regional Research Foundation, the Civic Music Association, the Wichita Symphony, and the Wichita Council of Camp Fire Girls. In 2000, he and Mrs. Thompson established the William and Mary Thompson Ecumenical Scholarship Fund to develop leadership for the global ecumenical endeavors.

He is survived by his wife, Mary Thompson; two daughters, Margaret Sewell and Judith Koop; one son, William Thompson Jr.; and six grandchildren.

Moderator Gray recognized James Fother, ecumenical advisory delegate, who brought greetings from the United Church of Christ and led the assembly in prayer. The assembly recessed at 11:45 a.m. to reconvene at 1:30 p.m.

The 217th General Assembly (2006) reconvened at 1:30 p.m. with Moderator Joan Gray presiding. Moderator Gray recognized Elder Sue Smith, commissioner from the Presbytery of Monmouth, who led the assembly in the opening prayer.

Moderator Gray then led the assembly in prayer for the family of Nelson Erwin, elder commissioner, who died last Thursday, and the Reverend Dr. Bill McSwegin, executive presbyter of the Presbytery of Lackawanna, who is battling cancer.

Speak-Out

Vice-Moderator Robert Wilson assumed the chair. Commissioners, advisory delegates, and corresponding members were given an opportunity to speak out on issues outside of the deliberative mode of the assembly for fifteen minutes, with one-minute limits on individual speeches. Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick instructed the assembly on the procedure to be followed during the time allotted for the speak-out. Vice-Moderator Wilson then recognized persons, who spoke on various concerns.

REPORT OF THE ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON CHURCH GROWTH AND CHRISTIAN EDUCATION (12)

Moderator Gray recognized Commissioner Lee Jordan, moderator of the Assembly Committee on Church Growth and Christian Education, who presented the committee's report. Item 12-18. On Adding New Section G-11.0404g Regarding New Immigrant Ministers—Disapproved with comment. (See page 1094.) Comment: In making this decision regarding Item 12-18, we recognize that many in the Presbytery of North Central Iowa deem Bienvenidode Jesus Rivera-Acosta to be reformed in theology, a skilled and effective pastor, and willing to embrace the polity of the PC(USA). We are pleased that the Presbytery of North Central Iowa has commissioned Rivera-Acosta as a lay pastor and is showing flexibility and all due diligence in the preparation for the ministry process. We pray that these efforts will result in further growth in your important immigrant ministry. A member of our committee is from Puerto Rico and has called to our attention that the Evangelical Seminary of Puerto Rico, which is recognized by the PC(USA) as an official seminary, could provide excellent training and resources for such situations for preparing immigrant candidates for ministry.

Announcements

Stated Clerk Kirkpatrick announced that participants to the 217th General Assembly (2006) could make a donation to support a local hunger project designed by the host presbytery. Funds collected will go to Greater Birmingham Ministries. Stated Clerk Kirkpatrick also announced that one way to thank the Birmingham area would be to participate in the Red Cross Blood Drive, which would be held this day from 11:30 a.m. to 5:00 pm in the North Exhibit Hall.

Closing Prayer

Moderator Gray called upon Nathan Young, youth advisory delegate from the Presbytery of Olympia, who led the assembly in prayer.

Recess

The assembly recessed at 11:45 a.m.

Tuesday, June 20, 2006, 1:30 P.M.

The 217th General Assembly (2006) reconvened at 1:30 p.m. with Moderator Joan S. Gray presiding. The Moderator led the assembly in a time of prayer. Following the time of prayer, Moderator Gray recognized Shannon Webster, executive presbyter from the Presbytery of Sierra Blanca, who led the assembly in the opening prayer.

REPORT OF THE ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON ECCLESIOLOGY (06)

Moderator Gray recognized Blair Monie, moderator of the Assembly Committee on Ecclesiology. Monie introduced Catherine Kotfila, vice-moderator of the Assembly Committee on Ecclesiology, who assisted him in presenting the report. Monie then introduced co-chairpersons of the Theological Task Force on the Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church, Gary Demarest and Jenny Stoner, for a brief presentation. The assembly approved Item 06-01, Recommendations 1., 2., 3., and approved Recommendation 4. as amended. Monie moved the approval of Item 06-01, Recommendations 5–7, as amended with comment. Howard Sale, commissioner from the Presbytery of Detroit, presented a minority report on Item 06-01, Recommendations 5–7. Monie spoke briefly to the main motion. Sale spoke briefly to the minority report. The floor was opened for debate on the main motion. The assembly approved an amendment to insert, after the first appearance of the word, “examination,” the words, “and ordination and installation decision” and to strike the word “complies” and insert the word “comply.” The main motion was declared perfected. The floor was opened for debate on the minority report. The minority report was declared perfected. The merits of the main motion and the minority report were debated. Moderator Gray placed before the assembly the question, “Shall the minority report be substituted for the main motion?” The minority report was defeated. The assembly approved a motion to limit debate to two minutes per speaker. Vice-Moderator Wilson led the assembly in prayer. The assembly approved Item 06-01, Recommendations 5–7, as amended with comment. Commissioners and other participants formed circles and joined hands in prayer throughout the assembly hall.

Monie continued the committee’s report. The assembly disapproved Item 06-05, Recommendation 3. The assembly approved Item 06-07 with comment. The assembly disapproved Item 06-11. The assembly voted to answer the remaining items in the report by the action taken on Item 06-01: Items 06-02, 06-03, 06-04, 06-05 (Recommendations 1–2, 4–7), 06-06, 06-08, 06-09, 06-10, 06-12, 06-13, 06-14, 06-15, 06-16, 06-17, 06-18, 06-19, 06-20, and 06-21. This concluded the report of the Assembly Committee on Ecclesiology and a committee summary is as follows:

Assembly Committee on Ecclesiology

[There are no items for the consent agenda. Items that have financial implications are indicated with a dollar sign ($).]

Item 06-01, Recommendations 1–3. Report of the Theological Task on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church—Approved. (See pages 513–14.)

Item 06-01, Recommendation 4. Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church—Approved as amended. (See page 514.)

Item 06-01, Recommendation 5–7. Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church—Approved as amended and with comment. (See page 514–19.) Comment: The success of this proposal is dependent upon all governing bodies taking all standards of the church seriously and applying them rigorously in the examination process. All governing bodies are encouraged to develop resources to ensure that this happens.

Memorial Minute for James E. Andrews, Former Stated Clerk

Marj Carpenter, Moderator of the 207th General Assembly (1995), was recognized and presented a memorial minute for James E. Andrews:

James Edgar Andrews 1928–2006

James E. Andrews, born in Whittenburg, Texas, on December 29, 1928, served as Stated Clerk of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and one of its predecessor denominations, the Presbyterian Church in the United States, for the longest period of time of any former Stated Clerk.

After graduating from Fort Smith, Arkansas, High School, Jim earned his B.A. and M.A. degree from Austin College and went on to receive his B.D. degree from Austin Theological Seminary. Two schools awarded him honorary degrees: Austin College, D.D. in 1974, and Hastings College, D.S.Th. in 1990. His wisdom however, came from the varied ways he faithfully served the church.

Beginning as an assistant pastor of the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Houston, Jim was called to be the information officer for the World Alliance of Reformed Church in Geneva from 1958–1960. He was then called to be director of public relations and assistant to the president of Princeton Theological Seminary, a position he held for more than a decade. During that time, he became mentor and friend to hundreds of students.

Jim was elected Assistant Stated Clerk of the Presbyterian Church in the United States in 1971, then Stated Clerk in 1973, beginning an unbroken term of twenty-three years which included serving as Interim Co-Stated Clerk of the reunited church in 1983. A year later he was elected as the first Stated Clerk of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), a position he held until his retirement in 1996.

But again, this tells only of Jim's formal positions in the church he loved so deeply. For more than two decades, he served as a member of the Governing Board of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. and as a member of its executive committee. He was a member of the Executive Committee of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches and secretary of its Caribbean and North American Area Council. Jim attended meetings of the world body in Germany (1964), Nairobi, Kenya (1970), St. Andrews, Scotland (1977), Ottawa, Canada (1982), Seoul, Korea (1989), and Yaounde, Cameroun (1995). In these and many other gatherings of the Presbyterian family, he was known for his lucid contributions and especially for his insistence that, as a Reformed family, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) should be in meaningful dialogue and cooperation with other faith families.

In the wider realm of the World Council of Churches, Jim was active at meetings in Kenya, Vancouver, Canada, and in Canberra, Australia. Here again he pressed his agenda for learning from, understanding, and cooperating with other faith families.

James Andrews will be especially remembered as a bridge builder helping to reunite the two major Presbyterian bodies in the United States. As an active member of the Joint Committee on Reunion, he worked tirelessly for fourteen years to bring about that glorious day in Atlanta in 1983, when once again Presbyterians became one family.

Through all of his entire ministry he had an abiding passion that all God's children be treated equally regardless of race or gender. He demonstrated this by his march in Selma and in his personal affiliation with multiracial congregations.

Thousands of Presbyterians watched Jim at dozens of General Assembly meetings project a decisive yet warm and helpful charisma that once led the youth advisory delegates to present him with an oversized teddy bear. His staff knew best of his primary calling to be a pastor in whatever arena he found himself. For years he would come into his staff meetings, many times just off an airplane, look around, and then with bowed head talk to God. Fortunately, many of these prayers were recorded and preserved in a slim book, Prayers for All Seasons, presented to him on the occasion of his retirement. This prayer was given as the staff prepared for a General Assembly meeting:

Lord, you have gathered us from far places to come together in this quiet corner: and we bring with us the joys and fatigue of our labors, and the bright anticipation of the job ahead of us. Help us to remember that we serve you; that in the turmoil of getting ready and in the tension of carrying out a General Assembly meeting, our purpose is not a particular form of words or in the passage or defeat of particular legislation, but the expression of your will before the people, so that those people may believe in your Son whom you sent. Grant us that faith, the willingness to accept decision which we facilitate but upon which we do not vote; and the energy to help those who labor for those decision to do a good job. In Jesus' name. Amen.

Announcements

Stated Clerk Kirkpatrick announced that the exhibits in the North Hall would close at 2 p.m. In addition, Kirkpatrick announced that a limited number of communion sets that were used in the Sunday evening worship were still available for purchase.

Kirkpatrick announced that contributions to the Greater Birmingham Ministries totaled $1,942.51 and that additional contributions could still be made at the OGA office in East Hall 1; that evaluation forms had been distributed to commissioners and advisory delegates and asked they be completed; and that a transportation update outlining Thursday departure arrangements had been distributed. Finally, Stated Clerk Kirkpatrick announced that the choir, Creative Impressions, from Augusta, Georgia, that performed during the previous evening's plenary would perform again at the beginning of the afternoon plenary meeting.

Closing Prayer

Vice-Moderator Wilson called upon Rema Palmer, ecumenical advisory delegate from the Uniting Church of Jamaica and Grand Cayman, who led the assembly in prayer.

Recess

The assembly recessed at 12:10 p.m.

Wednesday, June 21, 2006, 1:45 P.M.

The 217th General Assembly (2006) reconvened at 1:45 p.m. with Vice-Moderator Robert Wilson presiding. The assembly was led in prayer by Alicia Seng, the youth advisory delegate from the Presbytery of Upper Ohio Valley.

Wilson recognized Cynthia White, coordinator of the Self-Development of People, who introduced the singing group, Creative Impressions, from Augusta, Georgia, who performed several songs for the assembly.

Speak-Out

Commissioners, advisory delegates, and corresponding members were given an opportunity to speak out on issues outside the deliberative mode of the assembly for fifteen minutes, with one-minute limits on individual speeches. Vice-Moderator Wilson instructed the assembly on the procedure to be followed during the time allotted for the speak-out. Wilson then recognized persons, who spoke on various concerns.

A motion to reconsider Item 04-05 was defeated.

REPORT OF THE ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON BILLS AND OVERTURES (02)

Moderator Gray recognized Judith Wellington, moderator of the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures, who reported that the committee had reviewed the minutes of the General Assembly through Tuesday, June 20, 2006, and had found them in order. (See p. 135.)

REPORT OF THE ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON MISSION COORDINATION (08)

Vice-Moderator Wilson recognized David Norton, moderator of the Assembly Committee on Mission Coordination. [For the first portion of this report, see p. 19.] Norton reported that the financial implications for the mission budget for actions taken this week by the assembly were as follows: $8,384 for 2006; $16,768 for 2007; and $16,384 for 2008.

The assembly approved Item 08-01. The assembly disapproved Items 08-02 and 08-04. The assembly disapproved Item 08-05 with comment. The assembly disapproved Item 08-18. The assembly approved Item 08-13, Recommendations A.1., A.2., B.1., B.2., C.1., and C.2. The assembly approved that Item 08-10 be answered by an alternate resolution.

Pam Ator, vice-moderator of the Assembly Committee on Mission Coordination, continued the committee's report. The assembly approved Item 08-06 as amended. The assembly approved Item 08-11. The assembly approved Item 08-17 as amended. The assembly approved Item 08-12 as amended. The assembly disapproved Item 08-03 and Item 08-07.

David Norton reported that the committee had approved Items 08-A and 08-B and 08-C. This concluded the report of the Assembly Committee on Mission Coordination, and a committee summary is as follows:

II. Committee Final Action and Report to Plenary

Item 08-A. Minutes, GAC

That the minutes are approved with minor exception as reported to the Stated Clerk.

Item 08-B. Minutes, PC(USA), A Corporation

That the minutes are approved.

Item 08-C. Audit

That the 217th General Assembly (2006) assign the review of the audit for the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), A Corporation, for December 31, 2004–2005 to the General Assembly Committee for the Review of the General Assembly Council due to the delay in the completion of those statements. (See page 747.)

Background

The audits for the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), A Corporation, and the Presbyterian Foundation's audits were delayed this year. The Foundation is the fiduciary for certain loan funds for which PC(USA), A Corporation, provides administration and disbursement services to congregations throughout the country. All loans are properly recorded and all assets are confirmed. The delay was due to how to best reflect these loan funds on each corporation's financial statements.

REPORT OF THE ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON CHURCH POLITY (05)

Moderator Gray recognized Lynne Myers, moderator of the Assembly Committee on Church Polity, who presented the committee's report. Items 05-A–05-P were approved by the assembly committee. Items 05-05, 05-07, 05-11, 05-22, 05-23, 05-25, and 05-28 were removed from the consent agenda. The assembly approved the consent agenda: Items 05-01 (answered with alternate resolution), 05-02 (approved as amended), 05-03 (disapproved), 05-06 (disapproved with comment), 05-08 (disapproved), and 05-09 (disapproved), 05-10 (disapproved), 05-12 (disapproved with comment), 05-13 (answered by action taken on Item 05-12), Item 05-14 (answered by alternate resolution), 05-15 (answered by action taken on Item 05-20), Item 05-16 (answered by action taken on Item 05-20), Item 05-17 (disapproved), Item 05-18 (disapproved), Item 05-19 (disapproved), Item 05-20 (referred to OGA with comment), Item 05-21 (answered by action taken on Item 05-20), Item 05-24 (approved), Item 05-26 (approved), Item 05-27 (approved), Item 05-29 (referred to GAC with comment), and Item 05-30 (approved).

The assembly approved Item 05-05. The assembly disapproved 05-07. The assembly approved 05-11, Recommendation 1., as amended by a floor motion to add the following new item: 1.a.(6): "(6) The Form of Government Task Force will release the proposed revision of the Form of Government, including advisory handbooks, by September 1, 2007." The assembly approved Item 05-11, Recommendations A.1. and A.2. and B.1. through B.3. The assembly disapproved Item 05-11, Recommendations B.4. through B.6.

Vice-Moderator Chris Lenocker continued the committee's report. The assembly voted to refer Item 05-22 to the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly, and the Office of the General Assembly with recommendation. The assembly disapproved Item 05-23.

Lynne Myers, moderator of the Assembly Committee on Church Polity, continued the committee's report.

The assembly approved a motion to limit debate to sixty seconds per speaker.

The assembly approved Items 05-25 and 05-28. This concluded the report of the Assembly Committee on Church Polity and a committee summary is as follows:

Comment: That the recommendation be referred to the Office of the General Assembly for consultation with the Advisory Committee on the Constitution to develop appropriate response to this issue while taking the following information into consideration.

“D-6.0103 Stay of Enforcement

“A stay of enforcement is a written instruction from the permanent judicial commission having jurisdiction that orders the suspension of a decision or an action until a complaint or appeal is finally determined.

“a. No later than forty-five (45) days after the alleged irregular action of the governing body or the remedial decision of a PJC being appealed, a person having standing to file a complaint or appeal may simultaneously file either a complaint or an appeal and a request for a stay of enforcement with the stated clerk of the governing body having jurisdiction. The request may be made in the following manner:

“(1) A request signed by one third of the members recorded as present when the decision or action was made by the governing body; or

“(2) A request signed by one third of the members of the permanent judicial commission which decided the remedial case;

“(3) A request signed by the complainant or appellant requesting that at least three members of the permanent judicial commission having jurisdiction to hear the complaint or appeal sign the stay of enforcement.

“b. The complaint or appeal shall be transmitted along with the request for a stay of enforcement to the permanent judicial commission moderator and clerk for their determination of the preliminary issues in D-6.0305 or D-8.0301 and

“(1) whether or not the request made under D-6.0103a.1. is complete and timely; or

“(2) whether or not the request made under D-6.0103a.2. is complete and timely.

“c. The moderator and clerk shall report their findings to the permanent judicial commission and the parties.

“d. The PJC may enter a stay of enforcement within ten (10) days of the moderator and clerk's findings in the following manner:

“(1) By the moderator and the clerk in determining that the request made under D-6.0103a(1) or D-6.0103a(2) is complete and timely and the preliminary issues are met for the complaint or appeal.

“(2) By three members of the permanent judicial commission filing with the stated clerk of the governing body which has jurisdiction a statement that in his or her judgment irreparable harm will occur if the action or decision is not stayed. Each permanent judicial commission member must include a summary of the specific governing body action or decision being stayed.

“e. The stated clerk shall send a copy of the stay of enforcement to the parties and to the permanent judicial commission members.

“former c becomes f

REPORT OF THE ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON HEALTH ISSUES (10)

Moderator Gray recognized Carol Schneider, moderator of the Assembly Committee on Health Issues, who presented the committee's report. The consent agenda was approved: Item 10-05 (approved as amended), 10-07 (approved), 10-08 (approved as amended), and 10-09 (approved as amended and with comment). Schneider introduced Quinn Fox, vice-moderator of the Assembly Committee on Health Issues, to present the next part of the report. Item 10-06 was approved as amended. Item 10-01 was approved as amended from the floor as follows: "At the beginning of 10-01, add language from the 2003 Statement on Post-Viability and Late-Term Abortion beginning at line 3 with 'The church has a responsibility to provide public witness . . .' all the way through 'For any choice, we are accountable to God, however, even when we err, God offers to forgive us.'" (Ending on line 35). Item 10-01, beginning at paragraph one will read as follows:

"The church has a responsibility to provide public witness and to offer guidance, counsel, and support to those who make or interpret laws and public policies about abortion and problem pregnancies. Pastors have a duty to counsel with and pray for those who face decisions about problem pregnancies. Congregations have a duty to pray for and support those who face these choices, to offer support for women and families to help make unwanted pregnancies less likely to occur, and to provide practical support for those facing the birth of a child with medical anomalies, birth after rape or incest, or those who face health, economic, or other stresses.

"The church also affirms the value of children and the importance of nurturing, protecting, and advocating their well-being. The church, therefore, appreciates the challenge each woman and family face when issues of personal well-being arise in the later stages of a pregnancy.

"In life and death, we belong to God.' Life is a gift from God. We may not know exactly when human life begins, and have but an imperfect understanding of God as the giver of life and of our own human existence, yet we recognize that life is precious to God, and we should preserve and protect it. We derive our understanding of human life from Scripture and the Reformed Tradition in light of science, human experience, and reason guided by the Holy Spirit. Because we are made in the image of God, human beings are moral agents, endowed by the Creator with the capacity to make choices. Our Reformed Tradition recognizes that people do not always make moral choices, and forgiveness is central to our faith. In the Reformed Tradition, we affirm that God is the only Lord of conscience—not the state or the church. As a community, the church challenges the faithful to exercise their moral agency responsibly.

"When an individual woman faces the decision whether to terminate a pregnancy, the issue is intensely personal, and may manifest itself in ways that do not reflect public rhetoric, or do not fit neatly into medical, legal, or policy guidelines. Humans are empowered by the spirit prayerfully to make significant moral choices, including the choice to continue or end a pregnancy. Human choices should not be made in a moral vacuum, but must be based on Scripture, faith, and Christian ethics. For any choice, we are accountable to God; however, even when we err, God offers to forgive us."

Schneider presented the remainder of the committee's report. Item 10-02 was disapproved. An alternative resolution was approved in response to Item 10-03. Item 10-04 was approved as amended. This concluded the report of the Assembly Committee on Health Issues and a committee summary is as follows:

The following commissioner filed a dissent from the actions taken on Item 09-10, Item 09-11, and Item 09-19 of the Assembly Committee on Social Justice Issues: Charles F. Youter, Presbytery of Miami.

Announcements

Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick made several announcements including reminding commissioners that the worship service Thursday morning would be held in East Exhibit Halls 2 and 3 rather than the Concert Hall at 8:30 a.m. followed by the final business meeting of the 217th General Assembly (2006). Commissioners were also reminded to turn in any rental laptops and/or wireless cards. For those commissioners and advisory delegates who brought their own laptops, Stated Clerk Kirkpatrick informed them there was a possibility that they may need to reset their security settings.

Closing Prayer

Moderator Gray recognized Commissioner Bette Hoytink, from the Presbytery of Winnebago, who led the assembly in prayer.

Recess

The assembly was recessed at 12:30 a.m. to reconvene at 9:30 a.m.

Thursday, June 22, 2006 8:30 A.M.

Commissioners, advisory delegates, and other participants worshiped together in the East Exhibit Hall of the Birmingham Jefferson Convention Complex. The preacher for the morning was Catherine Dodson.

Thursday, June 22, 2006 9:30 A.M.

The 217th General Assembly (2006) reconvened at 9:30 a.m. With Moderator Joan Gray presiding. Justin Wood, youth advisory delegate from the Presbytery of West Virginia, and Christy Fisher, youth advisory delegate from the Presbytery of Pueblo, led the assembly in prayer.

Upon motion from the floor, the assembly voted to place the text of the sermon and the prayer from the worship service this morning on the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Web site.

ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON BILLS AND OVERTURES

Moderator Gray recognized Chris Rhodes, vice-moderator of the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures. Rhodes announced that the minutes of the General Assembly through the business meeting on Wednesday afternoon, June 21, 2006, had been reviewed and approved. The minutes from the business meetings on Wednesday evening, June 21, and Thursday morning, June 22, 2006, would be sent for final review to the subcommittee after the assembly. (See p. 135.)

Protests found to be in decorous language are recorded in the Minutes as follows:

Protest of Item 00-01-E—From Marilyn Allen, commissioner from the Presbytery of Cascades: “Incorrect, very incomplete information re Aleida Jernigan. She is currently co-executive presbyter of Cascades Presbytery, and has been since January 2004. This information may have affected the outcome of this contested election for ACWC.”

Protest of Item 04-02—From Robert A. J. Gagnon, commissioner from the Presbytery of Pittsburgh: “I protest the decision of the 217th General Assembly to disapprove the Minority Report for 04-02 (‘On Confirming the Requirements in G-6.0106b of “Fidelity and Chastity”’) on June 21, 2006. The Minority Report provided an Authoritative Interpretation for G-6.0106b that would have made explicit the obvious meaning of G-6.0106b that has been denied by many advocates for homosexual unions and by the Advisory Committee on the Constitution. I am a professor of New Testament at Pittsburgh Theological Seminary. If I were to tell a class, ‘There will be a major exam in four weeks,’ and then give an additional, unannounced major exam three days later, I would break trust with the class. I would do so by interpreting the words to mean things that, in context, do not normally mean such to reasonable persons. The very act of announcing a future exam creates the common supposition that there will be no second, intervening exam. It would be wholly inappropriate to say in my defense, ‘But I never explicitly said that I wouldn’t give an exam in three days.’ On June 20, 2006, the General Assembly broke trust with the denomination by making language in the Book of Order mean what it does not normally mean to reasonable persons acting reasonably. No one in the PCUSA has ever answered by question: ‘How can an ordination requirement in the Book of Order such as the sexuality standard in G-6.0106b, a standard that is specifically singled out for obedience from amongst all other confessional standards, be construed reasonably by an ordaining or installing body as nonessential?’ Such a construal makes nonsensical the act of singling out a standard for obedience. Why make a point of singling out a standard if not to insist that this standard, at least, must be observed as an essential of ordained office? It is not necessary to use the word ‘essential’ to communicate the absolute mandatory character of the standard. The very act of singling out makes this implicit. And yet, against all reason, the Task Force has stated that an ordaining/installing body could reasonably judge serial, unrepentant sexual relations outside of male-female marriage as a violation of a nonessential standard that would pose ‘no barrier to ordination’ ‘with the help of the Spirit’ (11.1225–32). In approving the Minority Report on 04-02, the General Assembly had an opportunity to begin to make a goodwill gesture toward restoring the trust violated by the approval of recommendation 5. It could have affirmed the obvious meaning of words by stating that G-6.0106b clearly prohibits officers of the church from having any sexual relations outside the covenant of marriage between a man and a woman. ‘Chastity in singleness’ is not unclear. Historically, it has meant only one thing: abstinence from sexual activity. Jesus himself was quite clear that sexual relations must be confined to marriage between one man and one woman (Matthew 19). Unfortunately the General Assembly chose to perpetuate the postmodernist twistery of words and thereby to lose the opportunity to begin to restore constitutional trust in the denomination.”

Protest of Item 04-04—From Teresa R. Hagenbuch, commissioner from the Presbytery of Blackhawk:

“My protest concerns Item 04-04 of Church Orders. I voted no on this action. My protest is specifically concerning the minority report of 04-04. The final minority report that was attached to item 04-04 was not the minority report that I signed in the G.A. Office. 7 words were inserted into the last sentence “and affirms the work and ministry of.” In the G. A. Office I carefully read the minority report to make sure I agreed and also to make sure the 7 words were not included. These 7 words and several others had been in the original “comment” the committee had wished to send to the assembly. After amending the comment to remove these items the “comment was defeated by a 28 to 27 vote by the committee thus making a minority report. I wish my name to be removed from 04-04 minority report. It is unfortunate that this error occurred and could not be corrected on the floor.”

Protest of Item 06-01—From Mark Schneider, commissioner from the Presbytery of Detroit: “Pursuant to Book of Order, Section G-9.0304, I, Mark D. Schneider, an elder commissioner from the Presbytery of Detroit protest the action taken by the 217th General Assembly PC(USA) (2006) on item 06-01. Recommendation 5 of the report of the Peace, Unity & Purity Task Force was and is unconstitutional and the Assembly was without authority to enact that part of the Task Force report. Recommendation 5 was a substantive change to the Constitution that should have been submitted to the presbyteries, in some form, for review, comment and approval. I have two reasons to support this allegation. Both reasons are supported by the history and polity of our denomination. More specifically, both reasons are directly supported by the 1926 report of the General Assembly Special Commission of 1925. See 1926 Report of General Assembly Special Commission (the “Swearingen Commission.”). A principal concern of the Swearingen Commission was the impact of prior attempts to enumerate the essentials of our reformed faith. Accordingly, the Swearingen Commission’s now 80 year old report to the Assembly (which has the advantage of being directly relevant to, but remote in time from the instant debate) is uniquely suited to address the issues raised by recommendation 5. Regarding the Historical Foundation of the Recommendation 5 The Task Force report cited to and relied upon an inappropriate foundation for recommendation 5. Specifically, the rational supporting recommendation 5 referenced the principal of scrupling as permitted by the Adopting Act of 1729. However, in citing to the Adopting Act, the Task Force either ignored or did not consider the fact that the body that authorized that act was not the General Assembly, it was The (General) Synod. This is a key historical distinction. The differences between the power and authority of the (General) Assembly and the The General Synod are great. See the Swearingen Commission. The (General) Synod was composed of all the ministers in the denomination, and of a representative from the session of every particular church. Id. Accordingly, The (General) Synod was the whole Church. Id. The Synod had supreme authority, no written constitution and could rescind or alter any action at will and without reference to any presbytery. Id. The Adopting Act, cited by the Task Force report, is a case in point. The Adopting Act was not referred to the Church for presbytery vote because the Church was deemed to be fully present in The (General) Synod itself. Id. In contrast to the General Synod, the General Assembly has limited, defined, and delegated powers. It has another authority above it, namely, the Constitution of the Church which requires a vote of the presbyteries to effect substantive change. Id. Therein is the difference between the two bodies. Id. It was this history regarding the significantly different power and authority of the General Assembly and The (General) Synod that led the 1925 Commission to state the following: ‘To quote actions of The (General) Synod therefore, as though they constituted controlling precedents as to the methods by which similar actions may be taken by the General Assembly, is clearly inadmissible.’ Id. In the Task Force report, the rational on recommendation 5 quoted the Adopting Act (an action of The (General) Synod) to underpin its historical claim that this General Assembly had the authority to enact recommendation 5. The Commission of 1925, however, found such reliance to be inappropriate. Regarding the Polity Basis for Recommendation 5 In Maxwell v. Presbytery of Pittsburgh, the Permanent Judicial Commission of the United Presbyterian Church held that ‘[n]either a synod nor the General Assembly has any power to allow a presbytery to grant an exception to an explicit constitutional provision.’ See UPC, 1975, p. 254 Maxwell v. Presbytery of Pittsburgh. Further, to again quote the 1926 report of the Commission of 1925 – ‘[i]t would be intolerable if the General Assembly, whose powers are limited by the Constitution, could, . . . , amend by indirection, the organic law of the Church, which contains within itself provisions for effecting orderly change.’ Unlike The (General) Synod, the General Assembly’s ability to interpret the denomination’s Constitution is itself constrained and limited by a constitution, which contains clear provisions for enacting change. Id. In the opinion of the Swearingen Commission, the conclusion that the General Assembly could not amend by indirection was both sound in logic and established in practice. Id. Recommendation 5 has now changed that conclusion. To further quote the 1926 Commission report, - ‘[t]he only way by which the General Assembly can bring about a change in our Form of Government, Book of Discipline or Directory for Worship is by proposing the change to the Presbyteries, and having it approved by a majority of all the Presbyteries.’ Id. In the Task Force report, the rational supporting recommendation 5 made plain that it would permit an ordaining body to disregard a provision of the denomination’s written Constitution, so long as it deem that provision to be not essential. However, as Maxwell makes clear, there is and was nothing in the Constitution that would permit an exception to a written Constitutional provision. Recommendation 5 was a radical departure from constitutional tradition and interpretation, it is an open and obvious example of amendment by indirection, it is contrary to the holding of Maxwell, supra, and (most importantly) it was a usurpation of the right of the presbyteries to have input on a confusing and substantive change to the Constitution – something the Swearingen Commission said an Assembly cannot do the language of G-13.0103r notwithstanding. The intent of G-13.0103r (Authoritative Interpretations) is not new, it merely formally stated a well known principal that a governing body may interpret and issue directives concerning its own constitution. However, in the PC(USA) all such interpretations must be guided and restrained by the right of presbyteries to amend the Constitution. Of still greater concern is the fact that recommendation 5 was unrestricted. Taken to a logical extreme, recommendation 5 has set a dangerous precedent that might be used to permit any portion of the Constitution to be deemed not essential. Such an outcome, would not promote the Peace Unity and Purity of our denomination. In summary, had the Presbyteries had the opportunity to vote on recommendation 5, I would not have considered this protest necessary and I would gladly and joyfully support any resulting decision. That, however, is not what happened. In fact, while I will not participate in such action, I sadly predict that the 218th General Assembly will be inundated with requests to resend or modify recommendation 5, and the fight, confusion and distrust that has plagued this denomination will continue. I pray, however, that this is not what will happen.”

Protest of Item 06-01—From Marvin L. Hammond, commissioner from the Presbytery of Carlisle: “I feel that recommendation 5 of the PUP report should be sent to presbyteries and local churches for review. The Task Force went to presbyteries but due to the Task Force’s time restraints did not allow for a full response from the presbyteries.”

Protest of Item 06-01—From Robert A. J. Gagnon, commissioner from the Presbytery of Pittsburgh: “I protest the decision of the 217th General Assembly to approve 06-01, recommendation 5. The General Assembly – rather 57% of its commissioners – passed an amendment to the Book of Order in the guise of an “authoritative interpretation.” In doing so, it destroyed the system of checks and balances whereby presbyteries, by a plurality national vote, can set mandatory requirements for ordination. Unable to remove the sexuality standard in G-6.0106b by constitutional means, the supporters of Recommendation 5 subverted the Constitution by imputing a meaning to G-6.0106b that the presbyteries never gave in three successive votes through 1996–2002. There is no meaningful way in which an ordination requirement singled out in the Book of Order among all other confessional standards, explicitly called a ‘requirement’ (not just a standard), and associated with mandatory ‘shall’ language can reasonable be construed as a non-essential requirement for ordination. With this GA’s action, language – the normal meaning of words – has taken a postmodernist turn in which language no longer means what it is commonly understood to mean. And for the first time in the history of the Presbyterian Church the confinement of sexual relations to the covenant of marriage between a man and a woman for all officers has become optional. This action will probably precipitate a constitutional crisis.”

Protest of Item 12-03—From Carla Shafer, commissioner from the Presbytery of North Puget Sound: “I worked as the Executive Director of a child care program in Washington state. For 4 years we served abused and neglected children, I protest that CE directors and church people who work with children be given the option, due to issues of confidentiality, to not report. Abused and neglected children benefit from strong advocates. Some advocates for children are not strong, easily dissuaded from action due to other relationship and they require clear rules.”

Protest of Item 12-11—From Carla Shafer, commissioner from the Presbytery of North Puget Sound: “There was no time for honest debate and full consideration.”

ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON GENERAL ASSEMBLY PROCEDURES

Vince Thomas, moderator of the Assembly Committee on General Assembly Procedures, brought the final report of the committee. Thomas reported that the actions taken by the assembly had the following financial implications on the per capita budget:

2006	$ 36,705	1.55 cents

YAD Presentation

Gray recognized the co-moderators of the Youth Advisory Delegate Caucus, Justin Wood and Christy Fisher. Wood and Fisher presented Moderator Gray with note cards inscribed with words of encouragement. In addition, Wood and Fisher presented ropes with caribiners for stoles to both Vice-Moderator Robert Wilson and Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick.

New GAC and COGA Chairs Introduced

Gray recognized Nancy Kahaian, outgoing chair of the General Assembly Council, who introduced to the assembly the new chair of General Assembly Council, Allison Seed.

Gray recognized Paul Masquelier, outgoing vice-chair of the General Assembly Council, who introduced to the assembly the new vice-chair of General Assembly Council, Charles Easley.

Gray recognized Steve Grace, outgoing chair of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, who introduced to the assembly the new chair of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, Catherine Ulrich.

Thanks to Sheppards and Lapsley

Vice-Moderator Wilson assumed the chair and recognized the youth advisory delegates from the Assembly Committee on General Assembly Procedures to recognize and thank the Sheppards and Lapsley Committee on Local Arrangements.

Wilson recognized Assistant Stated Clerks Dennis Cobb and Deborah Davies who made a presentation of communion tokens to members of the Committee on Local Arrangements (COLA). Cobb thanked members of the local committee and reported that more than 1,800 individuals had filled 3,300 volunteer shifts with volunteers from across the presbytery and other presbyteries.

Cobb recognized COLA staff members Deborah McLafferty and Charles McLafferty and members of the executive committee of COLA. A commemorative plate from Louisville Stoneware was presented to the Presbytery of Sheppards and Lapsley.

Gray assumed the chair and thanked Vice-Moderator Robert Wilson for his work this week.

Gray recognized Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick, who expressed thanks to those wearing red badges this week—staff and volunteers from the Office of the General Assembly. Kirkpatrick also expressed appreciation for the hard work of Dennis Cobb and Deb Davies.

Greetings from San Jose

Gray recognized Bob Bowles, moderator of the Committee on Local Arrangements in San Jose, California, site of the 218th General Assembly (June 21–28, 2008). Bowles brought greetings from San Jose and introduced a brief video about San Jose and the surrounding area.

Announcements

Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick announced that $711.15 had been received for malaria relief and that $2,116.51 had been received for hunger relief through the Greater Birmingham Ministries.

Adjournment

After singing one verse of “Holy, Holy, Holy,” Moderator Gray declared at 11:15 a.m. that the 217th General Assembly adjourned and dissolved upon the convening of the 218th General Assembly on June 21, 2008, in San Jose, California.

Prayer was offered by Vice-Moderator Robert Wilson, followed by the pronouncing of the benediction by Moderator Joan Gray.

Item 00-03

Moderator of the 216th General Assembly (2004) Nominations for Members of the General Assembly Nominating Committee

[The assembly approved Item 00-03. See p. 27.]

The Moderator of the 216th General Assembly (2004) places in nomination the following persons for election to the General Assembly Nominating Committee:

Nominee	Diversity	Age	Synod of Residence
Class of 2012
1. Scott Collins-Jones	(YA) OMC	26–35	Trinity
2. Frank S. Deming Jr.	WMC	46–55	Mid-Atlantic
3. Cindy Edwards	WFL	36–45	Alaska-Northwest
4. Carnell Hampton	BMC	65+	South Atlantic
5. Emily McGinley	(Y) AFL	25-	Lincoln Trails
6. Mike Reyes	AME	46–55	Pacific

Rationale

The Book of Order (G-13.0111) mandates the following for the General Assembly Nominating Committee: "... The committee shall consist of members equal in number to the synods of the church, each member resident in a different synod, and members distributed so that there are one third ministers (both women and men), one third laymen, and one third laywomen. ...Within thirty days prior to the regular meeting of the General Assembly, the Moderator of the preceding General Assembly shall nominate persons for election by the General Assembly to fill the vacancies occurring at the adjournment of the ensuing General Assembly. ..."

There are six vacancies on the General Assembly Nominating Committee. The Moderator has consulted with each of the synods where a vacancy exists. Each of the persons nominated has been highly recommended by one or more person in her or his synod. This slate of nominees represents the greater diversity of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) as mandated by G-4.0403 in the Book of Order.

If this slate is elected, the full membership of the General Assembly Nominating Committee will consist of

5 laywomen

5 laymen

6 ministers of the Word and Sacrament

The racial/ethnic breakdown will be:

- 2 Asian American
- 1 African American
- 1 Hispanic
- 1 Native American
- 1 Other
- 10 Caucasian

The membership of the General Assembly Nominating Committee will include 1 youth (25 and under), 2 young adults (26–35 years of age), and 1 member with a disability.

Key to abbreviations:

- AFL=Asian American, Female, Lay
- AME=Asian American, Male, Elder

[The assembly approved Item 01-02. See p. 4.]

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) approve the plenary consent agenda, consisting of the referrals in progress and the final responses to referrals, as follows:

I. REFERRALS IN PROGRESSA. Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy Referrals in Progress

1. 1999 Referral: 25.039 Response to Recommendation Directing the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy, in Consultation with Appropriate Entities, to Develop a Comprehensive Serious Mental Illness Policy, Including Justice Issues and Full Participation in the Life of the Church, and Report to the 217th General Assembly (2005)—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 1999, Part I, pp. 42, 309).

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008). The Task Force on “Comprehensive Serious Mental Illness” was appointed in 2005.

2. 1999 Referral: Overture 99-17. On Affirming the Equality of Women and Men—From the Presbytery of North Puget Sound (Minutes, 1999, Part I, pp. 80, 591).

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008). The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy has been pursuing this referral on a number of fronts, some of which have been completed in prior years as well as in the policy statement on “Transforming Families.” Still outstanding is work on pay equity issues. Due to workload and staff limitations, the anticipated response for this year’s assembly is now anticipated for the 218th General Assembly (2008).

3. 2001 Referral: 25.110. Response to Recommendation Directing the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy to Instruct Its Task Forces on Disabilities and Serious Mental Illness to Include the Dimension of Domestic Violence and Its Impact in Their Respective Work—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2001, Part I, pp. 61, 239).

The disabilities item of the referral is answered by Item 10-06, the proposed policy on “Living into the Body of Christ: Towards Full Inclusion of People with Disabilities.”

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008). In addition, the serious mental illness item of the referral will be answered by the proposed policy on mental illness tentatively scheduled for submission to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

4. 2002 Referral: Item 12-06. Overture 02-57. On Revising the Denominational Policy on the Issue of Energy—From the Presbytery of Susquehanna Valley (Minutes, 2002, Part I, pp. 72, 596–597).

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

5. 2004 Referral: Item 08-18. Commissioners’ Resolution. On Celebrating the “Social Creed” of the Churches and Considering a 21st Century Social Creed, Recommendation 2., That the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy Initiate a Survey of Key Christian Principles to Guide 21st Century Presbyterians and Others in Addressing Major and Likely Future Concerns, Using Cost-Effective Measures, Volunteer Experts, and Past General Assembly Statements—(Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 18, 627–29).

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

6. 2004 Referral: Item 08-18. Commissioners’ Resolution. On Celebrating the “Social Creed” of the Churches and Considering a 21st Century Social Creed, Recommendation 3. That the Office of the General Assembly, Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy, and Other Appropriate Agencies of Our Denomination, Develop Recommendations for the 217th General Assembly (2006) Concerning the Possible Goals, Basic Commitments, and Effectiveness of an Updated Social Creed for the 21st Century—(Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 18, 627–29).

An “Interim Report and Invitation to Study and Celebrate the Centennial of the Social Creed of the Churches of 1908” has been submitted to the 217th General Assembly (2006). A final report will be submitted to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

7. 2004 Referral: Item 08-18. Commissioners’ Resolution. On Celebrating the “Social Creed” of the Churches and Considering a 21st Century Social Creed, Recommendation 4. That the Work of This Commissioners’ Resolution Be Coordinated with the Office of Theology and Worship—(Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 18, 627–29).

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

8. 2004 Referral: Item 10-02. Task Force on Election Report and Recommendations, Recommendation 1. That the General Assembly Direct the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) to Develop a Resolution on the Disenfranchisement of People of Color in the U.S. Electoral Process for Report to the 218th General Assembly (2008)—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 56, 686–700).

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

9. 2004 Referral: Item 10-02. Task Force on Election Report and Recommendations, Recommendation 2. That the General Assembly Direct the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC) and the Advocacy Committee for Women's Concerns (ACWC) to Participate in the Work of Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy as It Develops a Resolution—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 56, 686–700).

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

B. Advocacy Committee for Women's Concerns Referrals in Progress

2004 Referral: Item 05-03. Recommendation 4. That the General Assembly Request the Advocacy Committee for Women's Concerns, Following Review of Resources Currently Available to Meet the Needs of Clergywomen in the Call Process and in Pastorates, to Make Recommendations That Contribute to a Pro-active, Health-giving Ministry to and Relationship with Our Clergywomen—From the Advocacy Committee for Women's Concerns (Minutes, 2004, Part I., pp. 77, 389–90).

Response: Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008). The Advocacy Committee for Women's Concerns (ACWC) continues to review available resources and is researching recommendations that will be reported to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

C. Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) Referral in Progress

2002 Referral: Item 02-01, Recommendation 6. COGA to Prepare an Evaluation of Biennial Assemblies After the 219th GA Through a Special Task Group or Committee Appointed by the Stated Clerk and Executive Director, Report to 220th GA (2012) (Minutes, 2002, Part I, pp. 26, 159).

Final response will be presented to the 220th General Assembly (2012)

D. Congregational Ministries Division Referrals in Progress

1. Referrals in Progress

a. 2003 Referral: Item 10-07. Recommendation 3. That the General Assembly Instruct the Congregational Ministries Division, Office of Theology and Worship, to Report Annually the Number of Presbyteries That Participate in "Celebrating the Lord's Supper Each Lord's Day"—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 22, 566).

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

b. 2004 Referral: Item 10-03. Report of the Task Force to Study Reparations, Recommendation 4.d., That the Office of the General Assembly and the General Assembly Council, Office of Theology and Worship, Receive Responses, Prepare a Summary, and Report Results to the 218th General Assembly (2008), Together with Possible Recommendations for Further Engagement with the Belhar Confession—From the General Assembly Council Task Force to Study Reparations (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 57, 701).

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

c. 2002 Referral: Item 07-07. Overture 02-32. On Instructing the Office of Theology and Worship to Develop a Theological Statement of Our Faith—From the Presbytery of the James (Minutes, 2002, Part I, pp. 39, 432).

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

d. 2002 Referral: Item 07-09. Overture 02-38. On Formulating a New PC(USA) Confession of Faith for the 21st Century—From the Presbytery of South Alabama (Minutes, 2002, Part I, pp. 39, 434–35).

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

e. 2002 Referral: Item 09-03. Recommendation to Delay Implementation of Overture 01-55. On Directing CMD to Develop Study Materials to Provide Guidance on the Relationship of the Finding of the Sciences to the Affirmation of God as Creator of the Universe—From the Presbytery of National Capital (Minutes, 2001, Part I, pp. 38, 467–86) Until Sufficient New Funding Is Provided—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2002, Part I, pp. 45, 493).

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

f. 2004 Referral: Item 10-03. Report of the Task Force to Study Reparations, Recommendation 6, That the Peacemaking Program, in Consultation the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns and the Racial Ethnic Ministries Program Area, Design a Study Resource on Reparations, Reconciliation, and Renewal That Includes Worship Services of Remembering and Confessing the Impacts of Racism and Moving Toward Reparation, Reconciliation, and Renewal, and Make It Available to the Church at Large—From the General Assembly Council Task Force to Study Reparations (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 57, 704).

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

g. 2004 Referral: Item 10-03. Report of the Task Force to Study Reparations, Recommendation 11, That the United Nations Office Monitor and Support International Efforts Related to Reparations, Renewal, and Reconciliation, and Report Their Efforts to the 217th General Assembly (2006)—From the General Assembly Council Task Force to Study Reparations (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 57, 705).

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

h. 2004 Referral: Item 12-03. On Confronting Christian Zionism, Recommendation 7. To Urge Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Related Colleges and Seminaries to Address This Issue—From the Presbytery of Chicago (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 67–70, 856).

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

2. Report Mandated by Assembly

a. 2003 Referral: Item 10-06. Recommendation 4. That the General Assembly Urge the General Assembly Council, Congregational Ministries Division, to Develop and Produce Processes and Materials for the Incorporation and Reception of New Adult Members Based on The Study Catechism (Full Version)—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 22, 565).

Response: The Office of Theology and Worship is continuing to explore possibilities for a “Reformed catechumanate,” recovering deeply faithful ways of incorporating new members into the body of Christ. Consultations, pilot programs in congregations, draft liturgies all contribute to this vital ecclesial need. Theology and Worship has also worked with Congregational Ministries Publishing to produce a new confirmation curriculum, based on the Study Catechism: Confirmation Version.

b. Alternate Resolution to 2004 Referral: Item 04-12. Recommendation 2. That the Office of the General Assembly and the General Assembly Council Office of Theology and Worship Undertake an Analysis of the Directory of Worship with the Goal of Evaluating Its Influence and Effectiveness in Guiding Sessions, Pastors, and Higher Governing Bodies in Planning and Conducting Worship That Is Authentically Reformed and Culturally Appropriate—From the 216th General Assembly (2004) (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 86).

Response: The Office of Theology and Worship and the Office of the General Assembly have been consulting on the possibility of revising the Directory for Worship, and the relationship of the Directory for Worship revision to possible revisions of the Book of Order. Research instruments have helped assess the church’s use of the Directory for Worship. Work continues on this important matter.

c. 2004 Referral: Item 06-06. Report, Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Understanding of the 16th and 17th Century Condemnation of Other Churches in The Book of Confessions, Recommendation 4. That the Office of the General Assembly and the Office of Theology and Worship Be Requested to Initiate Conversations with the World Alliance of Reformed Churches, Seeking a WARC Statement on the Issue and Report Results of These Conversations to the General Assembly Committee on Ecumenical Relations—From the General Assembly Committee on Ecumenical Relations—(Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 21, 424).

Response: Conversations with the World Alliance of Reformed Churches (WARC) on this matter are continuing.

d. 2004 Referral: Item 06-06. Report, Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Understanding of the 16th and 17th Century Condemnation of Other Churches in The Book of Confessions, Recommendation 5. That the Office of the General Assembly and the Office of Theology and Worship Be Requested to Initiate Conversations with the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops, Seeking a Joint Catholic-Presbyterian Statement on the 16th and 17th Century Condemnations and Characterizations and Report Results of These Conversations to the General Assembly Committee on Ecumenical Relations—From the General Assembly Committee on Ecumenical Relations—(Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 21, 424).

Response: Conversations will proceed now that new staffing patterns at the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB) are in place.

e. 2004 Referral: Item 06-09. On Re-Examining the Relationship Between Christians and Jews and the Implications for Our Evangelism and New Church Development—From the Presbytery of Hudson River (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 20, 440).

Response: A series of consultations between rabbis representing Jewish organizations and staff from Theology and Worship, Interfaith, and Evangelism have met several times. In addition to mutual enrichment and deepened understanding, specific steps have been taken in response to the General Assembly mandate.

Christians and Jews: People of God (Theology and Worship Issues Series No. 7) was published and distributed to more than 2,000 Presbyterians. The publication gathers together significant statements that aid in understanding the relationship between Christians and Jews:

- A Theological Understanding of the Relationship Between Christians and Jews [199th General Assembly (1987)]
- “Jews and Judaism in The Book of Confessions” [a selection of pertinent confessional materials]
- “A Declaration of Faith” [relevant excerpts from a 1977 PCUS confessional statement]
- “Presbyterian Catechisms” [questions and answers concerning Israel and the Jews from the new Presbyterian catechisms]
- Turn to the Living God [excerpts from the statement adopted by the 203rd General Assembly [1991]]
- Hope in the Lord Jesus Christ [214th General Assembly (2002)]
- Nostra Aetate [Catholic Church, 1965]
- Dabru Emet: A Jewish Statement on Christians and Christianity [2001]
- A Sacred Obligation: Rethinking Christian Faith in Relation to Judaism and the Jewish People [Christian Scholars Organization, 2002]
- The Willowbank Declaration on the Christian Gospel and the Jewish People [World Evangelical Alliance, 1989]

A consultation on the theological relationship between Christians and Jews was held at Princeton Theological Seminary, October 30–November 1, 2005. Twenty-five invited participants were addressed by Professor Stephen Haynes of Rhodes College (response: Rabbi David Sandmel, University of Chicago) and Rabbi Daniel Polish (response: Professor Anna Case-Winters, McCormick Theological Seminary). Plenary and small group discussion was lively, and all participants were eager to continue the conversation. The papers of the consultation will be published.

A second consultation on “The Land” and a third on “The Jews and Christian Evangelism” will be held in 2006.

f. 2004 Referral: Item 08-01. That the Presbyterian Publishing Corporation, the Office of Theology and Worship, and the Presbyterian Association of Musicians Begin Research into the Feasibility of a New Presbyterian Hymnal and a Feasibility Report Be Given to the 217th General Assembly (2006); and Upon Approval of a Publication Plan, That the Presbyterian Publishing Corporation Be Designated as the Prospective Publisher of the Next Presbyterian Hymnal—From the Presbyterian Publishing Corporation (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 15, 595).

The Presbyterian Publishing Corporation, the Office of Theology and Worship, and the Presbyterian Association of Musicians are continuing to work on the feasibility report that will be presented to the 217th General Assembly (2006).

E. General Assembly Council Referrals in Progress

1. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3.l. That All CEO's, Presidents, Directors, and Boards of Directors of General Assembly Agencies Be Encouraged to Demonstrate a Renewed Commitment to Racial and Gender Diversification in Upper Management Positions and to Report Successes, on a Per Agency Basis, to the 217th General Assembly (2008)—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 51, 545).

Response: Helen Locklear (First Nation) was hired as Interim Deputy Executive Director in 2005, bringing the Staff Leadership Team of the GAC to 28 percent women and 28 percent racial ethnic.

2. 2002 Referral: Item 08-11. That the General Assembly Council Implement the Mission Initiative, Report on Its Progress Annually with a Final Report to the 219th General Assembly (2010), and Report on the Web Quarterly the Cash Receipts and Disbursements of All Mission Initiative Funds—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2002, Part I, pp. 77, 461).

Response: The Mission Initiative: Joining Hearts and Hands is focused on the very heart of who we are as Presbyterians—evangelism and mission. Because of this initiative, the PC(USA) will have resources for national church growth and the expansion of mission work abroad. Launched in 2002 with a goal of $40 million, the campaign is now at $22 million because of the generosity of individual Presbyterians and strong partnerships with congregations and presbyteries. Campaign receipts and disbursements are posted quarterly on the Joining Hearts & Hands website as mandated by the General Assembly.

3. 2004 Referral: Item 07-06. Report of the Special Offerings Review Task Force. Recommendation 6. That the General Assembly Council Develop and Propose a Conceptual Framework for a New Mission Funding Strategy for the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)—From the Special Offerings Review Task Force (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 50, 494).

Response: The report of the Mission Funding Strategy Task Force will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

4. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3.d. That PC(USA) Corporate Agencies Adopt for Utilization and Implementation, the Tools of Cultural Proficiency, Proceeding in Light of and According to the Confessional and Biblical Witness of the PC(USA)-- From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 51, 541).

Response: Creating a Climate for Change in the Presbyterian Church (USA) utilizing the tools of Cultural Proficiency is an ongoing process. In October 2005, a Cultural Proficiency Celebration highlighted Behavior Standards and Value Statement guiding staff interactions at the Center and in January 2006, commencement of Staff Education Days on Cultural Proficiency under the theme, “Aim At Those Things That Bring Peace and Help Strengthen One another” (Rom. 14:19, TEV). The Cultural Proficiency Network continues to develop strategies, create opportunities, and implement activities to incorporate Cultural Proficiency throughout the climate of the Presbyterian Center.

F. National Ministries Division Referrals in Progress

1. 2003 Referral: Item 09-01. Reclaiming the Vision: A Mission Strategy to Strengthen the Partnership Between the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and Its Related Schools, Colleges, and Universities, Recommendation 9. That the General Assembly Require the National Ministries Division, Higher Education Program Area, to Return to the General Assembly with a Progress Report in Three Years, and a Full Assessment of the Response to the Recommendations in the Report in Five Years —From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 24, 523).

Response: Through restructuring of the National Ministries Division, responsibility for ministries in higher education now resides largely in the Leadership and Vocation goal area. The name reflects one of the priority goals of the General Assembly Council's 2005–2006 Mission Work Plan. Consistent with one of the recommendations in Reclaiming the Vision, one of the GAC's objectives for Leadership and Vocation has been to encourage Christian vocation, especially among young people. A number of Presbyterian colleges are actively engaged in this as well, supported by grants from the Lilly Endowment as part of an initiative known as “Programs for the Theological Exploration of Vocation.” A consultation is scheduled in the spring of 2006 that will bring together representatives of these colleges and two Presbyterian seminaries to explore how colleges and seminaries might work together more closely to encourage and support high school students who wish to explore a vocation in ministry.

Restructuring of the National Ministries Division coincided with rejuvenation of the Association of Presbyterian Colleges and Universities (APCU), an independent organization of which 61 of the 65 Presbyterian-related colleges and universities are members. In 2005, the National Ministries Division renewed the General Assembly Council covenant with APCU. The APCU exists to strengthen relationships between the church and its related colleges and universities and to advocate for many of the goals of Reclaiming the Vision. One of APCU's objectives has been to help the church see colleges and universities, not as a mission of the PC(USA), but as partners with the church in accomplishing many of the church's mission goals.

The National Ministries Division continues to support Presbyterian colleges and universities by providing financial aid for studies, by relating to college chaplains and campus ministers, and by providing support for some of the more fragile institutions through the Office of Racial Ethnic Higher Education. That support includes the administration of funds earmarked for racial ethnic higher education through the Christmas Joy Offering. A Racial Ethnic Higher Education work group has also worked to identify ways the church can enhance its support of these more fragile institutions.

2. 2002 Referral: Item 11-05. Commissioners' Resolution 02-10. On Affirming the Church Growth Strategy Report (Minutes, 2002, Part I, pp. 25, 565–66).

Response: Evangelism and Witness continues to work on the mission priority of the growth strategy report in its budget, staff, and programs in partnership with presbyteries, synods, the Racial Ethnic Enhancement offices, and other General Assembly Council program entities.

During 2005, the Mission Program Grant office provided grants for forty new racial ethnic ministries. These represent both new church development and congregational transformation projects. In addition, six new immigrant ministries were funded.

Training for racial ethnic leadership continues to be provided through annual conferences, regional conferences, and via printed resources.

In addition to General Assembly Council (GAC) staff working on the church growth strategy report, three field staff persons are also working on this priority goal.

3. 2004 Referral: Item 09-15. On Directing the National Ministries Division (NMD) to Develop a Plan for Resourcing and Funding Evangelism with Racial Ethnic Persons and Persons of Limited Economic Resources—From the Presbytery of Miami (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 42, 668–69).

Response: A project team that has come out of the 2005–2006 Mission Work Plan has been charged with developing a strategy to encourage increased support for racial ethnic and immigrant persons of limited income, as that relates to evangelism and church development. This team is comprised of persons from both the Evangelism and Witness offices and the Racial Ethnic Congregational Enhancement offices. The strategy for increased support will give consideration not only to needed financial resources, but also to print resources and staff support.

4. 2003 Referral: Item 09-03. Strategy for Ministry with Hispanic-Latino Constituencies in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 6. That the General Assembly Request the General Assembly Council, Through Its National Ministries Division, Racial Ethnic Ministries Program Area, and the Office of Hispanic Congregational Enhancement, to Organize a National Consultation Event in 2006 to Determine How Best to Implement the Strategy, Explore the Issues Raised by It, and Monitor the Progress of the Recommendations and Report Its Findings to the 218th General Assembly (2008)—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 25, 532).

Response: A National Hispanic Consultation event was celebrated October 19–22, 2005. The Hispanic Congregational Enhancement office, together with the National Hispanic/Latino Caucus and the Advisory Committee on Hispanic Ministries, organized the event. A planning committee was in charge of the whole activity. Sixty-five national leaders including Hispanic pastors, theologians, administrators, chaplains, seminary students, and lay leaders from different Hispanic/Latino backgrounds were invited.

It was decided that the best way to implement the strategy was to create a manual for implementation. At this moment we are in the process of reviewing and producing the manual and it will be implemented over the next five years. The National Hispanic/Latino Caucus, the Advisory Committee on Hispanic Ministries together with the Hispanic Congregational Enhancement office will be in charge of the implementation process.

5. 2002 Referral: Item 11-02, Report: A Comprehensive Strategy for Ministries with Native American: 2002 Supplemental Recommendations of the General Assembly Special Task Force on Native American Ministries,

Recommendation 4, That a Report on Implementation of the Recommended Strategies Be Presented to the 219th General Assembly (2010)—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2002, Part I, pp. 23, 559).

Final response will be presented to the 219th General Assembly (2010). In progress, Justice and Compassion, Native American Congregational Enhancement Office.

6. 2004 Referral: Item 10-01. Recommendation 8. To Direct Racial Ethnic Ministries to Assist the National Presbyterian Black Caucus to Develop a Strategy for Church Growth for African American Congregations—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns. (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp.56, 683)

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008). The task force will present this report to the African American constituency for feedback in regards to the relevancy of recommendations and avenues of implementation. The task force is scheduled to have its work completed in 2007.

7. 1996 Referral: 33.147. Recommendation 1. That the 208th General Assembly (1996) Affirm the Goal of Increasing the Racial Ethnic Membership to 10 Percent of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Membership by the Year 2005, and to 20 Percent by the Year 2010. (Minutes, 1996, Part I, pp. 52, 53, 378)

The National Ministries Division will bring a report without recommendations to the April 2006 meeting of the General Assembly Council updating the demographic information for racial ethnic membership in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

G. Office of the General Assembly Referrals in Progress

1. 2004 Referral: Item 03-26(2). Commissioners' Resolution 17, Recommendation #2: Amend "Standards of Ethical Conduct for Members" to Include in the Introductory Paragraph, Body of Document Emphasis on Obedience, Faithfulness to Scripture. (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 48, 216)

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

2. 2004 Referral: Alternate Resolution to Item 04-12(2)). Office of the General Assembly and the Office of Theology to Undertake a Similar Analysis of the Directory for Worship to Evaluate Its Effectiveness with Guidance in Planning and Conducting Worship That Is Reformed; Bring Recommendations to the 217th General Assembly (2006) (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 86, 327).

A staff team consisting of staff members from the Office of Constitutional Services and the Office of Theology and Worship have met several times to study the current Directory for Worship, to evaluate its use and effectiveness in the life of the PC(USA), and to consider whether a new version of the document would increase its use and helpfulness as a tool for the whole church.

One of the questions under discussion has been whether the Directory for Worship is understood as a liturgical and theological foundation for Reformed worship, or simply as a sometimes helpful but unnecessary part of the Book of Order.

The staff team, with assistance from the Office of Research Services, created a survey regarding the Directory for Worship that was distributed to members of the Presbyterian Panel in January 2005. Questions focused on the extent to which pastors, elders, members, and specialized clergy are familiar with the Directory for Worship, how often they use it as a resource, and how they use it in their various ministries.

The results of the survey showed that ministers are much more familiar with the Directory for Worship than most members and elders. The Directory for Worship was used most often as a training tool for elders (58 percent), worship planning (50 percent), and for teaching confirmation classes (32 percent). Almost one-half of pastors said that the congregations they serve use the Directory for Worship as a guideline for Reformed Christian worship.

While there is widespread appreciation for the Directory for Worship, a number of pastors said that the document is either too long or too complicated. A majority of pastors (69 percent) and elders (59 percent) believe that it is important for the PC(USA) to promote the Directory for Worship. A sizeable percentage of pastors and of members and elders believe it would be helpful to simplify the Directory for Worship.

The data obtained from the survey has led the staff team to believe that the Directory for Worship would be more helpful and accessible to church leaders and congregations if it were re-written in a form that was shorter and better organized. The Directory for Worship might also play a larger role in the life of the church if it were placed as the first section of the Book of Order, before the Form of Government, and were truly seen as both a theological guide and a teaching tool for Reformed

Worship. The Office of the General Assembly and the Office of Theology and Worship hope to take a draft revision of the Directory for Worship for consideration by the 218th General Assembly (2008).

H. Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation Referrals in Progress

1. 1999 Referral: 30.035-.048. Approve and Authorize the Creation of New Covenant Annuity Insurance Company (Minutes, 1999, Part I, pp. 37, 500).

Final response will be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008). The insurance company has not yet been chartered in any state and has not commenced operations.

2. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Recommendations 03.d.,e.,g.,h.,i.,k.,l.,m.,n.,p.,—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 51, 52, 540–59).

The Foundation has worked closely with the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC). While the Foundation has female and racial ethnic representation at every level of the organization, the Foundation has committed to improving representation of racial ethnic persons in senior management positions and also in development field staff positions. Female and racial ethnic representation in other areas is close to population/demographic statistics or has sufficient resources in feeder job groups encouraging future job promotion for groups currently underrepresented.

A Foundation employee committee took a lead role in designing a workforce culture survey with guidance from an outside consultant. The committee consisted of representatives from all operating units of the Foundation and included appropriate representation by race, gender, and organizational responsibility. The survey was designed to measure the extent to which employees actively take advantage of organizational opportunities and assume responsibility for acquiring the education, skills, and experience to promote their own careers. More importantly, the survey was also designed to measure the extent to which leadership provides education and training as well as an inclusive environment where all employees experience equity of opportunity for

- upward mobility,
- mentoring and coaching,
- career development,
- career-enhancing opportunities,
- maximum utilization,
- resolving personal barriers,
- creativity and innovation,
- work-life quality and balance,
- contributing to the organization's success, and
- clear understanding of the vision, mission, and strategic direction of the organization.

The survey results created a baseline for the Foundation to address and improve management practices and behaviors impeding the progress of inclusion and increased organizational performance. The survey results highlighted a number of different perspectives based on a number of human and organizational factors designed to measure workplace climate and inclusion. Action was taken by employee teams, which included management and non-management employees to improve communications, leadership, and personal and professional development within the organization. Cultural proficiency training was provided to all employees by an outside consultant and further surveys will be conducted to monitor the Foundation's progress in these important areas.

The Foundation has heeded ACREC's encouragement to gradually expand the Foundation—managed Creative Investment Program for the purpose of investing in community economic projects, particularly in areas where there is an established Presbyterian racial ethnic presence. Since the 216th General Assembly (2004), 1.3 million previously authorized but unexpended dollars have been used to fund projects through the Creative Investment Program. These projects include overseas micro finance community development as well a groundbreaking partnership with the Coalition Immokalee Workers to secure financing for the refurbishment of a Florida building that houses offices and an educational and training center that is central to the group's work to encourage migrant worker's fair treatment at a fair wage.

B. Board of Pensions Final Response to Referral

1. 2004 Referral: Item 14-15. Commissioners' Resolution. Benefits Feasibility Study (Minutes, 2006, Part I, pp. 25, 1013).

Final Response: The 216th General Assembly (2004) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) approved a commissioners' resolution that requested the Board of Pensions to explore the feasibility of providing domestic partners in long-term committed relationships the same benefits accorded to married couples, and to report its findings to the 217th General Assembly (2006). The General Assembly commented, "that the Board of Pensions review/deliberate the resolution in accordance with the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)" (Minutes, 2006, Part I, p. 25).

a. Benefits Plan Background

The Benefits Plan of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has been established to provide retirement, disability, death, medical, and dental benefits to members of the Benefits Plan, their eligible dependents and beneficiaries.

The Medical Plan provides

- coverage to the member, his or her spouse and eligible children. Children are eligible until attainment of age twenty-one or marriage, if earlier, except that unmarried dependent children attending school full-time are eligible until attainment of age twenty-five. Dependent totally disabled children can continue coverage after age twenty-one or after age twenty-five if applicable (Sec. 13.2).

The Pension Plan provides

- a monthly retirement benefit for the member for the duration of his or her life and
- a survivor's pension benefit to the member's eligible survivors (paid to the eligible survivors surviving in the first of the following classes: an eligible surviving spouse; unmarried dependent children under age of twenty-one; dependent parents; unmarried dependent siblings). To be an eligible spouse, the marriage must have taken place before the member's receipt of his or her first retirement income payment or at least one year prior to the member's death.

The Pension Plan does not offer a single life annuity benefit option and there is no reduction in the retirement income benefits of the member to provide the normal survivor's pension benefit (50 percent of the annual pension credits accrued) to the member's eligible survivors. If there is no eligible survivor, no survivor's pension benefit is paid (Sec. 9.1–9.2).

The Death and Disability Plan provides

- Salary Continuation benefits payable to the member's designated beneficiary(ies). If no designation is on file, it is paid to the eligible survivors (by class: surviving spouse of marriage of at least one year in duration; unmarried dependent children under age of twenty-one or totally disabled dependent children; children regardless of age). In default thereof, the benefits are paid to the estate (Sec. 10.1).

- The Lump Sum Death Benefit is paid to the member's survivors (in the same classes described for the survivor's pension in 9.2). If a member dies without an eligible survivor, a Lump Sum Death Benefit in an amount equal to one hundred percent (100 percent) of the lesser of the member's Death Benefit Basis or $90,000 shall be paid to the member's estate.

A spouse is "an individual who is legally married to a member" [Sec. 2.1 (nn)].

A child (or children) includes natural children, legally adopted children or stepchildren for each of whom the member is providing at least 50 percent support [Sec. 2.1 (f)].

b. Legal Background

Federal law does not define a "domestic partner" or a "long-term committed relationship." Several state and local municipalities have adopted laws, regulations, and ordinances ("Laws") that define those terms for purposes of granting the equivalent status of a married couple to domestic partners under a jurisdiction's tax, property, contract, and probate laws. Some Laws do not go so far as to grant equivalent status under the general laws but mandate benefits coverage for domestic partners by employers and insurers subject to the laws of those jurisdictions.¹

¹. As a self-insured "Church Plan" the Benefits Plan generally is not subject to state insurance laws.

In addition, some private and public employers have adopted definitions of each in connection with coverage provisions that they have adopted voluntarily in their employer benefit plans.

In most instances, “domestic partners” relates to a couple of the same sex or a heterosexual couple over the age of 62 who are in a long-term committed relationship. Frequently (but not always), other couples of the opposite sex who are living together in long-term committed relationships are not included because they have the legal right to marry under state law. The requirements for establishing proof of a “long-term committed relationship” also vary. Some jurisdictions require the filing of an affidavit or declaration with the governmental authority (comparable to applying for a marriage license) and/or provide for civil unions.

Some plans simply require a declaration or the completion of an affidavit from the employee. However, some jurisdictions have declared that it is an illegal and discriminatory practice for an employer to require proof of a “long-term committed relationship” (in the form of a certificate of civil union or affidavit) where it does not require proof of marriage (in the form of a marriage certificate) to enroll for benefits.

Other jurisdictions, including Pennsylvania, have adopted a Defense of Marriage Act (“DOMA”) that provides that the state or jurisdiction does not have to recognize an otherwise legal marriage or civil union from another jurisdiction if such marriage or civil union is not between a man and a woman.²

In order to conduct this feasibility study, the following definitions are used.

Domestic Partners are two individuals, over the age of eighteen and not related by blood in a way that would prevent being married to each other if they were of the opposite sex, who are of the same sex, not married or part of another domestic partnership, and have agreed to live in a long-term committed relationship with each other.

Long-term Committed Relationship means that the couple has made an express commitment to each other that is equivalent to the promises made by a couple in a civil marriage ceremony if such ceremony were permitted by law for a same-sex couple. Such a commitment is demonstrated if the couple

- is cohabitating (unless employment or a medical reason necessitates a separate living arrangement);
- has agreed to accept financial responsibility for each other’s living expenses; and
- is holding itself out to the public as having made such a commitment. In jurisdictions where a civil union, domestic partner registry, or other form of official declaration is available for same-sex couples, the couple has fulfilled the requirements of the Law to obtain such official status.

This study also considered the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), specifically G-6.0106(b), which states “Those who are called to office in the church are to lead a life in obedience to Scripture and in conformity to the historic confessional standards of the church. Among these standards is the requirement to live either in fidelity within the covenant of marriage between a man and a woman (W-4.9001), or chastity in singleness. Persons refusing to repent of any self-acknowledged practice which the confessions call sin shall not be ordained and/or installed as deacons, elders, or ministers of the Word and Sacrament.”

c. Survey

A brief survey of several benefits agencies of large denominations indicates that only two of the agencies provide domestic partner benefits and only for same sex partners, not heterosexual couples.

d. Discussion

The Board of Pensions had an active member population of 15,669 members, as of December 31, 2004. This population can be broken into two classifications with the respective number of active members:

Ministers of the Word and Sacrament	9,943
Laypersons	5,726

Section G-6.0106 (b) states that “those who are called to office in the church,” including elders, deacons, and ministers of the Word and Sacrament, “are to lead a life in obedience to Scripture and in conformity to the historic confessional standards of the church. Among these standards is the requirement to live either in fidelity within the covenant of marriage between a man and a woman (W-4.9001), or chastity in singleness.” With this guidance, we excluded all ministers of the Word and Sacrament from the analysis since they are prohibited from having domestic partners.

Some percentage of the lay members of the Benefits Plan may be ordained deacons or elders; however, the records of the Board of Pensions do not contain that information. Therefore, the analysis does not eliminate any portion of this population, but an elder or deacon would not be eligible for domestic partner coverage under the Constitution.

The Board of Pensions’ actuarial counsel provided estimates of the cost impact if benefits were provided to domestic partners. The Board of Pensions’ medical actuary estimates that the additional cost would be 1.5 percent to 2 percent or less to provide medical benefits to domestic partners for all active members of the Benefits Plan. However, since we will not provide this coverage for ministers of the Word and Sacrament, the additional cost would be in the range of 0.75 percent to 1 percent. If we used a conservative assumption of an additional cost of 1 percent, the actual dollar impact would be approximately $1.4 million or 0.2 percent dues increase.

The Board of Pensions’ pension actuarial counsel estimated the additional costs for the Pension Plan and the Death and Disability Plan. The estimates are based on offering pension and death benefits to survivors of active, terminated vested and retired members. The estimated decrease in the Pension Plan contingency reserve is in the range of $10 million to $50 million. The estimated decrease in the Death and Disability Plan contingency reserve is in the range of $100,000 to $550,000. The estimates are based on an expectation that between 1 percent and 5 percent of members have qualified domestic partners. If we use these ranges and eliminate one-half of the population, the respective impacts are $5 million to $25 million and $50,000 to $275,000. These amounts translate into an approximate dues increase of 0.4 percent for the Pension Plan and 0.03 percent for the Death and Disability Plan. Without a dues increase, there could be an effect on the ability to pay an experience apportionment in any particular year.

An additional program included in the Benefits Plan is the Affiliated Benefits Program. This program permits an employing organization to enroll ministers employed in eligible service (other than ministers serving churches in called and installed positions) and lay employees for coverage for medical benefits only, medical benefits and death and disability benefits, and such optional benefits as the member may be eligible to elect. Even under this program, the Board of Pensions would have to increase the subscription dues for all if the Board of Pensions were to provide benefits to a member who has a domestic partner.

e. Administrative Issues

In addition to the actuarial costs, there would be administrative costs for modifying the Board of Pensions’ systems and workflows plus costs for monitoring the regulatory and legal issues in all fifty states.

Another issue that must be considered is the taxation of the benefits that are provided to the domestic partner. The imputed value of the medical benefits is taxable to the employee. The taxes which are payable are federal income, FICA—by both the employee and the employing organization—and, in some cases, state income taxes. The administrative requirements of tracking and reporting these values would increase costs not just for the Board of Pensions but also for the employing organization.

f. Conclusion

The Board of Pensions could provide Domestic Partner benefits, if that were the wish of the General Assembly; however, there would be an increase in the current dues structure of the Benefits Plan because of the additional benefit, actuarial and administrative costs. The Pension Plan dues increase would be approximately 0.4 percent; the Death and Disability Plan dues increase would be 0.03 percent; and the Medical Plan dues increase would be 0.2 percent. The combined dues rate would be approximately 32 percent of effective salary (currently the dues rate is 31 percent).

g. Implementation Plan

If the General Assembly decides that domestic partners should be included as dependents under the Benefits Plan, the Board of Pensions would need to make the appropriate adjustments to its systems and workflows before this change would be made. The Board of Pensions would also need to negotiate new agreements with its providers to include these provisions. It is estimated that the change could be implemented in January 2008.

2. 2004 Referral: Item 14-09. On Directing the Board of Pensions to Revise Their Rules for the Calculation of Salary for Churches with a Clergy Couple Installed to One Position—From the Presbytery of Southeastern Illinois (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 24, 1001).

Final Response: In Item 14-09, the 216th General Assembly (2004) directed the Board to revise the Benefits Plan enrollment and participation rules for churches served by a clergy couple, each working part-time, installed to the same church to serve the equivalent of one full-time position, to permit coverage for both clergy members in the pension, death, and disability coverage but enrollment by only one member of the couple in Medical Plan coverage. These member couples are referred to as “14-09 couples.”

In response, the Board of Pensions sought an interpretation of the Book of Order from the Advisory Committee on the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) on the constitutionality of this direction. Before a response was forthcoming, the overture advocates filed remedial actions against the Board of Pensions with the Permanent Judicial Commission of the General Assembly (“PJC”) to enforce the General Assembly’s action. The PJC held a preliminary hearing and determined that while the PJC had ecclesiastical jurisdiction to determine whether married clergy could share a call under the Book of Order, it lacked jurisdiction to order the Board of Pensions to amend the Benefits Plan. The PJC scheduled a trial date to hear the ecclesiastical issue.

Following the preliminary decision of the PJC and before the trial, the parties entered into a settlement pursuant to which the Board of Pensions adopted a rule providing for the enrollment in the Medical Plan by a church of only one member of a 14-09 couple. To be eligible for the special enrollment rule, each member of the couple employed by the church must be

- an ordained minister of the Word and Sacrament,
- called to a pastoral relationship at the same church as the spouse, and
- employed for fewer than 35 hours per week.

Beginning January 1, 2006, churches employing 14-09 couples began paying medical dues only for one member of the 14-09 couple. The other member of the 14-09 couple is considered a dependent for the medical coverage under the family medical benefit provisions, and the 14-09 couple does not receive the Medical Plan member couple benefits. (Member couples receive enhanced coordination of benefits coverage because each member has primary and secondary coverage under the Medical Plan.)

For the period August 1 through December 31, 2005, the Board of Pensions billed the eligible churches at the adjusted dues rate but continued the enhanced member couple medical benefits for the eligible couples.

The Board of Pensions appreciates the work of the synod, presbyteries, and churches involved in reaching the settlement.

3. 2004 Referral: Alternate Resolution to Item 14-10. On Creating a Fund to Provide Shared Equity Loans for Pastors Serving Churches Where the Average Cost of a Home Is Twice the U.S. Average—From the Presbytery of San Francisco, Recommendation That the Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program Organize a Work Group to Establish Shared Equity Loans for Areas with High Home Ownership Costs and Report to the General Assembly Council within One Year with Recommendations—From the 216th General Assembly (2004) (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 24).

Final Response: The Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program (PILP) includes in its Report to the General Assembly the complete response to the 2004 referral of the alternate resolution to Item 14-10. (See J. Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program, Inc. Final Responses to Referrals, Response 12., below.)

The Board of Pensions was represented by Judith D. Freyer, senior vice president, treasurer, and chief investment officer, and William Ross Forbes, vice president, Church Relations, and corporate secretary.

The Work Group included the Board of Pensions, the Presbyterian Foundation, and the Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program (PILP). The presbyteries with the highest housing costs were also invited to participate in the Work Group. In its final report to the GAC in September 2005, the Work Group concluded that there is not a likely investor to provide the capital to begin a national shared equity program. Both the Foundation and the Board of Pensions are fiduciaries, managing the funds of others. The Work Group came to a consensus that the most likely sources of funds for sharing in equity purchases of clergy housing are congregations, presbyteries, and, in some cases, synods.

The Foundation, Board of Pensions, and PILP can and should be information resources regarding fundraising as well as structuring ideas for local and regional investment programs.

The Work Group recommended that a component be added in training for committees on ministry that would assist them in working with a congregation during the interim between pastors to address the question of making it financially possible for a pastor to live in the community where the church is located.

C. Committee on the Office of the General Assembly Final Response to Referral

2003 Referral: 13. New Business. VI. Committee Final Action and Report, D. Response to Review of Minutes of Agencies, Direct the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) to Review the “Guidelines for Preparation of Minutes of Agencies” to Determine Whether the Guidelines Help the Readers Review the Work of the Entity. (Minutes, 2003, Part I, p. 51).

Response: A topic that the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) will consider in the near future is the impact that electronic record keeping has on the development and archiving of minutes. In the context of that conversation, the “Guidelines for Preparation of Minutes of Agencies” document will be reviewed for both style and context guidance. Any necessary amendments will be brought to future assemblies for consideration.

D. Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA)/General Assembly Council (GAC) Final Response to Referral.

2004 Referral: Alternate Resolution to Item 03-09. On Directing COGA and GAC to Create a Proposal Regarding an Introduction to Antiracism Training; Request Implementation at the 2008 and 2010 General Assemblies; GAC to Provide Antiracism Training in Their Meetings (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 45).

Response: The 216th General Assembly (2004) approved the following:

1. Requests that the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) and the General Assembly Council (GAC) create a proposal regarding the implementation of presenting an Introduction of Antiracism Training at each General Assembly and bring the proposal before the 217th General Assembly (2006).

2. Request the implementation of said proposal at the 218th General Assembly (2008), the 219th General Assembly (2010), and the 220th General Assembly (2012).

3. Direct that antiracism training be provided for all members of the General Assembly Council in their meetings for the numbers of years described in 1 and 2 above.

The joint GAC/COGA proposal is to conduct an Introduction to Antiracism Training for Commissioners, to include: worship; an overview of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) commitment to antiracism and the continuing impact of racism in our lives and in the church; small group exercises; and discussion. The workshop will be approximately three hours. The staff of Justice & Compassion (National Ministries Division) and the Presbyterian Peacemaking Program (Congregational Ministries Division) will continue to work with appropriate Office of the General Assembly (OGA) staff to implement this proposal.

E. Congregational Ministries Division Final Responses to Referrals

1. 2003 Referral: Item 06-05. Overture 03-22. On Reaffirming the Church’s Commitment to Older Adult Ministry—From the Presbytery of Greater Atlanta (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 43, 400–401).

Response: See Item 12-12.

2. 2003 Referral: Item 09-03. Strategy for Ministry with Hispanic-Latino Constituencies in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 2. That the General Assembly Council, Through Its Congregational Ministries Division, Organize Workshops in Conjunction with Presbyteries, Synods, and Other General Assembly Entities to Address Leadership Development Issues for Hispanic Youth and Provide a Progress Report to the 217th General Assembly (2006)—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 25, 531).

Response: The offices of Youth Ministry and Hispanic Resources and Relationships with Hispanic Constituencies have worked together to develop specific workshops to be offered at youth leader development events and conferences as they are designed and implemented. The first is the 2006 Presbyterian Youth Connection Pre-Assembly. This event is scheduled for June 12–15 prior to the 217th General Assembly (2006). The PC(USA) youth and youth leaders with a specific interest in cultivating church leadership skills and spiritual practices are invited to gather for four days of worship and participate in workshops, small groups, and recreation. This event is sponsored by the Office of Youth Ministry (Congregational Ministries Division). The two offices will design and implement special interest groups and/or workshops for Hispanic youth. Other events that could include workshops and/or courses might be: Montreat Youth Conference, Presbyterian Youth Worker's Association, and the 2007 Presbyterian Youth Triennium.

3. 2004 Referral: Item 09-08. On Undertaking the Publication of a Mission Magazine That Would Use the Powerful Voice of American Youth—From the Presbytery of Huntingdon (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 41, 654–56).

Response: At the 216th General Assembly (2004), the committee concluded that there were no funds to meet the expenses of publishing such a magazine, but asked that further study be carried out to determine if there were any other means or sources to fund such a magazine. Regrettably, there are fewer available resources at this time than there were in 2004. It does not seem feasible to undergo a publication project for which there is not sufficient funding. Mission Education and Promotion and the Office of Youth Ministry are seeking ways to highlight youth participation in mission by developing new Web-based resources. The two program teams are exploring ways to build relationships between youth, youth workers, and mission-focused partners and entities so that existing programs and resources are developmentally appropriate and available for young people.

4. Overture 99-72. On Directing the General Assembly Council to Include in the Mission Budget Sufficient Funds to Provide for the Development and Implementation of Racial Ethnic Needs in the Educational Curriculum—From the Presbytery of Greater Atlanta (Minutes, 1999, Part I, pp. 35, 671–72).

Response: Beginning in 2005, General Assembly Council provided funds ($200,000) to establish a staff position for Resources & Relationships with Hispanic and Latino Constituencies. The office is shared between Congregational Ministries Division and National Ministries Division. Currently, curriculum resources for all ages are available in Spanish through Congregational Ministries Publishing. Leadership and worship resources are being developed through the National Ministries Office of Hispanic Congregational Enhancement. Many other resources, support materials, creeds, confessions, the Book of Order, Presbyterian Women, and other program resources are available for the Hispanic/Latino community. The Congregational Ministries office created a Web site for easy access to the resources.

5. 2003 Referral: Item 09-03. Strategy for Ministry with Hispanic-Latino Constituencies in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 5., That the General Assembly Council, Through Its Congregational Ministries Division, the Office of Congregational Ministries Publishing, and Curriculum Development-Spanish Resources, and in Consultation with the Office of Hispanic Congregational Enhancement, Develop Curriculum Materials in Spanish and Portuguese for Youth to Assist Immigrant Populations and Those for Whom English Is Not Their First Language and to Provide a Progress Report to the 217th General Assembly (2006)—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 25, 531).

Response: Bilingual curriculum materials in Spanish are available for youth: Lecciones Cristianas Para Jóvenes. Portuguese translation of these resources is under development.

6. 2004 Referral: Item 10-05. Resolution calling for a Comprehensive Legalization Program for Immigrants Living and Working in the United States, Recommendation 2.c. That an Immigration Sunday Be Established on the Church Calendar, in Consultation with Mission Education and Promotion—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 57, 738).

Response: General Assembly Council has approved the first Sunday of July for Immigration Programmatic Emphasis.

7. 2004 Referral: Alternate Resolution for Item 12-01. Recommendation 5. to Urge the United States Government, the Government of Israel, and the Palestinian Leadership to Move Swiftly, and Resolve, to Recognize That the Only Way Out of This Chronic and Vicious Impasse Is to Abandon All Approaches That Exacerbate Further Strife, Lay Aside Arrogant Political Posturing, and Get On with Forging Negotiated Compromises That Open a Path to Peace—From the Presbytery of St. Augustine (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 64–66, 851–53).

Response: The Office of the Stated Clerk, with support from the Office on the Middle East and Europe and the Presbyterian Peacemaking Program, urged the United States Government, the Government of Israel, and the Palestinian Leadership to actively pursue negotiated compromises that will create new possibilities for peace in the region.

8. 2004 Referral: Item 12-03. On Confronting Christian Zionism, Recommendation 3. Recommendation to Commend and Promote the PC(USA) List of Resources Found in the September/October 2003 Issue of Church & Society, Entitled "Israel and Palestine: The Quest for Peace", so That Presbyterians Can and Will Become Knowledgeable of the Present Day Middle East Situation and Have a Better Understanding of Its History and People—From the Presbytery of Chicago (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 67–70, 856).

Response: The Presbyterian Peacemaking Program has promoted the list of resources identified by making them available at conferences (APCE and Peacemaking) and highlighted them in Peace Notes and Leadership Memo. In addition, the Presbyterian Peacemaking Program encourages education and understanding through its web site <http://www.pcusa.org/peacemaking/actnow/actnow.htm#mideast>, has developed an educational CD, Steps Toward Peace in Israel and Palestine, and is sponsoring an educational visit to the region April 25–May 5, 2006.

9. 2004 Referral: Item 12-03. On Confronting Christian Zionism, Recommendation 5. That the General Assembly Council, Through Its Offices on the Middle East, Interfaith Relations, Theology and Worship, and the Presbyterian Peacemaking Program, Develop a Brief Resource and Study Guide to Assist Presbyterians in Understanding How Biblical Faith and Reformed Theology Guide Our Understanding of Present Realities and Possibilities in the Middle East—From the Presbytery of Chicago (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 67–70, 856).

Response: The Presbyterian Peacemaking Program, in consultation with the Offices on the Middle East, Interfaith Relations, Theology and Worship, prepared this resource sheet <http://pcusa.org/worldwide/israelpalestine/resources/21christianzionism.pdf> designed to assist Presbyterians in understanding how biblical faith and reformed theology guide our understanding of present realities and possibilities in the Middle East

10. 2004 Referral: Item 12-04. On Urging Peace in Colombia, South America, Recommendation 2. To Join the Presbyterian Church of Colombia, Other Christian Churches, and Other Christian Organizations in Calling for the Redirection of United States Military Aid into Social, Educational, Health, and Developmental Assistance in the Hope That Peace Would Be Restored—From the Presbytery of Baltimore (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 70–71, 861).

Response: The Presbyterian Peacemaking Program, working in partnership with the Office for Latin America and the Caribbean, has encouraged Presbyterians to be engaged in advocacy for the restoration of peace in Colombia through educational resources on its website, <http://www.pcusa.org/peacemaking/actnow/actnow.htm#colombia>, by supporting the Presbyterian Church of Colombia through the accompaniment program, <http://www.pcusa.org/peacemaking/actnow/learnaboutcolombia.pdf>, and sponsoring a travel study seminar to the region for young adults January 4–14, 2006. The Presbyterian Peacemaking Program has also published Colombia, a resource to help Presbyterians understand Colombia, its history, its current crisis and challenges, the work of the Presbyterian Church of Colombia, and to explore how to respond.

11. 2004 Referral: Item 12-04. On Urging Peace in Colombia, South America, Recommendation 5. To Call for the Immediate Closure of the Western Hemisphere Institute for Security Cooperation, Previously Known as the School of the Americas—From the Presbytery of Baltimore (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 70–71, 861).

Response: The Presbyterian Peacemaking Program encouraged Presbyterians to engage in advocacy for the immediate closure of the Western Hemisphere Institute for Security Cooperation, previously known as the School of the Americas, through its publications, Peace Notes and Leadership Memo, and sharing information about the annual ecumenical gathering and witness at Fort Benning, Columbus, Georgia, each fall.

12. 2004 Referral: Item 12-04. On Urging Peace in Colombia, South America, Recommendation 10. To Call Upon All Transnational Corporations Operating in Colombia to Utilize Their Influence to Promote Publicly Peace and Justice, Protect Their Employees from Violence in the Workplace and as They Participate in Trade Union Activities, and Contribute to the Well-being of the Communities Where They Are Located—From the Presbytery of Baltimore (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 70–71, 862).

Response: The Presbyterian Peacemaking Program, working in partnership with the Office for Latin America and the Caribbean, has encouraged Presbyterians to be engaged in advocacy for the restoration of peace in Colombia through educational resources on its website, <http://www.pcusa.org/peacemaking/actnow/actnow.htm#colombia>, by supporting the Presbyterian Church of Colombia through the accompaniment program, <http://www.pcusa.org/peacemaking/actnow/learnaboutcolombia.pdf>, and sponsoring a travel study seminar to the region for young adults January 4–14, 2006. The Presbyterian Peacemaking Program has also published Colombia, a resource to help Presbyterians understand Colombia, its history, its current crisis and challenges, the work of the Presbyterian Church of Colombia, and to explore how to respond.

13. 2004 Referral: Item 12-05. Report, Iraq: Our Responsibility and the Future. Recommendation 6. To Suggest the United Nations Play a Lead Role in the Recruiting and Training of Persons Who Have Special Skills in Establishing the Rule of Law to Establish Peace and Stability in Iraq and Other Areas of the World Striving to Build Post-conflict Stability and Order—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 71–73, 865).

Response: The Presbyterian United Nations Office of the Presbyterian Peacemaking Program is an accredited nongovernmental organization (NGO) at the United Nations. In this capacity, the Presbyterian UN Office was instrumental in forming the NGO Working Group on Iraq. This working group has provided valuable insights to the UN as the UN assesses its role in establishing peace and stability in the region. Additionally, the Presbyterian UN Office coordinated a meeting for ecumenical leaders including Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick with UN Secretary General Kofi Annan on May 24, 2004. This delegation communicated that international involvement is Iraq's only chance for lasting peace and security and that the United Nations is the organization rightfully to take that role.

14. 2004 Referral: Item 12-06. Resolution on Violence, Religion, and Terrorism, Recommendation B.3.a. That the Presbyterian Peacemaking Program Prepare a Study Guide for This Resolution and the Accompanying Background Paper; Distribute It to the Sessions, Middle Governing Bodies and their Resource Centers, and Libraries of the Theological Seminaries; and Place the Document as a Whole on the Web—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 74, 880).

Response: The Presbyterian Peacemaking Program published and distributed a six-session study guide with options for extended study. It is available for purchase through Presbyterian Distribution Service and online at <http://pcusa.org/peacemaking/pubs/rtvbook.pdf>.

15. 2004 Referral: Item 12-06. Resolution on Violence, Religion, and Terrorism, Recommendation B.3.b. That the Presbyterian Peacemaking Program, the Presbyterian United Nations Office, and the Presbyterian Washington Office Continue to Monitor and Report to the Church on the Most Significant Developments in the “War on Terrorism” and on Efforts to Amend the USA PATRIOT Act—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 74, 880).

Response: The Presbyterian Peacemaking Program, the Presbyterian United Nations Office and the Presbyterian Washington Office continue to monitor and report to the church significant developments in the “War on Terrorism” and efforts to amend the USA Patriot Act through several venues. The Presbyterian Washington Office alerts Presbyterians through its list serve and the web <http://www.pcusa.org/washington/issuenet/crrl.htm> about the implications of the Patriot Act and other security issues related to the “War on Terrorism” through its Stewardship of Public Life Civil Rights and Religious Liberties Network. In January 2005, the Presbyterian UN Office sponsored a Doctor of Ministry Course in partnership with Columbia Theological Seminary on Religion and Violence that included study and reflection on terrorism and has continued to monitor the “War on Terrorism” as it relates to the war with Iraq. The Presbyterian Peacemaking Program has focused on this issue at its conferences through briefings and workshops and co-sponsored with the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy and Stony Point Center a consultation, Peacemaking in a Time of Terror, Violence and War, September 27–29, 2004.

Additionally, both the Presbyterian Washington Office and the Presbyterian Peacemaking Program have been monitoring, providing education and advocacy opportunities concerning torture that have emerged as a result of the “War on Terrorism.”

16. 2004 Referral: Item 12-07. The Commitment to Peacemaking, Recommendation 9. That a Report Be Made to the 217th General Assembly (2006) on the Number of Session That Have Adopted the “Commitment to Peacemaking”—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 74, 901).

Response: See Item 11-33.

17. 2004 Referral: Item 10-03. Report of the Task Force to Study Reparations, Recommendation 7, That the Peacemaking Program, in Consultation with the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns, the Racial Ethnic Ministries Program Area, and the Presbyterian Washington Office, Provide Web-based Resources on Issues Related to Reparations, Reconciliation, and Renewal—From the General Assembly Council Task Force to Study Reparations (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 57, 705).

Response: The Presbyterian Peacemaking Program, in partnership with Racial Ethnic Ministries, the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns, and the Presbyterian Washington Office, have created a web page on reparations: <http://pcusa.org/reparations/>. The Office of Racial Justice will have responsibility for maintaining this page with assistance from the Peacemaking Program.

18. 2004 Referral: Item 10-06. Report, Transforming Families, Recommendation 3.f. That the General Assembly Council, Through Congregational Ministries Division’s Family and Young Adults Ministries Office, Recommend, on CMD’s Website and in Its Publications, Useful Resources Relating to Singles Ministries, Premarital Counseling, Domestic Violence Ministry, Divorce Recovery, Christian Families Week, Adoption, and Other Family-extending Relationships—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 57, 759).

Response: The Presbyterian Peacemaking Program, through its Office of Family and Intergenerational Ministries, has created a bibliography of selected print and web resources for those in ministries with families. This listing is separated using the topics as listed in the referral above. The bibliography is posted on the Family and Intergenerational Ministries Web Site at <http://www.pcusa.org/family/guidance/bibliography.pdf>. It can be viewed and printed in PDF format in order to keep it updated as resources become available.

In January 2006 Congregational Ministries Publishing released a new publication, Shaken Foundations, which provides help for young adults whose parents are divorcing. A revised edition of Striking Terror No More, addressing issues of domestic violence, will be available in March 2006. Working ecumenically, Congregational Ministries Publishing is offering a faith development curriculum for families. The curriculum uses a lifelong growth in discipleship process. It will be released in August 2006.

19. Overture 98-33. On Amending W-2.4006 and W-2.4011a to Establish Open Communion—From the Presbytery of the Twin Cities Area (Minutes, 1998, Part I, pp. 86–87, 671–72).

Response: See Item 13-04.

20. 2002 Referral: Item 10-01. Recommendation that the General Assembly Council Office of Theology and Worship Conduct a Comprehensive Study of Sacramental Theology and Practice with Special Attention to the Ways in Which the Catechumenate Relates Baptism and the Lord's Supper and Report to the 217th General Assembly (2006)—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2002, Part I, pp.21, 503).

Response: See Item 13-04.

21. 2004 Referral: Item 08-06. On Amending W-2.4006 and W-2.4011 Concerning Who May Participate—From the Presbytery of Central Washington (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 17, 612–15).

Response: See Item 13-04.

22. Alternate Resolution to 2002 Referral: Item 13-07. Recommendation That the General Assembly Council, Office of Theology and Worship, Implement Commissioners' Resolution 01-22. On a Churchwide Dialogue on End-of-Life Issues (Minutes, 2001, Part I, pp. 49, 498)—From the 214th General Assembly (2002) (Minutes, 2002, Part I, pp. 71, 654).

Response: See Recommendation 10-07.

23. 2004 Referral: Item 08-09. Recommendation 2. That the 216th General Assembly (2004) Authorize the Office of Theology and Worship, with Participation of the Trinity Working Group, to Invite Response and Comment to the Current Draft of the Theological Statement on the Doctrine of the Trinity, and to Conduct a Series of Consultations Throughout the Church to Encourage Fresh Engagement with the Fullness of the Doctrine of the Trinity—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 17, 617)

Response: See Item 13-05.

24. 2004 Referral: Item 08-09. Recommendation 3. That the Office of Theology and Worship, with Participation of the Trinity Working Group, Prepare a Final Draft of the Theological Statement on the Doctrine of the Trinity and Submit It to the 217th General Assembly (2006) for Action—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 17, 617).

Response: See Item 13-05.

25. 2003 Referral: Item 10-12. Commissioners' Resolution 03-03. On Developing Baptismal Materials Regarding Child Abuse (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 22, 566).

Response: See Item 13-04.

26. 2003 Referral: Item 10-07. Recommendation 2. That the General Assembly Instruct the Congregational Ministries Division, Office of Theology and Worship, to Provide Suggestions and Resources for Presbytery-wide Celebration of the Lord's Supper—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 22, 566).

Response: Resources have been prepared by the Office of Theology and Worship and will be distributed throughout the church in 2006.

27. 2004 Referral: Item 08-11. On Appropriate Language to Describe the Ministry of All Believers—From the Presbytery of New Brunswick (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 17, 618–19).

Response: Study materials have been prepared and will be made available throughout the church in 2006.

28. 2004 Referral: Item 10-03. Report of the Task Force to Study Reparations, Recommendation 4.b., That the General Assembly Council, Office of Theology and Worship Prepare Materials to Facilitate Churchwide Reflection and Study of the Belhar Confession—From the General Assembly Council Task Force to Study Reparations (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 57, 701).

Response: Study materials are being prepared and will be made available to congregations and presbyteries in 2006.

29. 2004 Referral: Item 09-06. Recommendation 2. That the General Assembly Council, Through Its Office of Evangelism, and Congregational Ministries Divisions, Through Its Office of Theology and Worship, Make Available Through Electronic Means, “The Person and Work of the Holy Spirit with Special Reference to ‘The Baptism of the Holy Spirit’” for Congregations as They Work Through the Issues Surrounding the Holy Spirit, Spiritual Gifts, and Healing in the Alpha Program—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 41, 650–52).

Response: The paper “The Person and Work of the Holy Spirit with Special Reference to ‘The Baptism of the Holy Spirit’” is available at www.pcusa.org/theologyandworship/issues/holyspirit.pdf

30. 2004 Referral: Item 12-03. Recommendation 4.a.–b. That the Office of the General Assembly and the General Assembly Council Educate Presbyterians About the Reformed Principles for Interpreting Scripture as Affirmed by Previous General Assemblies—From the Presbytery of Chicago (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 67–70, 856).

Response: The Office of Theology and Worship, in cooperation with the Presbyterian Peacemaking Program, and the Offices on the Middle East and Interfaith Relations, prepared this resource sheet <http://pcusa.org/worldwide/israelpalestine/resources/21christianzionism.pdf>, designed to assist Presbyterians in understanding how biblical faith and reformed theology guide our understanding of present realities and possibilities in the Middle East.

F. General Assembly Council Final Responses to Referrals

1. 2003 Referral: Item 09-03. Strategy for Ministry with Hispanic-Latino Constituencies in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 7. That the General Assembly Council Direct the Mission Funding and Development Office to Assist the Congregational Enhancement Office in Conceiving a Funds Development Strategy By 2004 and to Provide a Progress Report on the Fund-raising Effort to the 217th General Assembly (2006)—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 24–25, 532).

Response: Stewardship and Mission Funding has offered its assistance to the Congregational Enhancement Office in developing a funds development strategy.

2. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3.f. That the General Assembly Council Be Encouraged to Adequately Fund and Staff the GAC Office of Equal Employment Opportunity and Affirmative Action (EEO/AA) --From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 52, 542).

Response: The Office of the Executive Director has employed an associate for cultural proficiency. This position will provide a holistic approach to cultural change that will assist the national headquarters as it continues to institutionalize the cultural proficiency methodology. Working in partnership with the Office of Human Resources, this office will assist in fulfilling the function of Equal Employment Opportunity and Affirmation Action (AA-EEO).

3. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3.h. That All PC(USA) Agencies share their EEO/AA and Cultural Proficiency Progress Annually with the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC) by Providing Items (1)-(5)--From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 51, 543).

Response: Human Resources forwards annually the EEO/AA information to the General Assembly Council (GAC) and the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC).

4. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3.k. That All PC(USA) Corporate Agencies Be Encouraged to Implement a Program of Incentives for Managers Who Are in Positions to Make Hiring Decisions as a Means to Reward Adherence to and Success in Implementing Cultural Proficiency Initiatives—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 51, 544).

Response: Human Resources has included Cultural Proficiency as a category on the exempt evaluation form to assure that it is kept in the forefront. In addition, 2006 Education Day for all GAC employees includes more than a half-day dealing with cultural proficiency. Human Resources has also expanded its recruitment resources to increase the diversity of candidate pools.

5. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3.m. That General Assembly Agencies Be Instructed to Establish a Process to Train and Mentor Emerging Majorities and Women at Appropriate Intervals During the Calendar Year, and During Regular Scheduled Work Time to Educate, Train, and Prepare Employees from the Existing Staff Pool for Possible Promotion and Consideration for Upper Management Positions—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 51, 545).

Response: All GAC management development programs are open to all interested employees, the compensation system implemented identifies professional skill progression for succession planning, and a new tuition reimbursement policy was implemented.

6. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3.p. That General Assembly Agencies Be Directed to Share the Final Report of the Advocacy Committee on Racial Ethnic Concerns' Task Force to Examine General Assembly Entities with Their Employees—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 51, 545).

Response: The results of the ACREC consultation with the General Assembly Council is posted annually on CenterNet (intranet) for staff review under the header "Cultural Proficiency."

7. 2004 Referral: Item 07-06. Report of the Special Offerings Review Task Force, Recommendation 3. That the Audit Committee of the General Assembly Council Evaluate the Recipients of Special Offering Funds for Adherence to the Criteria for Participation in Special Offerings—From the Special Offerings Review Task Force (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 50, 494).

Response: The Audit Committee of the General Assembly Council will direct the Internal Audit Department in the Executive Director's Office to develop a plan for the evaluation of the recipients of the Special Offering Funds. The objective of this review will be to determine adherence to the criteria for participation in Special Offerings. This audit will be approved by the Audit Committee and the report will be made available for the review by the Special Offering Review Task Force immediately following the April 2006 General Assembly Council meeting.

8. 2004 Referral: Item 07-06. Report of the Special Offerings Review Task Force, Recommendation 4. That the Development of Technology Continue for Receiving Special Offerings, Including Items a.-c.—From the Special Offerings Review Task Force (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 50, 494).

Response: Items a.-c. of Recommendation 4 of the Special Offerings Review Task Force include:

- a. communicating the availability of electronic methods of giving;
- b. verifying sufficient documentation of such gifts as required by the IRS;
- c. tracking gifts for congregational and presbytery affiliation.

The availability of electronic methods of giving is communicated in a variety ways, electronically and in print. Specifically, giving for Special Offering is available through electronic methods on each offering's web page. Documentation as required by the IRS is prepared. At this time, tracking gifts for congregational and presbytery affiliation is not required on this electronic page. However, fields for church name, church city, and church state are included and the information can be entered. Tracking these gifts would be possible by running a query in the financial database; however, it cannot be considered actual because the information is given voluntarily.

Presently, a two- to three-year plan is being implemented to use technology to integrate and interface the collection and management of all information, including Special Offerings. The primary vision is to create a technology environment that will coordinate information through the church by providing a comprehensive, easy-to-use system for information interactions and working relationships (people and data). This vision puts relationships first and foremost with business processes and technology supporting that vision.

9. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change Within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3.e. That all Agencies Inform Its Vendors and Business that the PC(USA) Agencies Subscribe to the Principles and Practices of Cultural Proficiency and Urge Its Vendors and Business to Do Likewise—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 51, 542).

Response: The purchasing office at the Presbyterian Center has an approval process that requires all vendors to have their employment practices validated by Project Equality, Incorporated. Project Equality is a national program to assist employers in their affirmative action efforts to achieve equal employment opportunity (EEO). One of their services is to validate EEO programs of firms supplying goods and services to nonprofits such as PC(USA). This meets the requirements of the The Churchwide Plan for Equal Employment Opportunity and Affirmative Action. The PC(USA) has three seats on the board of Project Equality (based on an annual donation of $20,000). Representing PC(USA) on the board are the purchasing manager, a representative from National Ministries Division, and an at-large appointment.

The Churchwide Plan for Equal Employment Opportunity and Affirmative Action states on page 7, “Commitment as a purchaser to contract or purchase goods and services whenever possible from businesses that have committed themselves to the goal of equal employment opportunity and affirmative action and which are willing to cooperate with Project Equality, Incorporated. Such cooperation includes utilizing the Project Equality process so that whenever a reasonable choice exists, validated meeting facilities are used and suppliers listed in the Buyers Guide and Supplements are selected.”

The purchasing office also promotes and provides reports for the minority vendor program. Purchasing actively recruits minority vendors to participate in this program to assist PC(USA) in achieving its goal of at least 10 percent of purchases from minority vendors. Annual reports on the results of these activities are provided to the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC) and to the Mission Support Services Committee of the GAC.

10. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change Within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3.j. That the GAC Expand the Foundation-managed Creative Investment Fund to Encompass Greater Participation with Racial Ethnic Presbyterian Ministries and to Gradually Increase the Creative Investment Fund for the Purpose of Investing in Community Economic Projects—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 52, 543).

Response: The General Assembly Council (GAC) reported to the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC) that implementing this recommendation at this time would have a negative impact on the GAC mission budget and the implementation of other initiatives recommended by the Climate for Change paper. Given the current budget pressures, the GAC is unable to provide additional funding to the Creative Investment Fund. The Creative Investment Fund was established in the mid 1970s to promote direct investment in enterprises that foster the economic development of racial ethnic and economically disadvantaged peoples. Currently, a pool of $8,000,000 is set aside from the unrestricted endowments of the General Assembly for this program. Over the last ten years, the average amount of the pool invested was $4,670,000. Since the Creative Investment Fund has not, over the last several years, been fully invested there does not seem to be a pressing need for additional funds. As of December 31, 2005, $6,000,000 is outstanding.

11. 2004 Referral: Item 10-03. Report of the Task Force to Study Reparations. Recommendation 9. That the General Assembly Council Create an Extra Commitment Opportunity Account to Fund Congregationally Based Ministries of Economic Development Leading to Repair and Renewal and Report to the 217th General Assembly (2006)—From the General Assembly Council Task Force to Study Reparations (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 57, 705).

Response: The Extra Commitment Account, “Ministries of Economic Development Leading to Repair and Renewal”—number E-051906—has been created by Stewardship and Mission Funding.

12. 2004 Referral: Item 10-05. Resolution Calling for a Comprehensive Legalization Program for Immigrants Living and Working in the United States, Recommendation 2.a. That the General Assembly Council Establish a Position within the Office of the General Assembly Staffed by an Attorney with Current Relevant Information on Immigration and Visa Issues for the Purpose of Providing Reliable Advice and Counseling to Presbyteries and Pastors Whose Members Have Immigration Problems—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 57, 738).

Response: This Recommendation 2.a. was met in July of 2005 when Attorney Julia Thorne began her work as the manager for immigration issues in the Office of the General Assembly. This position is responsible for delivery of legal advice to presbyteries and churches on matters relating to immigration law. It also coordinates immigration advocacy efforts and creates and distributes immigration resources to middle governing bodies and offices within the Presbyterian Center. Ms. Thorne's law degree is from the University of Kentucky. She is a member of the American Immigration Lawyer's Association.

G. National Ministries Division Final Responses to Referrals

1. 2003 Referral: Item 09-01. Reclaiming the Vision: A Mission Strategy to Strengthen the Partnership Between the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and Its Related Schools, Colleges, and Universities, Recommendation 2. That the General Assembly Urge the Governing Bodies of the Church and the Related Educational Institutions to Strengthen Their Partnerships Through the Process of Clarifying the Covenant Between Them as Well as the Other Particular Ways That Each of the Institutions Is Related to the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 24, 521).

Response: The Association of Presbyterian Colleges and Universities (APCU) maintains copies of covenants between the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and related educational institutions and reminds both bodies when such covenants are scheduled for renewal. When asked, APCU assists institutions in revising their covenants. Approximately one-third of the related educational institutions have current covenants with their respective synods or presbyteries. The 216th General Assembly (2004) renewed the partnership covenant between the General Assembly and the Presbyterian racial ethnic schools and colleges. In 2005, the National Ministries Division renewed the General Assembly Council covenant with APCU.

2. 2003 Referral: Item 09-01. Reclaiming the Vision: A Mission Strategy to Strengthen the Partnership Between the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and Its Related Schools, Colleges, and Universities, Recommendation 3.a.–d. That the General Assembly Urge the Educational Institutions of the Church to Utilize Fully the Many Partners That Are Willing and Able to Assist Them in Developing the Presbyterian and Reformed Presence—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 24, 521).

Response: All but a few Presbyterian-related colleges and universities are members of the Association of Presbyterian Colleges and Universities (APCU), which exists to strengthen relations between the church and its related institutions. All but one of the eligible institutions participate in the Presidents Roundtable of Racial-Ethnic Schools and Colleges. Approximately one-third of all related colleges and universities have individual covenants with governing bodies. In 2005, the General Assembly Council renewed its covenant with APCU. The GAC also provides ministry and mission to colleges and universities through the offices of Collegiate Ministries, Financial Aid for Studies, and Racial-Ethnic Schools and Colleges.

3. 2003 Referral: Item 09-01. Reclaiming the Vision: A Mission Strategy to Strengthen the Partnership Between the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and Its Related Schools, Colleges, and Universities, Recommendation 8 a.–c. That the General Assembly Urge the Agencies and Governing Bodies of the Church to Inform the Denomination About the Critical Mission of the Church In and Through Its Educational Institutions—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 24, 522–23).

Response: Advocacy for the church's mission through related education institutions has been done largely by the Association of Presbyterian Colleges and Universities (APCU). In doing this, APCU has attempted to relate the work of these institutions to the General Assembly Council's 2005–2006 Mission Work Plan. Through promotion at church-sponsored events, including General Assemblies, the Presbyterian Youth Connection, the Association of Presbyterian Church Educators' annual meeting, and others, APCU has tried to get information about Presbyterian-related institutions into congregations. Information is also available online at the APCU web site, www.apcu.net. Information about higher education ministry and resources is available at the higher education section of the PC(USA) web site, www.pcusa.org/collegiate. Information about financial aid for studies is available at www.pcusa.org/financialaid.

4. 2002 Referral: Item 13-05, Resolution on Advocacy on Behalf of the Uninsured, Recommendation 10, That the Rural Ministries Office Give Special Attention to Issues of Access to and Cost of Health Care in Rural Communities—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2002, Part I, pp. 70, 634).

Response: The National Health Ministries Office has produced a new resource, "Healthcare Issues and Access to Care in Rural Areas" that is available to the whole denomination. Copies of this new resource are available upon request or can be down loaded from the web site at www.pcusa.org/health/national.

In addition a new initiative, Health Mission on the Move is a mission project that brings health education, prevention, and wellness information to areas of the U.S. that lack health and mental health services.

The Health Mission on the Move investigates and identifies the significant health risks of the population being served by completing a simple community health assessment—using information from church leaders and local, state, and national sources. Health providers and other key individuals in the community help gear the resources and education and prevention information to the specific health risks and needs of the group being served and are most helpful to the congregation (s).

Locate health and health education services that either serve the population routinely or are willing to make themselves available are include them in the event, helping assure that follow-up services will be available for people screened at the event and who appear to need follow-up care.

5. 2003 Referral: Item 09-06. On Directing Evangelism and Church Development to Develop and Distribute Materials to Assist Members and Congregations in Sharing the Good News of God's Love in Jesus Christ—From the Presbytery of Inland Northwest (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 25, 549).

Response: The National Ministries Evangelism and Witness goal area produced recent resources that include the Evangelism Sunday materials for 2003 on the theme “Embracing All God’s Children,” 2004 on the theme “Here and Now,” 2005 on the theme “Faithful Witnesses,” and 2006 will include material on “Servant Evangelists.”

A new resource, “Everyday Evangelists: Evangelism for the Rest of Us” is now available. It approaches evangelism as part of every Christian’s daily living with specific ideas for three levels of evangelism: An invitation to participate in the life of the congregation; giving witness to what God has done in your life; in-depth continuing dialogue, guidance, and support on the journey of commitment.

6. 2004 Referral: Item 09-06. Recommendation 1. That the General Assembly Council, National Ministries Division, Through Its Office of Evangelism, Continue to Publish and Make Available Alpha: From a Reformed Perspective As a Guide for Presbyterian Congregations Who Use or Who Are Considering Using Alpha as an Evangelistic Tool —From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 41, 650).

Response: Alpha from a Reformed Perspective is published by the Christian Reformed Church. It was jointly produced by the CRC, the Reformed Church in America, and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). It is available at no cost from the Presbyterian Distribution Service as item number 72 310 01 003.

7. 2003 Referral: Item 09-01. Reclaiming the Vision: A Mission Strategy to Strengthen the Partnership Between the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and Its Related Schools, Colleges, and Universities, Recommendation 7 a.–c. That the General Assembly Urge the National Ministries Division, Higher Education Program Area, to Find Ways to Assist the More Fragile Institutions Related to the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Especially Those Whose Accreditation Is Threatened (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 24, 522).

Response: This referral is answered by Item 12-13: Report from the Racial Ethnic Educational Support Work Group.

8. 2003 Referral: Item 09-03. Strategy for Ministry with Hispanic-Latino Constituencies in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3. That the General Assembly Request the General Assembly Council, Through Its National Ministries Division, Churchwide Personnel Services to Organize Workshops in Conjunction with Presbyteries, Synods, and Other General Assembly Entities and Provide a Progress Report to the 217th General Assembly (2006)—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 24–25, 531).

Response: From July 2004–December 2005, thirty-two presentations and workshops on Hispanic church development were presented to 16 presbyteries, 3 synods, 2 theological seminaries, and at 6 national events. These events were coordinated together with middle governing bodies and the Hispanic Congregational Enhancement office. This model for organizing presentations will continue to be used in the future.

9. 2003 Referral: Item 09-03. Strategy for Ministry with Hispanic-Latino Constituencies in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 4. That the General Assembly Request the General Assembly Council, the Office of the General Assembly, and Middle Governing Bodies to Continue to Produce Resources in Spanish and Portuguese, and to Engage in Leadership Development, Particularly for Hispanic-Latino Leaders—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 24–25, 531).

Response: Spanish curriculum resources for children, ages 3–11, will be ready in the Fall of 2006, and a Spanish Worship Book for Hispanic/Latinos will be ready in 2007. The General Assembly Council is aware of the need for resources in various languages and is investigating ways that this can be done. Leadership development training events, such as the Commission Lay Pastors with the Synod of Southern California and Hawaii, is taking place with different middle governing bodies.

10. 2003 Referral: Item 04-01. Clergywomen's Experiences in Ministry: Realities and Challenges, Recommendation 3. That the General Assembly Instruct Churchwide Personnel Services and Request Middle Governing Bodies, Seminaries, and Congregations to Address the Difficulties Frequently Encountered in the Position of Associate Pastor—From the Advocacy Committee for Women's Concerns (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 62, 293).

Response: Recognizing that the difficulties clergywomen encounter in the position of associate pastor often have systemic roots, and that the difficulties they encounter may have similarities to those encountered by clergymen in associate pastor positions, a preventative approach will have the capacity to address those difficulties over the long term. Therefore, the newly published 6th edition of the Committee on Ministry Handbook encourages COMs to help church staff work together collegially and effectively, through clear job descriptions for all staff members, clarity of expectations in search processes, utilizing the resources of a ministry development center to assess candidates to be called as associate pastors or as pastors regarding both their skills and their ability to work in a staff team, and when needed, specialized continuing education for persons called to serve as pastor/head of staff. The COMs are also encouraged to be alert to the possibility that there are times when sexism is a significant part of the difficulty, and to challenge sexism where it exists.

The National Ministries Division Leadership and Vocation goal area, through the Entrance Into Pastoral Ministry New Pastor Program, is working with middle governing bodies to provide support for newly ordained pastors including those in associate pastor positions.

11. 2003 Referral: Item 04-13. Commissioners' Resolution 03-27. On Celebrating the Ministry of Women (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 65, 331–32),

Response: In 2005 and 2006, celebrations were planned and held across the church. Four events were initiated by the office of Women's Ministries. The overarching theme was Tending the Flame: Women Called to Lead. The fourth celebration will be held in October of 2006 and bring the celebration to a close.

The ordination celebrations honored women ordained

- as deacons in 1906 (100th anniversary in 2006)
- as elders in 1930 (75th anniversary in 2005)
- to Word and Sacrament in 1956 (50th anniversary in 2006).

The text from Luke 24:32 provided the basis for the theme and the plans for each celebration: "Did not our hearts burn within us while he talked to us on the road, while he opened to us the scriptures?"

The Eastern regional event was held at Princeton, N.J., March 31–April 3, 2005, planned by the National Association of Presbyterian Clergywomen (NAPC). The theme: "Inheriting the Promise. . . Living the Call" celebrated fifty years of women in ministry ordained to the office of Word and Sacrament.

The Midwest regional event was held in Chicago, Ill., November 5–7, 2005, planned by a regionally gathered group and co-hosted by McCormick Theological Seminary and 4th Presbyterian Church. The theme: "A Flame in Our Hearts," celebrated the ordained leadership of women in the church, honoring 100 years as deacons, 75 years as elders and 50 years as ministers of Word and Sacrament.

The Southern regional event was held in Atlanta, Ga., March 9–11, 2006, planned by a regionally based team. The theme: "Spirit Flames' Sisters ... Celebrating our Witness, Claiming Our Ministries, Sharing the Sacred Table, Discerning Our Way into the Future" was a celebration of the ordination of women in the church

The Western regional event will be held in San Francisco, Calif., October 6–8, 2006, planned by a regionally gathered team will be a culmination of the two-year-long celebration. The theme: "Tending the Flame: Telling Our Story" will celebrate the ordinarily extraordinary lives and stories of women called to lead!

Conclusion: As a result of these events, insights for the future highlighted the need for continued work throughout the church as we address gender imbalances and inequities faced due to racism and sexism. It is incumbent upon the whole church to openly address these issues refusing to assume that because they have ordained women and moved to developing a more multicultural church that the difficulties are resolved.

12. 2004 Referral: Item 05-03. Recommendation 3. That the Office of the Committee on Ministry Review Resources Currently Available to Meet the Particular Needs of Clergywomen of All Ethnicities in the Call Process and in Pastorates as Stated Above and to Report Its Findings to the Advocacy Committee for Women's Concerns—From the Advocacy Committee for Women's Concerns (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 77, 389).

Response: The newly published 6th edition of the Committee on Ministry Handbook encourages committee on ministry (COMs) to include racial ethnic and women ministers and candidates in the pulpit supply list of the presbytery, and to consider racial ethnic and women ministers as moderator of session during a vacancy, and candidates to be suggested for temporary pastor relationships.

On Calling a Pastor; A Manual for Congregations Seeking Pastors encourages pastor nominating committees (PNCs) to utilize racial ethnic and women ministers and candidates as pulpit supply and interim pastors during a time of pastoral vacancy.

Leadership and Vocation staff have led events for clergywomen around the call process and prepared a resource, which is available on the web at www.pcusa.org/ministers.

Leadership and Vocation has sent a letter to leaders of racial ethnic caucuses, to Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns, to COM moderators, and to executive presbyters (EPs) encouraging support for racial ethnic clergywomen as they seek calls to serve congregations.

13. 2004 Referral: Item 07-06. Report of the Special Offerings Review Task Force, Recommendation 7.c. That a Request From Bloomfield College to Be Considered as a Possible Recipient of Christmas Joy Offering Funds Be Referred to the National Ministries Division—From the Special Offerings Review Task Force (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 50, 495).

Response: This referral is answered by Item 12-13: Report from the Racial Ethnic Education Support Work Group.

14. 2004 Referral: Item 09-12. On Recognizing Bloomfield College, Bloomfield, New Jersey, as a Racial Ethnic College Related to the PC(USA)—From the Presbytery of Newark (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 42–43, 661–63).

Response: This referral is answered by Item 12-13: Report from the Racial Ethnic Educational Support Work Group.

15. 2004 Referral: Item 07-12. Commissioners' Resolution. On Strengthening Hispanic Latino Ministry by Implementing Recommendations 1.–3. (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 50–51, 578–79).

Response: The Reverend Marissa Galvan was hired September 2005 to be the associate for resources & relationships Hispanic/Latino constituencies. With this position in place, the Hispanic constituency will have the opportunity to look for the creation and production of needed resources.

16. 2004 Referral: Item 09-13. On Improved Education for African American and Other Students Placed At-Risk for an Excellent Education—From the Presbytery of National Capital (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 43, 66366).

Response: To address the central concerns of this overture, web-based resources are being developed calling attention to the educational challenges faced by children and youth. Resources include specific action plan strategies for the involvement of congregations in the public schools, among them plans for tutoring and mentoring programs. The resources will be available at www.pcusa.org/child. The site will include links to the National Council of Churches Committee on Public Education and Literacy and other sites with updated information.

17. 2004 Referral: Item 10-01. Recommendation 1. That Racial Ethnic Ministries Establish an Antiracism Institute to Provide Training for Antiracism Facilitators, Continuing Education Opportunities for Pastors and Others Engaged in Racial Justice Ministries, to Begin in 2005—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 56, 683).

Response: The Office for Racial Justice and Advocacy has partnered with the Multicultural Network and the Office for Evangelism and Racial and Cultural Diversity to offer training for antiracism facilitators and continuing education for pastors. The first seminars were offered in August 2005 at Ghost Ranch. This program will be repeated annually. Training for facilitators was also provided to Presbyterian Women in October 2004 and February 2005. The Presbyterian Peacemaking Program has also helped to provide resources and leadership for this program.

18. 2004 Referral: Item 10-01. Recommendation 2. To Foster the Development of a Theology for Racial Justice Through the Establishment of a Theologian in Residence as Part of the Antiracism Institute—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 56, 683).

Response: As part of the 2005–2006 Mission Work Plan, in lieu of hiring a theologian, a project team was created to develop a strategy for implementing several facets of the antiracism strategy related to seminaries, including the goal to foster the development of theological resources. This team is working on strategies that will address this objective through other means.

19. 2004 Referral: Item 10-01. Recommendation 3. To Encourage Racial Ethnic Ministries, in Partnership with ACREC, Peacemaking, the Washington Office, and Other Program Areas, as appropriate, to Host a Convocation on the Status of Church and Race—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (Minutes, 2004, Part 1 pp. 56, 683).

Response: Advisory Committee on Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC) will host a pre-conference event at the 2007 National Care Partners Racial Ethnic Convocation, in partnership with the Office for Racial Justice, Peacemaking, Washington Office, and other appropriate program areas, that will provide a forum for dialogue on the status of church and race.

20. 2004 Referral: Item 10-01. Recommendation 4. To Direct Racial Ethnic Ministries to Provide Information and Promote the Use of Antiracism Training Resources by Middle Governing Bodies and Local Congregations and to Encourage Antiracism Dialogue by Middle Governing Bodies and Local Congregations and Other Activities to Address the Issues of Systemic Racism and Foster an Antiracist Identity at All Levels of the Church—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 56, 683).

Response: To promote and encourage the use of antiracism training resources by middle governing bodies and local congregations, information about antiracism training resources and events has been provided in the Racial Justice and Advocacy website, the (Racial Ethnic) TORCH, Ideas Magazine, and Infopack (through the partnership with the Office for Evangelism and Racial and Cultural Diversity). Workshops and training events have been conducted in the Presbyteries of Detroit and San Francisco, and the Synod of the Sun; and congregations in the Presbytery of New Hope. Workshops were also conducted at the Multicultural/Transformational Church Conference and the Peacemaking Conference.

21. 2004 Referral: Item 10-02. Task Force on Election Report, Recommendation 3. To Direct the Presbyterian Washington Office to Continue to Work on Voting Rights Issues—From the General Assembly Council Task Force on Elections (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 56, 687).

Response: The Washington Office sent a letter to members of the House of Representatives urging that they reauthorize these important enforcement and monitoring provisions of the Voting Rights Act of 1965. Through Stewardship of Public Life publications (SPL), the Washington Office also urged Presbyterians to advocate for the extension of these important provisions. This was done in the fall 2005 SPL Network on Civil Rights & Religious Liberty and on the web at pcusa.org/washington/issuenet/crrl-050624 "The Voting Rights Act of 1965, Revisited" and at pcusa.org/washington/issuenet/crrl-020916.htm "Support the Election Reform Legislation Now in Conference Committee." Section 217 of the Voting Rights Act focused on voting accessibility for all. An article, from the Washington Office, also appeared in the second quarter 2004 Racial Ethnic TORCH entitled, "Voting is Important."

22. 2004 Referral: Item 10-03. Report of the Task Force to Study Reparations, Recommendation 3. To Encourage the Ministries Divisions of the General Assembly Council and Governing Bodies to Include Workshops and Worship Services on Reparations, Reconciliation, and Renewal in Conferences; and Report Their Efforts to the 217th General Assembly (2006)—From the General Assembly Task Force to Study Reparations (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 57, 701)

Response: The General Assembly Council (GAC) Ministries Divisions and governing bodies have been encouraged to include workshops and worship services as called for in this recommendation by making resources available through a website on reparations (pcusa.org/reparations). Worship, study, and action resources are posted on that site. The Office for Racial Justice & Advocacy provided financial support and leadership for an event hosted by the Presbytery of National Capital, Nov. 11–12, 2005. That event was publicized in the TORCH and the Racial Justice website, as well as by the Presbyterian Peacemaking Program. The Peacemaking Program has contracted with a writer for the study on the task force report, and the Office of Theology and Worship has contracted with a writer for the study on the Belhar Confession, which originated with the Dutch Reformed Mission Church of South Africa. These two documents will provide further resources for future conferences and other events.

23. 2004 Referral: Item 10-03. Report of the Task Force to Study Reparations, Recommendation 10. To Request That the PC(USA) Washington Office Monitor and Advocate for Legislation Related to Reparations, Renewal, and Reconciliation, Including the Bill Introduced by Representative John Conyers Calling for the Creation of a Commission to Study Reparations Proposals for African Americans, and Report Their Efforts to the 217th General Assembly (2006)—From the General Assembly Council Task Force to Study Reparations (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 57, 705).

Response: The Washington Office has sent letters to members of the Congress urging that they support HR 40 “Commission to Study Reparation Proposals for African-Americans Act” The Washington Office has written about this legislation in the Racial Ethnic TORCH (see fourth quarter 2003), as well as its own advocacy publications which urged Presbyterians to advise their elected members to support the establishment of this study by approving the bill (H.R 40).

24. 2004 Referral: Item 10-05. Resolution Calling for a Comprehensive Legalization Program for Immigrants Living and Working in the United States, Recommendation 2.b. To Name a Point of Coordination for All Ministry Work Related to Racial Ethnic and Immigrant Church Growth and Evangelism so That Work That Now Crosses Divisional Lines Can Be Better Coordinated and Focused in Support of the Racial Ethnic/Immigration Evangelism and Church Growth Strategy Approved by the 210th General Assembly (1998)—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 57, 738).

Response: The Office of Immigration Issues (Office of the General Assembly [OGA]), in coordination with the Office of New Immigrant Group Ministries (National Ministries Division[NMD]) and the Presbyterian Washington Office, has convened a staff table on immigration issues that includes appropriate staff from OGA and all three Ministries Divisions of the General Assembly Council (GAC). This staff table meets regularly to facilitate communications and strategy, and foster stronger coordination between program offices whose work relates to and/or is impacted by immigration issues and the Racial Ethnic Immigrant Church Growth Strategy.

25. 2004 Referral: Item 10-06. Report, Transforming Families, Recommendation 3g. That the General Assembly Council, Through National Ministries Division’s Mission Responsibility Through Investment (MRTI) Committee, Urge Employers to Allow Adequate Time and Provide Sufficient Wages and Benefits for Their Employees to Fulfill Family Responsibilities—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 57, 759).

Response: The Committee on Mission Responsibility Through Investment (MRTI) conducts dialogues with corporations urging them to report on their social and environmental performance using the guidelines of the Global Reporting Initiative (GRI). The widely accepted GRI establishes comprehensive standards for corporations reporting on social and environmental issues. Over 700 corporations worldwide now use the GRI for their reports. This includes reporting on wages and benefits as well as programs to assist employees in dealing with family issues. The MRTI also works with organizations such as the National Labor Committee and the Coalition for Justice in the Maquiladoras to address similar issues in sweatshops in the U.S. and around the world.

26. 2004 Referral: Item 10-06, Transforming Families, Recommendation 3.i. That the General Assembly Entities, Synods, Presbyteries, Congregations, and Individual Presbyterians “Bring the Church’s Influence to Bear so That the Media Will Act to Strengthen Moral Values”---From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 57, 759).

Response: The General Assembly Council has brought considerable pressure to bear regarding the issue of violence in the media. Through direct action of the Mission Responsibility Through Investment Committee and Office of Child Advocacy’s joint work on decreasing violence in video games, pressure was applied on video game manufacturers to commit to a more comprehensive regulation system.

Also, the General Assembly Council, with the National Council of Churches, worked ecumenically to bring about more family programming and decrease the amount of violence found on television, in films, and other media outlets.

27. 2004 Referral: Item 10-06. Report, Transforming Families, Recommendation 3.k. That the Presbyterian Washington Office Convey These Policy Concerns to Political Leaders and Church Members; and That They Monitor Legislation Addressing These Concerns, Reporting to Presbyterians When They Have an Opportunity to Influence Such Legislation—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 57, 760).

Response: In legislative visits and written correspondence, Washington Office staff conveyed concerns listed in this recommendation to members of Congress and their staff and shared opportunities for action with Presbyterians. These include health care for all, affordable and flexible childcare, fair wages, education on family and medical leave, tax and budget changes, and educational programs conveying information conducive to healthy relationships.

The Presbyterian Washington Office sent the following letters to Congress:

A letter to Congress on fair wages, available at <http://www.pcusa.org/washington/issuenet/hh-051107justice.pdf>.

Budget and child well-being: <http://www.pcusa.org/washington/issuenet/hh-051108.pdf>

Restore State Children's Health Program (SCHIP) funds: <http://www.pcusa.org/washington/issuenet/hc-041116.pdf>

Written correspondence encouraging Presbyterian action included the following Stewardship of Public Life Publications (SPL):

—“The Family Medical Leave Act: Family Friendly,” by Elenora Giddings Ivory (<http://www.pcusa.org/washington/issuenet/wf-050513.htm>),

—“Outlook 2005: Budget Deficit Inhibits Possibility for Health Care Reform,” byCarolynn Race (<http://www.pcusa.org/washington/issuenet/hc-041216>), — “Census Bureau Reports Increase in Poverty and Uninsured Rates, Again,” by Carolynn Race (<http://www.pcusa.org/washington/sept-oct05.htm#1>),

—“TANF Stalls over Child Care Funding ...” by Mary Cooper (<http://www.pcusa.org/washington/issuenet/hh-050414.htm>)

28. 2004 Referral: Item 10-12. Resolution on Allegations of Child Sexual Abuse Against Educators, Recommendation 4.a. That the General Assembly Council Plan, Develop, and Implement National Training Programs on Child Sexual Abuse Prevention for Clergy, Church Educators, and Professionals Who Have Access to Children and Youth—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 59–60, 809).

Response: The PC(USA) sexual conduct website, “Creating Safe Churches: Addressing Sexual Misconduct” (www.pcusa.org/sexualmisconduct/), was developed in response to recommendations to the GAC from the Independent Committee on Inquiry that responded to child abuse allegations several years ago. This website includes strategies and resources that can be used for training clergy, church educators, and professionals who have access to children and youth. Staff are developing a strategy for a more systematic and comprehensive approach to training. If financial resources become available, comprehensive training can be implemented.

29. 2004 Referral: Item 10-12. Resolution on Allegations of Child Sexual Abuse Against Educators, Recommendation 4.b. That the General Assembly Council Support and Expand the Work of the Child Advocacy Office, the Presbyterian Child Advocacy Network (PCAN), Presbyterians Against Domestic Violence Network (PADVN), and Presbyterians for Disabilities Concerns (PDC) in Their Programs That Encourage Safety for Children in Church and Society—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 59–60, 809).

Response: The Child Advocacy Office, now expanded from a part-time to a full-time position, works to develop programs to ensure the safety of children in church and society. The office works with the Presbyterian Child Advocacy Network to raise awareness on child safety issues and relates through the Office of Social Welfare Organizations to other networks addressing the issue. Both offices maintain libraries of resources for implementing child safety policies.

30. 2004 Referral: Item 10-12. Resolution on Allegations of Child Sexual Abuse Against Educators, Recommendation 4.d. That the General Assembly Council Instruct the Presbyterian Washington Office to Advocate Speedy Ratification of the United Nations' Convention on the Rights of the Child by the United States Government—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 59–60, 809).

Response: The Washington Office sent a letter to the 435 members of the House of Representatives and to the 100 senators to urge them to ratify this U.N. convention. The letter included copies of this General Assembly action.

31. 2004 Referral: Item 10-12. Resolution on Allegations of Child Sexual Abuse Against Educators, Recommendation 6. That the Office of the General Assembly (OGA) and the General Assembly Council Advocate with Government, Universities, and Seminaries for Increased Research into Effective Treatment for Survivors of Child Sexual Abuse and to better Address Prevention Strategies---From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 59–60, 809).

Response: The National Ministries Division, through the Presbyterian Washington Office, advocates with the legislative and executive branches of the federal government on behalf of issues related to children. In addition, the Office of the General Assembly placed the document as a whole on the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Web site, as well as distributing a copy to the libraries of the theological seminaries.

32. 2004 Referral: Item 12-04. On Urging Peace in Colombia, South America, Recommendation 7. That the Members of the PCUSA Pray for Displaced People, Provide Direct Aid to the Church for Their Work with the Displaced, and That the Stated Clerk and the Presbyterian Washington Office Use Every Opportunity to Urge the United States Government to Provide Food, Water, Medicine, and Other Necessities to Colombia Rather Than Weapons—From the Presbytery of Baltimore (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 70–71, 862).

Response: Over the past two years the Presbyterian Washington Office, in conjunction with the Latin American Working Group and Colombia Steering Committee, has advocated strongly to Congress and the administration to urge economic assistance rather than military assistance to Colombia.

In June of 2005, the Washington Office wrote congress expressing strong support of the McGovern-McCollum-Moore amendment to the foreign operations appropriations bill to cut military aid to Colombia by $100 million. We urged members to support putting the money toward economic assistance instead. We also made advocacy visits to key members of congress asking them to support this amendment. A Stewardship for Public Life Quarterly was sent out entitled “Failed Colombia Policy Up for Renewal” pcusa.org/washington/issuenet/latin-050609.

We urged our constituents to take action in the Colombia Action Days and oppose the $742 million dollar package of mostly military aid to Colombia and support its transfer to economic and development assistance programs.

In the 3rd quarter of 2004 the Washington Office sent out a Stewardship for Public Life quarterly entitled “President Bush Calls for More US Troops In Colombia.” (pcusa.org/washington/issuenet/latin-040624) and urged constituents to write their members of Congress in support of the troop cap. All through the summer of 2004 the Washington Office, in coalition with the Colombia Steering Committee, worked to organize resistance, through grass roots mobilization and advocacy visits to members of congress, to the expansion of U.S. military presence in war-torn Colombia. Representative Gene Taylor (D-MS) offered an amendment to the 2005 Defense Authorization Bill that rejected the Bush Administration’s request. The amendment won approval in the House Armed Services Committee and went unchallenged when the bill reached the House floor. A similar amendment offered by Senator Byrd (D-WV) lost by a narrow margin in the Senate.

Over the last two years we have visited members of Congress asking for a change in U.S. policy toward more economic assistance rather than military assistance.

From the fall of 2004 through the spring of 2005, an intern from Wesley Seminary was brought in specifically to work on issues regarding Colombia.

33. 2004 Referral: Item 12-05. Report, Iraq: Our Responsibility and the Future, Recommendation 5. To Urge the United States Government to Move Speedily to Restore Sovereignty to Iraq, to Internationalize the Reconstruction Efforts Without Penalty to Those Nations That Chose Not to Endorse the U.S.-led Invasion, and to Recognize the United Nations as the Body Most Suitable to Facilitate the Transition to Peace, Freedom, and Participatory Governance in Iraq—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 7173, 865).

Response: The Presbyterian Washington Office urged congress through Capitol Hill visits and phone calls to support legislation calling for the president to move quickly toward restoring sovereignty to Iraq. In the fall of 2005, a Stewardship of Public Life Quarterly, entitled “Domestic Security Not Strengthened by Iraq War” (pcusa.org/washington/issuenet/gs) was sent out to our Global Security Network urging them to contact their members of Congress and ask them to support legislation calling on the president to move more speedily to restore sovereignty to Iraq. Also, in the July/August 2005 Washington Report to Presbyterians, an article entitled, “Iraq: Set a Time Frame for Withdrawal” (pcusa.org/washington/july-aug05) called on the president to have a stated policy of eventual withdrawal from Iraq.

The Washington Office has been working in coalition with the Iraq Policy Working Group urging congress and the president to make it a stated policy of the U.S. government that we will eventually withdraw from Iraq. Through grassroots educational articles and alerts as well as direct advocacy to congress, the Washington Office has urged the U.S. government to speed up the process of restoring sovereignty to Iraq.

The Washington Office has advocated for the U.S. to recognize that the United Nations is the body most suitable to head up the transition and reconstruction of Iraq. The Stewardship for Public Life Quarterly for our global security network, “Put Iraq Humanitarian Assistance and Reconstruction Under U.N. Control” (www.pcusa.org/washington/030424-gs-q2.htm), called on constituents to ask their members to support legislation calling for the U.S. to support United Nations Leadership.

34. 2004 Referral: Item 12-05. Report, Iraq: Our Responsibility and the Future, Recommendation 9. To Support the People of Iraq on a Long-term Basis in Rebuilding Their Government and Nation Without Prejudice to Any Ethnic and Religious Group and Urge the United States Government to Provide Assistance to Iraq in the Long-term Rebuilding Efforts, Including Working for Relief of Foreign Debt—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 71–73, 865).

Response: The Presbyterian Washington Office advocated for the U.S. government to provide assistance to Iraq in long-term rebuilding efforts—specifically in advocating for the relief of foreign debt. In 2004, in coalition with Jubilee USA, the Presbyterian Washington Office urged Congress to support Representative Carolyn Maloney (D-NY) and Jim Leach’s (R-IA) “Iraqi Freedom from Debt Act” H.R. 2482 which called on the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and World Bank to cancel 100 percent of Iraq’s odious debt. The Washington Office signed on to a letter supporting the cancellation of the debts and made Capitol Hill visits and phone calls urging members of Congress to sign on to the legislation. An email action alert was sent out to our Global Security Network urging them to contact their members of Congress and ask them to support this legislation.

35. 2004 Referral: Item 12-06. Resolution on Violence, Religion and Terrorism, Recommendation B.I.c. To Urge the United States Government to Balance the Use of Military Option to Deter Terrorism with Increased Investment in Programs That Can Transform and Reduce the Root Causes of Terrorism Across the Developing World—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 74, 879)

Response: The Washington Office has urged the support of programs to decrease poverty, a root cause of terrorism, around the world. By emphasizing an alternative notion of security—where all have enough food and the opportunities for health care and education—we have urged Congress to pass legislation in support of the Millennium Development Goals, which seek to cut the number of people living in poverty around the world by half by the year 2015. The Washington Office has taken the lead in bringing together the other denominational offices in Washington to work together in advocating for increased development assistance with Congress and the administration. We have advocated through letters, Capitol Hill visits, and alerts to Presbyterians to support an increase in development assistance and for the highest level possible in the Foreign Operations Appropriations bill. We are also participating in the ONE Campaign Advocacy team, which seeks to increase development assistance by 5 billion every year over the next four years.

36. 2004 Referral: Item 13-09. Commissioners’ Resolution On Opposition to the Central American Free Trade Agreement (CAFTA), Recommendation 3. Direct the General Assembly Council Through the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Programs Dealing with Economic Justice, Hunger, and Advocacy, to Promptly Communicate the General Assembly Position to the U.S. Trade Representative, U.S. Senators and Representatives, Congressional Committees with Trade Jurisdiction, and State Legislators, with Emphasis on Those Sections of CAFTA and Other Free Trade Agreements That Negatively Affect Our Partner—(Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 9192, 967).

Response: The Washington Office sent letters to U.S. Senators and Representatives, including members of relevant congressional committees, as well as the U.S. Trade Representative, expressing our opposition to the Central American Free Trade Agreement. (pcusa.org/washington/issuenet/latin-050322) In coalition with other groups opposing the agreement, the Washington Office sent sign on letters, held briefings, and sent out repeated action alerts to our constituents (pcusa.org/washington/issuenet/latin). Visits and phone calls to the congressional offices communicating our opposition were made.

37. 2004 Referral: 13-09. Commissioners’ Resolution On Opposition to the Central American Free Trade Agreement (CAFTA), Recommendation 4. Request the General Assembly Council to Identify Sisters and Brothers and Institutional Partners Who Have Been Impacted by Free Trade Policies, and Help Interpret These Stories and Effects to Church Members Through Itineration in the U.S. and Inclusion of These Into a Congregational Study Guide on Trade Issues and Economic Globalization—(Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 91-92, 967).

Response: The Presbyterian Hunger Program took the following actions:

- Published a Worship Guide on Trade and Globalization, adapted from Ecumenical Advocacy Alliance Global Week of Action Worship Guide. Sold from Presbyterian Distribution Service, offered free downloads on PC(USA) Just Trade Website, and distributed at many conferences.
- Promoted advocacy actions to oppose CAFTA and free trade agreements and to engage in global discipleship through support of fair and just trade through the writing and posting of numerous news, analysis, glossaries, resource lists and advocacy articles.
- Sponsored a Congressional Hunger Center Fellow intern and worked with him to create a series of adult study guides on free trade and U.S. agricultural policy, with special emphasis on trade distorting policies and the impacts of CAFTA and similar free trade agreements on family farmers in the U.S. and internationally.

- Distributed Action Alerts to hundreds of people, including the Hunger Action Enablers in 100 presbyteries, such as those sent on January 28, April 12, and June 8, 2005, at key legislative moments regarding CAFTA.
- Provided on the PC(USA) Website and announcing to hunger and social justice networks downloadable fact sheets, action ideas, and organizing guides from ecumenical and secular organizations/coalitions.
- Cosponsored Abundant Life Tour—two speaking tours in Fall 2005, one on the East Coast, one through the Midwest—including people from Guatemala and Peru who have been negatively impacted by CAFTA and free trade. Events and media events were held at local congregations, ecumenical groups and agencies, farmer and community organizations, high schools and universities, and with public officials and press and radio media representatives.
- Organized local trade and globalization educational events and documented those for the PC(USA) Just Trade website for Hunger Action Enablers and Peace & Justice committees to use in their congregations.
- Organized a World Fair Trade Day and created guides on the Just Trade Website to assist congregations in doing their own.
- Joined the international Ecumenical Advocacy Alliance, and participated in strategy meeting with partner organizations that are working to make trade fair.

From the PC(USA) Stated Clerk: Letters were sent expressing our denomination's opposition to CAFTA in its current form:

- One dated December 6, 2004, to all members of the United States Congress,
- One to President George W. Bush; same date.

38. 2004 Referral: Item 13-09. Commissioners' Resolution On Opposition to the Central American Free Trade Agreement (CAFTA) 04-07, Recommendation 5. Direct MRTI to Explore the Implications of CAFTA and Other Free Trade Agreements and Advise the General Assembly (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 91–92, 967–70).

Response: Mission Responsibility Through Investment (MRTI) has monitored free trade agreements and their implications for environmental responsibility and employment standards for many years, including the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA), the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), and the World Trade Organization (WTO). In response, MRTI in cooperation with other organizations and coalitions stepped up advocacy for stringent and independently monitored corporate codes of conduct to maintain high standards. To date MRTI has found General Assembly policy adequate for its advocacy.

39. 2004 Referral: Item 13-10. Commissioners' Resolution On Rescinding Policies Regarding Cuba That Cause Hardship to Families—(Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 92, 971).

Response: The Presbyterian Washington Office urged the Office of Foreign Assets Control to rescind the restrictive and harmful new regulations put in place in mid 2004. This was accomplished through educational material and action alerts sent to our grassroots as well as direct phone calls to the Departments of State and Treasury, and sign on letters sent in coalition efforts with other denominations and organizations opposing the legislation.

Three articles on the new restrictions and the hardship caused to families called on constituents to advocate a more just policy toward Cuba.

Key Votes on Cuban Embargo and Military Aid to Colombia, as Congress Approaches End of Session (4th quarter, 2004)

40. 2004 Referral: Item 10-7. On Setting Compensation Standards—From the Presbytery of New Hope (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 60, 795).

Response: The Committee on Mission Responsibility Through Investment (MRTI) has worked with the Interfaith Center on Corporate Responsibility (ICCR) to explore options for shareholder resolutions on executive compensation standards.

Meanwhile, MRTI has recommended proxy voting support for such resolutions. Following GAC affirmation, proxies for stock owned by the Board of Pensions and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)/New Covenant Trust have been voted in support of the resolutions. The MRTI will continue to address excessive executive compensation issues in corporate dialogues, proxy voting recommendations and possible filing of shareholder resolutions.

41. 1. 2002 Referral: Item 11-02, Report: A Comprehensive Strategy for Ministries with Native American: 2002 Supplemental Recommendations of the General Assembly Special Task Force on Native American Ministries, Recommendation 3, That the General Assembly Council Make Available Adequate Funding for a Churchwide Consultation on Native American Ministries No Later Than 2004—From the General Assembly Council (Minutes, 2002, Part I, pp. 23, 559)

Native American Churchwide Consultation

“It’s so good to see you.” “How is your Mother doing?” “I’m glad you made it here safely.” “Let’s go over to the Cultural Center for lunch.” Thus began a gathering of Native Americans from across the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). The occasion was the Native American Churchwide Consultation held in Albuquerque, New Mexico, April 22–24, 2005. Some attending the consultation have been serving in Native American ministries for decades. There was much to learn from them. Others attending were fairly new to this area of service and for them, there was much to be learned. The consultation participants came from the Native American community, middle governing bodies, and national church entities.

The consultation was the follow-up on a recommendation made to the General Assembly in 2002 by the Special Task Force on Native American Ministries. In 2000, after five years of work, the task force submitted a report entitled, “A Comprehensive Strategy for Ministries with Native Americans” to the General Assembly. The report, which is available on the PC(USA) Website, reviewed the history of the Presbyterian church’s relationship with native peoples and recommended strategies for Native American ministries in the PC(USA). In 2002, the task force recommended the General Assembly “encourage every presbytery and synod with Native American ministry ...” The participants to the consultation were given two primary tasks: (1) review and evaluate the churchwide policy statement and developments in native ministries, and (2) foster better dialogue between Native American Presbyterians and middle governing bodies.

In 1979, the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. adopted a Native American Churchwide Policy Statement in response to the urging of Native American Presbyterians who insisted on a greater role in decision-making on Native American ministry. In doing so, the Presbyterian church declared its commitment to “the continuance and strengthening of ministry with Native Americans through institutional or governing board projects and programs within the church that Native Americans themselves have had the opportunity to plan and implement.” The policy statement contains commitments in areas such as Mutuality in Mission, Preparation for Native American Ministry, Leadership, Continuing Education, and Pastoral Support. In 2000, the special task force proposed strategies to implement these and other areas of Native American ministry such as urban and youth ministry.

Every three years, the Native American Consulting Committee has held an Eight Synod Consultation for those synods that presently have Native American congregations or ministry projects within their bounds. The task force’s recommendation, approved by the 214th General Assembly (2002), expanded this consultation to a churchwide event that encompassed middle governing bodies interested in urban and off-reservation Native American ministry outside of those eight synods. The 2005 consultation had in attendance: twelve ordained clergy/pastors, six commissioned lay pastors, thirty-five elders/deacons, fifteen lay leaders, ten national staff members, ten middle governing body representatives and one institutional representative.

A central question during the consultation was whether the 1979 Policy Statement has withstood changes that have taken place both in Native American communities and in the PC(USA) itself. In 1979, the eight synods that contained Native American congregations had many programmatic functions. Since at least 2002, this has not been the case. Gary Torrens, coordinator, Middle Governing Bodies, addressed the group on the changing roles of middle governing bodies, especially synods. The Reverend Jan DeVries, synod executive for the Synod of the Southwest, shared her reflections with the group, saying that those engaged in Native American Ministry “live more in the shadow of the 1979 policy statement—one which was shaped out of the immediate cessation of the Board of National Missions, before reunion in 1983, and certainly before synods or presbyteries had any idea what they could or would do in partnership with Indian churches and ministries.”

Until the early 1970s, the Board of National Missions funded Native American ministry in the Presbyterian church nationally. Most Native American congregations did not have working relationships with middle governing bodies. Thus, when the Board of National Missions transferred Native American congregations to the care of presbyteries, with little or no consultation, these congregations were thrust into new relationships with little preparation or assistance. This major change has presented the greatest challenge for Native American congregations in the past three decades. Of the 110 Native American churches and chapels in the PC(USA), less than five have reached a self-supporting status, and as the task force reported in 2000, there remains a great need to develop working relationships with middle governing bodies.

It was noted for the record, Dakota Presbytery in the Synod of Lakes and Prairies is the only Native American and oldest nongeographic presbytery.

Planning Team members were June Lorenzo, the Reverend Buddy Monahan, Ralph Scissons, Elona Street-Stewart, Madeline Terry, and the Reverend Gene Wilson. The consultation facilitator, the Reverend Charles Marks, led the group through the day and a half of intensive activity.

Attendees viewed the “Celebration of Native People” presentation depicting the many faces of Native American ministries in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). It was an opportunity to see not only the people involved in native ministry but to also see the many native churches all over the nation. The community was challenged to appreciate and share the richness of native cultures, faith, songs, and gifts in their churches and their presbyteries.

In addressing the question of the purpose of the gathering, a sharp distinction was drawn between the meaning of a consultation and that of a conference. A consultation is an event designed to listen to people’s views; to hear their opinions; to receive input from them on particular subjects. A conference, on the other hand, is a gathering designed, primarily, to give information and to interpret to others what needs to be done. A consultation is designed to receive information from the people while a conference is designed to give information to the people. Participants at the churchwide consultation were encouraged, from the beginning, to know that they were invited so that Native American leadership and governing body leadership could hear their views, concerns, and priorities on a variety of issues related to Native American ministries.

Discussion groups were organized to coincide with the subtitles of the Native American Churchwide Policy Statement, e.g. Mutuality in Mission, Leadership, Continuing Education, and Pastoral Support, and ample time was provided for discussion. These subtitles highlight critical areas of Native American church life and ministry that are still being updated and addressed by individual congregations and communities. The churchwide policy statement was reviewed and affirmed for the critical issues it addresses and the wholesome vision for Native American ministry and empowerment that it contains.

Dialogue with governing bodies included plenary presentations focused on the status and nature of presbyteries and synod and the impact on Native American ministry. There was ample opportunity for conversation with middle governing body staff and national staff representatives.

Participants from Native American ministries began to share their vision of Native American ministry in the PC(USA) at its highest potential. Many participants first acknowledged that visioning and goal setting does not come easily. While there is a genuine desire to partner with middle governing bodies, there is little or no precedent for doing so, given the histories in which native people were viewed and treated as objects of mission and not equal partners. Even so, many acknowledged the need for accountability in a church with less and less resources available for national ministry programs. Also acknowledged was the importance of increased involvement in presbytery activities. Native people need to be at the table when discussions are held and decisions are made regarding presbytery programs. Native churches need to be active participants in ministry—not objects of mission but partners in ministry. Participants stressed the need for native churches to reexamine outdated mission statements, as well as that of developing relationships with secular institutions in their communities.

The identification and nurture of future church and community leadership through creative youth ministry and involvement in governing body youth events were strongly advocated. The changes begin with individuals, in native congregations and with what native children are taught.

In the midst of sharing visions, concern was raised regarding the educational institutions identified as being Native American and the lack of adequate funding. The three educational institutions with a history of being a primary source of educational opportunities are: Sheldon Jackson College founded in 1878 as a training center for Tlingit Indians is located in Sitka, Alaska; Menaul School founded in 1881, now a secondary school, is located in Albuquerque, New Mexico, and Cook College and Theological School founded in 1911 now located in Tempe, Arizona. All three have been instrumental in their mission to educate, enable, and empower for Native American leadership.

Saturday evening a resolution was introduced and unanimously passed by the consultation participants. The resolution stated: “That the Native American Consultation meeting in Albuquerque, New Mexico, on April 22 and 23, 2005, support the continuing work of Cook College and strongly request that it remain in the Christmas Joy Offering. Be it further resolved that the Native American Consultation also support the education of native leaders at Sheldon Jackson College and Menaul School.”

At the close of the consultation was the invitation to the participants for their vision for Native American ministry. The following is a summary of the visions offered.

A Collective Vision for Native American Ministry:

- Full integration into the PC(USA) of our vision that has emerged from this consultation.
- Native American churches that are not just religious entities but ones that empower and transform our communities.
- The bridging of the gap between our brothers and sisters from our urban and reservation communities through people committed to Christ, and through pastoral care as native people, empowered by Christ's Spirit.
- An American Indian Youth Council and Native American Young Adult Committee in every synod; acceptance, nurture, and support for youth in all of their daily struggles and realities; and acknowledgement that youth are among our greatest resources.
- A church that embraces who we are, and that has the courage to address a number of issues that we presently fear.
- More Native American ministers of the Word and Sacrament, both men and women, and at least two geographic presbyteries with Native American executives.
- Presbyteries that will work in partnership with our church/community to continue our ministry.

These visions provide a solid foundation for commitment from those present to be in partnership through the churches and presbyteries to work together for years to come. It calls for a continuous review of the implementation as stated in the churchwide policy. The increased dialog with presbyteries, and a closer working relationships with both Native American churches and communities will enable these visions to shape the future of native ministries.

Symbolically, the vision statements contributed to a community ritual of "passing the torch" as the vision for the future was passed between youth and adults; elders and pastors; women and men; and consultation to home communities. These visions will be fulfilled through our connectional church.

Live the vision!
We can do it!

42. 2002 Referral: Item 11-02, Report: A Comprehensive Strategy for Ministries with Native American: 2002 Supplemental Recommendations of the General Assembly Special Task Force on Native American Ministries, Recommendation 5, Requesting an Extension Until the 216th General Assembly (2004) for the Completion of the Comprehensive Statistical Report (Minutes, 2002, Part I, pp. 23, 559).

Background Statement

The Special General Assembly Native American Task Force (1995) was directed to "study and review mission and ministries with Native American tribes and peoples and to develop a comprehensive strategy for ministries with Native Americans and to report back [their finds and recommendations]. ..." (Minutes, 1995, Part I, p. 682). One recommendation was that the Office of the General Assembly/Research Services was instructed to develop a comprehensive statistical report on Native American Presbyterians by the time of 214th General Assembly (2002). An extension of time was requested and approved in 2002. The Office of Research Services and Office of Native American Congregational Enhancement offer the following report.

"According to the 1990 census, at least 39 percent of the national Native American population is under the age of eighteen. At least 65 percent of the national Native population lives in major urban areas such as Los Angeles, Tulsa, Phoenix, Albuquerque, Denver, Dallas, Chicago, Washington, D.C., and New York. The 2000 Census may reveal variations in these figures, but the basic trends will likely remain the same into the next century." (Comprehensive Strategy for Ministries with Native Americans, Minutes, (2000), Part I, p. 212; full report pp 26, 206–27)

In 1997, a preliminary study and review was initiated. Since 1984, the number of Native American PC(USA) congregations increased from 98 to 107 congregations. However, in the same time period, the percent of Native American congregations that do not have an installed pastor has increased from 58.5 percent in 1984 to 77.2 percent in 2000. One Native American pastor may serve more than one congregation. During the past twenty years, the number of Caucasian pastors serving Native American congregations has also decreased by 29 percent. There is a perceived shortage of pastors within the PC(USA). For Native American congregations seeking Native American pastors the shortage is severe.

While the number of Native American congregations has increased since 1984, the number of members within these congregations has decreased from 5,994 in 1984 to 4,462 in 2000.

The average size of an individual congregation has dropped from sixty-one members to forty-four members, and the median contributions have decreased from $8,196 to $7,375 per congregation per year. While membership is decreasing in the PC(USA) as a whole, there are unique reasons for the decline among Native American congregations, and these are discussed in this report.

There are 110 identified Native American churches and chapels within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). These churches and chapels are in the geographic Synods of Alaska/Northwest, Lakes and Prairies, Northeast, Pacific, Rocky Mountain, Southern California and Hawaii, Southwest, and Sun. Within these eight synods, all the churches/chapels are located on a reservation or rural tribal designation with the exception of Central Presbyterian Church located in Phoenix, Arizona.

A reservation is land that has been set aside for the use of the tribe. There are two types of American Indian reservations, federal and state. These entities are designated as colonies, communities, pueblos, ranches, rancherias, reservations, reserves, tribal towns, and villages. Lands are held in trust by state governments for the use and benefit of a given tribe. A governor-appointed state liaison provides the names and boundaries for state reservation. Rural locations in all probability are from trust lands allotted American Indians from the federal government.

There are 20 presbyteries with churches and chapels or Native American Ministry within their bounds. Dakota Presbytery is the oldest nongeographic language presbytery spanning the states of North and South Dakota, Montana, and Minnesota. The presbyteries with continued ministry with Native Americans are: Alaska, Inland Northwest, North Puget Sound, Olympia, Yukon, Long Island, Western New York, Boise, Cascades, Eastern Oregon, Nevada, De Cristo, Grand Canyon, Santa Fe, Eastern Oklahoma, Indian Nations, and New Covenant. Western Colorado and Pacific support ongoing ministries without the benefit of an organized church. The presbyteries of Dakota, Grand Canyon, and Eastern Oklahoma have the largest number of churches/chapels. Otherwise, the presbyteries have one to nine churches.

A review and extraction of churches reporting on the “Session Annual Statistical Report” of 2004 provided the following information.

The overall statistical report of Research Services for 1,133 PC(USA) “Congregations with One Native American or More—2004” reflected a total of 6,823. There are ninety-seven PC(USA) “Congregations with 50 percent or more Native Americans-2004” with a membership of 3,723.

Of the sixty-two (62) churches that reported their year of organization, 1905 was the average year of organization. The year of 1640 marks the year of the oldest church (Shinnecock Presbyterian Church—Long Island); 2002 is the year of the newest church (Goodyear Presbyterian Church—Goodyear Village, Pima/Gila River Reservation, south of Phoenix, Ariz.)

There were ninety-seven churches with 4,201 total members, 4,039 which were Native American. Native American churches are small. (Average size was 43 members; the median size was 29.) The largest church had 321 members and the smallest had 4 members. Fifty-eight percent of the membership is female.

Forty-four churches reported their average worship attendance figures. There were 1,088 in attendance, which is only 25.9 percent of membership. (Average attendance is 25; median attendance is 21.)

Of these 97 reporting churches, 32 reported “gain” information. There is a total of 183 gains. (Average total gain was 5.7). There were 21 “Profession of Faith” gains under age 18 and there were 69 “Profession of Faith” gains over age 18. There were a total of 26 “Certificate” gains and 67 “Other” gains.

Twenty-five churches reported child baptisms for a total of 76 (average—3). Ten churches reported adult baptisms for a total of 18 (average 1.8).

Thirty churches reported their losses in membership. Of all losses, 52 deaths, (average 1.7); Other total—105 (average 3.5); and, 9 through certificate losses.

Thirty-eight churches reported church school enrollment for a total of 1,010 (average 26.6).

Forty-eight churches reported on the number of elders. There were 208 (140 female elders and 68 male) in these churches. (Average size of session was 4.3)

Nineteen churches reported on the number of deacons. There were 76 (57 female and 19 male deacons). (Average number of deacons was 4.)

Forty-one churches reported contributions information. These churches received $680,212. (Average per church was $16,590.54 and Per member was $410).

Forty churches reported local program for a total of $983,685. (Average was $24,592.)

Twenty-seven churches reported local mission for a total of $35,762. (Average was $1,325.)

Thirty-four churches reported validated mission for a total of $51,877. (Average was $1,526.)

Nine churches reported other mission for a total of $7,941. (Average was $882.)

Forty-one churches reported their giving units info. There were a total of 912 giving units. (Average was 22.)

Thirty-seven (37) churches reported their operating income and operating expenses. $985,591 was the total operating income, (Average $26,638.) $999,141 was the total operating expenses, (Average $27,004.)

The churches with 50 percent or more of their congregants have historical roots with the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and its predecessors. They continue their ministry with limited resources but honor their Christian heritage. The majority operate without the benefit of ordained clergy and are led by commissioned lay pastors (CLP) or elders. Of the forty identified Native American clergy, one-third actively serve as pastor in a congregation. One-third serve in other capacities within the church and one-third is retired from active service.

Members of these churches, in most instances, are also members of recognized tribes. The U.S. Census collects and disseminates statistics pertinent to American Indians/Alaskan Natives. Within the context of Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) policies and documents, reference to American Indians/Alaskan Natives is Native American. Self-identification is used among people of American Indian descent for Native American. Many American Indians are members of a principal tribe or group empowered to negotiate and make decision on behalf of the individual members.

In 1997, the Federal Office of Management and Budget (OMB) revised the standards for how the Federal government would collect and present data on race and ethnicity. The new guidelines reflect “the increasing diversity of our Nation's population, stemming from growth in interracial marriages and immigration.” These new guidelines revised some of the racial categories used in 1990 and preceding censuses and allowed respondents to report as many race categories as were necessary to identify themselves on the Census 2000 questionnaire. There are the five detailed Alaska Native race and ethnic categories used in the data for Census 2000: Alaska Athabaskan, Aleut, Eskimo, Tlingit-Haida, and all other tribes. As one visits the statistics offered by the U.S. Census Bureau, numbers will not be consistent with past reports due to changes in these most recent guidelines. This information obtained from Census Data—factfinderHelp Glossary section.

There are 562 tribal entities recognized and eligible for funding and services from the Bureau of Indian Affairs by virtue of their status as Indian tribes. This notice (2002) was published pursuant to Section 104 of the Act of November 2, 1994 (Pub. L. 103-454; 108 Stat. 4791, 4792).

As of July 1, 2004, the estimated population of American Indians and Alaska natives, including those of more than one race was 4.4 million, 1.5 percent of the total population.

The U.S. Census Briefs shows the number of people who reported AIAN alone was 2.5 million and the number who reported AIAN in combination with one or more other races was 1.6 million, accounting for the 4.1 million total.

Of all respondents who reported American Indian and Alaska Native, 43 percent resided in the West; 31 percent lived in the South; 17 percent lived in the Midwest; and 9 percent lived in the Northeast.

The west also was the region that had the highest proportion of American Indians and Alaska Natives as part of its total population: 2.8 percent.

California and Oklahoma were home to about 1-in-4 of the 4.1 million American Indians and Alaska Native (AIANs) reported in Census 2000, while New York City (87,000) and Los Angeles (53,000) had the largest populations of this race group among all cities, a new report by the Commerce Department's Census Bureau shows. Urban areas constitute the larger population of AIANs.

About 628,000 people who identified themselves as AIANs lived in California, while 392,000 resided in Oklahoma. Those two states, plus nine others with an American Indian and Alaska Native population greater than 100,000 Arizona (293,000), Texas (216,000), New Mexico (191,000), New York (172,000), Washington (159,000), North Carolina (132,000), Michigan (124,000), Alaska (119,000), and Florida (118,000) accounted for 62 percent of the total AIAN population, but only 44 percent of the total population.

Six of the 10 largest tribal groupings had 100,000 or more people: Cherokee, 730,000; Navajo, 298,000; Latin American Indian, 181,000; Choctaw, 159,000, Sioux, 153,000; and Chippewa, 150,000. Of all American Indian tribal groupings in any combination, these six tribal groupings represented 42 percent of all responses.

The number of American Indian and Alaska native families. Of these:

- 335,320 or 61 percent are married-couple families;
- 302,249 or 55 percent are families with their own children under 18; and
- 164,728 or 30 percent are married couples with their own children, under the age of 18 (Source: US Census - American FactFinder)

The number of people 5 years and older who speak a native North American language at home numbered 381,000. The most common language is Navajo, spoken by 178,014.

On information related to Poverty and Income, a report in 2002 from United States Department of Commerce News reported a three-year average (1997–1999) poverty rate for American Indian and Alaska Natives was 25.9 percent, with an estimated 700,000 living in poverty. This is the first time that the Census Bureau has shown poverty data for the American Indian and Alaska Native populations. This average was used because the American Indian and Alaska Native population is relatively small and multiyear averages provide more reliable estimates.

As with the poverty data, the 1999 report also marked the first time the Census Bureau showed income data for American Indians and Alaska Native. The three-year average (1997–1999) median household income for American Indian and Alaska Native was $30,784. The average was used because the American Indian and Alaska Native population is relatively small and multiyear averages provide more reliable estimates.

The 1999 median income level for the nation's households rose, in real terms, by 2.7 percent. This increased from $39,744 in 1998 to $40,816.

The Comprehensive Strategy for Ministries with Native American Report of 2000 called upon and challenged the church to engage in "New Patterns of Connection" (Minutes, 2000, Part I, pp 26, 206–227). Referencing and applying recommendations of the report, this statistical overview offers basic information or a "State of the Native American Church in PC(USA) from which to move forward.

H. Office of the General Assembly Final Responses to Referrals

1. 2004 Referral: Item 03-25. Commissioners' Resolution. On Providing Disability Awareness Training for Commissioners to the 217th General Assembly (2006) (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 47, 215).

Response: Disability awareness training will be provided to commissioners and advisory delegates as part of their committee orientation.

2. 2004 Referral: Item 03-26 Recommendation 1. Commissioners' Resolution, Recommendation 1. Direct OGA to Include and Emphasize Fidelity to Scripture in the Commissioning Service at Future Assemblies (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 48, 216).

Response: The ordination questions on the Scriptures (2) and on the Confessions (3) will be included in the commissioning service for commissioners and advisory delegates.

I. Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation

2004 Referral: Alternate Resolution to Item 14-10. On Creating a Fund to Provide Shared Equity Loans for Pastors Serving Churches Where the Average Cost of a Home Is Twice the U.S. Average From the Presbytery of San Francisco, Recommendation that the Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program Organize a Work Group to Establish Shared Equity Loans for Areas with High Home Ownership Costs and Report to the General Assembly Council within One Year with Recommendations—From the 216th General Assembly (2004) (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 24).

Response: The Foundation participated in a work group convened by the Presbyterian Investment & Loan Program, Inc. (PILP), including representatives from presbyteries identified as having locations where housing costs are at least twice the national average as well as from the Foundation and the Board of Pensions (BOP). The work group met three times before making a final report to the General Assembly Council (GAC) in September 2005.

The work group concluded that there is not a likely investor to provide the capital to begin a national shared equity program. Most real estate investments that are not a primary residence for the investor require an ongoing return on investment, a tax advantage, and/or a potential capital gain. The work group did not believe that an investor or pool of investors willing to invest for the capital gain alone could be found. It was the consensus of the work group that there was no centralized source of funds that could be directed to geographic areas of the country where housing costs have outstripped the means of local churches to provide pastoral housing. Both the Foundation and the BOP are fiduciaries, managing the funds of others. The Foundation raises capital for the church by encouraging gifts to the church. The Foundation does not create or fund programs. The BOP invests funds to be used for current and future pensions of Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) workers.

The work group came to a consensus that the most likely sources of funds for sharing in equity purchases of clergy housing are congregations, presbyteries and in some cases, synods. Most in the work group do not believe that Presbyterians in lower cost regions of the country would be willing to invest in clergy housing in more costly regions of the country. The work group believes it would be beneficial to continue conversations on how the national entities may be of assistance.

The Foundation, BOP, and PILP can and should be an information resource regarding fundraising as well as structuring ideas for local and regional investment programs. Programs that have proven effective to date include shared appreciation mortgage loans, lease with option to purchase programs, nonqualified compensation programs based upon equity values, and manse programs. Each of these programs, or a combination of two or more of the programs, could make sense depending upon the charitable and investment motivations of the parties providing the funds.

The work group recommended the creation of an internet bulletin board for information regarding housing programs, models for shared equity agreements, and informational literature to be made available to presbyteries and synods located in parts of the country where housing costs are particularly expensive. This bulletin board would be attached to the PILP website and linked to the Leadership and Vocation, Committee on Ministry website. Information should be updated at least annually.

The work group recommended that a component be added in training for committees on ministry that would assist them in working with congregations during the interim between pastors to address the question, "How are you going to make it financially possible for a pastor to live in your community?" Mission studies by congregations before beginning a search for a new pastor should include an affordability analysis. This would include a cost analysis of a typical three-bedroom, two-bathroom house in the community of the church. If the salary and housing package the church is offering does not afford the new pastor the ability to purchase in the community, alternative plans should be pursued. This might include the congregation using a capital campaign to raise the funds necessary to complete a shared equity arrangement with a new pastor.

J. Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program, Inc. Final Responses to Referrals

1. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3.d. That PC(USA) Corporate Agencies Adopt for Utilization and Implementation, the Tools of Cultural Proficiency, Proceeding in Light of and According to the Confessional and Biblical Witness of the PC(USA)-- From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 51, 541).

Response: The entire staff has participated the cultural proficiency initiative. The language, tools, and values of cultural proficiency have become part of our work together.

2. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change Within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3.e. That all Agencies Inform Its Vendors and Business that the PC(USA) Agencies Subscribe to the Principles and Practices of Cultural Proficiency and Urge Its Vendors and Business to Do Likewise—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 51, 542).

Response: The majority of our services are purchased through the General Assembly Council and through third-party vendors selected by the General Assembly Council.

3. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3.g., That the General Assembly Encourage an Annual Consultation Between the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns and the Chief Executive Officers of the General Assembly Agencies to Celebrate Successes Related to Equal Employment Opportunity and Affirmative Action Initiatives, and Cultural Proficiency—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 51, 542–43).

Response: The president/CEO participated in the annual consultation with a small group from ACREC on April 6, 2005. It was suggested that this consultation might be more fruitful if a representative of the board of directors participated as well.

4. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3.h. That All PC(USA) Agencies Share their EEO/AA and Cultural Proficiency Progress Annually with the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC) by Providing Items (1)-(5)--From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 51, 543).

Response: The PILP has submitted our annual report of employment data by Occupational Category and Employment Data By Salary Range to the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC).

5. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3.i. That All PC(USA) Agencies to Utilize or Institute a Position Comparable to the Associate for Recruitment and Selection Currently Housed Within the General Assembly Council)--From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 51, 543).

Response: The PILP uses the Human Resources Department of the GAC for our human resource needs. They have assisted us in soliciting applications from a diverse group of applicants. With only fourteen employees, we do not anticipate creating a position within our own staff to assist with recruitment and hiring.

6. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3.k. That All PC(USA) Corporate Agencies Be Encouraged to Implement a Program of Incentives for Managers Who Are in Positions to Make Hiring Decisions as a Means to Reward Adherence to and Success in Implementing Cultural Proficiency Initiatives—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 51, 544).

Response: In the one search for a new employee within PILP, we met as a search team to emphasize the importance of giving consideration to a diverse group of applicants, and to stress how important it is to PILP that we become a more diverse team.

7. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3.l. That All CEO's, Presidents, Directors, and Boards of Directors of General Assembly Agencies Be Encouraged to Demonstrate a Renewed Commitment to Racial and Gender Diversification in Upper Management Positions and to Report Successes, on a Per Agency Basis, to the 217th General Assembly (2008)—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 51, 545).

Response: The PILP has had no turnover in upper management positions since 2003. The board of directors is certainly committed to racial and gender diversification in upper management positions.

8. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3.m. That General Assembly Agencies Be Instructed to Establish a Process to Train and Mentor Emerging Majorities and Women at Appropriate Intervals During the Calendar Year, and During Regular Scheduled Work Time to Educate, Train, and Prepare Employees from the Existing Staff Pool for Possible Promotion and Consideration for Upper Management Positions—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 51, 545).

Response: The PILP encourages and pays for middle managers to participate in professional networks and training events where professional development occurs. The annual review process includes exploration of new and enhanced skills that would prepare individuals for promotion to positions with greater responsibility.

9. 2004 Referral: Item 07-08. Report, Creating a Climate for Change in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Recommendation 3.p. That General Assembly Agencies Be Directed to Share the Final Report of the Advocacy Committee on Racial Ethnic Concerns' Task Force to Examine General Assembly Entities with Their Employees—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns Task Force to Examine GA Entities (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 51, 545).

Response: Every member of the PILP staff has received a copy of the final report.

10. 2004 Referral: Item 10-06. Report, Transforming Families, Recommendation 3.i. That the General Assembly Entities, Synods, Presbyteries, Congregations, and Individual Presbyterians "Bring the Church's Influence to Bear so That the Media Will Act to Strengthen Moral Values"—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 57, 759).

Response: As an agency of the church, PILP has very little opportunity to influence media. Our core business is in helping churches finance capital projects with low cost loans. Many of these loans are used to build educational facilities. These facilities are used to develop and strengthen moral values.

11. 2004 Referral: Alternate Resolution to Item 13-07. On Expressing Our Solidarity with the Presbyterian Church in Taiwan and with the Taiwanese People—From the Presbytery of the Pacific, Recommendation 3. Calls Presbyterians and General Assembly Entities to Advocate for Access That Permits Direct Interaction and Provision of Services in the World Health Organization for Taiwan and Other Peoples and Places in Times of Health Crisis—From the 216th General Assembly (2004) (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 90).

Response: The PILP has no access to the World Health Organization to advocate for this access.

12. 2004 Referral: Alternate Resolution to Item 14-10. On Creating a Fund to Provide Shared Equity Loans for Pastors Serving Churches Where the Average Cost of a Home Is Twice the U.S. Average—From the Presbytery of San Francisco, Recommendation that the Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program Organize a Work Group to Establish Shared Equity Loans for Areas with High Home Ownership Costs and Report to the General Assembly Council within One Year with Recommendations—From the 216th General Assembly (2004) (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 24).

Response: The following presbyteries were identified as having locations that would qualify under the guideline of housing costs at least twice the national average: Los Ranchos, Southern New England, Pacific, Long Island, San Diego, San Francisco, New York, Redwoods, San Jose, Palisades, and Elizabeth. Each of these presbyteries was invited to send a representative, at their own expense, to participate in the work group. The PC(USA) Foundation, the Board of Pensions, the Investment and Loan Program of the PC(USA), and the Synod of the Pacific each sent representatives. The following individuals participated in the work group: Jay Hudson, PILP; Cary Tolley, PILP and the Foundation; Bill Forbes, BOP; Judith Fryer, BOP; Ani Lelea, Synod of the Pacific; Kathy Runyeon, Presbytery of San Francisco; Jim DiEgidio, Presbytery of San Francisco; Scott Schaefer, Presbytery of San Francisco; Brian Tippen, Presbytery of the Redwoods; Joan Runyeon, Presbytery of the Redwoods; Ed Lee, Presbytery of San Jose; Cornell Edmunds, Presbytery of New York City; and Bob Bowles, Presbytery of San Jose. The work group met three times: San Francisco Theological Seminary, September 28–29, 2004; Columbia Theological Seminary, February 7–8, 2005; and Louisville Theological Seminary, June 20–21, 2005.

The Work Group made a final report to the GAC in September 2005. The work group concluded that there is not a likely investor to provide the capital to begin a national shared equity program. Most real estate investments that are not a primary residence for the investor require an ongoing return on investment, a tax advantage, and/or a potential capital gain. We do not believe that we can find an investor or pool of investors who will invest for the capital gain alone. It is the consensus of the work group that there is no centralized source of funds that can be directed to geographic areas of the country where housing costs have outstripped the means of local churches to provide pastoral housing. K. Worldwide Ministries Division Final Responses to Referrals a. 2004 Referral: Recommendations in Response to Item 06-02. Recommendation 1. That the General Assembly Council's Office of Interfaith Relations Communicate the Strong Policy Statement Opposed to Religious Bigotry and Stereotyping (General Assembly Minutes, 1999, Part I, pp. 79, 663) with Other Appropriate Offices of the General Assembly Council; Recommendation 2. Prepare a Guide for Congregations That Makes Known and Available the Resources Already Available in Regard to Religious Pluralism and Christian Discipleship; and Recommendation 3. With the Office of the General Assembly, Bring a Recommendation on What Further Study or Action Might Be Needed to Better Equip the Church to Live in a Religiously Plural World—From the 216th General Assembly (2004) (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 19–20).

1. Ecumenical Partnerships Work Area

Response: See Item 07-07 for response to this item.

b. 2004 Referral: Item 06-05. That the General Assembly Council Continue Its Support for Ecumenical Formation—From the General Assembly Committee on Ecumenical Relations (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 20, 423).

Response: Ecumenical formation programs are an ongoing part of the ministry of the Ecumenical Partnership work area. It is only one of the functions of the Ecumenical and Mission Partnership (E&MP) team. That office promotes and facilitates PC(USA) member participation in the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity, the National Workshop on Christian Unity, the Geneva Seminar for Clergy and Laity, and courses offered by the Ecumenical Institute at Bossey (Switzerland) every year.

In addition to these annual ecumenical formation opportunities, E&MP promotes and facilitates PC(USA) member participation at major international ecumenical assemblies, such as the World Alliance of Reformed Churches and the World Council of Churches assemblies, typically held every seven years.

c. 2004 Referral: Item 12-05. Iraq: Our Responsibility and the Future, Recommendation 14. That the General Assembly Council Immediately Develop and Promote a Coordinated Effort to Highlight the Extra Commitment Opportunity Titled, “Iraq—the Peace Fund for Solidarity with the Churches” (EO51722)—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 71–73, 866).

Response: The Extra Commitment Opportunity account (ECO 051722) was established in 2003 following the war in Iraq, for the purpose of expressing concern, compassion, and solidarity with the churches of Iraq, including the five Iraqi Presbyterian congregations, to encourage them in continuing to be steadfast in the face of adversity, and to support their ministry and witness in time of severe human need.

The “Peace Fund for Solidarity with the Churches” has been systematically and widely promoted, in a collaboration between the Worldwide Ministries Division and the Presbyterian Peacemaking Program, through:

- the pages of the PC(USA) Website
- the printed pages of the Extra Commitment Opportunity book, which is sent to all congregations
- other publications (such as WMD Highlights and other Presbyterian literature addressing Iraq)
- through e-mail correspondence, and
- speaking engagements at presbyteries, congregations, and other church gatherings.

By the time of writing this response, the Peace Fund had received more than $100,000, which has been forwarded to our partners in Iraq, in response to their express needs. Reports, accompanied by expressions of gratitude, have been received from the Iraqi churches on how the funds have been helpful to them.

d. 2004 Referral: Item 12-05. Iraq: Our Responsibility and the Future, Recommendation 15. That the GAC Research and Dialogue with Our Partner Churches in Iraq in Order to Present at the 217th General Assembly (2006) a Plan for the Use of Personnel (Mission Co-Workers, Mission Volunteers, Etc) and Other Resources That Responds to the Needs and Concerns of Our Brothers and Sisters in Iraq)—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 71–73, 866).

Response: On behalf of the Worldwide Ministries Division and the Middle East Council of Churches, the Reverend Dr. Nuhad Tomeh, PC(USA) mission co-worker and regional liaison for Syria, Lebanon, Iraq, and the Gulf, has visited our partner churches in Iraq several times since the meeting of the 216th General Assembly (2004), for the purpose of expressing support and solidarity, inquiring about their well-being, and communicating and interpreting their situation. Further, the area coordinator for the Middle East and Europe has since the last assembly met with representatives of the various churches of Iraq on several occasions to maintain supportive contact with them, and to assure the mutuality of our concern.

Assessment of need for mission personnel in Iraq has potentially pointed to a variety of possible opportunities for service. However, it has been clear through our periodic conversations with partners that the time is as yet inopportune, for security reasons.

Humanitarian resources, on the other hand, have continued to flow in order to help the churches of Iraq to cope, and to assist them in their own response to critical human need. Such aid has been extended by Presbyterian Disaster Assistance (PDA) and channeled through Action of the Churches Together (ACT), the relief arm of the World Council of Churches, and the Middle East Council of Churches who has maintained an office in Baghdad. In addition, PDA has provided training courses to relief workers and trauma counselors who have been working with Iraqi refugees in neighboring countries.

e. 2004 Referral: Alternate Resolution to Item 12-09. Commissioners’ Resolution. On Establishing a Palestine Working Group. That the 216th General Assembly (2004) Direct the Formation of a Worldwide Ministries Division-Related Palestine Mission Network for the Purpose of Creating Currents of Wider and Deeper Presbyterian Involvement with Palestinian Partners, Aimed at Demonstrating Solidarity and Changing the Conditions That Erode the Humanity of Palestinians Living in Jerusalem, the West Bank and Gaza; and That a Feasibility Study Be Conducted by the Worldwide Ministries Division and Recommendations for Concrete, Measurable Action Plans Be Presented to the General Assembly Council at Its Fall Meeting in 2005—From the 216th General Assembly (2004) (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 75).

Response: A Worldwide Ministries Division-related mission network was formally established in April 2005, focusing on three major dimensions of PC(USA) mission in Israel and Palestine: Partnership, Advocacy, and Education. The network is growing in number and in strength. It is actively addressing issues and opportunities for deepening Presbyterian solidarity and involvement in Israel and Palestine.

As to the feasibility study, a Presbyterian volunteer expert consultant, with impressive credentials in economic and human development, was engaged to lead such a study. Accompanied by a former mission co-worker, he made a preliminary field visit to Israel and Palestine in November 2005, interviewing partners, local organizations, and a broadly diverse sample of similarly engaged groups and agencies. Upon his return and a series of interviews in Washington that included World Bank officials, his report was presented to the relevant offices of the General Assembly Council for the formulation and refinement of initial recommendations to the General Assembly Council in February 2006.

[Note: The General Assembly resolution had called for a report to be made to the GAC in September 2005. Permission was sought from the latter to defer reporting until February 2006, due to the complexity of the process required, and the deliberate construction of the elements of the required study, as well as the political circumstances on the ground—e.g., the Gaza withdrawal, etc.]

f. 2004 Referral: Alternate Resolution to Item 13-07. On Expressing Our Solidarity with the Presbyterian Church in Taiwan and with the Taiwanese People—From the Presbytery of the Pacific, Recommendation 3. Calls Presbyterians and General Assembly Entities to Advocate for Access That Permits Direct Interaction and Provision of Services in the World Health Organization for Taiwan and Other Peoples and Places in Times of Health Crisis—From the 216th General Assembly (2004) (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 90).

Response: In response to the 216th General Assembly (2004) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) referral Item 13-07, “On Expressing Our Solidarity with the Presbyterian Church in Taiwan and with the Taiwanese People,” a delegation led by the Worldwide Ministries Division visited Taiwan, attending the 140th anniversary of the Presbyterian Church in Taiwan and the mission consultation in Tao Yuan, and renewed a covenant agreement between our two churches.

An article, “Taiwan and China—two or one?” was written following the delegation’s visit to Taiwan.

The Worldwide Ministries Division hosted a delegation of newly elected leaders of the Presbyterian Church in Taiwan in Louisville, including the Reverend Hsin Liang Chen, moderator, the Reverend Andrew Te-Chen Chang, general secretary, the Reverend Hong Tiong Lyim, associate general secretary, and the Reverend Stephen Hsinte Hsu, secretary for Ecumenical Relations. In January, Moderator Rick Ufford-Chase and his company visited Taiwan and met with leaders of the Presbyterian Church in Taiwan to express our solidarity in ministry with them. A part of the covenant states that “We affirm the unity of the Church under the Lordship of Jesus Christ and will strive together so that God’s love, justice, peace and integrity of creation may be demonstrated in the world ... and agree to exchange information to enable us to understand each other’s situation and to fulfill our commitment of mutual mission and solidarity.”

Clifton Kirkpatrick, Stated Clerk of the General Assembly, communicated the Taiwan action of the General Assembly to the United States of America Center for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta, commending their mission and continuing commitment to engage in the international public health and, particularly, for their involvement with Taiwan during the Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS) outbreak. He also communicated to Dr. Steve Kuo, director of Taiwan Center for Disease Control (CDC) in Taipei, Taiwan, commending “the Center for Disease Control for its prompt and thorough action in addressing the outbreak and management of Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS), trusting that this involvement will persist in the event of any future breakouts.” Fortunately the Taiwan Center for Disease Control works closely with the U.S. Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

Gwen Crawly, interim director for the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy, contacted the CDC in Atlanta and confirmed that a part of mission of the Center for Disease Control (USA) is to provide a full range of services to countries in need of their expert assistance. This was the case during the SARS epidemic, and would be the case in the future. She also communicated with the World Health Organization but did not get a forth-coming response.

g. 2004 Referral: Alternate Resolution to Item 13-07. On Expressing our Solidarity with the Presbyterian Church in Taiwan and with the Taiwanese People—From the Presbytery of the Pacific, Recommendation 5. Invite All Presbyterian Church Related Media Outlets and Publications to Devote One Publication on the Human Rights and Democracy Developments in Taiwan—From the 216th General Assembly (2004) (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 90).

Response: The director’s office of the Worldwide Ministries Division (WMD) invited Presbyterian News Service, Presbyterians Today, and Church & Society to publish on this topic. The WMD communications associate, Pat Cole, traveled to Taiwan to develop an article, He submitted that article for publication, posted it to the denomination’s Web site, and emailed it to the new communications network that includes representatives of middle governing body publications

h. 2004 Referral: Item 13-08. Commissioners’ Resolution. On the Murders of Women in Ciudad, Juarez, Mexico, Recommendation 2. Request Representatives of Pasos de Fe Border Ministry Express the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)’s Deepest Sympathy to the Families and Friends of the More Than 350 Young Women Murdered and the More Than 4,500 Young Women Who Have Disappeared (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 91, 965–67).

Response: The Worldwide Ministries Division worked with the National Presbyterian Church of Mexico and Pasos de Fe to participate in an event that took place April 3, 2005, and included a march that crossed the border from El Paso, Texas, to Ciudad Juarez, Chihuahua, Mexico, and a worship service in Chamizal Park. Representatives of Pasos de Fe Border Ministry, including members of Tres Rios, Sierra Blanca, and Palo Duro presbyteries, as well as members of the Mexican border presbyteries, expressed the sympathy and solidarity of the PC(USA) to the families and friends of the victims.

i. 2004 Referral: Item 13-08. Commissioners' Resolution. On the Murders of Women in Ciudad, Juarez, Mexico, Recommendation 3. Instruct the General Assembly Council to Communicate Our Concern to Appropriate Ecclesiastical Partners and Civil Institutions to Help Focus Attention on the Violence and Marshal Regional and National Support for Competent, Timely, and Complete Investigation (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 91, 965–67).

Response: The Area Office for Latin America and the Caribbean of the Worldwide Ministries Division communicated PC(USA)'s concern to the National Presbyterian Church of Mexico (INPM) and worked with it to participate in an event that included a march to cross the border from El Paso, Texas, to Ciudad Juarez, Chihuahua, Mexico, that ended with a worship service in Chamizal Park, April 3, 2005. In this event, the Reverend Jean Marie Peacock, PC(USA)'s Vice-Moderator, expressed concern that these crimes have gone unsolved. Officers of both the PC(USA) and the INPM urged the Mexican government to quickly arrest those responsible for these crimes, and made a plea to civil institutions to stop the murders, to help focus attention on the violence, and calling for a complete investigation.

j. 2004 Referral: Item 13-08. Commissioners' Resolution. On the Murders of Women in Ciudad, Juarez, Mexico, Recommendation 4. Direct the General Assembly Council to Participate in a Service to Be Planned by Pasos de Fe, the Presbyteries of Sierra Blanca and Tres Rios, to Join in Public Witness and Worship that Cries Out for Justice (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 91, 965–67).

Response: The Area Office for Latin America and the Caribbean of the Worldwide Ministries Division worked with the National Presbyterian Church of Mexico (INPM) and Pasos de Fe to participate in an event that included a march to cross the border from El Paso, Texas, to Ciudad Juarez, Chihuahua, Mexico, that ended with a worship service in Chamizal Park. This event took place April 3, 2005. The Reverend Teodoro Villanueva, member of the board of directors of the INPM, and the Reverend Jean Marie Peacock, Vice-Moderator of the PC(USA), preached. Other participants included staff and members of Tres Rios, Sierra Blanca, and Palo Duro presbyteries, as well as staff and members of the Mexican border presbyteries, and the Reverend George P. Bithos from the Texas Conference of Churches.

k. 2004 Referral: Item 13-11. Commissioners' Resolution. Regarding Adult Basic Education (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 92–93, 972–74).

Response: The Office of Global Education and International Leadership Development (GEILD) is committed to supporting international church partners in their ministries and vision of education. Such support takes many general forms:

- mission personnel
- scholarships for education at all levels
- grants for educational institutions and partner projects of all levels, and
- facilitation of cooperation among partners and other ecumenical entities in the furtherance of education.

Specific efforts in basic adult education include literacy training that takes place in conjunction with HIV/AIDS training, other health-care training, and through cooperation with community development groups and projects. Other forms of basic adult education related to PC(USA) involve the teaching of simple bookkeeping skills in grassroots organizations. Such skills allow the organizations to manage their finances independently and to demonstrate compliance with any grant requirements that may exist. Adults with very basic levels of literacy are also offered opportunities to engage in Bible study with others of a similar reading level with the help of facilitators and specially formed materials.

The GEILD remains in contact with international partners, consulting on the evolving educational needs of both youth and adults.

2. Global Service and Witness Work Area

a. 2004 Referral: Item 06-07. Report on the Review of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., Recommendation 4. Request that Church World Service and the National Council of Churches Work Together in Partnership with Churches and Councils of the Churches in Various Regions of the World; and Request PC(USA) Representatives in NCCC and CWS Work to Ensure the Development of Structures That Allow Such Cooperative Relations—From the General Assembly Committee on Ecumenical Relations (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 21, 429–39).

Response: The desire of the assembly was both that there be partnership with churches and councils of churches in the work done by Church World Service (CWS) and National Council of Churches of Christ (NCCC), and that these two entities work together cooperatively in such partnerships. During a consultation between General Assembly Council (GAC) staff and CWS staff on May 2 and 3 of 2005, PC(USA) representatives reemphasized the importance of these themes. Similar requests have been made in the context of board meetings of both entities.

b. 2004 Referral: Item 06-07. Report on the Review of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A., Recommendation 5. Request the General Assembly Council to Support the Programs and Activities of the National Council of Churches and Church World Service Through Cognate Funding and Programmatic Participation—From the General Assembly Committee on Ecumenical Relations (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 21, 429–39).

Response: Cognate funding refers to the practice of individual programmatic office providing funding for specific projects and functions of ecumenical agencies. General Assembly Council programs in all three Ministries Divisions have continued to provide this funding, consistent with commitments to work ecumenically wherever possible. Examples of current cognate funding include support for Church World Service (CWS) Education and Advocacy program, the Let Justice Roll program of the National Council of Churches of Christ (NCCC), the NCCC's public education and Justice for Women/Tirzah program, CWS's refugee and asylum program. The PC(USA) continues to be a major programmatic participant in the work of Church World Service. In addition to basic support for its international programs, Presbyterian Disaster Assistance and Presbyterian Hunger Program provide significant funding for specific CWS projects responding to hunger, poverty, and disasters.

In an effort to better coordinate PC(USA) and CWS relief and development efforts, Worldwide Ministries hosted a staff consultation with Church World Service counterparts in May of 2005. The consultation identified opportunities for closer cooperation.

c. 2004 Referral: Alternate Resolution to Item 13-03. On Authorizing the Inclusion of a Fund to Combat HIV/AIDS and Diseases of Poverty in Africa in the One Great Hour of Sharing Offering—From the Presbytery of New Castle; Recommendation Directing the General Assembly Council, Worldwide Ministries Division of the PC(USA) to Make a Concerted, Coordinated Effort to Lift Up and Publicize the Existing Extra Commitment Opportunities Pertaining to HIV/AIDS Issues—From the 216th General Assembly (2004) (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 90–91).

Response: The General Assembly Council made response to this referral one of its Mission Work Plan projects for 2005–2006. A staff team developed a promotion entitled “It’s a Matter of Faith” to encourage giving to the ECOs related to supporting the HIV/AIDS work of partner churches. The promotion has included the development of an eight-page insert to Presbyterians Today magazine, full-page ads in Presbyterian publications, and an information/interpretation packet including bulletin inserts and liturgical materials. Because Hurricane Katrina eclipsed the initial promotion surrounding the Presbyterians Today insert, the team will develop plans for a second promotional thrust in 2006.

3. People in Mutual Mission Work Area

2004 Referral: Item 13-12. Commissioners’ Resolution. On Commissioning 2005 Mission Co-Workers During the 100th New Wilmington Missionary Conference (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 93, 974).

Response: A joint committee of National Ministries, Worldwide Ministries, and the New Wilmington Missionary Conference was formed to plan the 2005 commissioning service to take place at the 100th New Wilmington Missionary Conference, July 23–30, 2005.

As part of this planning, a duly constituted Commission of the General Assembly Council was formed, comprised of Elder Rick Ufford-Chase, the Reverend Judy Angleberger, Elder Fran Calderwood, the Reverend Dan Schomer, the Reverend Marian McClure, and Elder Curtis Kearns, which subsequently presided over the commissioning of a representative group of PC(USA) appointed National and International mission workers, volunteers, and global partners in mission to the U.S.A. during the opening service of worship at the 100th New Wilmington Missionary Conference on Sunday, July 24, 2005, at 7:00 p.m. at Westminster College in New Wilmington, Pennsylvania.

[The assembly disapproved referral of this item. See p. 4.]

On the Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church—From the Presbytery of the James.

The Presbytery of the James humbly overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to take up the report and recommendations of the Theological Task Force on the Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church ad seriatim.

Rationale

We are grateful for all that is good and faithful in “A Season of Discernment: The Final Report of the Theological Task Force on the Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church to the 217th General Assembly (2006).”

The said report and recommendations urge us all to strive for the peace, unity, and purity of the church.

Recommendation 5., in particular, would enact far reaching change, perhaps even equivalent to constitutional amendment, by means of authoritative interpretation on the part of the General Assembly (G-13.0103r).

The process of authoritative interpretation would not allow any debate or input on the part of the several presbyteries of the church.

Such absence of any debate or input on the part of the presbyteries would necessarily forfeit the consideration and wisdom of those presbyteries.

Such process on the part of the General Assembly would run the risk of damaging the very peace, unity, and purity of the church it intends to promote.

The peace, unity, and purity of the church would be served best by the fullest possible debate, discussion, and consideration on the part of those making the decision.

The Book of Order gives to each presbytery the responsibility “to maintain regular and continuing relationship to the higher governing bodies of the church, including...proposing to the synod or General Assembly such measures as may be of common concern to the mission of the whole church (G-11.0103t).

[The assembly approved Item 02-01. See p. 4.]

The Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures recommends that the overture received from the Presbytery of San Diego be referred to the Assembly Committee on Ecclesiology (06) as Item 06-20, and that the overture received from the Presbytery of Sacramento also be referred to the Assembly Committee on Ecclesiology (06) as Item 06-21.

[The assembly approved Item 02-02. See p. 4.]

The Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures recommends that Standing Rule A.2.a. be suspended in order to receive late business from the most recent meeting of the General Assembly; and that this business be referred as follows:

Item 00-02 Committee Structure.

Item 00-03 Nominations for GANC from the Moderator.

Item 08-16 On Granting Latitude to the GANC with Regard to the Composition of GAC.

Item 14-01 Authoritative Interpretation of G-13.0112d.

Item 15-05 A final response to a referral.

Item 02-03

[The Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures reported that the minutes of the 217th General Assembly (2006) had been approved. See pp. 7, 36, 53.]

Item 02-04

[The Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures received Item 02-04. See p. 7.]

[The assembly answered Item 03-01 by the action taken on Item 03-17. See p. 47.]

On Directing the Presbyterian Historical Society to Retain Its Office in Montreat, North Carolina, and to Find Ways and Means to Fund Same—From the Presbytery of Middle Tennessee.

The Presbytery of Middle Tennessee overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct that the Presbyterian Historical Society retain its office in Montreat, North Carolina, at the Historical Foundation, and to find ways and means to fund same.

The Historical Foundation at Montreat contains a remarkable and exceptionally rich collection of materials on the history of the Presbyterian church and its worldwide Reformed tradition and relationships, housing resources that enable Presbyterians to understand the roots of our Presbyterian history.

The Historical Foundation is the primary place for holding the official records and artifacts of Presbyterianism in the South, including those of governing bodies such as congregations, presbyteries, synods, general assemblies, and their missionary enterprise, but also priceless personal and family records, such as letters, manuscripts, paintings, photographs, tapes, and memorabilia that reflect the life and mission of the church both here and abroad.

The Historical Foundation is the place where Presbyterian Women historians have for years placed annual histories of the life and work of their congregations, in confidence that this unique collection of primary source materials would always be conveniently accessible to their wide regional constituency.

The present facilities of the Historical Foundation are well-designed and eminently suited for their specific purpose, and are visited each year by several thousand persons, including many researchers, scholars, and congregational historians.

The Historical Foundation is located on the campus of the Montreat Conference Center, which is the largest conference facility of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and a major gathering place for Presbyterians from across the nation.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly has announced that, because of the ongoing decrease in the per capita income to the Office of the General Assembly, the Historical Foundation should be closed and its holdings distributed between the Presbyterian Historical Society in Philadelphia and Columbia Theological Seminary, with the present Historical Foundation building becoming a museum under the management of the Mountain Retreat Association.

Such an arrangement would destroy a precious heritage that has great potential for the life and ministry of the total church, as well as of partner churches around the world.

There has been an outpouring of concern protesting the contemplated closing of the Historical Foundation from the spiritual heirs of the Presbyterian missionary enterprise, such as the Presbyterian Church in Korea, the Independent Presbyterian Church of Brazil, and the Presbyterian Church of Congo.

The Friends of the Historical Foundation at Montreat, Inc., a 501(c)(3) nonprofit corporation, is prepared to undertake the support of the Historical Foundation as a self-standing independent institution, relieving the General Assembly of responsibility for its restoration and continuing support.

The Historical Foundation at Montreat has legally existed as a North Carolina nonprofit corporation under the name “The Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Incorporated”, beginning in 1927 and still existing until the present day, with the legal ownership of most or all of its assets still being lodged in the still existing North Carolina corporation.

Concurrence to Item 03-01 from the Presbytery of the James.

Comment on Item 03-01—From the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

Item 03-01 directs the Presbyterian Historical Society (PHS) to retain its facilities at Montreat and find ways to fund that operation. The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) advises the General Assembly to answer Item 03-01 by approving the recommendations in COGA's report to the General Assembly on the Presbyterian Historical Society (PHS) (Item 03-17).

The COGA values the past work of the Historical Foundation, Inc (PCUS) and the continuing work of the Presbyterian Historical Society to preserve the significant archival collection at Montreat. The COGA also acknowledges the good intentions of presbyteries submitting overtures relating to PHS at Montreat. However, continuing to maintain the PHS facilities at Montreat is not financially feasible. While recognizing the financial realities, COGA's report to the General Assembly on PHS (Item 03-17) provides a viable alternative plan to preserve the valuable collection now at Montreat and enhance its use for the church in new ways.

Currently, the PHS facilities and operations at Montreat, like the rest of PHS, are supported primarily by per capita funds. The current level of support is about $500,000 per year. The proposed per capita budget for 2007–2008 includes only limited funds for the transition of Montreat operations in the first quarter of 2007 and no funds for 2008. The COGA advises that the financial implications of approving Item 03-01 is an estimated increase in per capita budget of about $194,000 in 2007 and $508,500 in 2008. For each budget cycle beyond 2008, the implementation would be more than $1 million.

Since reunion in 1983, several efforts have been made to obtain funding outside of per capita to support PHS operations at Montreat, with very limited success. In 2005, a feasibility study for a potential endowment campaign revealed limited additional resources insufficient to sustain the PHS Montreat operations long term.

The COGA is a committee of fifteen persons, elected by the General Assembly from across the church made up of elders and ministers who supervise the work of the Office of the General Assembly.

[The assembly answered Item 03-02 by the action taken on Item 03-17. See p. 47.]

On the Historical Foundation at Montreat—From the Presbytery of Western North Carolina.

The Presbytery of Western North Carolina overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to do the following:

1. Direct that the Historical Foundation and its Board of Directors be constituted as a fully independent self-perpetuating body; and to implement this:
 - a. That the current Board of Directors of The Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Incorporated be removed with the approval of this commissioners' resolution; and
 - b. That the Historical Foundation Board of Directors shall then immediately be constituted as directed by the Board of Directors of Friends of the Historical Foundation at Montreat, Inc.
2. That the Articles of Incorporation of the Historical Foundation be amended to delete any requirement that
 - a. its directors, officers, bylaws, or
 - b. any amendment to its Articles of Incorporation, or
 - c. any disposition of the Historical Foundation's assets (whether upon dissolution or otherwise) be subject to the approval of the General Assembly or of any General Assembly officer, agent, or agency.
3. That any and all assets of the Historical Foundation, which may have been removed by, delivered to, or placed with any officer, agent, or agency of the General Assembly since 1982, shall be returned to, or remain under, the exclusive custody and control of the Historical Foundation, in care of its governing body as reconstituted in accordance with this commissioners' resolution; including, but not limited to, any endowment, funds, or property of any nature entrusted to its care by any third party, or donated to the Presbyterian Historical Society and placed in or held by its Montreat Office.

4. That the Presbyterian Historical Society work cooperatively with the reconstituted Historical Foundation in exchange of information and in building a common data base for the collections of materials related to Presbyterian and Reformed history at both institutions, as well as at Presbyterian seminaries.

Rationale

The Historical Foundation at Montreat contains a remarkable and exceptionally rich collection of materials on the history of the Presbyterian church and its worldwide Reformed tradition and relationships, housing resources that enable Presbyterians to understand the roots of our Presbyterian history.

The Historical Foundation is the primary place for holding the official records and artifacts of Presbyterianism in the South, including those of governing bodies such as congregations, presbyteries, synods, general assemblies, and their missionary enterprise, but also priceless personal and family records, such as letters, manuscripts, paintings, photographs, tapes, and memorabilia that reflect the life and mission of the church both here and abroad.

The Historical Foundation is the place where Presbyterian Women historians have for years placed annual histories of the life and work of their congregations, in confidence that this unique collection of primary source materials would always be conveniently accessible to their wide regional constituency.

The present facilities of the Historical Foundation are well-designed and eminently suited for their specific purpose, and are visited each year by several thousand persons, including many researchers, scholars, and congregational historians.

The Historical Foundation is located on the campus of the Montreat Conference Center, which is the largest conference facility of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and a major gathering place for Presbyterians from across the nation.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly has announced that, because of the ongoing decrease in the per capita income to the Office of the General Assembly, the Historical Foundation should be closed and its holdings distributed between the Presbyterian Historical Society in Philadelphia and Columbia Theological Seminary, with the present Historical Foundation building becoming a museum under the management of the Mountain Retreat Association.

Such an arrangement would destroy a precious heritage that has great potential for the life and ministry of the total church, as well as of partner churches around the world.

There has been an outpouring of concern protesting the contemplated closing of the Historical Foundation from the spiritual heirs of the Presbyterian missionary enterprise, such as the Presbyterian Church in Korea, the Independent Presbyterian Church of Brazil, and the Presbyterian Church of Congo.

The Friends of the Historical Foundation at Montreat, Inc., a 501c(3) nonprofit corporation, is prepared to undertake the support of the Historical Foundation as a self-standing independent institution, relieving the General Assembly of responsibility for its restoration and continuing support.

The Historical Foundation at Montreat has legally existed as a North Carolina nonprofit corporation under the name the Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Incorporated, beginning in 1927 and still existing until the present day, with the legal ownership of most or all of its assets still being lodged in the still existing North Carolina corporation.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 03-02

Advice on Item 03-02—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 03-02.

Rationale

While Items 03-02, 03-03, and 03-04 are neither identical in their rational nor their proposal, they collectively address the proposals of the Office of the General Assembly in the implementation of G-9.0406, the ownership and preservation of records of the church.

Each of these overtures seeks to create an independent entity to which the assets of and materials held at the Montreat office of the Presbyterian Historical Society would be transferred. The Advisory Committee on the Constitution believes each of these proposals would violate the following provisions of the Book of Order:

- G-9.0203a (“The clerk shall record the transactions of the governing body, keep its rolls of membership and attendance, preserve its records carefully, and furnish extracts from them when required by another governing body of the church”);
- G-9.0406 (“Minutes and all other official records of church sessions, presbyteries, synods, and General Assemblies are the property in perpetuity of said governing bodies or their legal successors. When congregations, synods, or presbyteries are dissolved, their records are held for them by the next higher governing body within whose bounds they were before dissolution. All minutes and other official records of existing and dissolved sessions, minutes and other official records of existing and dissolved presbyteries and synods that are no longer required for frequent reference, are to be deposited for preserving and servicing with the Department of History or in a temperature and humidity controlled environment of a seminary of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). It is the responsibility of the clerk of each governing body to make recommendation to that governing body for the permanent safekeeping of the governing body's records”); and
- G-13.0103h (General Assembly responsible “to establish and superintend the agencies and task forces necessary for its work” (emphasis added)).

In short, each of these proposals would violate the Constitution in failing to ensure that records of the General Assembly remain within the control of both the Stated Clerk and the General Assembly.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH (U.S.A.) FOUNDATION COMMENT ON ITEM 03-02

Comment on Item 03-02—From the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation.

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation (“Foundation”) holds permanent endowment funds for the Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Incorporated (“Historical Foundation”). The Foundation holds and invests the funds and pays out income in accordance with the direction given by the donor when the funds were established. Many of these funds are charitable trusts or quasi trusts that restrict the use of the income produced by the funds for specific purposes.

The Foundation believes that it would be helpful for the committee, as it considers the various overtures before it, to understand that the permanent endowment funds it holds for the Historical Foundation are controlled in their use and disposition by principles of trust law designed to ensure that these charitable funds are held by the trustee (the Foundation) and used by the beneficiary (the Historical Foundation) in accordance with the donor’s wishes as expressed when the trust was created (restriction).

Where a donor has directed that the income from a fund be paid to the Historical Foundation and has expressed no limitation on how that income may be used (no restriction), so long as the Historical Foundation still exists, the Foundation will pay the income from that fund to the Historical Foundation.

Where a donor has directed that the income from a fund be paid to the Historical Foundation and has expressed a restriction on how that income may be used, so long as the Historical Foundation still exists and it is possible to follow the restriction, the Foundation will pay the income from that fund to the Historical Foundation. However, if it becomes impossible for the beneficiary to use the fund in accordance with the restriction, for example:

1. the restriction calls for a particular fund to be used for the maintenance of a building because it houses the church records program and the building no longer houses the church records program; or

then, the Foundation must go to court and ask the court for direction as to how to administer the trust. The Foundation would file a petition for Cy-Pres. Cy-Pres means as nearly as possible. In trust law, it is a rule for the construction of trusts by which the intention of the donor is carried out as nearly as possible when it would be illegal or impossible to give the donor's restriction literal effect. This doctrine makes it possible for the court to accomplish the donor's charitable intent even if it cannot be carried out exactly as specified by the donor.

Therefore, the committee may wish to consider the fact that endowed funds are controlled by the wishes of the donor as expressed when they were created and neither the trustee nor the beneficiary, or an organization controlling the beneficiary (like the General Assembly), can lawfully set aside the restrictions on the funds because it believes it has a better idea for the use of the funds than the donor had. And, even if it becomes impossible to follow the donor's restriction, it is the court and not the trustee or the beneficiary who has the authority to decide how to use the funds. In making that decision, a court will listen to ideas from the trustee or the beneficiary, but the court's role is to figure out how to use the fund in a way that fulfills the donor's intent as nearly as possible.

Comment on Item 03-02—From the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

Items 03-02, 03-03, 03-04, 03-05, and 03-11 in principle propose creating an independent entity to be responsible for the facilities and operations of the Presbyterian Historical Society (PHS) currently located at Montreat.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) advises the General Assembly to answer Items 03-02, 03-03, 03-04, 03-05, and 03-11 by approving the recommendations in COGA's report to the General Assembly on PHS (Item 03-17).

The COGA supports the comment and advice of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution regarding Items 03-02, 03-03, and 03-04, and believes they also apply to Items 03-05 and 03-11. The proposal of an independent entity to carry out archival functions of the church is unconstitutional.

Further, the following Standing Rules of the General Assembly clearly delegate the responsibility for church archives and facilities to the Stated Clerk, the Office of the General Assembly, and the Department of History (PHS):

The Stated Clerk is responsible for maintaining the archives and records management facilities of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), for the supervision of an agency for the preservation of the history of American Presbyterianism, and for the promotion of the study of Presbyterian history. The Stated Clerk shall assure the implementation of a records management program. (Standing Rules of the General Assembly, M.2.b.(13))

The Department of History in the Office of the General Assembly shall be under the direction of a person appointed by the Stated Clerk. The general administration of the Department of History shall be carried out from Philadelphia, which will be the location of the office of the director of the department. The director, with the concurrence of the Stated Clerk, shall determine which functions shall be carried out in Philadelphia and in the department's study center in Montreat, North Carolina. All restricted and other funds contributed to the endowment of the former Department of History of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. or the former Historical Foundations of the Presbyterian Church in the United States are held by the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Foundation, and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), A Corporation. Funds secured after 1983 resulting from development efforts are also placed in accounts with the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Foundation, and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), A Corporation. Funds originally designated for the maintenance of the archival facility at Montreat and the records and memorabilia contained therein will continue to be used for that facility alone. Should that archival function cease at the Montreat facility, all restricted and other funds contributed for that purpose will be held by the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Foundation, and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), A Corporation, and used for the support of the archival facility and program of the Office of the General Assembly by the Department of History. (Standing Rules of the General Assembly, M.2.c.(5))

The board of directors exists to assure that the mission of the Presbyterian Historical Society—to collect, preserve, and share our history—is achieved in the most effective and efficient manner, in faithfulness to God’s call and in support of the mission of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). [Referring to the Board of Directors of PHS.] (Standing Rules of the General Assembly, M.3.f.(1))

Therefore, having an independent entity responsible for the PHS facilities and operations at Montreat is contrary to the General Assembly Standing Rules.

The COGA further advises that through action of the 1987 General Assembly, the Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Inc. (Historical Foundation, Inc.) became a Constituent Corporation of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), a Corporation, with the General Assembly Council serving as its board of directors. The 1987 General Assembly also directed that the former operations of the Historical Foundation, Inc. be transferred to General Assembly agencies in a manner consistent with the actions of the 1987 General Assembly. The 1987 General Assembly took several actions in regards to this matter. As to operations, the assembly directed, “The Department of History and the Historical Foundation will be consolidated into one entity called the Office of History effective January 1, 1988. The Office of History will be lodged in the Office of the General Assembly and managed by a Director accountable to the Stated Clerk. The Office of History will be funded through the per capita budget” (Minutes, 1987, Part I, p. 210). The General Assembly has noted this responsibility of the Stated Clerk in the General Assembly Standing Rules as well: “The Department of History in the Office of the General Assembly shall be under the direction of a person appointed by the Stated Clerk. ...” (Standing Rules of the General Assembly, M.2.c.(5)).

The COGA values the past work of the Historical Foundations, Inc. (PCUS), and the continuing work of the PHS to preserve the significant archival collection at Montreat. The COGA also acknowledges the good intentions of the presbyteries submitting overtures relating to PHS at Montreat. However, the basic action requested in these overtures is not consistent with the Constitution or the General Assembly Standing Rules. The COGA’s report to the General Assembly on PHS (Item 03-17) provides an alternative plan to preserve the valuable archives now at Montreat and enhance their use in ways which is in accord with Book of Order and General Assembly Standing Rule provisions, is financially feasible, and which adds benefit to the entire church.

The COGA is a committee of fifteen persons, elected by the General Assembly from across the church made up of elders and ministers who supervise the work of the Office of the General Assembly.

[The assembly answered Item 03-03 by the action taken on Item 03-17. See p. 47.]

On the Historical Foundation at Montreat—From the Presbytery of Salem.

The Presbytery of Salem overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to do the following:

1. Direct that the closure plans and the dispersion of the collections and assets of the Historical Foundation at Montreat cease immediately, that any and all assets including endowments of the Historical Foundation at Montreat, which may have been removed since 1983, be returned, and that the Historical Foundation continue its operations at the 2004 levels of service.
2. Direct that new ways be found to fund this valuable institution and retain its ministry to the family of Presbyterian and Reformed churches that is separate from the current per capita income of the General Assembly.
3. Direct that the General Assembly transfer oversight and administration for the Montreat Historical Foundation from the Department of History and the Committee of the Office of the General Assembly to a separate board of directors of fifteen persons who will serve in three-year rotating classes, and who are deeply devoted to the continuing ministry of the Historical Foundation and who will be immediately approved by the 217th General Assembly (2006) and who will report thereafter to the General Assembly at its meetings.

4. Direct that, upon approval of this overture, the Board of the Friends of The Historical Foundation at Montreat, Inc. act as an advisor to the General Assembly Nominating Committee for said new Board of Directors of The Montreat Historical Foundation, and that the new board of directors shall include a majority representation from the four synods most directly served by the Montreat Historical Foundation (the Synods of the Mid-Atlantic, South Atlantic, Living Waters, and The Sun), and that the nominees shall be elected by the General Assembly Council at their first meeting following the 217th General Assembly (2006). [Presbytery Stated Clerk's Note: All references to "The Montreat Historical Foundation" intend and refer to The Historical Foundation at Montreat, Inc.]

5. Direct that said board of directors include representatives of the presbyteries specifically served by the Historical Foundation and who have a passion for and the ability to save this institution for the greater church and so that it may be accountable to its major constituent presbyteries, their congregations and members.

6. Direct that said board of directors be given two years in which to assure the General Assembly that there are both adequate endowment and ongoing funding commitments necessary to support the Historical Foundation, and that during this time the Historical Foundation be supported by funds that have been specifically pledged for the development of the Historical Foundation, as well as those reserve funds that had originally been designated for the Historical Foundation.

7. Direct that the plan and agreements for funding, governance and continuing the ministry of the Historical Foundation at Montreat be presented to the 218th General Assembly (2008) for approval with appropriate changes in the bylaws and other organizational documents to be made as well as appointments to the board of directors recommended.

8. Direct that the new Historical Foundation work cooperatively with the Presbyterian Historical Society in exchange of information and in building a common data base for the collections of materials of Presbyterian and Reformed history at both institutions, as well as at Presbyterian (U.S.A.) seminaries.

Rationale

The Historical Foundation at Montreat contains a remarkable and exceptionally rich collection of materials on the history of the Presbyterian church and the worldwide Reformed tradition, and houses resources that enable Presbyterians to understand the roots of our Presbyterian history.

The Historical Foundation at Montreat has legally existed as a North Carolina nonprofit corporation under the name The Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Incorporated, and still is legally existing at the present time.

This is the primary archive of Presbyterianism in the South, including not only the records from several denominations and PCUSA governing bodies (congregations, presbyteries, and synods) but also valuable personal and family papers that reflect the life and mission of the church both here and abroad.

The facility is well-designed for its purpose, and is visited each year by several thousand persons, including researchers, scholars, and congregational historians.

Several thousand congregations and individual Presbyterians have entrusted to its care their local and family records, papers, manuscripts, and artifacts.

The Historical Foundation is located on the campus of the Montreat Conference Center, which is the largest conference facility of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and offers a recognized gathering place for Presbyterians across the nation.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly has determined that, because of the ongoing decrease in the per capita income to the Office of the General Assembly, the Historical Foundation at Montreat should be closed and its holdings distributed between the Philadelphia Presbyterian Historical Society office and Columbia Seminary, with the present Historical Foundation becoming a museum under the management of the Mountain Retreat Association.

Such an arrangement would destroy a precious heritage that has great potential for the life and ministry of the total church, as well as partner churches around the world.

It should be known that if the Montreat Historical Foundation ever ceases to be used for its current purposes, a difficult legal situation could result because the land and the buildings of the Montreat Historical Foundation have separate origination issues including reversionary clauses and the ownership of such will be unclear since the General Assembly has never acted to legally transfer the property from The Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Incorporated to any other legal entity.

Inadequate time, limited information, lack of creative alternatives, restricted involvement by the greater church and the Friends of the Historical Foundation, and a flawed feasibility study regarding funding lead to a premature decision to close the Historical Foundation at Montreat when other options do exist but have yet to be explored.

The Minutes of the General Assembly, 2004, Part I of the Journal under the report of the Historical Society and Item 03-24 states that the appointed task force to study the situation of the Historical Foundation will report to the General Assembly in 2006, and that this task force was never allowed to complete its work including making a final report with recommendations and was dismissed before reporting to the 2006 General Assembly by the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

Comment on Item 03-03—From the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation.

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation (“Foundation”) holds permanent endowment funds for the Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Incorporated (“Historical Foundation”). COGA COMMENT ON ITEM 03-03

Comment on Item 03-03—From the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

Items 03-02, 03-03, 03-04, 03-05, and 03-11 in principle propose creating an independent entity to be responsible for the facilities and operations of the Presbyterian Historical Society (PHS) currently located at Montreat.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) advises the General Assembly to answer Items 03-02, 03-03, 03-04, 03-05, and 03-11 by approving the recommendations in COGA's report to the General Assembly on PHS (Item 03-17).

The COGA supports the comment and advice of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution regarding Items 03-02, 03-03, and 03-04, and believes they also apply to Items 03-05 and 03-11. The proposal of an independent entity to carry out archival functions of the church is unconstitutional.

Further, the following Standing Rules of the General Assembly clearly delegate the responsibility for church archives and facilities to the Stated Clerk, the Office of the General Assembly, and the Department of History (PHS):

The Stated Clerk is responsible for maintaining the archives and records management facilities of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), for the supervision of an agency for the preservation of the history of American Presbyterianism, and for the promotion of the study of Presbyterian history. The Stated Clerk shall assure the implementation of a records management program. (Standing Rules of the General Assembly, M.2.b.(13))

The Department of History in the Office of the General Assembly shall be under the direction of a person appointed by the Stated Clerk. The general administration of the Department of History shall be carried out from Philadelphia, which will be the location of the office of the director of the department. The director, with the concurrence of the Stated Clerk, shall determine which functions shall be carried out in Philadelphia and in the department's study center in Montreat, North Carolina. All restricted and other funds contributed to the endowment of the former Department of History of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. or the former Historical Foundations of the Presbyterian Church in the United States are held by the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Foundation, and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), A Corporation. Funds secured after 1983 resulting from development efforts are also placed in accounts with the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Foundation, and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), A Corporation. Should that archival function cease at the Montreat facility, all restricted and other funds contributed for that purpose will be held by the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Foundation, and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), A Corporation, and used for the support of the archival facility and program of the Office of the General Assembly by the Department of History. (Standing Rules of the General Assembly, M.2.c.(5))

The board of directors exists to assure that the mission of the Presbyterian Historical Society—to collect, preserve, and share our history—is achieved in the most effective and efficient manner, in faithfulness to God's call and in support of the mission of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). [Referring to the Board of Directors of PHS.] (Standing Rules of the General Assembly, M.3.f.(1))

Therefore, having an independent entity responsible for the PHS facilities and operations at Montreat is contrary to the General Assembly Standing Rules.

The COGA further advises that through action of the 1987 General Assembly, the Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Inc. (Historical Foundation, Inc.) became a Constituent Corporation of the Presbyterian Church

(U.S.A.), a Corporation, with the General Assembly Council serving as its board of directors. The Office of History will be funded through the per capita budget” (Minutes, 1987, Part I, p. 210). The General Assembly has noted this responsibility of the Stated Clerk in the General Assembly Standing Rules as well: “The Department of History in the Office of the General Assembly shall be under the direction of a person appointed by the Stated Clerk. ...” (Standing Rules of the General Assembly, M.2.c.(5)).

[The assembly answered Item 03-04 by the action taken on Item 03-17. See p. 47.]

On the Historical Foundation at Montreat—From the Presbytery of East Tennessee.

The Presbytery of East Tennessee overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to do the following:

1. Direct that the current Board of Directors of The Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Incorporated (“the Historical Foundation”) be removed effective with the approval of this overture.
2. Direct that the Historical Foundation Board of Directors shall then immediately be constituted as directed by the Board of Directors of Friends of the Historical Foundation at Montreat, Inc.
3. Direct that, thereafter, the Historical Foundation and its board of directors shall continue as a fully independent, self-perpetuating body.
4. Direct that the Articles of Incorporation of the Historical Foundation be amended to delete any requirement that
 - a. its directors, officers, bylaws, or
 - b. any amendment to its Articles of Incorporation, or
 - c. any disposition of the Historical Foundation's assets (whether upon dissolution or otherwise) be subject to the approval of the General Assembly or of any General Assembly officer, agent, or agency.
5. Direct that any and all assets of the Historical Foundation, which may have been removed by, delivered to, or placed with any officer, agent, or agency of the General Assembly since 1982, shall be returned to, or remain under, the exclusive custody and control of the Historical Foundation, in care of its governing body as reconstituted in accordance with this overture; including, but not limited to, any endowment, funds, or property of any nature entrusted to its care by any third party, or donated to the Presbyterian Historical Society and placed in or held by its Montreat Office.
6. Direct that the Presbyterian Historical Society work cooperatively with the reconstituted Historical Foundation in exchange of information and in building a common data base for the collections of materials related to Presbyterian and Reformed history at both institutions, as well as at Presbyterian seminaries.

Rationale

The Historical Foundation at Montreat contains a remarkable and exceptionally rich collection of materials on the history of the Presbyterian church and the worldwide Reformed tradition, and from its beginnings has housed resources that enable Presbyterians to understand the roots of our Presbyterian history.

The Historical Foundation at Montreat has legally existed as a North Carolina nonprofit corporation under the name The Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Incorporated, beginning in 1927 and still existing until the present day.

The Historical Foundation at Montreat is the primary place for holding records and artifacts of the Presbyterian and Reformed missionary enterprise.

An outpouring of concern protesting the contemplated closing of the Historical Foundation at Montreat has come from the spiritual heirs of that enterprise in The Presbyterian Church in Korea in the Republic of Korea, and in The Presbyterian Church of Congo in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (formerly Zaire).

The Historical Foundation at Montreat is the primary place not only for holding official records and artifacts of Presbyterianism in the South, including those of governing bodies such as congregations, presbyteries, synods, and general assemblies, and their agencies, but also for holding priceless personal and family materials that reflect the inner life and mission of the church both here and abroad.

The Historical Foundation at Montreat is also the place where devoted Women of the Church Historians of at least three regional denominations from Maryland to Texas and from Florida to Missouri have for years placed detailed annual histories of the life and work of their congregations, in unquestioned expectation and confidence that this unique collection of essential primary source materials would always be conveniently accessible at Montreat to the wide regional constituency whose devoted Women of the Church Historians created it and placed it there.

The present facilities of the Historical Foundation at Montreat are well-designed and eminently suited for their specific purpose, and are visited each year by several thousand persons, including many researchers, scholars, and congregational historians.

Several thousand congregations and individual Presbyterians have entrusted to its care their local and family records, papers, manuscripts, photographs, tapes, and artifacts.

The Historical Foundation is located on the campus of the Montreat Conference Center, which is the largest conference facility of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and is a major gathering place for Presbyterians across the nation.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly has announced that, because of the ongoing decrease in per capita income to the Office of the General Assembly, the Historical Foundation at Montreat should be closed and its holdings distributed between Columbia Seminary and the Presbyterian Historical Society in Philadelphia, with the present Historical Foundation building becoming a mere museum under the management of the Mountain Retreat Association.

Such an arrangement would destroy a precious heritage that has great potential for the life and ministry of the total church, as well as of partner churches around the world.

The Friends of the Historical Foundation at Montreat, Incorporated, a 501 (c) (3) nonprofit corporation, is prepared to sustain the Historical Foundation financially as a self-standing, independent institution, relieving the General Assembly of all financial responsibility for its restoration and continuing support.

Since 1987, the Historical Foundation has been operated under the name of "the Montreat Office of the Presbyterian Historical Society," without its corporate identity being destroyed, and with the legal ownership of most or all of its assets still being lodged in the still existing North Carolina corporation whose official name is The Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Incorporated.

The General Assembly has full legal authority to amend the organizational documents of that corporation, The Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Incorporated, including but not limited to full authority to approve its bylaws and amendments to its corporate charter, and to determine the number of its board of directors and how they are to be appointed.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 03-04

Advice on Item 03-04—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to answer Item 03-04 with its response to Item 03-02.

Rationale

Please refer to the rationale provided in the Advisory Committee on the Constitution's advice on Item 03-02.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH (U.S.A.) FOUNDATION COMMENT ON ITEM 03-04

Comment on Item 03-04—From the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation.

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation (“Foundation”) holds permanent endowment funds for the Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Incorporated (“Historical Foundation”). The Foundation holds and invests the funds and pays out income in accordance with the direction given by the donor when the funds were established. Many of these funds are charitable trusts or quasi trusts that restrict the use of the income produced by the funds for specific purposes.

The Foundation believes that it would be helpful for the committee, as it considers the various overtures before it, to understand that the permanent endowment funds it holds for the Historical Foundation are controlled in their use and disposition by principles of trust law designed to ensure that these charitable funds are held by the trustee (the Foundation) and used by the beneficiary (the Historical Foundation) in accordance with the donor’s wishes as expressed when the trust was created (restriction).

Where a donor has directed that the income from a fund be paid to the Historical Foundation and has expressed no limitation on how that income may be used (no restriction), so long as the Historical Foundation still exists, the Foundation will pay the income from that fund to the Historical Foundation.

Where a donor has directed that the income from a fund be paid to the Historical Foundation and has expressed a restriction on how that income may be used, so long as the Historical Foundation still exists and it is possible to follow the restriction, the Foundation will pay the income from that fund to the Historical Foundation. However, if it becomes impossible for the beneficiary to use the fund in accordance with the restriction, for example:

1. the restriction calls for a particular fund to be used for the maintenance of a building because it houses the church records program and the building no longer houses the church records program; or

then, the Foundation must go to court and ask the court for direction as to how to administer the trust. The Foundation would file a petition for Cy-Pres. Cy-Pres means as nearly as possible. In trust law, it is a rule for the construction of trusts by which the intention of the donor is carried out as nearly as possible when it would be illegal or impossible to give the donor’s restriction literal effect. This doctrine makes it possible for the court to accomplish the donor’s charitable intent even if it cannot be carried out exactly as specified by the donor.

Therefore, the committee may wish to consider the fact that endowed funds are controlled by the wishes of the donor as expressed when they were created and neither the trustee nor the beneficiary, or an organization controlling the beneficiary (like the General Assembly), can lawfully set aside the restrictions on the funds because it believes it has a better idea for the use of the funds than the donor had. And, even if it becomes impossible to follow the donor’s restriction, it is the court and not the trustee or the beneficiary who has the authority to decide how to use the funds. In making that decision, a court will listen to ideas from the trustee or the beneficiary, but the court’s role is to figure out how to use the fund in a way that fulfills the donor’s intent as nearly as possible.

COGA COMMENT ON ITEM 03-04

Comment on Item 03-04—From the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

Items 03-02, 03-03, 03-04, 03-05, and 03-11 in principle propose creating an independent entity to be responsible for the facilities and operations of the Presbyterian Historical Society (PHS) currently located at Montreat.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) advises the General Assembly to answer Items 03-02, 03-03, 03-04, 03-05, and 03-11 by approving the recommendations in COGA's report to the General Assembly on PHS (Item 03-17).

The COGA supports the comment and advice of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution regarding Items 03-02, 03-03, and 03-04, and believes they also apply to Items 03-05 and 03-11. The proposal of an independent entity to carry out archival functions of the church are unconstitutional.

Further, the following Standing Rules of the General Assembly clearly delegate the responsibility for church archives and facilities to the Stated Clerk, the Office of the General Assembly, and the Department of History (PHS):

The Stated Clerk is responsible for maintaining the archives and records management facilities of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), for the supervision of an agency for the preservation of the history of American Presbyterianism, and for the promotion of the study of Presbyterian history. The Stated Clerk shall assure the implementation of a records management program. (Standing Rules of the General Assembly, M.2.b.(13))

The Department of History in the Office of the General Assembly shall be under the direction of a person appointed by the Stated Clerk. The general administration of the Department of History shall be carried out from Philadelphia, which will be the location of the office of the director of the department. The director, with the concurrence of the Stated Clerk, shall determine which functions shall be carried out in Philadelphia and in the department's study center in Montreat, North Carolina. All restricted and other funds contributed to the endowment of the former Department of History of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. or the former Historical Foundations of the Presbyterian Church in the United States are held by the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Foundation, and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), A Corporation. Funds secured after 1983 resulting from development efforts are also placed in accounts with the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Foundation, and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), A Corporation. Funds originally designated for the maintenance of the archival facility at Montreat and the records and memorabilia contained therein will continue to be used for that facility alone. Should that archival function cease at the Montreat facility, all restricted and other funds contributed for that purpose will be held by the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Foundation, and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), A Corporation, and used for the support of the archival facility and program of the Office of the General Assembly by the Department of History. (Standing Rules of the General Assembly, M.2.c.(5))

The board of directors exists to assure that the mission of the Presbyterian Historical Society—to collect, preserve, and share our history—is achieved in the most effective and efficient manner, in faithfulness to God's call and in support of the mission of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). [Referring to the Board of Directors of PHS.] (Standing Rules of the General Assembly, M.3.f.(1))

Therefore, having an independent entity responsible for the PHS facilities and operations at Montreat is contrary to the General Assembly Standing Rules.

The COGA further advises that through action of the 1987 General Assembly, the Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Inc. (Historical Foundation, Inc.) became a Constituent Corporation of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), a Corporation, with the General Assembly Council serving as its board of directors. The 1987 General Assembly also directed that the former operations of the Historical Foundation, Inc. be transferred to General Assembly agencies in a manner consistent with the actions of the 1987 General Assembly. The 1987 General Assembly took several actions in regards to this matter. As to operations, the assembly directed, "The Department of History and the Historical Foundation will be consolidated into one entity called the Office of History effective January 1, 1988. The Office of History will be lodged in the Office of the General Assembly and managed by a Director accountable to the Stated Clerk. The Office of History will be funded through the per capita budget" (Minutes, 1987, Part I, p. 210). The General Assembly has noted this responsibility of the Stated Clerk in the General Assembly Standing Rules as well: "The Department of History in the Office of the General Assembly shall be under the direction of a person appointed by the Stated Clerk. ..." (Standing Rules of the General Assembly, M.2.c.(5)).

The COGA values the past work of the Historical Foundations, Inc. (PCUS), and the continuing work of the PHS to preserve the significant archival collection at Montreat. The COGA also acknowledges the good intentions of the presbyteries submitting overtures relating to PHS at Montreat. However, the basic action requested in these overtures is not consistent with the Constitution or the General Assembly Standing Rules. The COGA's report to the General Assembly on PHS (Item 03-17) provides an alternative plan to preserve the valuable archives now at Montreat and enhance their use in ways which is in accord with Book of Order and General Assembly Standing Rule provisions, is financially feasible, and which adds benefit to the entire church.

The COGA is a committee of fifteen persons, elected by the General Assembly from across the church made up of elders and ministers who supervise the work of the Office of the General Assembly.

[The assembly answered Item 03-05 by the action taken on Item 03-17. See p. 47.]

On the Historical Foundation at Montreat—From the Presbytery of Coastal Carolina.

The Presbytery of Coastal Carolina overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) of the Presbyterian Church (USA) to do the following:

1. Direct that the Historical Foundation and its board of directors be constituted as a fully independent self-perpetuating body; and to implement
 - a. that the current Board of Directors of The Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Incorporated be removed with the approval of this overture; and
 - b. that the Historical Foundation Board of Directors shall then immediately be constituted as directed by the Board of Directors of Friends of the Historical Foundation at Montreat, Inc.
2. Direct that the Articles of Incorporation of the Historical Foundation be amended to delete any requirement that
 - a. its directors, officers, bylaws, or
 - b. any amendment to its articles of incorporation, or
 - c. any disposition of the Historical Foundation's assets (whether upon dissolution or otherwise) be subject to the approval of the General Assembly or of any General Assembly officer, agent, or agency.
3. Direct that any and all assets of the Historical Foundation, which may have been removed by, delivered to, or placed with any officer, agency, or agency of the General Assembly since 1982, shall be returned to, or remain under, the exclusive custody and control of the Historical Foundation, in care of its governing body as reconstituted in accordance with this overture; including, but not limited to, any endowment, funds, or property of any nature entrusted to its care by any third party, or donated to the Presbyterian Historical Society and placed in or held by its Montreat Office.
4. Direct that the Presbyterian Historical Society work cooperatively with the reconstituted Historical Foundation in exchange of information and in building a common data base for the collections of materials related to Presbyterian and Reformed history at both institutions, as well as at Presbyterian seminaries.
5. In the unlikely event that the Historical Foundation of Montreat is unable or unwilling to perform the duties of preservation of the records and other items, the duties will become the responsibility of the Presbyterian Historical Society.

Rationale

In 1927, the Historical Foundation at Montreat was established as the nonprofit Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Incorporated. It still exists with the legal ownership of most or all of its assets lodged within the North Carolina Corporation. The Foundation is the primary place for holding the official records of Presbyterians in the South. This includes records from congregations, presbyteries, synods, general assemblies, and their missionary enterprises. For years, the Presbyterian Women have placed their annual reports at the Foundation in confidence that these records would be easily accessible. Also, there are personal and family records, such as letters, manuscripts, painting, photos, tapes, and memorabilia that reflect the life and mission of the church.

The present facility remains located on the campus of the Montreat Conference Center, which is the largest conference facility of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). It was built in 1953 with a large addition completed in 1982 and was designed specifically for the purpose that it serves. There are at least 1,300 persons using the resources of the Foundation annually including scholars, researchers, and congregational historians.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly has announced that, because of the decrease in the per capita income to the Office of the General Assembly, the Historical Foundation should be closed and its holdings distributed between the Presbyterian Historical Society in Philadelphia and Columbia Theological Seminary, with the present Historical Foundation building becoming a museum under the management of the Mountain Retreat Association.

The Friends of the Historical Foundation at Montreat, Inc., a501 (c) (3) nonprofit corporation, is prepared to undertake the support of the Historical Foundation as an independent institution, relieving the General Assembly of responsibility for its restoration and support.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH (U.S.A.) FOUNDATION COMMENT ON ITEM 03-05

Comment on Item 03-05—From the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation.

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) On Amending the Guidelines for Organizations to Display an Exhibit at Meetings of the General Assembly—From the Presbytery of Carlisle.

The Presbytery of Carlisle overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to amend Item 4. of "THE GUIDELINES AND POLICIES OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY EXHIBIT HALL," administered by the Stated Clerk of General Assembly, to read as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

"4. Not-for-profit organizations of Presbyterians (PCUSA) which have officers and a board accountable for their activities whose membership is not confined to a single synod, and which are organized to conduct special tasks of witness, service or nurture and who have the endorsement of a presbytery of the PC(USA) and have submitted the following information:

"a. The legal title, legal and tax status, date of founding, location of offices, number of paid staff, number of members if a membership organization, list of annual publications and their circulation within and outside the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.); and

"b. Total annual budget with all donors or organizations giving aggregate amounts of more than $1,000 to be listed by amount (as in public campaign finance), with the donor data to be kept on file with a copy of each organization's bylaws and/or charter at the Office of the General Assembly; and

"c. A 300-word statement of the organization's goals and methods, including its operations at the General Assembly, in boards and agencies of the denomination, and in the denomination's seminaries and colleges; and

"d. A 300-word summary of the organization's theological emphasis and vision of the Church of Jesus Christ.

Rationale

Since 1991, when the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) amended its Constitution to remove references to "Affinity Groups," there have been repeated attempts to clarify the appropriateness of granting groups the use of exhibit hall space at meetings of General Assembly. The permission granted by the 207th General Assembly (1995) for groups to use exhibit hall space at General Assembly meetings to those whose membership is made up "entirely of those who are members of the PC(USA)" seems difficult to enforce. The 212th General Assembly (2000) saw the wisdom to request background information (including e.g. tax status, goals, and theological emphasis) from organizations affiliated with the PC(USA), but, their limitation was that this request only applied to "special interest organizations that use the name Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) in their names," leaving out many organizations for scrutiny. The 213th General Assembly (2001) "referred consideration of the impact of the affinity groups, their funds and their strategies, to any proposed special commission/task force designated to investigate the causes of division in our church" and also confirmed the need to request background information from "affinity groups" as a regular practice.

Many special interest organizations that have not met all the criteria requested from the 212th and 213th General As-semblies (2000) and (2001), are still able to use the exhibit halls and meeting spaces of General Assembly. The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is a connectional church that affirms the place of accountability and its own democratic and representative character are called into question by the lack of accountability by the large number of special interest organizations. It is the presbytery that examines motives and theological emphases and therefore is the appropriate body to endorse special interest organizations requiring their accountability to our Constitution.

COGA COMMENT ON ITEM 03-06

Comment on Item 03-06—From the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

Item 03-06 proposes changes to the Guidelines for the Exhibit Hall participations.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) advises that Item 03-06 be answered by its recommendations to the General Assembly regarding Affinity Groups (Item 03-18).

The COGA has recently reviewed the Exhibit Hall Guidelines in connection with a referral from the 216th General Assembly (2004). The COGA response (Item 03-18) includes recommendations for providing certain information to obtain Exhibit Hall space. The COGA believes the concerns in Item 03-06 are addressed by the COGA recommendations.

The COGA is a committee of fifteen persons, elected by the General Assembly from across the church, made up of elders and ministers who supervise the work of the Office of the General Assembly.

On Inviting Commissioners to Write Brief Notes of Affirmation and Encouragement to Churches of Their Choice—From the Presbytery of Trinity.

The Presbytery of Trinity respectfully overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to invite each commissioner to bear witness to the irreplaceable and undeniable role of local churches as part of the Body of Christ by writing five brief notes of affirmation and encouragement to churches of their choice.

These brief epistles of prayer, thanksgiving, and encouragement would be written at a time convenient to each commissioner, collected as a daily offering during the plenary days of General Assembly, prayed over at an appropriate time during a plenary session of General Assembly, and mailed to the churches for them to read at the time and place decided upon by each church.

Rationale

God is a God of grace and peace, love and justice who has come to us in Jesus the Christ and through the Holy Spirit.

Scripture calls us to encourage and build up one another and the Apostle Paul often used letters as a means of encouraging the faithful.

The ministry of God through the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is largely lived out by the day-to-day witness of two-plus million members and ministers of the more than ten-thousand PC(USA) churches across the country.

The gathering of people called the General Assembly provides a unique opportunity to remember, claim, pray for and affirm the vital witness to Jesus Christ of these local churches.

The grace-propelled inspiration of our Lord Jesus to love the Lord our God and love our neighbors can be overlooked amidst the legislative tendency of assembly matters. We believe this might be a source of unexpected joy for both senders and receivers.

Logistics: To facilitate this effort, we ask General Assembly to provide simple letterhead and envelopes, stamps as well as access to on-line and printed Directories that would provide church names and addresses. We further invite each commissioner to consider a roughly $3 contribution to reimburse the General Assembly for this cost and pledge as a presbytery to cover any shortfall in covering postage costs associated with the above.

On Providing an Authoritative Interpretation of G-9.0404d Regarding Session Responsibility to Pay Per Capita—From the Presbytery of Baltimore.

The Presbytery of Baltimore overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to provide the following authoritative interpretation of Book of Order G-9.0404d:

1. That the covenantal relationship of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) recognizes both the need and obligation of governing bodies to support each other; and
2. That sessions are responsible for payment of per capita apportionments of General Assembly, synod, and presbytery directed to them by the presbytery in accordance with G-9.0404d.

Comment: We strongly encourage all congregations to take seriously their commitment to the connectional nature of the church. One evidence of that commitment is the per capita contributions that help provide for the church's shared ministry beyond the congregation. We recommend that presbyteries exert pastoral care with congregations that choose to withhold per capita. Such pastoral care could be extended through their committees on ministry or other committees as designated by the presbytery council.

The Presbytery of Baltimore offers the following polity interpretations of G-9.0404d:

1. The first sentence of G-9.0404d makes it clear that General Assembly, synods, and presbyteries have the authority to fund operating expenses with a per capita apportionment. The responsibility of presbyteries, as the governing bodies assigned by the second sentence of G-9.0404d, to collect and remit this apportionment was affirmed by the General Assembly in its 1999 Authoritative Interpretation (Minutes, 1999, Part I, pp. 65, 107; paragraphs 16.001–.007, Request 99-1). The third sentence gives presbyteries the right to direct the per capita apportionment to sessions, and the responsibility for payment is not changed; that is, the responsibility to remit the apportionment is assigned to sessions, but the responsibility of the presbyteries is not eliminated. Presbyteries may, as they determine will best serve the interests of the whole church, determine that sessions may, for financial hardship or other reasons be excused from payment, and presbyteries may exercise their full powers of administrative review and original jurisdiction to ensure that sessions meet their responsibility to remit per capita payments.”

2. The words “may direct” used in the third sentence are permissive as to the presbytery but the body being directed is obligated to follow the direction. Compare G-9.0410, in which a higher governing body again “may direct” a lower governing body—in this case to correct an irregularity or cure a delinquency. The obligation of the lower governing body to carry out the direction is clear.

This authoritative interpretation will resolve conflicting interpretations of G-9.0404d:

1. In 1999, the General Assembly provided an authoritative interpretation of this paragraph (Minutes, 1999, Part I, pp. 65, 107; paragraphs 16.001–.007, Request 99-1) in response to a question about the responsibility of presbyteries to pay per capita. The General Assembly concluded that such payments are obligatory.

2. The Permanent Judicial Commission of the General Assembly, in considering the obligations of sessions to pay per capital concluded that, while there is a strong moral obligation, the payment is not obligatory. References: Session of Central Church v. Presbytery of Long Island (Minutes, 1992, Part I, p. 179, paragraph 11.050); Minihan v. Presbytery of Scioto Valley (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 350, Item 216-1); and First Presbyterian Church v. Heartland Presbytery (Remedial Case 217-2, October 2004).

These conflicting conclusions regarding whether per capita payments are obligatory suggest that G-9.0404d may be ambiguous on that point. When these interpretations, independently made, are compared it is clear that they are inconsistent: nothing in the wording of G-9.0404d suggests that in one case these payments are obligatory and in another case only requested. It is difficult to understand how the same paragraph of the Book of Order can be interpreted to make session payments not obligatory and presbytery payments obligatory.

The legislative history of G-9.0404d makes it clear that a responsibility or obligation is being created. Overture 89-106 from the Presbytery of Philadelphia, noted that per capita apportionments had been used but were not mentioned in the Book of Order, and continued “Whereas, the Form of Government does not give any governing body the authority to place a per capita apportionment on any lower governing body or on the particular churches within its bounds.” This led to the request that G-9.0404d be added to the Book of Order, and this was adopted by the General Assembly and ratified by the presbyteries. The addition of G-9.0404d contributes nothing to church polity unless it is viewed as providing an obligation to pay per capita, because there was an extensive system of voluntary per capita already in place.

The current inconsistency of interpretations can place an impossible financial burden upon presbyteries, which must pay their full per capita even if sessions do not pay the presbytery.

When a presbytery is forced to remit the full per capita and receives less than the full per capita from its particular churches, it must use other mission funds, contributed for other purposes by the churches of the presbytery, in order to meet this obligation. This places an unfair burden on those churches of the presbytery that meet their per capita obligation.

Text of G-9.0404d, for reference, [sentence numbering added]:

“[1] Each governing body above the session shall prepare a budget for its operating expenses, including administrative personnel, and may fund it with a per capita apportionment among the particular churches within its bounds.

“[2] The presbyteries shall be responsible for raising their own per capita funds, and for raising and timely transmission of per capita funds to their respective synods and to the General Assembly.

“[3] The presbyteries may direct per capita apportionments to the sessions of the churches within their bounds.”

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 03-08

Advice on Item 03-08—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to answer Item 03-08 with the following authoritative interpretation of G-9.0404d and G-10.0102i:

“If the presbytery in its discretion exercises G-9.0404d to direct per capita apportionment to the sessions of its constituent churches, then this decision is binding on those sessions, notwithstanding the responsibility granted sessions under G-10.0102i, in light of the additional responsibilities of sessions under G-10.0102p.”

Rationale

The overture proposes to resolve a perceived conflict between the authoritative interpretation of G-9.0404d (Minutes, 1999, Part I, p. 65, paragraphs 16.001–.007, Request 99-1, which is also addressed in Request 06-06 in this assembly) and a series of decisions of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution reminds the assembly that “all Church power, whether exercised by the body in general or in the way of representation by delegated authority, is only ministerial and declarative” (Book of Order, G-1.0307). Too much discussion regarding the issue of per capita has occurred in the vocabulary of force and compulsion, rather than within the Presbyterian principles of oversight and accountability. Any consideration of the issue of financial support within the church community must occur in the context of Paul’s admonition to “bear one another’s burdens, and in this you fulfill the law of Christ” (Gal. 6:2, NRSV).

In this regard, the observations of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission in Westminster United Presbyterian Church of Port Huron, Michigan v. the Presbytery of Detroit (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1976, Part I, pp. 228–31), are useful:

When presbyteries, synods, and General Assemblies meet, they are conducting the legislative or judicial business of the Church and incur necessary expenses. There are also necessary administrative expenses involved which enable these legislative and judicial functions to be performed. All of these expenses should be shared throughout the Church because everyone who is a United Presbyterian shares in the benefits of this system of government. A case in point is the very Session which is a party in the present action. It is making use of the judicial system of the Church, expenses of which are entirely paid for by per capita apportionment, the fund to which it has refused to contribute. [Emphasis added.]

Governing bodies vary in their use of per capita assessment. Many presbyteries have been placed in a difficult situation when they are asked to forward money that had not been received from sessions. In 1999, the General Assembly issued an authoritative interpretation seeking to address the matter:

G-9.0404d provides that “The presbyteries shall be responsible for raising their own per capita funds, and for raising and timely transmission of per capita funds to their respective synods and to the General Assembly.” [Emphasis added]

16.006

Further, G-9.0404d provides: “The presbyteries may direct per capita apportionments to the sessions of the churches within their bounds. . . .” [Emphasis added]

16.007

Therefore, a presbytery has the responsibility to remit per capita allocations to synod and General Assembly, even though a congregation does not pay the per capita allocated to it by the presbytery.

... If churches refuse to pay their portion, ... the presbytery [has] the responsibility to pay the full amount irrespective to the specific collection from churches, as long as funds are available within the presbytery[.]

16.012

A presbytery may use unrestricted funds to pay per capita allocations to synod and General Assembly. (Minutes, 1999, Part I, p. 107)

The decision of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission (GAPJC) in Minihan v. Presbytery of Scioto Valley, Remedial Case 216-1, has raised concern by questioning the traditional assertion that the words “may direct” in G-9.0404d convey an obligation rather than an opportunity.

In John Minihan and J. Randall Richards v. the Presbytery of Scioto Valley, Remedial Case 216-1, the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission held that a presbytery may not adopt a policy statement that obligates a session to pay per capita apportionments to the presbytery. However, in reaching this decision, the GAPJC wrote the following:

... [T]here is a high moral obligation based on the grace and call of God to participate fully in the covenant community. Full participation includes time, talent, and treasure (G-10.0102h; W-5.5004). Moreover, all officers are obligated, by virtue of ordination vows (G-14.0207i; G-14.0405b(9)), to participate fully in the life of the Church. To participate partially or not at all and yet claim to be within the covenant community represents a grievous misunderstanding of our reciprocal covenantal obligations under the singular Lordship of Jesus (The Second Helvetic Confession, C-5.124-.141) In other words, we are called to turn from the sin of individualism run rampant and embrace the covenantal community in which our Lord Jesus has called us to live as those who love as we have been loved (John 13:34). Therefore, withholding per capita as a means of protest or dissent evidences a serious breach of the trust and love with which our Lord Jesus intends the covenant community to function together (G-7.0103). (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 353–54)

Nevertheless, the GAPJC, while noting that in 1992 G-9.0404d had been amended to allow a presbytery to “direct” per capita apportionments to sessions, found that this amendment to G-9.0404d did not change previous understandings that the Book of Order did not allow presbyteries to require payment of per capita apportionments by sessions. The GAPJC did not explain what this 1992 amendment meant if it did not give presbyteries the ability to enforce the “high moral obligation” to contribute per capita. Rather, the GAPJC held that a session’s power to control its benevolences was absolute and overrode the authority of presbyteries regarding per capita.

More recently, in Johnston, et.al. v. Heartland Pby, Remedial Case 217-2, the GAPJC further expanded the absolute power of session to control their benevolences in holding that a presbytery could not condition eligibility for requesting financial assistance from presbytery on the payment of per capita apportionments. The GAPJC rested its determination that a session’s control over its benevolences trumped the presbytery’s control over its financial resources on the assertion that: “[w]hile the Book of Order refers to a higher governing body’s “right of review and control over a lower one” (G-4.0301f), these concepts must not be understood in hierarchical terms, but in light of the shared responsibility and power at the heart of Presbyterian order (G-4.0302).”

The General Assembly has been presented with proposals to amend the provision for the payment of per capita repeatedly. In the past it has rejected substantial alteration. The ACC offers several observations to the 217th General Assembly (2006) as it considers this issue:

1. The underlying history of per capita apportionment that led to the inclusion of G-9.0404d reflects the long practice of apportioning governing body expenses to lower governing bodies. It was, and is, based on the decision of the governing body regarding expenses proposed in a budget. As such there was, and is, opportunity for debate and all of the attendant procedures of debate and amendment prior to the adoption of the budget and the affixing of the apportionment amount.

2. While the specifics of these cases and the decisions of the GAPJC suggest that a presbytery may not take any action to compel the payment of per capita, the decisions states in clear and strong terms that officers of the church individually have a high moral obligation to support the payment of per capita by session to higher governing bodies.

3. The meaning of the current provision of the Form of Government at G-9.0404d clearly identifies the underlying polity of per capita apportionment. That is, the underlying polity of a representative governing body binding the governing body through its decision making process. (See G-4.0301.) Clearly, commissioners participating in the decision-making are binding the governing body from which they are commissioned. The commissioners at the General Assembly and the synod are from presbyteries; in the presbytery, the commissioners are from constituent churches.

4. The authoritative interpretation adopted in 1999 regarding the obligation of presbyteries to pay per capita to higher governing bodies is strongly dictated by the language of G-9.0404d. No other principled interpretation of G-9.0404d as it pertains to the obligation of presbyteries to pay per capita to higher governing bodies is possible.

5. The GAPJC's assertion that "[w]hile the Book of Order refers to a higher governing body's "right of review and control over a lower one" (G-4.0301f), these concepts must not be understood in hierarchical terms, but in light of the shared responsibility and power at the heart of Presbyterian order (G-4.0302)" is contrary to historic Presbyterian polity and the reserved powers clause (G-9.0103).

6. The word "direct" used elsewhere in the Book of Order is used to indicate authority to require action on the part of the subject of the "direction."

7. The session's control over its benevolences (G-10.0102i) should be understood in light of its responsibility to "to maintain regular and continuing relationship to the higher governing bodies of the church ..." (G-10.0102p) and the "high moral obligation" of church officers not to withhold per capita as a means of protest.

COGA COMMENT ON ITEM 03-08

Comment on Item 03-08—From the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

Item 03-08 addresses the responsibility of sessions for payment of per capita.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) supports the comment and advice of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution (ACC), to approve the proposed ACC authoritative interpretation in answer to the overture.

The COGA is a committee of fifteen persons, elected by the General Assembly from across the church, made up of elders and ministers who supervise the work of the Office of the General Assembly.

On Amending Standing Rules A.3.c. and A.8. Regarding Overtures and Resolutions Affecting Investment Policies—From the Presbytery of the Twin Cities Area.

The Presbytery of The Twin Cities Area overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to amend the Standing Rules of the General Assembly as follows:

1. Amend Standing Rule A.3.c. by adding a new "(5)" and renumbering current "(5)–(6)" as "(6)–(7)," so that it shall read as follows:

"(5) Presbyteries or synods submitting overtures with a recommendation(s) that affects the investment policies of the denomination or which calls for boycott or divestment in specific companies, countries, or regions shall be referred to the Mission Responsibility Through Investment Committee (MRTI) for their recommendation to the General Assembly through the General Assembly Council. If the Stated Clerk does not receive the overture in time for the overture to be received and acted upon by the MRTI Committee and the General Assembly Council, it shall be referred to a future session of the General Assembly so that referral may take place.

~~“(5) (6)~~ Presbyteries or synods submitting overtures with a recommendation(s) that affects the work or budget of a General Assembly entity(ies) shall submit evidence that the affected entity(ies) has (have) been consulted. If such evidence is not submitted, the Stated Clerk shall recommend that the overture be received and referred to a future session of the General Assembly so that consultation may take place.

~~“(6) (7)~~ In the event that the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly receives an overture similar to one already proposed (excluding the rationale), she or he shall inquire of the presbytery or synod in question whether it would be willing to concur with that existing overture or desires to withdraw the overture. A presbytery or synod concurring with an overture may submit additional rationale for its action, provided that it does not duplicate the rationale provided by the overturning body. The concurrence and any additional rationale will be printed with the original overture in the Reports to the General Assembly.”

2. Amend Standing Rule A.8. by adding a new “(b)” and re-lettering current “(b)–(h)” as “(c)–(i),” so that it shall read as follows:

“(b) Any commissioners’ resolution that affects the investment policy of the denomination or which calls for boycott or divestment in a specific company, country, or region, shall be referred to the Mission Responsibility Through Investment Committee for their recommendation to a future session of the General Assembly through the General Assembly Council.

~~“(h) (i)~~ [Text remains unchanged.]”

Rationale

Changes to investment policies and investment in specific companies are recommended after careful study and consideration of the denominational investment policies, strategies, and portfolios. In the case of boycotts and divestments, recommendations most often are a result of Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) participation in ecumenical entities charged with socially responsible investment. Recommendations to divest from companies, countries, or regions are ordinarily made to General Assembly only after lengthy consultation with ecumenical partners and conversations with the companies involved, shareholder resolutions, and other proactive actions. Divestment and boycott action proposed by presbyteries, synods, or commissioners and acted upon by General Assembly without consideration by the Mission Responsibility Through Investment Committee can impact both the work of our denomination and of our ecumenical partners.

In addition, membership on the MRTI Committee includes representatives of those General Assembly entities responsible for investment of funds (Board of Pensions, Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation, General Assembly Council) and those bodies responsible for mission policy and program and program in the implementation of General Assembly policies and decision. Therefore, referral to MRTI assumes consultation with all the entities most affected by actions for boycott and/or divestment.

Comment on Item 03-09—From the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

Item 03-09 seeks to amend the Standing Rules to assure that overtures or commissioners’ resolutions that involve investment or divestment policies of the PC(USA) be referred to the Mission Responsibility Through Investment Committee (MRTI) for recommendation.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) advises the General Assembly that such referral to MRTI regarding investment and divestment proposals is already built into the General Assembly Standing Rules (A.3.c(5)), which require consultation with the General Assembly entity (e.g. MRTI) whose work is affected by the proposal.

The COGA is a committee of fifteen persons, elected by the General Assembly from across the church, made up of elders and ministers who supervise the work of the Office of the General Assembly.

ACSWP ADVICE AND COUNSEL ON ITEM 03-09

Advice and Counsel on Item 03-09—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy.

Item 03-09 concerns amending Standing Rules A.3.c. and A.8. regarding overtures and resolutions affecting investment policies from the Presbytery of the Twin Cities Area.

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises that Item 03-09 be disapproved.

Rationale

The proposed additions to the Standing Rules are unnecessary and restrictive. In addition to being largely redundant, these additions would limit the freedom of the General Assembly to address issues of moral urgency through all appropriate means, possibly silencing the voice and delaying the action of the church for as long as two years (depending on the meeting schedules of two subsidiary bodies).

If approved, for example, this provision could mean delaying action by the General Assembly and the Committee on Mission Responsibility Through Investment in response to overtures like those on the Sudan/Darfur crisis (Items 11-28 and 11-37), Item 10-08 on licensing critical medical patents, and Item 09-02 on racial and labor issues at the Smithfield packing plants).

Current Standing Rules A.3.c.(2) and (5) and A.8.g. and h. on “Sources of Business for the Meeting” in the Manual of the General Assembly (2006) [see citations below] already provide for comment and consultation with all entities directly affected by any proposal with corporate social responsibility or selective purchasing implications.

The first proposed additions would largely duplicate the following Standing Rules (in addition to those quoted in Item 03-09).

(2) All overtures that have financial implications for current or future years’ budgets must be delivered in writing to the Stated Clerk post-marked no later than sixty days prior to the convening of the General Assembly. Overtures with financial implications not received within the designated time limit shall not be considered, but shall be returned to the originating governing body.

(5) Presbyteries or synods submitting overtures with a recommendation(s) that affects the work or budget of a General Assembly entity(ies) shall submit evidence that the affected entity(ies) has (have) been consulted. If such evidence is not submitted, the Stated Clerk shall recommend that the overture be received and referred to a future session of the General Assembly so that consultation may take place. (Standing Rule A.3.c.(2) and (5) (Submitting Overtures))

The second proposed additions regarding commissioners’ resolutions would add unnecessary limitations on the authority already held by the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overture.

g. If the proposed resolution does deal with new business, the Stated Clerk shall transmit it to the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures with a recommendation for its referral.

Referral Declined

h. The Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures may decline to refer proposed items of new business if it decides that the matters proposed are already before the assembly or that the purpose of the proposals can be reached by the process of amendment and debate. Proposed items of business not referred, whether declined by the Stated Clerk or the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures, shall be identified in the first report of the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures distributed to commissioners after the period docketed for committee meetings, with a brief description of the content and a statement of the reasons for declining the proposed business . . . [Source: Manual of the General Assembly (2006), pp. 5 and 7, Standing Rule A.8.g. and h. (Commissioners’ Resolutions).]

Note: There are further rules applicable to social policy formation in the Manual of the General Assembly that could also be listed that would provide guidance on the matters of social responsibility investments and selective purchasing referred to in Item 03-09.

[The assembly approved Item 03-10. See pp. 47, 48.]

On Maintenance and Reporting for Session Membership Rolls and Registers—From the Presbytery of San Gabriel.

The Presbytery of San Gabriel overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to instruct the Stated Clerk to develop a process that will consider the feasibility of and standards for the alternate maintenance and reporting by a session of its membership rolls and registers.

Rationale

1. Current Situation

The Book of Order (G-10.0302) stipulates and narrowly defines how a local church is to maintain its rolls and registers of members. It is recognized, in our Reformed tradition, that keeping accurate records of our congregations is vitally important to preserve the peace, unity, and purity of the church. However, these record-keeping activities are tedious and time consuming because they are done manually. This is especially true for large and growing congregations, where they result in wasting the time and talent of our human resources.

2. Keeping Up with the Latest Available Information Technology

It is well known that the information age has made it possible to free up (human) resources formerly used for manual bookkeeping and records administration. Freeing up resources for congregations that choose alternate reporting standards will enable a congregation to utilize its personnel, both paid and unpaid, in many circumstances, for other ministry activities and efforts. Moreover, it will help eliminate the practice of maintaining two sets of books, a practice that is very questionable in our society where the highest standards of record keeping are expected.

This will also be more welcoming to those who are technologically savvy and will help us avoid the appearance of irrelevancy.

3. Possible Benefits

Allowing our sessions to take advantage of the latest computer technologies in maintaining its membership rolls and registers will require a review and reevaluation of what is currently stipulated under G-10.0302 covering “Rolls and Registers” and it is not unreasonable to expect the following benefits:

- An improved storage and safety feature for congregation’s records, including safe storage at more than one site so that in a catastrophic event, such as a fire or a flood, that information is not lost.
- A time/talent ecology factor that enables us to use all our resources more wisely thereby providing our denomination with more timely, instant, and specific membership, attendance, and giving statistics. This additional possibility would allow us to identify trends and regionally unique conditions far sooner and more effectively in planning our ministry efforts for the Lord’s Kingdom.

This overture was approved by the Presbytery of San Gabriel at its January 10, 2006, stated presbytery meeting.

[The assembly answered Item 03-11 by the action taken on Item 03-17. See pp. 47, 48.]

On the Historical Foundation at Montreat—From the Presbytery of Charlotte.

The Presbytery of Charlotte overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) of the Presbyterian Church (USA) to do the following:

1. Direct that the Historical Foundation and its board of directors be constituted as a fully independent, self-perpetuating body, and to implement this,

- a. That the current Board of Directors of The Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Incorporated be removed with the adoption of this Resolution; and
 - b. That the Historical Foundation Board of Directors shall then immediately be constituted as directed by the Board of Directors of Friends of the Historical Foundation at Montreat, Inc.
2. Direct that the General Assembly transfer oversight and administration for the Montreat Historical Foundation from the Department of History and the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly to this board of directors that will report thereafter to the General Assembly at its meetings.
 3. Direct that any and all assets of the Historical Foundation, which may have been removed by, delivered to, or placed with any officer, agent, or agency of the General Assembly since 1982, shall be returned to, or remain under, the exclusive custody and control of the Historical Foundation, in care of its governing body as reconstituted in accordance with this resolution; including but not limited to, any endowment, funds, or property of any nature entrusted to its care by any third party, or donated to the Presbyterian Historical Society and placed in or held by its Montreat Office.
 4. Direct that the reconstituted Historical Foundation work cooperatively with the Presbyterian Historical Society in exchange of information and in building a common data base for the collections of materials related to Presbyterian and Reformed history at both institutions, as well as at Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) seminaries.

Rationale

The Historical Foundation at Montreat contains a remarkable and exceptionally rich collection of the materials on the history of the Presbyterian church and its worldwide Reformed tradition and relationships, housing resources that enable Presbyterians to understand the roots of our Presbyterian history.

The Historical Foundation at Montreat has legally existed as a North Carolina nonprofit corporation under the name the Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Incorporated, beginning in 1927 and still existing until the present day, with the legal ownership of most or all of its assets still being lodged in the still existing North Carolina corporation.

The Historical Foundation is the primary place for holding the official records and artifacts of Presbyterianism in the South, including those of governing bodies such as congregations, presbyteries, synods, general assemblies, and their missionary enterprise, but also priceless personal and family records, such as letters, manuscripts, paintings, photographs, tapes, and memorabilia that reflect the life and mission of the church both here and abroad.

The Historical Foundation is the place where Presbyterian Women historians have for years placed annual histories of the life and work of their congregations, in confidence that this unique collection of primary source materials would always be conveniently accessible to their wide regional constituency.

There has been an outpouring of concern protesting the contemplated closing of this Historical Foundation from the spiritual heirs of the Presbyterian missionary enterprise, such as the Presbyterian Church in Korea, the Independent Presbyterian Church of Brazil, and the Presbyterian Church of Congo.

The present facilities of the Historical Foundation are well-designed and eminently suited for their specific purpose, and are visited each year by several thousand persons, including many researchers, scholars and congregational historians.

The Historical Foundation is located on the campus of the Montreat Conference Center, which is the largest conference facility of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and a major gathering place for Presbyterians from across the nation.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly has announced that, because of the ongoing decrease in the per capita income of the Office of the General Assembly, the Historical Foundation should be closed and its holdings distributed between the Presbyterian Historical Society in Philadelphia and Columbia Theological Seminary.

Such an arrangement would destroy a precious heritage that has great potential for the life and ministry of the total church, as well as of partner churches around the world.

The Minutes of the General Assembly of 2004, Part I of the Journal, under the report of the Presbyterian Historical Society and Item 03-24 states that the appointed task force to study the situation of the Historical Foundation will report to the General Assembly in 2006, and that this task force was never allowed to complete its work including making a final report with recommendations and was dismissed before reporting to the 217th General Assembly (2006) by the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

The Friends of the Historical Foundation at Montreat, Inc., a 501(c)(3) nonprofit corporation, is prepared to undertake the support of the Historical Foundation as a self-standing independent institution, relieving the General Assembly of responsibility for its restoration and continuing support.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 03-11

Advice on Item 03-11—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 03-11.

Rationale

Please refer to the rationale provided in the Advisory Committee on the Constitution's advice on Item 03-02.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH (U.S.A.) FOUNDATION COMMENT ON ITEM 03-11

Comment on Item 03-11—From the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation.

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation ("Foundation") holds permanent endowment funds for the Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Incorporated ("Historical Foundation"). The Foundation holds and invests the funds and pays out income in accordance with the direction given by the donor when the funds were established. Many of these funds are charitable trusts or quasi trusts that restrict the use of the income produced by the funds for specific purposes.

The Foundation believes that it would be helpful for the committee, as it considers the various overtures before it, to understand that the permanent endowment funds it holds for the Historical Foundation are controlled in their use and disposition by principles of trust law designed to ensure that these charitable funds are held by the trustee (the Foundation) and used by the beneficiary (the Historical Foundation) in accordance with the donor's wishes as expressed when the trust was created (restriction).

Where a donor has directed that the income from a fund be paid to the Historical Foundation and has expressed no limitation on how that income may be used (no restriction), so long as the Historical Foundation still exists, the Foundation will pay the income from that fund to the Historical Foundation.

Where a donor has directed that the income from a fund be paid to the Historical Foundation and has expressed a restriction on how that income may be used, so long as the Historical Foundation still exists and it is possible to follow the restriction, the Foundation will pay the income from that fund to the Historical Foundation. However, if it becomes impossible for the beneficiary to use the fund in accordance with the restriction, for example:

1. the restriction calls for a particular fund to be used for the maintenance of a building because it houses the church records program and the building no longer houses the church records program; or

then, the Foundation must go to court and ask the court for direction as to how to administer the trust. The Foundation would file a petition for Cy-Pres. Cy-Pres means as nearly as possible. In trust law, it is a rule for the construction of trusts by which the intention of the donor is carried out as nearly as possible when it would be illegal or impossible to give the donor's restriction literal effect. This doctrine makes it possible for the court to accomplish the donor's charitable intent even if it cannot be carried out exactly as specified by the donor.

Therefore, the committee may wish to consider the fact that endowed funds are controlled by the wishes of the donor as expressed when they were created and neither the trustee nor the beneficiary, or an organization controlling the beneficiary (like the General Assembly), can lawfully set aside the restrictions on the funds because it believes it has a better idea for the use of the funds than the donor had. And, even if it becomes impossible to follow the donor's restriction, it is the court and not the trustee or the beneficiary who has the authority to decide how to use the funds. In making that decision, a court will listen to ideas from the trustee or the beneficiary, but the court's role is to figure out how to use the fund in a way that fulfills the donor's intent as nearly as possible.

Comment on Item 03-11—From the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

Items 03-02, 03-03, 03-04, 03-05, and 03-11 in principle propose creating an independent entity to be responsible for the facilities and operations of the Presbyterian Historical Society (PHS) currently located at Montreat.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) advises the General Assembly to answer Items 03-02, 03-03, 03-04, 03-05, and 03-11 by approving the recommendations in COGA's report to the General Assembly on PHS (Item 03-17).

The COGA supports the comment and advice of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution regarding Items 03-02, 03-03, and 03-04 and believes they also apply to Items 03-05 and 03-11. The proposal of an independent entity to carry out archival functions of the church is unconstitutional.

Further, the following Standing Rules of the General Assembly clearly delegate the responsibility for church archives and facilities to the Stated Clerk, the Office of the General Assembly, and the Department of History (PHS):

The Stated Clerk is responsible for maintaining the archives and records management facilities of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), for the supervision of an agency for the preservation of the history of American Presbyterianism, and for the promotion of the study of Presbyterian history. The Stated Clerk shall assure the implementation of a records management program. (Standing Rules of the General Assembly, M.2.b.(13))

The Department of History in the Office of the General Assembly shall be under the direction of a person appointed by the Stated Clerk. The general administration of the Department of History shall be carried out from Philadelphia, which will be the location of the office of the director of the department. The director, with the concurrence of the Stated Clerk, shall determine which functions shall be carried out in Philadelphia and in the department's study center in Montreat, North Carolina. All restricted and other funds contributed to the endowment of the former Department of History of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. or the former Historical Foundations of the Presbyterian Church in the United States are held by the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Foundation, and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), A Corporation. Funds secured after 1983 resulting from development efforts are also placed in accounts with the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Foundation, and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), A Corporation. Funds originally designated for the maintenance of the archival facility at Montreat and the records and memorabilia contained therein will continue to be used for that facility alone. Should that archival function cease at the Montreat facility, all restricted and other funds contributed for that purpose will be held by the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Foundation, and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), A Corporation, and used for the support of the archival facility and program of the Office of the General Assembly by the Department of History. (Standing Rules of the General Assembly, M.2.c.(5))

The board of directors exists to assure that the mission of the Presbyterian Historical Society—to collect, preserve, and share our history—is achieved in the most effective and efficient manner, in faithfulness to God's call and in support of the mission of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). [Referring to the Board of Directors of PHS.] (Standing Rules of the General Assembly, M.3.f.(1))

Therefore, having an independent entity responsible for the PHS facilities and operations at Montreat is contrary to the General Assembly Standing Rules.

The COGA further advises that through action of the 1987 General Assembly, the Historical Foundation of the Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Inc. (Historical Foundation, Inc.) became a Constituent Corporation of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), a Corporation, with the General Assembly Council serving as its board of directors. The 1987 General Assembly also directed that the former operations of the Historical Foundation, Inc. be transferred to General Assembly agencies in a manner consistent with the actions of the 1987 General Assembly. The 1987 General Assembly took several actions in regards to this matter. As to operations, the assembly directed, "The Department of History and the Historical Foundation will be consolidated into one entity called the Office of History effective January 1, 1988. The Office of History will be lodged in the Office of the General Assembly and managed by a Director accountable to the Stated Clerk. The Office of History will be funded through the per capita budget” (Minutes, 1987, Part I, p. 210). The General Assembly has noted this responsibility of the Stated Clerk in the General Assembly Standing Rules as well: “The Department of History in the Office of the General Assembly shall be under the direction of a person appointed by the Stated Clerk. ...” (Standing Rules of the General Assembly, M.2.c.(5)).

The COGA values the past work of the Historical Foundations, Inc. (PCUS), and the continuing work of the PHS to preserve the significant archival collection at Montreat. The COGA also acknowledges the good intentions of the presbyteries submitting overtures relating to PHS at Montreat. However, the basic action requested in these overtures is not consistent with the Constitution or the General Assembly Standing Rules. The COGA’s report to the General Assembly on PHS (Item 03-17) provides an alternative plan to preserve the valuable archives now at Montreat and enhance their use in ways which is in accord with Book of Order and General Assembly Standing Rule provisions, is financially feasible, and which adds benefit to the entire church.

The COGA is a committee of fifteen persons, elected by the General Assembly from across the church made up of elders and ministers who supervise the work of the Office of the General Assembly.

Request 06-4. Request for Authoritative Interpretation Concerning General Assembly Action on Request 99-1 Regarding Payment of Per Capita by Presbyteries—Stated Clerk, Presbytery of Sacramento.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) answer Item 03-12 (ACC Request 06-4) with the following response:

The request asks the General Assembly to speculate as to the broad variety of circumstances and questions as to whether a presbytery has funds available to remit uncollected per capita assessments to the General Assembly. However, an attempt to imagine every conceivable response to such speculation of what might be the consequences of each and every scenario would be futile, and clearly is not within the purview of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

There is also long established precedent for the General Assembly avoiding such conjecture. As early as 1822 the General Assembly declined to address matters in thesi (that is, hypothetically).¹ This was reaffirmed in several cases with different facts.

While the citations in the main illustrate the matters in a judicial setting, the present Advisory Committee on the Constitution is equally reluctant to give advice in thesi for the simple reason that the facts of any constitutional difficulty vary and interpretation needs to be specific as to the facts and the contentions.

The question that is proposed in this current matter asks to clarify language that is clear in its meaning. If a difficulty arises from the ordinary meaning of the words, then that difficulty should be decided on its merits and its facts and not predicated on the conjecture that might arise from anticipating what the difficulty might be.

Rationale

The Council (of the Presbytery of Sacramento) is requesting an authoritative interpretation of the phrase “as long as funds are available within the presbytery (Minutes, 1999, Part I, pp. 65, 107, 16.008–.009, Request 99-1).

The phrase this request seeks to have authoritatively interpreted is part of an authoritative interpretation of G-9.0404d from the 211th General Assembly (1999) (Minutes, 1999, Part I, pp. 65, 107, 16.008–.009, Request 99-1) The phrase in question completes a sentence that is the second question of three that form the request.

The complete response as it appears in the Minutes of the General Assembly, already cited, is as follows:

Request 99-1. Re Payment of the Per Capita Allocation by Presbytery, from the Executive Presbyter/Stated Clerk, Presbytery of Central Florida (Minutes, 1999, Part I, p. 107)

16.002

The Presbytery of Central Florida has submitted three questions to the Office of General Assembly:

16.003

“1. Does a presbytery have the responsibility to pay per capita in the amounts determined by synod and General Assembly regardless of whether the individual churches within the bounds of that presbytery forward to the presbytery money specifically apportioned by the presbytery to the churches to pay the per capita allocations of synod and General Assembly?”

16.004

16.005

G-9.0404d provides that “The presbyteries shall be responsible for raising their own per capita funds, and for raising and timely transmission of per capita funds to their respective synods and to the General Assembly.” [Emphasis added]

16.006

Further, G-9.0404d provides: “The presbyteries may direct per capita apportionments to the sessions of the churches within their bounds. . . .” [Emphasis added]

16.007

Therefore, a presbytery has the responsibility to remit per capita allocations to synod and General Assembly, even though a congregation does not pay the per capita allocated to it by the presbytery.

16.008 [GA approved recommendation, see p. 65.]

“2. If churches refuse to pay their portion, does the presbytery have the responsibility to pay the full amount irrespective to the specific collection from churches, as long as funds are available within the presbytery?”

16.009

16.010 [GA approved recommendation, see p. 65.]

“3. If the presbytery has collected two types of funds from the churches (being Per Capita and General Benevolence) can funds collected under the title General Benevolence be used to pay the Per Capita request?”

16.011

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution recommends that the 211th General Assembly (1999) answer this question as follows:

16.012 [GA approved recommendation, see p. 65.]

A presbytery may use unrestricted funds to pay per capita allocations to synod and General Assembly.

Endnote

1. Digest p. A540

Letter of Request as Received by the Advisory Committee on the Constitution

The Council of Sacramento Presbytery understands that the Presbytery has the responsibility to pay the per capita as stated in G-9.0404d. The Council is requesting an Authoritative Interpretation of the phrase “as long as funds are available within the presbytery” GA (1999, 65, 107, 16.008-.009, Request 99-1).

I understand that the Advisory Committee on the Constitution will need to respond and ultimately General Assembly’s adoption of that response at the General Assembly meeting in June 2006.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Groelle, Stated Clerk

Item 03-13

[The assembly approved Item 03-13, Recommendation 1. See p. 46, 48.]

Joint Report of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) and the General Assembly Council (GAC)—Recommendations Pertaining to the General Assembly Per Capita Budget

1. The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly and the General Assembly Council recommend that the 217th General Assembly (2006) incorporate into the Minutes the 2004 and 2005 Per Capita Apportionment Budget and Statement of Activities, and the Comparative Statement of Financial Position at December 31, 2005.

Rationale

The Per Capita Budget of the General Assembly principally provides for the costs of holding the General Assembly meetings and the expenses of the permanent, special, and advisory committees of the General Assembly, the Office of the General Assembly, facilitating the work of the Stated Clerk (including the historical function), the General Assembly Moderator, the General Assembly Council, the Executive Director's Office, and related expenses of our memberships in ecumenical bodies.

Definition of per capita: Per capita is an opportunity for all communicant members of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) through the governing bodies to participate equally, responsibly, and interdependently by sharing the cost of coordination and evaluation of mission, of performing ecclesiastical, legislative, and judicial functions that identify a Reformed church, while at the same time strengthening the sense of community among all Presbyterians (Minutes, 1995, Part I, p. 301, paragraph 24.003).

Both COGA and GAC have joint responsibility for submitting a budget to be supported by per capita funds to the General Assembly (Minutes 1995, Part I, p. 301). The 216th General Assembly (2004) approved the Proposed Per Capita Budgets for 2005 and 2006. The budget figures presented for 2005 and 2006 included the financial implications of General Assembly actions that were approved on the last day at the 216th General Assembly (2004).

2. That the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly and the General Assembly Council approve and recommend that the 217th General Assembly (2006)

a. approve the Proposed 2007 Expenditure Budget totaling [~~$12,473,683~~] [$12,662,583] and a Proposed 2008 Expenditure Budget totaling [~~$14,954,257~~] [$15,061,674];

Comment: The Stated Clerk consider sending all reports electronically.

[The assembly approved Item 03-13, Recommendation 2.b. See pp. 46, 48.]

b. approve that $1,213,977 be designated from the 2007 per capita budget (about half the cost of the General Assembly meeting), and be reserved for use in the year of the General Assembly meeting (2008).

[The assembly approved Item 03-13, Recommendation 3. as amended. See pp. 55–56.]

3. The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly and the General Assembly Council approve and recommend that the 217th General Assembly (2006) approve a per capita apportionment rate of [~~$5.72~~] [$5.79] per active member for 2007, and that the same rate be effective for 2008, without change.

Rationale

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly and the General Assembly Council continue to be grateful to the whole church for their faithfulness in meeting their per capita obligations (over 98 percent collection rates). We believe that these funds have enabled the General Assembly to carry out its core ecclesial functions so that the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) can carry out its ministry in faithfulness to Scripture and our Constitution.

Building the Per Capita Budgets for 2007 and 2008 continues to be a challenge. The total level revenue is impacted by variables as diverse as stock market fluctuations, hurricanes, and disasters, levels of membership loss, and the ability of presbyteries to fully meet their per capita obligations. However, most of these factors impact the overall per capita budget negatively. On the expenditure side, challenges include added costs because in 2008 the Book of Order calls for increasing the number of commissioners at General Assembly by 200 persons as well as added costs to carry out an assembly on the West Coast.

Given these dynamics, both GAC and OGA faced the reality that major reductions would be necessary unless there was to be a very substantial increase in the per capita rate, which we determined, would create a real hardship in the church. We are, therefore, proposing an increase in the per capita rate of 15 cents (2.7 percent) in 2007 and no increase for 2008 and are making major reductions in expenditures for the next two years.

In order to hold to a minimal increase in the per capita rate, hard choices had to be made relative to staffing levels, the consolidation of the Presbyterian Historical Society, ecumenical expenses, and changes in the funding of ordination exams. We are, therefore, proposing a per capita budget that is slightly less than the budget for 2005–2006, even with inflation and the added mandated costs for things like the increased commissioners for the 218th General Assembly (2008). The details behind these calculations can be found on the attached sheets. We believe that such restraint in the increase in the per capita rate and the expenditure level are necessary for the well being of the church and the fiscal integrity of the Per Capita Budget. We would encourage a similar spirit of restraint by commissioners as you consider other proposals that might have financial implications at the 217th General Assembly (2006).

The shift from conducting annual General Assemblies to biennial General Assemblies, on a trial basis, began in 2004. Since the next General Assembly after 2006 will meet in San Jose, California, during 2008, except for related expenses in 2007 most General Assembly expenses in Schedule-1, have been budgeted to be spent in 2008. However, in order to avoid an awkward budget decrease during the year that there will be no General Assembly meeting, and a steep increase during the year of the General Assembly, about half the cost of the General Assembly meeting budget is shown in the cash flow as a designation in 2005 and reserved to be expended in 2006.

If we had continued the practice of annual General Assembly meetings, on that basis we would have required an additional $2,012,237 at least (cost of General Assembly session 2006, schedule 1), and a total budget of $14,485,920 for 2007. This would have necessitated an increase of at least 80 cents per capita for 2007, or in the alternative would deplete all available reserves above the required minimum, by end 2007.

4. The Committee of the Office of the General Assembly and the General Assembly Council recommend that the 217th General Assembly (2006) approve the attached allocation of designated funds for OGA and GAC task forces totaling $2,094,553 for 2006, $1,918,458 for 2007, and $1,777,571 for 2008.

Rationale

The allocation of designated funds are reserved for specified expenditure planned to augment the per capita budget so that steep increases to the per capita apportionment rate may be cushioned. The primary items include the General Assembly session, conducting ordination examinations, the production and distribution of Office of the General Assembly publications, part of the Presbyterian Historical Society operations, General Assembly Council task forces, and the national pastors conference in alternate years. The sources of these funds are mostly from independently generated revenue, including gifts and endowments.

STATEMENT OF PER CAPITA BUDGET
 Preliminary- Subject to Audit
Actual and Projected Sources of Funding and Expenditures 2004-2008

USING THE FOLLOWING ASSUMPTIONS

- Actual expenditures for 2005 (projected)
- Projected expenditures for 2006, 2007, and 2008.
- Actual apportionments for 2005 are reflected in the apportionment revenue.
- number of members for 2005-2008 is as follows:
 (2005):2,403,851 (2006): 2,361,856 (2007): 2,296,856 (2008): 2,211,856

OPPORTUNITIES:

- Expenditures less than budgeted
- Decline in membership is less than expected

RISKS

- Actual membership declines more than projected.
- Actual expenditures exceed budgeted expenses.
- Impact of church and economic related issues
- General Assembly financial implications
- The level of available funds from reserves (after the 30% provision)

Recommendations in Response to 2004 Referral Regarding an Assembly Committee on Administrative Review.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) answer 2004 Referral: Item 04-18 (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 87) by approval of the following actions:

1. Approve the following authoritative interpretation of G-4.0301f:

Section G-4.0301f must be interpreted in light of the affirmation in G-1.0400 (“Historic Principles of Church Government”) that “a larger part of the Church, or a representation of it, should govern a smaller, or determine matters of controversy which arise therein” Application of this principle requires all governing bodies to defer to the following principles:

a. The specific authority designated to particular governing bodies must be respected. If the authority constitutionally assigned to different governing bodies appears to conflict, the authority assigned the lower governing body shall be interpreted in deference to the authority assigned the higher governing body, recognizing that all powers not specifically assigned other governing bodies reside in the presbyteries.

b. When lower governing bodies make decisions based upon factual judgments they are uniquely in a position to make, higher governing bodies in reviewing such actions should accord great deference to the factual judgments of the lower governing body.

c. When a higher governing body exercises its responsibility of review by either administrative or judicial process, or makes decisions within its constitutionally assigned responsibilities, a lower governing body is not free to exercise its own judgment contrary to the lawful injunctions of the higher governing body.

“b. The reports and recommendations of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly regarding the initial docket of the General Assembly and referrals of business shall be referred to the Assembly Committee on Business Referral, along with any items of business not included in them (see Standing Rules I.4.b.(3) and I.4.b.(4)). Review of the minutes of the synods pursuant to G-13.0103l and of statement(s) of compliance with decisions of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission by governing bodies, reported by the Stated Clerk pursuant to Standing Rule M.2.b.(4), shall be assigned to the same assembly committee. Following the convening of the assembly, such matters shall be directed to the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures.”

3. Reaffirm that in carrying out its responsibility under G-9.0407d(3) to review the minutes of the synods, the General Assembly may incorporate peer review of such minutes by the stated clerks of the synods, but shall not substitute such peer review for its responsibility to read the substance of such minutes both in order to learn of the events in the lives of the synods that warrant celebration and to identify concerns that might warrant further investigation, oversight, or pastoral care.

4. Recommend that in training given to the permanent judicial commissions of all governing bodies in cases in which a remedial complaint is sustained either in whole or in part, the permanent judicial commission should reiterate, as specifically as possible, all actions the lower governing body has been directed to take, even if those directions are set forth elsewhere in the commission’s decision.

5. Direct the Stated Clerk to provide ready, downloadable access to resources the church has developed that may assist Presbyterians in understanding better the interrelationship of governing bodies and the appropriate means of dissent and protest within our Presbyterian polity, including the following:

a. The Reports of the Special Commission of 1925 (Minutes, PCUSA, 1926, Part I, pp. 62–87 and 1927, pp. 56–86);

b. The Report on Doctrinal Loyalty (Minutes, PCUS, 1972, Part I, pp. 195–200);

- c. The Report of the Committee on Pluralism in the Church (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1978, Part I, pp. 290–300);
- d. The Report of Task Force on Polity and Reconciliation (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1979, Part I, pp. 310–19);
- e. The Report on Church Membership and Discipline (Minutes, PCUS, 1979, pp. 135–51);
- f. The Report of the Special Committee on Historic Principles, Conscience, and Church Government (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1983, Part I, pp. 141–58);
- g. The Report on the Confessional Nature of the Church (Minutes, PCUSA, 1986, Part I, pp. 516–27).

[6. The 217th General Assembly (2006) adds as Recommendation 6. the Rationale section below.]

Rationale

These recommendations are in response to the following referral: 2004 Referral: Item 04-18. On Amending Standing Rule G.2.g. and C.7. Regarding an Assembly Committee on Administrative Review—From the Presbytery of Mississippi; Present to the 216th General Assembly (2004) (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 87).

I. Conclusions

Based on the inquiry the Advisory Committee on the Constitution has undertaken in response to this reference, it has drawn the following conclusions:

1. There are few instances of actual defiance of a specific order of a permanent judicial commission within the denomination.

2. While permanent judicial commissions do not have the power to initiate enforcement of a decision on their own, adequate mechanisms exist for the enforcement of such decisions in those apparently rare instances of defiance. These mechanisms include initiation of further remedial process by persons or bodies with standing to do so, the exercise of pastoral oversight by the next higher governing body over governing bodies who refuse to comply with a decision, special administrative review by the higher governing body over governing bodies who refuse to comply with a decision and, in rare cases, the exercise of original jurisdiction over a governing body that persists in refusing to comply with a decision.

3. At times, permanent judicial commission decisions, particularly at synod and presbytery levels, have been less clear than they should be with respect to the actions that the commission is ordering. A lack of clarity in the order entered by a commission can lead to confusion as to whether the directives of the commission were carried out. Training of permanent judicial commissions should assure that the means of compliance are spelled out as clearly as possible.

4. A more significant issue for the church may be the failure to understand and accept the proper exercise of authority by higher governing bodies over lower governing bodies that is perceived by some to exist within the denomination. There is no consensus as to the extent of such refusal to honor the exercise of authority by higher governing bodies. Built into fabric of Presbyterian polity are avenues for dissent and protest. Presbyterian polity, however, also presumes an overwhelming desire for unity on behalf of the denomination's members and, more importantly, its governing bodies. When the desire for unity in the denomination is made secondary to either a refusal to honor the Constitution or the lawful decisions of higher governing bodies, or to a congregationalist mentality, our Presbyterian polity is strained and sometimes broken.

5. Members of the denomination need to take greater care to distinguish legitimate expressions of dissent and protest from noncompliance. Dissent and protest are essential to Presbyterian polity: "In addition to the preservation of the right of individual conscience, the church is aware that the minority voice may be the prophetic voice. 'A man with God is always in the majority' (John Knox, inscription of Reformation Monument, Geneva, Switzerland). As such, the church protects its minority as if it were protecting its future; and such protection becomes a second function of unity of the body." Marianne Wolfe, Parliamentary Procedure in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). Confusion of legitimate expressions of dissent or protest, or efforts to change existing constitutional provisions, with noncompliance, damages the unity of the denomination and makes members less likely to use appropriate means of expressing disagreement with existing constitutional provisions or decisions of higher governing bodies.

6. Oversight by higher governing bodies over the next lower level of governing body within their bounds is intrinsic to Presbytery polity. Current tools for oversight by higher governing bodies over the next lower governing body are sufficient to address issues of noncompliance with the Constitution. These tools include pastoral oversight of congregations or governing bodies who appear to disobey constitutional provisions or decision of higher governing bodies; general and special administrative review; and use of the remedial process. Some, however, perceive governing bodies as reluctant to use these tools for fear of being seen as authoritarian or for fear of irreparably breaking existing relationships. Governing bodies and officers of the church should be reminded that the exercise of oversight by higher governing bodies is not punishment, but rather an intrinsic part of the Presbyterian process of building up and nurturing the whole body.

7. Significant misunderstanding exists about the reports of compliance with General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission decisions delivered by the Stated Clerk to the General Assembly. Such reports originate from the reality that General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission decisions, which presume compliance will be voluntary on the part of lower governing bodies, require the lower governing body to report the fact that the decision has been reported to the governing body and complied with back to the Stated Clerk of General Assembly pursuant to D-7.0701. Compliance reports are not made for purposes of the Stated Clerk taking any steps to enforce such a decision, which is beyond his or her constitutional powers. Likewise, the purpose of the Stated Clerk's compliance report to the General Assembly is not to cause the General Assembly to take action to enforce a decision, but rather because the Stated Clerk, as an officer of the assembly, has the obligation to pass on the information he or she has received in his or her capacity as Stated Clerk.

8. Nevertheless, the General Assembly does have responsibility for oversight of the synods. Such oversight in the first instance occurs through the review of synod minutes. The purpose of such oversight in the vast majority of situations is not to assess whether a synod is in compliance with a General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission decision. In fact, in recent years very few such decisions have ordered synods to take actions themselves to comply with the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). However, in those infrequent situations in which such compliance is an issue, review of the compliance report by the same assembly committee assigned to review synod minutes may cause a more careful review of the synod minutes on this issue.

9. The process of review of synod minutes by the stated clerks of other synods ("peer review") is beneficial in allowing for the exchange of ideas and improving the quality of each synod's minutes. Indeed, such review helps ensure a more careful review of synod minutes than would likely occur by the committee review alone.

10. However, peer review should not be understood to relieve the General Assembly of responsibility for review of the minutes for both joys and concerns. At times, one General Assembly committee has been assigned review of synod minutes, while another was assigned the responsibility to review the Stated Clerk's report concerning compliance with decisions of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission. Assigning both responsibilities to the same committee would allow a more careful review of whether issues of compliance exist. However, it seems impractical given the volume of General Assembly business to assign a committee only these two items of business.

11. Concern about the role of oversight and compliance is not a new issue for Presbyterians. Many excellent resources on the subject have been prepared by past General Assemblies. These include:

- a. The Reports of the Special Commission of 1925 (Minutes, PCUSA, 1926, Part I, pp. 62–87 and 1927, pp. 56–86);
- b. The Report on Doctrinal Loyalty (Minutes, PCUS, 1972, Part I, pp. 195–200);
- c. The Report of the Committee on Pluralism in the Church (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1978, Part I, pp. 290–300);
- d. The Report of the Task Force on Polity and Reconciliation (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1979, Part I, pp. 310–19);
- e. The Report on Church Membership and Discipline (Minutes, PCUS, 1979, pp. 135–51);
- f. The Report of the Special Committee on Historic Principles, Conscience, and Church Government (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1983, Part I, pp. 141–58);
- g. The Report on the Confessional Nature of the Church (Minutes, PCUSA, 1986, Part I, pp. 516–27).

However, it does not appear that, when issues of oversight and compliance arise, these resources are used as often as they should be.

II. The Committee's Process

A. The Assembly Action

Item 04-18 sought to amend the Standing Rules of the General Assembly to create an assembly committee to review the minutes of synods and to create a process for requiring synods to engage in special administrative review if noncompliance with a permanent judicial commission decision is found. The final paragraph of this overture expressed well the concern underlying it:

We can't deny that we live in an age of conflict within our church, much of which revolves around ordination standards. Unless there is a clear method in place of bringing resolution to these conflicts, they will fester, producing more strife and resentment. And unless the church has a method of making sure its governing bodies are in compliance with the Constitution, disobedience and thus disunity will only increase. Oversight is thus critical to ensure the peace, unity, and purity of the church. The best way to continue the troubles in the church is to let the current confusion continue. (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 337)

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution recommended, and the 216th General Assembly (2004) approved, referral of Item 04-18 to the Advisory Committee on the Constitution, based upon the following advice:

Item 04-18 seeks to address concern about compliance with *decisions*¹ issued by permanent judicial commissions in remedial cases, in particular. There are some in the church who believe there is cause for such concern. Apparently for these Presbyterians the processes for monitoring the implementation of permanent judicial commission decisions by lower governing bodies remain unclear or are perceived to be inadequate.

This matter requires referral to the Advisory Committee on the Constitution if any additional constitutional processes for such monitoring are to be developed. The design of any further constitutional processes will require consultation between the Advisory Committee on the Constitution, the Office of the General Assembly, permanent judicial commissions, and middle governing bodies. A healthy and comprehensive plan needs to be articulated if compliance is to be achieved, always with the understanding that "the organization [of the church] is not designed to work without trust and love" (Book of Order, G-7.0103). (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 338)

B. Follow-up After the Assembly

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution preliminarily identified the following questions as part of its review:

1. What is the precise scope of the referral the committee had received and does it in any way limit the response the committee can give?
2. Should the committee's focus be limited to creating a compliance mechanism in the Rules of Discipline or should it consider any changes to the Form of Government?
3. Who should have standing to seek compliance with a permanent judicial commission order?
4. Who should enforce a permanent judicial commission order?
5. What due process should the parties receive in enforcement proceedings?
6. How should the judicial process interface with a presbytery or synod's attempts to gain compliance pastorally or administratively?
7. In extreme cases, should a permanent judicial commission be able to order a higher governing body to take jurisdiction over a lower governing body?

Following the assembly action, representatives of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution met with the moderator of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission at the close of the assembly. In early August, representatives of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution met with the executive committee of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission to ask them to reflect upon the referral the committee had been given. Members of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution met with the executive committee of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission on October 14, 2004, in St. Louis. The Advisory Committee on the Constitution is grateful for the generosity of the members of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission with their time and ideas. This input assisted the Advisory Committee on the Constitution both in the design of its study and in confirming that it was addressing the right questions in responding to this referral.

Apart from gaining input from member of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution decided to hold a session during the 2004 Fall Polity Conference to get input from middle governing body clerks and executives regarding the issues raised and to contact presbyteries that had sent overtures concerning issues of oversight and compliance to previous assemblies. Further, members of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution conducted an extensive review of the issues of oversight and compliance in the history and polity of the denomination.

C. Summary of Feedback Regarding Compliance at Polity Conference

During the 2004 Fall Polity Conference, a 1½-hour program was held to get input from stated clerks and executives concerning the referral. The questions raised and input received from that meeting can be summarized as follows:

1. How many governing bodies have experienced a remedial case in which a permanent judicial commission directed some action be taken (i.e., found an irregularity or delinquency that required remedial action) and compliance was an issue?

Few governing bodies have had any recent remedial cases in which a remedial action was directed. Other than the Session, Londonderry Presbyterian Church, et al. v. Presbytery of Northern New England case (Minutes, 2001, Part I, p. 577), no remedial case was identified in which lack of compliance with a decision of a permanent judicial commission was experienced.

2. Based upon your observations of the larger church, do you perceive compliance with permanent judicial commission decisions by the parties to the case as an issue?

The group distinguished between “decisions” and “orders” of the permanent judicial commission. None believed that lack of compliance with direct orders of the permanent judicial commission by parties was a problem in the denomination. However, a substantial portion of the group believed that there is some noncompliance with the decisions of permanent judicial commissions by those not parties to the case, but subject to the jurisdiction of that permanent judicial commission.

3. How effective do you believe special administrative review to be as a compliance mechanism?

Based on the group’s view that compliance with the permanent judicial commission’s orders was not a significant problem in the church, the discussion focus on whether special administrative review was an effective means of gaining compliance with decision of permanent judicial commissions by those not parties to the cases. Most who spoke believed that special administrative review was not an effective tool to gain compliance with the decisions of permanent judicial commissions and the law of the church because it would destroy relations between the congregation and the presbytery, and because presbyteries lack the will politically to take such a step. (Pastoral oversight was not discussed in detail, but seemed to be seen as a toothless remedy). Several participants suggested that it would be more palatable for the presbytery to be able to bring a remedial case to enforce compliance than to have to seek compliance through special administrative review.

D. Meeting with Representatives of the Presbytery of Mississippi

Members of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution met with the stated clerk of the Presbytery of Mississippi and the overture advocate for the presbytery’s overture on July 18, 2005.² The conversation was thoughtful and extremely helpful in understanding the concerns underlying the presbytery’s overture. The presbytery’s representatives indicated that the presbytery’s concerns originally arose from the Londonderry case, and they were not aware of other cases in which compliance with a permanent judicial commission decision was an issue. However, the presbytery’s representatives did believe that broader issues of compliance with the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) are a serious concern in the denomination, particularly with respect to ordination standards. Moreover, the experience of the presbytery’s overture advocate as a commissioner to the 215th General Assembly (2003) caused the overture advocate and other members of the presbytery to become concerned with the mechanisms for ensuring that the General Assembly performs its oversight function, and in particular for having a clear process for initiating special administrative review. Underlying this concern is a history within the presbytery at the time of reunion of the conflict festering and leading to schism. The representatives of the presbytery saw as a particular problem the issue of how the General Assembly identifies situations in which compliance is an issue absent the concern being brought to the General Assembly. They viewed administrative review as beneficial to the church as an outlet for building up the unity of the church without resorting to the remedial process. Several specific suggestions were offered with respect to the current function of the General Assembly. First, it was suggested that the same assembly committee be assigned review of synod minutes and the Stated Clerk’s report concerning compliance with General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission decisions, and that this committee handle no other business. Second, either the elimination or the curtailment of peer review was seen as important in order to force the assembly committee charged with such review to undertake a substantive review of these minutes. Third, the representatives of the presbytery believed that reports of compliance needed to include more detail, and should be made to both the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly and the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission. Finally, giving the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission continuing jurisdiction to enforce its orders was seen as worthy of more study.

III. The Nature of Oversight and Compliance in the Constitution and Life of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution considered five broad questions in addressing this referral: (1) how are oversight and compliance defined in the Book of Order; (2) how has the issues of oversight and compliance historically been understood in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and its antecedent denominations; (3) what current provisions are there in the Standing Rules of the General Assembly pertaining to oversight of synods and “compliance” with decisions of an assembly or its Permanent Judicial Commission; (4) what have the synods done to develop mechanisms to address potential situations of noncompliance through special administrative review; and (5) how was the case identified by some as the paradigm of noncompliance—Christ Church’s response to the Londonderry decision—ultimately resolved.

A. Oversight and Compliance in the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)

1. Oversight

A fundamental principle of Presbyterian polity is that governing bodies have ecclesiastical jurisdiction “and have no civil jurisdiction or power to impose civil penalties” (Book of Order, G-9.0102a). Jurisdiction of each governing body is limited to the express provisions of the Book of Order, “with powers not mentioned being reserved to the presbyteries, and with the acts of each subject to review by the next higher governing body” (G-9-0103).

Oversight or review by a higher governing body over a lower governing body may take place through a variety of courses:

- a. A higher governing body may initiate pastoral oversight, as prescribed by the Londonderry decision if facts or allegations come to its attention suggesting such oversight is appropriate.
- b. Higher governing bodies routinely engage in general administrative review as provided in G-9.0407 by review of the reports and minutes of governing bodies at the next lower level within their bounds.
- c. A higher governing body may engage in special administrative review pursuant to G-9.0408 if it learns (or believes it has learned) of a delinquency or irregularity on the part of a lower governing body within its bounds.
- d. A person or entity with standing to do so may initiate a remedial action under the provisions of D-6.0000.
- e. In extreme cases, a higher governing body may assume original jurisdiction over a governing body at the next lower level within its bounds.

Each of these options is available to ensure compliance with a specific direction of a permanent judicial commission, as well as more general compliance with the requirements of the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

In all of these action, “[t]he law and government of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) presuppose the fellowship of women and men with their children in voluntary covenanted relationship with one another and with God through Jesus Christ. The organization rests upon the fellowship and is not designed to work without trust and love” (G-7.0103).

Church discipline, as it is reflected in the Rules of Discipline and in the understanding of the whole Constitution, grows out of and is expected to reflect this voluntary covenantal relationship based in trust and love. “[T]he purpose of discipline is to honor God by making clear the significance of membership in the body of Christ; to preserve the purity of the church by nourishing the individual within the life of the believing community; to achieve justice and compassion for all participants involved, to correct or restrain wrongdoing in order to bring members to repentance and restoration; to uphold the dignity of those who have been harmed by disciplinary offenses; to restore the unity of the church by removing the causes of discord and division; and to secure the just, speedy, and economical determination of proceedings. ...” (D-1.0101).

Within the Rules of Discipline, provisions dealing with “enforcement” of judicial commission orders are found in D-11.0801 and apply to disciplinary cases. Sections D-7.0402b, D-7.0402c, D-7.0402d, and D-7.0700 indicate that in remedial cases the signing, communication, reporting, and recording of a judicial decision are sufficient to accomplish its implementation. Section D-6.0000 provides the possibility of initiating a remedial case alleging a delinquency if a judicial commission order is disobeyed. Sections G-9.0407, G-9.0408, G-9.0409, and G-9.0410 provide for administrative review.

It is assumed that members, officers, and governing bodies of the church will abide by lawful orders issued by its permanent judicial commissions.

Provisions for monitoring compliance with a judicial decision order are found not in the Rules of Discipline, but in the Form of Government. Nevertheless, the sentence in D-1.0101 that assures due process applies: “... In all respects, all participants are to be accorded procedural safeguards and due process, and it is the intention of these rules so to provide.”

Further, D-2.0102 states:

The governing bodies of the church for judicial process are the session, the presbytery, the synod, and the General Assembly. The session itself conducts trials. The presbytery, the synod, and the General Assembly conduct trials and hearings through permanent judicial commissions.

As noted in D-2.0102 above, the General Assembly conducts trials and hearings in judicial matters only through its permanent judicial commission. In a case in which it is alleged to the General Assembly that a governing body has failed to implement satisfactorily an order issued by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission, that governing body has a right to due process, which includes a fair hearing. Due process includes a clear notice of the matters at issue, time to prepare and present a reasoned defense, and opportunity to present relevant evidence and testimony. Only after a hearing with due process could findings of fact be made and further orders issued.

2. Compliance

The words “compliance” or “comply” are not defined in the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). The Advisory Committee on the Constitution reviewed the Book of Order, as well as overtures to the General Assembly 1983–2004 and decisions of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission between 1976 to 2003, in order to understand how each conceived the meaning of the term compliance. It found the following:

- Seven provisions in the Book of Order require or excuse compliance with a particular standard: G-9.0706; G-11.0404c; G-11.0406b; G-11.0406c; G-12.0102k; G-12.0204; and G-14.0202a;
- Nineteen instances of the word are found in overtures to the General Assembly between 1983–2004; and
- Seventeen instances of the word in decisions of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission between 1976 to 2003.

Most of the permanent judicial commission decisions cited are remedial cases, dealing with allegations of irregularity or delinquency. In a sense, “compliance” is used as indicating the lack of an irregularity or delinquency, or the cure of an irregularity or delinquency.

In general usage, “compliance” refers to how a person or group is related to a provision, standard, or condition. It is a noun phrase expressing the verb, “comply” with some softening of tone. This verb is a compound of com- (with) and “ply” from the sense of folding into (The Oxford Universal Dictionary). Roget’s Thesaurus (p. 769) suggests that synonyms for “comply” are: “conform, submit, obey, consent, be willing, and observe.” The use of the words “comply” and “compliance” in the Book of Order is consistent with these synonyms, but seem to result from a preference for expressing the understanding in a gentler way than the alternatives.

One tension in the use of the word in the materials cited is whether “compliance” should be understood as a process (“moving toward “compliance”), or a state (“one is either in “compliance” or not in “compliance”). Usage of these last two ways tends toward the static view, while “moving into” or “going toward” suggests a more dynamic understanding. These in turn may reflect whether it deals with an essential or non-essential criterion.

“Compliant” additionally has overtones of power, requiring someone to be pliant. This is a less appealing dimension. “Compliance” thus has a dimension of conformity.

The Preface to the Book of Order, which is not part of the Constitution, but does set forth authoritative interpretations of it, also gives useful guidance related to the mandatory nature of the Book of Order's provisions:

In this Book of Order

- (1) SHALL and IS TO BE/ARE TO BE signify practice that is mandated,
- (2) SHOULD signifies practice that is strongly recommended,
- (3) IS APPROPRIATE signifies practice that is commended as suitable,
- (4) MAY signifies practice that is permissible but not required.

For offices or the church, and the governing bodies made up of such officers, the Presbyterian understanding and usage of “compliance” is derived from the ordination vow, “Will you be governed by our church’s polity? Will you be a friend among your colleagues in ministry....? To “not be in compliance” of an essential aspect of church life endangers one’s faithfulness to this ordination vow, and weakens the fellowship. When a governing body separates its decision making from this ordination vow, it injures the fabric of the whole church.

B. Underpinnings of the Presbyterian Understandings of Oversight and Compliance

Controversy is not new to our Presbyterian community. Numerous resources exist to help in gaining such an understanding,³ including the Report of the Special Committee on Historic Principles, Conscience, and Church Government adopted by the 1983 General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church (the “Historic Principles Report”). Because the important principles reiterated by the report often seem lost in current discussions regarding the state of the church, a reiteration of important segments of these reports is set forth in this section.

A particularly important observation of the Historic Principles report is that controversy is not an aberration in our Presbyterian community, but rather something intrinsic to our means of discerning the will of God:

The polity of Presbyterianism—with its strong insistence on the rule of the majority and the rights of the minority—is indeed the way in which Presbyterians affirm their unity amid their diversity. This polity not only organizes dissent and diversity, it is itself a product of dissent, diversity, compromise, and the creative resolution of bitter conflict.

We are very inclined to the fallacy that trouble in the church is unique to a particular time and to a particular situation. This can lead to the erroneous conviction that if we only were faithful enough or smart enough or tried hard enough, we could solve the church’s problems. ... (Minutes, 1983, Part I, p. 142)

The ... history of the church—in all its branches—is a story of conflict and compromise. Sometimes the conflict has been destructive. Christians must continually live in the tension that occasionally exists between the truth, unity and purity of the church. We pray for guidance, recognizing that “synods and councils may err”; but recognizing the assumption of our polity that governing bodies which conduct their business in accordance with the procedures of our form of government—guaranteeing the rights of every member—are more likely to reflect God’s will for the church than individuals acting in their private capacity or as members of ad hoc, self-appointed groups. (Minutes, 1983, Part I, p. 142)

Presbyterian polity addresses such conflict in its structure of government by on the one hand assigning specific authority and responsibilities to each level of governing body and on the other hand giving higher governing bodies a responsibility for oversight over lower governing bodies. Accordingly, “[t]he powers of the General Assembly are specific, delegated, and limited, having been conferred upon it by the Presbyteries; whereas the powers of Presbyteries are general and inherent.” 1927 Report of the Special Commission of 1925 (Minutes, PCUSA, 1927, Part I, p. 62). Thus, for example, only a presbytery, and not a General Assembly, can ordain a minister of Word and Sacrament. However, higher governing bodies have a right and responsibility of oversight over lower governing bodies. The Historic Principles report identifies the theological basis for this oversight:

Our polity affirms that it is the more inclusive governing bodies which are more truly representative of the diversity of God’s covenant people. Thus they are more likely to reflect accurately the church’s understanding of God’s will than are the less inclusive and inevitably more parochial governing bodies of the church. (Minutes, 1983, Part I, p. 146)

Finally, the Historic Principles report affirms the crucial point that disagreement with an action of a governing body or a provision of the Constitution is not in itself noncompliance. Helpfully, the report identifies five different appropriate responses of an individual who disagrees with an action taken by a governing body:

... After an action is taken by any body, an individual still has guaranteed rights including the following options:

- (1) The right to work for change. Every person can use the processes to rectify an action believed to be in error or to persuade the majority of the body to deal with a neglected issue. No action is permanent. Any action of a governing body can be changed. The Constitution itself can be amended. The history of our denomination shows clearly that such change does take place as members of a minority point of view continue to make their view heard until they persuade others of their position.

(2) The right of dissent, protest, or appeal. When a church body takes an action, individuals may register their disapproval. This dissent is part of the record of the governing body. If an individual believes that an irregularity has been committed by the body, the person has the right of protest or appeal.

(3) The right of passive concurrence. Most actions of church governing bodies do not require that individuals do anything by way of compliance. It is possible to continue to hold a minority point of view after the body has voted. It is not out of order for an individual to make that minority position quite public. When the governing body does require compliance with an action, it is still possible for a dissenting individual to agree to abide by the decision and to fulfill the requirements for action while, at the same time, holding a different position from that of the majority.

(4) The right of active concurrence. It is possible to have one's mind changed by the debate in a governing body. Every member must be open to the possibility that such a change of mind may take place. We pray for the guidance of the Holy Spirit in all our deliberations and actions and ought to be open to the leading of the Spirit. Change is the risk involved in participation in the proceedings of a governing body.

(5) The right of peaceful withdrawal. On some matters, the individual dissenter may not be able to submit passively to an action which involves personal conscience. The matter is too important for the person to submit. The "Form of Government" provides guidance in such a situation by citing in a footnote, the provisions of the 1758 Plan for Reunion. (See footnote to G-6.0108.) Peaceful withdrawal can be made when an individual cannot in good conscience continue membership in the governing body and is able to withdraw without creating schism.

There is always a necessary tension between freedom of one's individual conscience and belonging to any organization. One's personal point of view will most likely not always be that of the larger body. Every person who participates in a governing body must accept the fact that compromise is necessary for any body to function. The church cannot always express the will of each individual member and still take corporate action. Many decisions will involve saying "yes" to some, and "no" to others. The only alternative is for the governing body to delay or avoid making a decision. There are times when delay is a valuable way of avoiding premature decisions, especially when the minority position is held by a fairly large number of people. At other times, however, a decision must be made and the consequences of the decision may be painful. (Minutes, 1983, Part I, p. 149)

The failure to recognize that each of these responses is a legitimate choice a Presbyterian can make is dangerous to our denomination. In particular, suggestions that those seeking constitutional change or engaging in protected forms of dissent or protest are anything but vital to our life together weakens the ties that bind us together, and ultimately makes active non-compliance appear to some no different than legitimate responses to actions those persons find unconscionable.

C. Standing Rule Provisions and Policies Regarding Review of Minutes and Oversight of Lower Governing Bodies by the General Assembly

This referral originates in the concern that the General Assembly lacks sufficient mechanisms to carry out effectively its responsibility for oversight over the synods. Review of the Standing Rules and policies of the General Assembly clarifies the current structures by which the General Assembly carries out such oversight.

Pursuant to G-9.0407d(3), the General Assembly must review the minutes of the synods at least biennially. The process and background by which synod minutes are currently reviewed by the General Assembly was accurately and concisely described in the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly's comment on the Presbytery of Mississippi's overture:

... The guidelines for review of these [synod] minutes are outlined in the Manual of the General Assembly, Guidelines for Reviewing Synod Records, pp. 57-59. The current process was adopted to provide for a more thorough review than previously experienced, while still preserving the responsibility of an assembly committee to conduct this task. This process includes the examination of each set of minutes from a synod being examined using a peer review methodology. Two synod stated clerks who compare findings from their independent reviews read each set of minutes. A report is prepared for the entire group of synod stated clerks with recommendations regarding comments or exceptions. This report is then delivered to the assembly committee assigned responsibility for the review. After examining the recommendations (and minutes, if they choose), the assembly committee then makes final recommendations to the assembly. (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 338)

Separately with respect to decisions of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission, the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly is directed, in Standing Rule G 2g to, "...obtain a statement from the governing body of its compliance and make a full report to the next General Assembly." While this reporting function follows Standing Rule M.2.b.(2), the obligation to "preserve and defend the Constitution..." it does not explicitly connect these two duties. Standing Rule M.2.b.(4) stands on its own, explicitly limiting the requirement to "make a full report to the next General Assembly."

Assignment of the review of synod minutes and of the Stated Clerk's reports of compliance with Permanent Judicial Commission decisions to an assembly committee is made pursuant to General Assembly Standing Rule C.4.b:

a. The reports and recommendations of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly regarding the initial docket of the General Assembly and referrals of business shall be referred to the Assembly Committee on Business Referral, along with any items of business not included in them. Following the convening of the assembly, such matters shall be directed to the Assembly Committee on Bills and Overtures.

The rule does not require review of synod minutes and the Stated Clerk's compliance reports to be made to the same committee.

Finally, Standing Rule K.2., approved by the 216th General Assembly (2004), provides a procedure for instances in which a lower governing body believes special administrative review is necessary:

Special administrative review of an alleged synod irregularity or delinquency may occur when a written request for such review is received by the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly from another synod or a presbytery within the synod of the alleged irregularity or delinquency. If the request relates to an alleged delinquency, the request can only be filed with the Stated Clerk after the failure or refusal of the synod to cure the alleged delinquency at its next meeting, having been requested to do so in writing prior to the meeting. When the request for special administrative review is received, the Stated Clerk shall convene a meeting of the Moderator of the General Assembly, the moderator of the General Assembly Council, and the moderator of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly. If the request is in order and all the moderators agree that for the good of the church the special administrative review needs to be undertaken before the next meeting of the General Assembly (when the request could be considered by the whole General Assembly), the Moderator of the General Assembly shall appoint a special committee ([Standing Rule K.2.]) to conduct a special administrative review in accordance with G-9.0408-.0410 and report its findings and recommendations to the next General Assembly (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 334).

D. Synod Rules and Policies Regarding Oversight of Presbyteries by Special Administrative Review

In 2003, the General Assembly (Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 69, 240) approved a resolution encouraging synods to adopt bylaws or standing rules permitting the appointment of a group to undertake administrative review between meetings of synod. The Advisory Committee on the Constitution has reviewed the bylaws, standing rules, and policies synods have adopted in response to this encouragement, and found that most [all] synods have done so. The approaches synods have taken in drafting such policies offer useful insight into the possible structuring of similar rules for other governing bodies.

E. Findings Regarding Compliance with the Londonderry Decision

Much of the controversy in the denomination concerning compliance has arisen as a result of concerns regarding what actions were taken in response to the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission decision in Session, Londonderry, et al. v. Presbytery of Northern New England. It appears that at least a portion of the concern raised about compliance with that decision rests on misunderstandings of what the decision required of the Presbytery of Northern New England, and what the presbytery did.

It is essential to understand that the respondent in the case was not Christ Church, but the Presbytery of Northern New England. Thus, the order of the Permanent Judicial Commission was directed, and only could be directed, to the presbytery. Just as important, it is necessary to understand the specific direction given the presbytery by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission decision:

. . . [T]he Presbytery of Northern New England [shall] continue to work pastorally with the Session of Christ Church to assist it in fulfilling its obligation to comply with the Constitution. The Presbytery of Northern New England shall notify in writing the Session of Christ Church Presbyterian, Burlington, Vermont of its concern over the stated intention of the Session not to comply with G-6.0106b, and warn it of the spiritual effects and disciplinary consequences of non-compliance. A notation of this correspondence shall be recorded in the Presbytery minutes. (Minutes, 2001, Part I, p. 581)

There can be no doubt that the Presbytery of Northern New England complied with the decision. The full report of the presbytery to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly regarding the order of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission is included in the appendix to this report. Pertinent portions of that report demonstrate this compliance:

Overall, the Pastoral Committee found the November, 2002 statement of CCP [Christ Church] not only to be in order but also remarkable in its clarity and care of expression. The Pastoral Committee did, however, identify several sentences that seemed inconsistent with the statement as a whole, in that they did not clearly state that they are expressions of the Session's opinion and beliefs, subject to review. A representatives [sic] of the Pastoral Committee met with the CCP Session on March 2, 2003. The Session agreed to amend the statement to take into account the concerns of the Pastoral Committee.

At the same time that the Pastoral Committee reports the compliance of the CCP Session with the requirements of the Constitution, the Pastoral Committee thinks it is appropriate, because the focus of our attention is a statement by a governing body, to call attention to a long-standing principle: no session or other governing body is empowered to interpret a constitutional provision in the abstract and for all time. Statements like the one adopted by CCP, though in order, are of limited usefulness, because the proper time to interpret and apply any constitutional provision, including G-6.0106b, is when a particular candidate is being examined for office. The Pastoral Committee trusts that CCP will make the same good faith effort to apply all relevant provisions of the Constitution as it examines those elected to office that it has shown in the preparation of its present statement. It should also be noted that if others differ on how CCP's Session interprets or applies G-6.0106b in a particular case, the Constitution provides both administrative and judicial means to challenge that action.

The Committee is satisfied that CCP's statement, as modified, is a thoughtful attempt to state the Session's understanding, perspective and views. It is our opinion that the statement does not defy or violate the Constitution.

IV. Basis for Recommendations

A. Reaffirmation of the Historic Presbyterian Understandings of the Relationships Between Governing Bodies

As set forth in this report, the historic relationship between governing bodies is one in which more inclusive bodies have oversight responsibilities with respect to the immediately lower governing bodies within their bounds. Such oversight is founded on the theological premise that "more inclusive governing bodies which are more truly representative of the diversity of God's covenant people ... are more likely to reflect accurately the church's understanding of God's will than are the less inclusive" governing bodies. The responsibility for oversight is not an excuse for higher governing bodies to usurp the authority delegated or reserved to lower governing bodies. Conversely, however, the failure to engage in appropriate oversight diminishes the community by diminishing our sense of responsibility to one another.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution believes that reaffirmation of the oversight function is important in the current climate of the denomination. Too frequently the relationships of governing bodies in the denomination are described in Congregationalist rather than Presbyterian terms. The General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission, perhaps unintentionally, contributed to the confusion in the following statement in the A. Kirk Johnston, et al. v. Heartland case (to be published in the Minutes, 2006, Part I, Remedial Case 217-2): "While the Book of Order refers to a higher governing body's 'right of review and control over a lower one' (G-4.0301f), these concepts must not be understood in hierarchical terms, but in light of the shared responsibility and power at the heart of Presbyterian order (G-4.0302)." This statement, at best, is imprecise, and at worst might be understood as, for all practical purposes, eliminating the oversight responsibilities of higher governing bodies. The Advisory Committee on the Constitution believes that the proposed authoritative interpretation will correct such potential misunderstandings of the fundamental relationship between governing bodies.

B. Clarification of Assignment of "Compliance Related" Business to General Assembly Committees

The Presbytery of Mississippi suggested, based on its commissioner's experience, that it may at times be useful to have a synod's minutes in reviewing the State Clerk's compliance reports to understand further the context of actions taken and whether compliance with a General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission decision was indeed accomplished. While there frequently will be no relationship between the review of synod minutes and of compliance reports, and the proper avenue for action is in review of the synod minutes rather than in review of the compliance report, the suggestion makes sense in instances in which the compliance report may be useful in assessing a synod's minutes. Accordingly, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution has suggested a change to the Standing Rules of the General Assembly that would accomplish that goal.

C. Clarification of the Appropriate Scope of Review of Synod Minutes

This recommendation is intended to reaffirm that the review of the substance of synod minutes by the General Assembly is an important part of our polity. Peer review of minutes is valuable—it allows stated clerks both to bring their expertise to bear on the review of minutes and allows clerks to learn from one another in the review process. However, peer review should not be a substitute for a substantive review of the minutes by the General Assembly itself.

D. Clarification of Permanent Judicial Commission Orders

It is important that a governing body directed to take an action by a permanent judicial commission have clarity as to what is expected of it. Virtually all decisions of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission have a clear statement of what is required for the respondent governing body to comply with the decision. It appears that such clarity may at times be lacking in the decisions of synod and presbytery permanent judicial commissions. This recommendation regarding training is intended to remind such commissions of the importance of such clarity.

E. Resources Regarding the Interrelationship of Governing Bodies and the Appropriate Means of Dissent and Protest Within Our Presbyterian Polity

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution was aided greatly by the existing resources the denomination has developed regarding issues of oversight and compliance. Indeed, this report draws heavily on those resources, and represents a reaffirmation rather than a rethinking of the conclusions those resources offer. However, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution has observed little use of those resources in the denomination's debate of these issues. These materials, for the most part, are available through the on-line version of the Annotated Book of Order, but many Presbyterians are not familiar with how to use this resource. Providing ready access to these key documents can only enhance the health of the denomination in these times.

Endnotes

1. Emphasis added for reasons discussed below.
2. Invitations were extended to two other presbyteries that had sent overtures arising out of the Londonderry case. One of these presbyteries, through its stated clerk, indicated that its overture had already been addressed. The other did not respond to the invitation to meet.
3. See the list provided in paragraph 11 of the Conclusions set forth above.

APPENDIX

REPORT OF THE PASTORAL COMMITTEE Presbytery of Northern New England March 8, 2003

The Pastoral Committee of the Presbytery of Northern New England has continued to exercise its responsibility to work on behalf of the Presbytery with the session of the Christ Church Presbyterian (CCP) of Burlington VT, as required by the Londonderry decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the General Assembly. In that decision, the General Assembly-Permanent Judicial Commission directed the Presbytery to work pastorally with CCP in assist it in fulfilling its obligation to comply with all provisions of the Constitution, including G-6.0106b, the section that the Session had earlier announced, in public statements that it would ignore.

In June, 2002, CCP informed the Presbytery that it had set aside the earlier statement. In November, 2002, it issued a new statement. This statement has caused considerable comment, including charges in the press that the Session of CCP has "defiantly" claimed to be a law unto itself.

With the Londonderry decision and these accusations in mind, the Pastoral Committee met on February 2003, to study the November statement of the CCP session. The Committee concluded that almost all of the statement falls within the boundaries of Presbyterian Church (USA) Constitution. The statement acknowledges the authority of the Constitution, the courts of the church, the Presbytery, and the Pastoral Committee acting on behalf of Presbytery. It states that CCP has found that it can comply with G-6.0106b, the provision it earlier said it would not apply.

The bulk of the statement is an interpretation of G-6.0106b. Interpretation is an activity that the Londonderry decision not only permits but requires. Indeed, it is a regular duty of decision-making bodies in a constitutional system. In carrying out that duty, any governing body may make statements about how it believes the Constitution should be interpreted. As these interpretations are put into practice in making actual decisions, they may be reviewed by higher judicatories. CP, by acknowledging that it has been instructed by the Assembly, the Synod's and Assembly's judicial commissions, the Presbytery, and the Presbytery's Pastoral Committee, seems well aware that its right to interpret the Constitution is subject to the authority of other bodies within the PC(USA).

Overall, the Pastoral Committee found the November, 2002 statement of CCP not only to be in order but also remarkable in its clarity and care of expression. The Pastoral Committee did, however, identify several sentences that seemed inconsistent with the statement as a whole, in that they did not clearly state that they are expressions of the Session's opinion and beliefs, subject to review. A representatives of the Pastoral Committee met with the CCP Session on March 2, 2003. The Session agreed to amend the statement to take into account the concerns of the Pastoral Committee.

At the same time that the Pastoral Committee reports the compliance of the CCP Session with the requirements of the Constitution, the Pastoral Committee thinks it is appropriate, because the focus of our attention is a statement by a governing body, to call attention to a long-standing principle: no session or other governing body is empowered to interpret a constitutional provision in the abstract and for all time. Statements like the one adopted by CCP, though in order, are of limited usefulness, because the proper time to interpret and apply any constitutional provision, including G-6.0106b, is when a particular candidate is being examined for office. The Pastoral Committee trusts that CCP will make the same good faith effort to apply all relevant provisions of the Constitution as it examines those elected to office that it has shown in the preparation of its present statement. It should also be noted that if others differ on how CCP's Session interprets or applies G-6.0106b in a particular case, the Constitution provides both administrative and judicial means to challenge that action.

The Committee is satisfied that CCP's statement, as modified, is a thoughtful attempt to state the Session's understanding, perspective and views. It is our opinion that the statement does not defy or violate the Constitution.

The Committee asks that Presbytery accept this report, forward it to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly as the final report on the Presbytery's compliance under the Londonderry decision, record that its work has been completed, and dismiss the Committee.

The Pastoral Committee: Elder B. J. Lates, chair, Elder Daryl Johnson, Elder Katherine Lynn, Elder Deborah Malone, Elder Kay Shields, Elder Herbert Spencer, Rev. John Van Ness, and Rev. Dwight White.

[The assembly approved Item 03-15. See pp. 46, 48.]

The Committee of the Office of the General Assembly recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) amend Standing Rule H.2.b. [old Standing Rule G.1.] as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic. Explanations for the changes are in brackets as an editor's note and are not a part of the Standing Rule.]

"b. Election of the Stated Clerk

"(1) The Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) requires the election of a Stated Clerk and the standing rules describe the procedures for the election. The Stated Clerk of the General Assembly shall be elected for a term of four years and is eligible for reelection to additional four-year terms. The Stated Clerk is accountable to the General Assembly for the performance of the assigned functions.

"(2) The Stated Clerk of the General Assembly shall be elected in the manner described in this standing rule. No member of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly or other persons involved in this procedure as a member of the search committee or as a person providing staff services to the committee may be considered for nomination as Stated Clerk. The incumbent Stated Clerk may not participate in any way in the election process described in this standing rule. In the year there is an election of a Stated Clerk, the Moderator shall appoint a temporary Stated Clerk during the period of the election at the General Assembly.

"(3) The General Assembly that meets prior to the end of the term of a Stated Clerk shall elect a Stated Clerk ~~Review/Nomination~~ Committee. [Note: The committee's task is to nominate. Reviews of the sitting Stated Clerk will be conducted by the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly. The Stated Clerk Nominating Committee should not be burdened with this task, but only focus on the qualifications of the candidates.]

"(a) The slate of nominees for the ~~review/nomination~~ committee shall consist of the following: three members of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (nominated by the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, one of whom shall serve as moderator of the committee), one member of the General Assembly Council (nominated by the General Assembly Council), and five at-large members nominated by the General Assembly Nominating Committee in the following categories: one governing body stated clerk and four persons (two elders and two clergy) from among commissioners who have attended an assembly in the past six years. The General Assembly Nominating Committee shall present to the assembly for election the slate of nominees for the Stated Clerk ~~Review/Nomination~~ Committee. The slate presented shall reflect the denomination's commitment to inclusiveness.

"(b) Nominations from the floor for the ~~review/nomination~~ committee shall be in order following the distribution of the printed list of proposed nominees by the General Assembly Nominating Committee and a declaration by the Moderator that the names are in nomination. Names placed in nomination from the floor shall be in opposition to a particular name of an at-large member placed in nomination by the General Assembly Nominating Committee, and must be in the same category (H.2.b.(3)(a)). More than one person may be placed in nomination from the floor in opposition to an at-large nominee. [Note: The addition of "same category" is to assure there is no change in representation.]

"(c) The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly shall be responsible for providing the ~~review/nomination~~ committee with an up-to-date position description.

~~“(d) The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly will ensure that an adequate budget for the review and nomination process is provided in the Office of the General Assembly and shall designate staff services for the Stated Clerk Review/Nomination Committee.~~

~~“(e) The review/nomination committee shall begin its work within sixty days of the close of the assembly in which it was elected; no later than 300 days before the start of the assembly that will elect the Stated Clerk. [Note: This change is to accommodate the change to biennial assemblies.]~~

~~“(f) The review/nomination committee Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, once established, shall be responsible for conducting the end-of-term evaluation of the Stated Clerk. [Note: This places the responsibility for the Stated Clerk’s review with the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.]~~

~~“(i) The Stated Clerk shall declare his or her intention to be renominated no later than one hundred and eighty days before the beginning of the opening of the General Assembly.~~

~~“(ii) The review/nomination committee shall declare its intention to nominate or to not nominate the incumbent Stated Clerk no later than one hundred and fifty days before the opening of the General Assembly.~~

~~“(iii) The committee will receive other applications for the position of Stated Clerk.~~

~~“(g) In the event that the Stated Clerk chooses not to be nominated for another term, or the committee chooses not to nominate the incumbent Stated Clerk for reelection, then the committee shall proceed with the responsibility to conduct a search, including the recruiting, receiving applications, screening, interviewing, and selecting a candidate for Stated Clerk to nominate to the next assembly. The nominating committee shall announce that persons seeking the position of Stated Clerk shall file a completed application form and a resume or personal information form (PIF) with the committee 180 days before the opening of the General Assembly. [Note: This change is to assure that each candidate is given exactly the same consideration by the nominating committee.]~~

“If the incumbent wants to be considered, he or she will notify the committee in writing and submit a current resume or PIF 180 days before the opening of the General Assembly. The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly shall provide a copy of the end-of term evaluation to the Stated Clerk Nominating Committee.

~~“(h) Each applicant will provide the committee, no later than one hundred and twenty days before the opening of the General Assembly, with a completed application form (a form designed in advance by the Search Committee for a Stated Clerk) and letters of reference or recommendation. Additional written material may be requested by the committee. No one may be nominated to serve as Stated Clerk who has not provided an application to the committee.~~

“(i) The committee shall review and evaluate all applications to determine the constitutional eligibility of the candidates. Any candidate who is determined to not be eligible will be notified in writing within forty-five days of receipt of their resume or PIF.

“(j) The committee shall interview all eligible candidates using the same methodology and select one as the committee’s recommendation. All members of the committee shall ordinarily participate in the interview. (†) The committee shall declare its nominee no later than sixty days before the opening of the General Assembly.

~~“(†) (k) Any of the applicants for the position of Stated Clerk, including the incumbent Stated Clerk if not the nominee of the committee, who wish to be placed in nomination against the nominee of the committee shall declare their intention to the committee to do so no later than forty-five days before the opening of the General Assembly.~~

~~“(i) A photograph, a biographical sketch, a personal statement by the candidate, including a statement regarding the candidate’s sense of call to the office.~~

~~“(ii) The responses of the candidate to a questionnaire developed by the committee based upon issues that will be before the church as presented in business to be considered by the General Assembly.~~

“(iii) The material submitted shall be typewritten on paper 8-1/2 x 11 inches in size. The layouts for the presentation under this standing rule (as outlined above) may be chosen by the candidates, but the copy submitted for each presentation shall be provided in one color on one side of one sheet. The material shall be submitted to the Office of the General Assembly no less than thirty days before the convening of the General Assembly for reproduction and distribution and shall be accompanied by a statement indicating the willingness of the candidate to serve as Stated Clerk, if elected.

[Note: The following changes are in recognition of the fact that the position of Stated Clerk is a calling, and not a popularity contest. Commissioners are entitled to and should receive the same unbiased information for each candidate.]

“(m) The candidates may not distribute any other materials, print or electronic, including flyers, buttons, tokens or other objects that would denote a campaign for the office of Stated Clerk.

“(n) Other organizations supporting the candidacy of a particular candidate may not distribute materials electronically, through the mail, or at the General Assembly with the knowledge, support, or permission of that candidate. Should a candidate discover that an organization is advocating or campaigning for him or her, it is expected that the candidate will request that organization to cease its activities. The same expectation will be true of organizations that are critical of a particular candidate for Stated Clerk.

“(o) Each candidate will be provided a place to meet and talk with commissioners and advisory delegates two days before the election. Only information provided by the Office of the General Assembly may be distributed in those rooms. Other materials, apart from that packet, are not permitted. Each candidate for Stated Clerk will be allowed to post the times when he/she will be available for conversation in that room.

“(p) Any questions concerning interpretation of the election process outlined in H.2.b. shall be determined by the Stated Clerk Nomination Committee.

“(4) ~~The election of General Assembly, by majority vote, shall elect the Stated Clerk will take place~~ in the following manner: [Note: Clarifies that the General Assembly votes.]

“(a) Within forty-eight hours of the convening of the assembly, the Stated Clerk ~~Review~~/Nomination Committee shall place in nomination a single nominee.

“(b) The Moderator shall then invite other nominations from the floor from those who have completed the nomination process. Only one speech, made by a commissioner or a member of the Stated Clerk Nomination Committee not to exceed five minutes in length, shall be made to nominate each nominee. There shall be no speech seconding any nomination. Each person nominated from the floor shall reaffirm a willingness to serve as Stated Clerk, if elected. [Note: Assures that only candidates who have been certified by the General Assembly Nominating Committee as constitutionally eligible may be nominated. H.2.b.(3)(i).]

“(c) In the event there are no other nominations from the floor, the election shall proceed immediately as follows:

“(i) The nominee for Stated Clerk shall be given an opportunity to address the assembly for a time not to exceed five minutes, expressing the nominee’s views regarding the functions and work of the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

“(ii) The Moderator shall inquire of commissioners whether there are questions to be asked of the Stated Clerk ~~Review~~/Nomination Committee. Time allocated shall not exceed fifteen minutes. The Moderator shall inquire of commissioners whether there are questions to be asked of the nominee for Stated Clerk. The time allocated should not exceed fifteen minutes, after which the voting shall take place. ~~The election shall be by majority vote.~~

“(i) The election of the Stated Clerk shall take place as the first order of business on the next to last day of the assembly’s session.

“(ii) Each nominee shall be given an opportunity to address the assembly for a time not to exceed five minutes, expressing the nominee’s views regarding the functions and work of the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly. The nominees shall speak in the same order as the presentation of nominating speeches.

“(iii) The Moderator shall inquire of commissioners whether there are questions to be asked of the nominees for Stated Clerk. The first question shall be addressed to the nominee who was nominated first and the same question shall then be put to the other nominees in the same order in which they were nominated. The second question shall be directed to the second nominee in this order and then to each of the other nominees in sequence. Each nominee shall be afforded an opportunity to answer each question. This process shall continue for a period not to exceed the number of nominees times fifteen minutes, or for one hour, whichever is shorter, unless terminated earlier by vote of the General Assembly, after which the voting shall take place.”

“(5) Should there be a vacancy in the office of the Stated Clerk, the General Assembly Nominating Committee shall propose to the assembly, if the assembly is in session, members for the Stated Clerk ~~Review/Nomination~~ Committee, or shall propose to the Moderator for appointment, if the assembly is not in session, to a Stated Clerk ~~Review/Nomination~~ Committee. This committee shall be composed of members as outlined in Standing Rule H.2.b. and begin the process of a search for a candidate for Stated Clerk. The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly shall designate an acting Stated Clerk until such time as a Stated Clerk is elected.

“(6) The Stated Clerk ~~Review/Nomination~~ Committee shall be dismissed at the adjournment of the session of the General Assembly at which the committee presents a nominee for Stated Clerk.

“(7) A new Stated Clerk shall normally assume office thirty days after ~~at~~ the adjournment of the assembly. ~~with a longer period of transition between Stated Clerks to~~ may be negotiated by the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, but shall not exceed ninety days.”

Rationale

This recommendation is in response to the following referral: 2004 Referral: New Business. COGA to Investigate the Integrity, Openness, Fairness of the Stated Clerk Electoral Process; Results to Be Included in “Continuing the Journey,” Any Recommendations Concerning the Stated Clerk Election Process Be Brought to the 217th General Assembly (2006). (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 64).

The Committee of the Office of the General Assembly regularly reviews the Stated Clerk election procedures in the Standing Rules of the General Assembly after each election. This review was additionally necessitated by the biennial assembly timelines. The review pointed out areas that needed clarity, areas that needed to be updated, and areas that needed to be adjusted to the new assembly cycle. The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) recommends these changes to the General Assembly for its approval.

The specific action asked by the 216th General Assembly (2004) was for COGA to investigate the integrity, openness, and fairness of the Stated Clerk’s electoral process held during that assembly. The COGA undertook such a review and found that the electoral process was fair and open and done in compliance with all relevant Standing Rules of the General Assembly. This was reported to the commissioners of the 216th General Assembly (2004) in the spring issue of the “Continuing the Journey” newsletter.

In carrying out the review, COGA looked at the whole Stated Clerk nomination and election process and makes the recommendations above to clarify and improve the process. The Stated Clerk Election Review Committee (SCERC) reviewed all related correspondence from commissioners, advisory delegates, candidates, observers, and the Office of the General Assembly. The SCERC also reviewed a videotape of the election.

Questions regarding the openness and fairness of the election were sent to more than 100 commissioners and advisory delegates, and all four candidates. Responses were received from thirty-eight commissioners and advisory delegates, and three candidates.

The dominant response was that the election was open and fair. There is no evidence on the videotape that the election was not open and fair. In the correspondence there was some concern about a list of prepared questions. The investigation showed that these questions were fair, open ended, and did not give any one candidate an advantage over the others. This list of questions was available to all commissioners and advisory delegates.

There was some concern about anonymous papers with negative comments being left in commissioners’ or advisory delegates’ mailboxes. Unfortunately these mailboxes, like our home mailboxes, are subject to unwanted flyers.

[The assembly disapproved Item 03-16. See pp. 46, 48.]

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) do the following:

1. Amend Standing Rule B.2.a. as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“a. Advisory delegates are persons who are active members in one of the constituent churches or governing bodies of the General Assembly (or, in the case of ecumenical advisory delegates, of a denomination of Christians designated by the General Assembly) who are selected to attend the meeting of the General Assembly in an advisory role so that the assembly may be assured of hearing and taking cognizance of their special viewpoints. Advisory delegates shall complete their registration forty-five days before the opening of the General Assembly. In order to be enrolled and seated no replacements for advisory delegates may be made after this date.”

2. Amend Standing Rule B.2.d.(1) as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“(1) Each presbytery shall appoint an active member of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), who shall be between the ages of ~~seventeen~~ eighteen and ~~twenty-three~~ twenty-eight years on the date the General Assembly convenes, to be a youth advisory delegate.”

These recommendations are in response to the following referral: 2004 Referral: Item 03-13. On Amending Standing Rule A.2. Regarding Advisory Delegates—From the Presbytery of Minnesota Valleys (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 46, 184).

Registration deadlines are necessary to make sufficient arrangements for but not exclusive to rooming, airfare, and travel costs, as well as registration, training, and facility arrangements. A registration deadline provides a clear understanding of when preparations for the General Assembly should be completed by advisory delegates. The deadline for replacing advisory delegates gives sufficient and clear notice when the electing or appointing body should make substitutions.

The age limits for youth advisory delegates has been set at 17–23 for several years. This category was created to give voice to the young adult population in the Presbyterian church, primarily aimed at college students. However young adults compose a much broader section of the church than college students. The members of our congregations that are generally considered young adults comprise a variety of people who may be in college but who also may be in the workforce or both. Based on that broader understanding, COGA is recommending that the age group be changed to include young adults between the ages of 18 and 28.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) approve the following recommendations:

1. Celebrate the long and faithful stewardship of the archives and historical collections of the Presbyterian church at the Presbyterian Historical Society (PHS) facility in Montreat, North Carolina.

2. Celebrate the establishment of the Program for the Study of Presbyterian and Reformed History and Theology at Columbia Theological Seminary, which will include educational opportunities at Columbia and Montreat.

3. Direct Montreat Conference Center, Columbia Theological Seminary, and the Friends of Montreat to work together to develop creative programs and resources at both Montreat Conference Center and Columbia Theological Seminary.

~~[3-]~~ [4.] Celebrate the future use of the Montreat facility as part of the ministry of the Montreat Conference Center while maintaining an exhibit hall for historical artifacts.

~~[4-]~~ [5.] Acknowledge the sadness on closing the Montreat facility felt by Presbyterians who live in the southeast and have a strong attachment to the presence of the PHS in Montreat.

~~[5-]~~ [6.] Acknowledge the legal and Book of Order responsibilities the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has for the denominational records of the PC(USA) and its antecedent denominations, including the United Presbyterian Church of North America, the United Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, and the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

~~[6-]~~ [7.] Encourage every congregation, presbytery, and synod to make careful and adequate provisions for the long-term preservation of their historic papers and records.

Rationale

These recommendations are in response to the following referrals:

2004 Referral: Item 03-11. On the Montreat Historical Center—From the Presbytery of South Louisiana (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 46, 178).

2004 Referral: Item 03-24. On Directing OGA to Develop Long-Range Plan for the Department of History to Provide for Regional Historical Centers—From the Presbytery of Western North Carolina (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 46, 214).

Several years ago, the Presbyterian Historical Society (PHS) recognized the challenges of collecting, preserving, and sharing the historical records of our church in the 21st century—working with persons used to instant electronic access to records; caring for an ever-increasing volume of records from all governing bodies of the church, as well as family and individual records; increased costs of preserving archival records in the midst of decreasing per capita funds to support these efforts. In view of these challenges, PHS asked two independent consultants to make recommendations that would better enable PHS to carry out its mission to the church. The consultants' report in 2001 included recommendations relating to governance, funding, location, and consolidation of facilities and technology. Through the follow-up work of two task forces appointed by the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA), several actions have been taken to strengthen and enhance the ministry of PHS for the church.

In particular, the consultants' report questioned the long-term viability of maintaining facilities and personnel at multiple sites (primarily Philadelphia and Montreat) for both financial and future effectiveness reasons. One of the COGA task forces focused on the consolidation issue and recommended an alternative way of maintaining the Presbyterian history presence in Montreat through the formation of a Center for the Study of Presbyterian and Reformed History and Theology at Montreat to be run by Columbia Theological Seminary (CTS). Such a center would create an educational program to help make Presbyterian history come alive for this and future generations, preserve archival records, and at the same time enable consolidation of PHS facilities and personnel.

Based on this recommendation and working closely with CTS and the Montreat Conference Center (MCC), the financial feasibility of establishing such a center in Montreat was explored. Unfortunately, the results of this feasibility study indicated that the resources needed to carry out this venture in Montreat were not likely available.

At its meeting in September 2005, COGA made the decision to close the Montreat (North Carolina) office of the PHS at the end of 2006 as one further step in a larger, multiyear process to look at the PHS in an effort to improve its effectiveness for the 21st century. At the same time, COGA asked the Board of Trustees of CTS to consider the possibility of operating a program for the Study of Presbyterian History and Theology using Columbia's facilities and library in Decatur, Georgia, with educational components at CTS and Montreat. Although not the same as the task force proposal, the current plan incorporates many aspects of the original recommendation: consolidating PHS staff and facilities, a program centered on Presbyterian history run by CTS, history educational offerings and ongoing museum exhibits at Montreat, and keeping middle governing body and informal church archival records in the region.

This decision of COGA has, understandably, been particularly painful for Presbyterians who live in the southeast and have a strong attachment to the presence of the PHS in Montreat, and for many individuals, congregations, presbyteries, and synods that have records and archival material in that office.

Representatives from CTS and PHS have been meeting to determine what records and materials will go to the seminary's campus in Decatur, Georgia, and what will go to the PHS office in Philadelphia. The process will involve taking into consideration both the ecclesiastical, custodial obligations PHS has from the church's Book of Order, and ownership issues surrounding the remaining materials that include library volumes, personal papers, and historical artifacts.

The Book of Order offers guidance in this process. Section G-9.0406 (Ownership of Records) states, "Minutes and all other official records of church sessions, presbyteries, synods, and General Assemblies are the property in perpetuity of said governing bodies or their legal successors. When congregations, synods, or presbyteries are dissolved, their records are held for them by the next higher governing body within whose bounds they were before dissolution. All minutes and other official records of existing and dissolved sessions, minutes and other official records of existing and dissolved presbyteries and synods that are no longer required for frequent reference, are to be deposited for preserving and servicing with the Department of History [Presbyterian Historical Society] or in a temperature and humidity controlled environment of a seminary of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). It is the responsibility of the clerk of each governing body to make recommendation to that governing body for the permanent safekeeping of the governing body's records. All governing bodies are strongly encouraged to microfilm their official records."

[The assembly approved Item 03-18. See pp. 46, 48.]

The Committee on the Office of General Assembly recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) direct the Office of the General Assembly to require all nonprofit organizations that request exhibit space in the General Assembly Exhibit Hall to provide the information outlined below before the request is approved. Failure to provide all of the requested information in a timely manner, as determined by the Office of the General Assembly, will result in denial of exhibit hall space. This information will be filed in the General Assembly office during the assembly meeting and made available for review for those who request it. The following categories of organizations will be exempt from providing the information: the entities of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and their divisions, program areas, committees, etc.; middle governing bodies of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.); and conciliar bodies to which the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) relates in ministry and mission.

Unless exempted, any nonprofit organization requesting exhibit hall space is required to provide

1. Name of the organization.
2. Contact information.
3. Statement of purpose or mission statement.
4. If PC(USA) related, number of synods represented in governing board membership.
5. If a membership organization, number of members.
6. List of current directors or governing board members, and officers including name, address, and religious affiliation.
7. Statement of income and expenses for each of the past two fiscal years, including figures for the following line items: income (contributions, gifts, and grants received; membership dues and assessments; investment income; net rental income; net gain from sale of assets; other income) and expenses (grants and assistance paid; employee and director compensation, benefits, and taxes paid; professional fees—accounting, legal, fundraising, etc.; office—rent, supplies, and equipment; travel; other expenses).

Rationale

These recommendations are in response to the following referral: 2004 Referral: Item 03-21. Direct the COGA to Study the Directives of the Four Most Recent General Assemblies Concerning Affinity Groups or Special Interest Organizations; Bring Recommendations to the 217th General Assembly to Define/Provide Requirements of Such Groups (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 47, 210).

This action replaces the following actions taken by previous assemblies:

- 2000 Referral: Overture 00-49. On Campaign Finance Reform in Society and in the Church—From the Presbytery of Hudson River (Minutes, 2000, Part I, pp. 51, 424).

- Alternate Resolution to 2001 Referral: Commissioners' Resolution 01-23. On the Dissemination of Annual Reports by Special Interest Organizations (Minutes, 2001, Part I, p. 22, 499).
- 2002 Referral: Item 03-12. Commissioners' Resolution 02-2. On Requiring Nonprofit Data from Organizations (Minutes, 2002, Part I, pp. 42, 197).
- 2003 Referral: On Requesting the Office of the General Assembly to Publish at Each Assembly a Definition of "Affinity Groups" and a Complete List of Qualifying Groups (Minutes, 2003, Part I, p. 36).

The assembly directed the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly to study the directives of the four most recent assemblies concerning "affinity groups" or "special interest organizations," and to bring recommendations to the 217th General Assembly (2006) that define such organizations and provide coordinated requirements of such groups in providing information to the church about their organization, its membership and goals, and its funding.

The four directives referred to in the action by the 216th General Assembly (2004) are summarized as follows:

In 2000, an overture (Overture 00-49) was approved with amendment that directed the Office of the General Assembly to "request all special interest organizations that use the name Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) in their names and contribute information [voluntarily] to church members to provide, annually and voluntarily" data relating to their legal name, "tax status, date of founding, location of offices, number of paid staff, number of members if a membership organization, list of annual publications and their circulation," "total annual budget," list of donors giving more than $1,000, "statement of the organization's goals and methods," and a "summary of the organization's theological emphases and vision of the Church of Jesus Christ" (Minutes, 2000, Part I, pp. 424–25).

In 2001, through the approval of an alternate resolution to Commissioners' Resolution 01-23, the assembly simplified the request that asked all "affinity groups to submit a one-page statement to include: the organization's goals and methods of operation and theological emphases; the annual budget; the number of staff;" plus an "additional statement listing all donors who give more than $1,000 to the activities of this organization in any calendar year" (Minutes, 2001, Part I, p. 22).

In 2002, the assembly approved a commissioners' resolution, Item 03-12, that required organizations that apply for space in the General Assembly Exhibit Hall and that file an IRS 990 form to furnish the most recent copy of that form prior to the assembly (Minutes, 2002, Part I, p. 42, 197).

In 2003, the 215th General Assembly (2003) referred an item business that requested the Office of the General Assembly to publish a definition of "affinity groups" along with a complete list of qualifying organizations (Minutes, 2003, Part I, p. 36).

As is evidenced above, there have been a number of attempts in recent years to find a way for "affinity groups" or "special interest organizations" to voluntarily report to the church regarding their work and funding. After studying the actions of the four assemblies from 2000 through 2003, the Committee on the Office of General Assembly believes the basic information describing the organizations should be required and not optional. Granting an option to the organizations as to whether or not they provide the requested information is of no significant value and knowing the names of the organizations that do not provide this information is not beneficial.

The 216th General Assembly (2004) referral includes a directive to define the organizations that are required to provide information about their groups. This directive is answered by requiring the information from all nonprofit organizations that request space in the Exhibit Hall (with the exceptions noted above). This will clearly define who needs to provide the information.

It is felt that the organizations using exhibit space at the General Assembly meetings have the ear and attention of the commissioners and other attendees and thus have a responsibility for the privilege of using the space to provide information about their organizations. The messages and information provided by the organizations in the General Assembly Exhibit Hall can reflect on the PC(USA). Therefore, it is important that anyone that is interested have easy access to the information provided by the exhibitors. The names of contributors to nonprofit organizations are confidential information and, therefore, this proposal does not contain such a requirement.

Under current exhibit hall guidelines, organizations are requested to provide most of the relevant information, including the IRS Form 990 if they file one. The description of recommended information requested is simpler and easier to peruse than the entire IRS Form 990 currently being submitted by exhibitors. It will also define the information required for exhibitors not required by the IRS to file the Form 990.

The Committee on the Office of General Assembly believes this proposal answers the questions concerning affinity groups and special interest organizations that use exhibit hall space by requiring them to submit non-confidential information about themselves.

The Stated Clerk of the General Assembly, with the concurrence of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (2006), recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) do the following:

1. Elect Elder Loyda Aja, the Reverend Kerry Clements, the Reverend Gradye Parsons, the Reverend Mark Tammen, the Reverend Gary Torrens, and the Reverend Robina Winbush to a second, four-year term as Associate Stated Clerks of the General Assembly.
2. Elect Elder Frederick Heuser to a third, four-year term as Associate Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

Rationale

The Standing Rules of the General Assembly at H.2 d. states the following:

The General Assembly may elect one or more Associate Stated Clerks as the General Assembly shall determine. The Stated Clerk shall nominate persons to fill each such office after consultation with the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (see Standing Rule E.2.d.(4)). The term of office shall be four years, subject to reelection at the pleasure of the General Assembly.

The last election of Associate Stated Clerks was done at the 213th General Assembly (2001) for the above-named individuals. Given their four-year terms, they would have normally have been subject to reelection in 2005. However, since there was no assembly in 2005 and since the cycle for the election of Associate Stated Clerks needs to follow the assembly when the Stated Clerk is elected, this matter needs to be acted upon by the 217th General Assembly (2006) and placed on a four-year cycle following this action.

These seven people give exemplary service as leaders of the major departments of the General Assembly, are in good standing as elders or ministers of Word and Sacrament, and are faithful Christian leaders who serve the church with “energy, intelligence, imagination, and love.” The Stated Clerk and the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly enthusiastically nominate these seven persons for reelection as Associate Stated Clerks of the General Assembly.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) approve the following amendment to Standing Rule H.1.b.(3)(e) to read as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“(e) Not less than fifteen days before the convening of the General Assembly, the Stated Clerk shall ~~distribute to~~ publish for commissioners and advisory delegates an electronic information packet containing the following material regarding each candidate for Moderator ~~(and Vice Moderator)~~ who is known to the Stated Clerk and who wishes to be included:

“(i) A photograph, a biographical sketch, a personal statement by the candidate, ~~including that includes~~ a statement regarding the candidate’s sense of call to the office, “(ii) A written presentation by the presbytery having jurisdiction over the candidate, if that governing body has endorsed the candidate,

“(iii) An announcement of the commissioner each candidate has selected to be presented to the assembly for confirmation as Vice Moderator if the candidate is elected, “(iv) The responses of the candidate to a questionnaire developed by the Stated Clerk.

~~“The material submitted shall be typewritten on paper 8 1/2 x 11 inches in size. The layouts for the presentation under this standing rule (as outlined above) may be chosen by the candidates, but the copy all material including photographs submitted for each presentation shall be provided in one color on one side of one sheet electronic format as well as print. The material shall be submitted to the Stated Clerk no less than forty-five days before the convening of the General Assembly for reproduction and distribution, and shall be accompanied by a statement indicating the willingness of the candidate to serve as Moderator, if elected.~~

“Each proposed Vice-Moderator candidate who wishes to be included may send biographical information and a photograph in electronic format.”

Rationale:

With the movement of material for distribution to commissioners and advisory delegates in electronic form, the language of the Standing Rule requiring typewritten material, etc. needs to be updated. The deletion of “Vice Moderator” from the first paragraph and the addition of the last sentence clarifies the information a Vice Moderator candidate may wish to provide. For example, the Vice Moderator candidate would not be asked to include a presbytery endorsement or responses to the questionnaire.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, in concurrence with the General Assembly Committee on Ecumenical Relations, recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) amend Standing Rule B.5. by adding a new section “f.” to read as follows: Commissioners, Delegates and Other Participants at the General Assembly [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“f. Interfaith Representatives—Three observers of other faiths or religious traditions, who shall be representatives chosen by recognized religious bodies of non-Christian religious traditions and/or faith communities shall be present at the assembly at the invitation of the General Assembly Committee on Ecumenical Relations. The interfaith representatives shall be present with the church in its deliberations, and to speak to the assembly for the purpose of conveying greetings or messages, or bringing information germane to the decision-making process. The assembly shall assume the expense of housing and on the same basis as the expense of commissioners, but shall not reimburse any travel expenses to the assembly site.”

Rationale

We live among people whose lives are rooted in many different religious traditions other than our own Christian way, and we are aware that persons and communities of other faiths “affect one another even when they are unaware of so doing. ... We are called to work with others in our pluralistic societies for the well being of our world and for justice, peace, and the sustainability of creation. ... When God gives us courage to engage in the giving and receiving—the listening and speaking—of dialogue, Jesus is present. Through the power of [the] Spirit, we are enabled to be truly ourselves in authentic relationships. ... We are called to relate to people of other faiths in full humility, openness, honestly, and respect” (Minutes, 1999, Part I, pp. 293–94, Presbyterian Principles of Interfaith Dialogue).

The Book of Order states that “the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) will seek new opportunities for conversation and understanding with non-Christian religious bodies in order that interests and concerns may be shared and common action undertaken where compatible means and aims exist” (Book of Order, G-15.0104).

In “A Brief Statement of Faith,” Presbyterians affirm that “In sovereign love God created the world good and makes everyone equally in God’s image, male and female, of every race and people to live as one community...In a broken and fearful world the Spirit gives us courage to pray without ceasing, to witness among all peoples to Christ as Lord and Savior, to unmask idolatries in Church and culture, to hear the voices of peoples long silenced, and to work with others for justice, freedom and peace” (The Book of Confessions, 10.3, 10.4, lines 29–32, 65–71).

Because we believe that the church exists for the well-being of the whole human community, because of our established commitment to work with all people for peace and justice, and out of our commitment to hear voices that we have not heard, we believe that the processes of discernment and decision making at the General Assembly would be strengthened by hearing the voices of interfaith partners as we do our work.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) accept the invitation of the Presbytery of Pittsburgh for the 220th General Assembly (2012) to meet in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, June 30–July 7, 2012.

Rationale

Standing Rule I.1.d specifies the rotation pattern for meetings of the General Assembly. The region for the 220th General Assembly (2012) includes the Synods of the Northeast, Trinity, Mid-Atlantic, South Atlantic and Puerto Rico.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly carefully considered information compiled by staff on several cities in these synods that are interested in hosting the assembly. Key criteria include: suitability of the convention center and hotels for the assembly meetings, and whether they facilitate full participation by persons with disabilities; overall cost (convention center expenses, hotel rates, travel costs, etc.); and the value of “distributing the benefits .. [of] hosting a General Assembly meeting throughout the church” (Standing Rule 2.d.).

The COGA concurred that Pittsburgh will be the best location for the assembly meeting in 2012. Its convention center and hotels are able to comfortably accommodate the assembly, and it is the most economical site of those that submitted proposals.

Pittsburgh’s three-year-old convention center is well-suited to the needs of the assembly meeting. Seven hotels in downtown Pittsburgh have offered competitive rates, with additional savings (about $75,000 to the per capita budget) to meet June 30–July 7.

The invitation from the Presbytery of Pittsburgh to host this meeting is very enthusiastic. Pittsburgh last hosted a General Assembly in 1958. The city has a strong Presbyterian presence, and is home to one of the ten Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) seminaries. The Presbytery of Pittsburgh is already working to involve neighboring presbyteries in the task, resulting in a huge pool of local support.

Commissioners’ Resolution. On Amending the “Open Meeting Policy” to Include the Whole Church in the Church’s Work

That the 217th General Assembly (2006) to do the following:

1. Insert new Sections 3. and 4. into the document “Open Meeting Policy” and renumber subsequent sections 3.–7. as 5.–9. The inserted text is as follows [text to be inserted is shown as italic]:

“3. Any group with meetings subject to this Open Meeting Policy shall make public on its section of the PC(USA) web site the dates, times, locations, and other pertinent arrangements for its meetings, upon setting those arrangements.

“4. Observers of open meetings shall be given open access to all documents under consideration by an entity, division, committee, or task group. Such documents, including drafts, shall not be treated as ‘confidential,’ because the documents are necessarily made public when considered in an open meeting.”

2. Amend current Section 7 (renumbered to 9) of the document “Open Meeting Policy” to add text as follows [text to be inserted is shown as italic]:

“~~7.~~ (9) The Office of the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly is responsible for resolving questions relating to the application and interpretation of the open meeting policy. Only those exceptions explicitly stipulated in Section 5.a. shall constitute acceptable reasons for closing a meeting. Because open meetings are essential for trust and well-being within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), the overriding presumption shall be that meetings be manifestly open to observers, and the business graciously transparent, both in spirit and in practice.

Rationale

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is extremely wise to have its Open Meeting Policy that keeps the work of the church the business of the members, rather than the secret business of a select few. The broad and inviting language of the policy spreads sunshine throughout all the work of the church, keeping the ministry of the assemblies and councils, boards, and entities the work of the whole church, which any interested party can observe in an environment of welcome. As government entities are now expected to have clear-cut “Sunshine” policies, so should the church. Observers are welcomed—indeed encouraged—to be present at meetings. Their comments, made through appropriate channels, strengthen the church’s work.

But this generous and necessary spirit, however, is not universally applied within the various entities of our denomination.

For example, although Section One of the policy reads “... Church members have a basic right to know about the work done and the decisions made by entities within the church,” the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy considers all its papers “confidential” and will not allow observers to see them. This practice persists, even though the Open Meetings Policy stipulates that “church leaders have a basic responsibility to honor that right by conducting their business with a spirit of openness and vulnerability to public scrutiny” [emphasis added].

Any document discussed in an open meeting cannot be treated as confidential without contradicting the very openness the meeting is meant to observe. Furthermore, those physically present at the meeting ought to be able to make information about the documents available for those at a distance, who cannot be present but may maintain keen interest in the subject. In an electronic age, mere proximity ought not privilege some, while others at a distance remain in the dark when there could be sunshine.

These simple amendments will make clear what is already implied in the generous language of the policy. They will ensure that the business of the church remains before the whole church. They will also improve the quality of church’s position papers, because their accessibility to all Presbyterians will yield interest and input that will enrich the process of discerning God’s will. When subsequent General Assemblies consider taking challenging and complicated positions, they will be secure in the knowledge that those papers have been strengthened by an ever-widening conversation within the whole Presbyterian family.

ACSWP ADVICE AND COUNSEL ON ITEM 03-23

Item 03-23 on amending the “Open Meeting Policy” to include the whole church in the church’s work.

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises that this commissioners’ resolution be disapproved and further recommends an alternate addition to the Open Meeting Policy:

Add the following text to Item 1. of the Open Meeting Policy: “Equally, observers and other guests have a basic responsibility to show mutual respect for elected members and staff of church bodies and to demonstrate a spirit of openness and vulnerability to public scrutiny in their behavior and publications.”

Rationale

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy values the Open Meeting Policy of the General Assembly. The ACSWP has modified its own traditional approach to preparing documents for the General Assembly in light of an opinion of the Stated Clerk interpreting the Open Meeting Policy. Traditionally the Advisory Committee on the Constitution has limited publicity on proposed policy documents until their submission to the General Assembly itself. We quote below the bulk of the Stated Clerk’s opinion, which suggests the kind of covenantal responsibility for General Assembly committees and observers that we propose in the above addition to the Open Meeting Policy. The Stated Clerk's opinion, in our view, clarifies the proper arenas for the sharing of documents with observers.

From the Opinion on Interpreting the General Assembly Open Meeting Policy:

1. The Clerk makes this response pursuant to section 7 of the Open Meeting Policy. He reminds ACSWP and any Presbyterians desiring to observe a meeting of the Committee that as members of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), "...we also believe that there are truths and forms with respect to which men of good character and principles may differ. And in all these we think it the duty both of private Christians and societies to exercise mutual forbearance toward each other." (G-1.0305). We are all bound together by a common Covenant.

2. The relevant text of ACSWP's internal policy is:

"... the preliminary texts of documents and reports being developed under the auspices of ACSWP or its task forces are to be treated as internal deliberations which remain confidential."

3. The Clerk notes that the current Open Meeting Policy does not directly address the question of the sharing of documents being considered by a General Assembly entity, division, committee, or workgroup. He likewise notes that neither of the previous editions of the policy addressed the issue of the sharing of papers or reports. If the General Assembly wishes to impose such a practice on its entities, divisions, committees, and task forces, it may surely do so.

4. The Clerk further notes that the opening paragraph of the Open Meeting Policy affirms that "the work of the Church is strengthened when it is done in a spirit of openness and trust." Such language would seem to presume observers of meetings should have access to documents that are critical to their understanding the deliberations that they are observing. Therefore, the Clerk believes the presumption should favor the sharing of all documents under consideration by an entity, division, committee, or task group. It is incumbent upon observers to honor requests not to publish, or share the contents, such documents until the entity, division, committee, or task force has acted.

5. The Clerk draws a distinction between documents being considered for action by an entity, division, committee, or task force and those being discussed by a writing/drafting team that lacks authority to act on a document, but rather is charged with preparation of a document that will be proposed for action by an entity, division, committee or task force.

6. Once the draft document comes before the entity, division, committee, or task force, the document should be made available to all observers.

We believe this opinion meets the commissioners' concern.

COGA COMMENT ON ITEM 03-23

Comment on Item 03-23—From the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

Item 03-23 seeks to add two sections and amend another section of the "Open Meeting Policy."

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) offers the following comments:

1. Regarding the posting of meeting information for meetings subject to the "Open Meeting Policy," we note that sometimes those meetings (particularly teleconference meetings) are called in response to unexpected business and, therefore, the information may be posted on short notice.

2. Regarding access to documents, the Stated Clerk has made a distinction in the past between documents being considered for action by an entity, division, committee, or task group, and documents being prepared and discussed by a writing team that lacks authority to act on the document, but rather are charged with preparing a document that will be proposed by such entity, division, committee, or task group.

3. Finally, COGA believes that the further language being proposed to be added to Section 7 is unnecessary since the Stated Clerk already issues opinions based on the exceptions listed in the Open Meeting Policy, Section 3.a. The new language would add no new process or criteria.

Commissioners' Resolution. On Financial Reporting of Actual Cost of General Assembly Task Forces or Work Groups.

That the 217th General Assembly amend Section F.2. of the Manual of the General Assembly by adding a new item "e." to read as follows:

“e. When an assembly action requires the creation of a special committee or study paper, a statement of the original estimated financial implications as well as the actual cost shall be attached to any report to a subsequent assembly and printed in any final publications distributed after General Assembly action.”

Rationale

Even though each taskforce or workgroup normally is approved by a General Assembly with an estimated budget cost, this does provide subsequent General Assemblies the ongoing cost of the project or the complete cost once the project is finished. This resolution seeks to accomplish three things:

This will help subsequent General Assemblies see the actual cost of taskforce or workgroup as well as the completed cost.

It will allow subsequent General Assemblies to weigh the ongoing cost of a particular project against its original estimate as well as its intended result.

It will enhance the environment of financial accountability for current and subsequent General Assemblies when asked to approve the formation of a workgroup for a particular purpose.

Item 03-A

[The Assembly Committee on General Assembly Procedures approved Item 03-A. See pp. 47, 48.]

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) approve the following application regarding the General Assembly Review Process, Standards for Review of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission, as it relates to the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission:

Standards for Review of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission

A. Constitutional Mandate

The General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission is a constitutionally mandated commission of the General Assembly (D-5.0101), charged “to serve in judicial matters in accordance with the Rules of Discipline” (Book of Order, G-13.0103o).

B. Constitutional Boundaries

As a commission, the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission undertakes the judicial function of the General Assembly on behalf of the General Assembly, and considers and concludes judicial matters referred to it (Book of Order, G-9.0502). Its commissioners are presbyters from each synod who are qualified to be commissioners to the General Assembly (D-5.0100).

Since the General Assembly is the highest governing body of the church, the decisions of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission are not subject to further review by appeal. Its decisions provide authoritative interpretation of the Book of Order, and the “most recent interpretation of a provision of the Book of Order shall be binding” (Book of Order, G-13.0103r). The decisions of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission are reported to each General Assembly by the Stated Clerk as required by D-7.0700, D-11.0700, and Standing Rule M.2.b.(4).

C. Constitutional Powers and Process

“In the cases transmitted to it, the [General Assembly] Permanent Judicial Commission shall have only the powers prescribed by and conduct its proceedings according to the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)” (Book of Order, D-5.0202).

D. General Assembly Review Process1. Responsibilities of General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission (GAPJC)

a. The GAPJC will conduct a self-study of its work based on the Constitutional Standards and Non-Constitutional Standards (specified below) covering the previous six years.

b. The GAPJC will finalize its self-study and render a report at least 120 days prior to the General Assembly at which the self-study report will be reviewed.

c. The GAPJC will have representatives available at the assembly to serve as resources to the assembly committee.

d. The GAPJC may include responses in the self-study and additional questions that explore the Constitutional Standards that apply to its work.

e. The GAPJC may utilize former members to help conduct the self-study.

2. Responsibilities of Office of the General Assembly (OGA)

a. The OGA, the GAPJC, and the Office of Research Services will jointly develop and agree upon the content, distribution, and processing of any survey instrument used in the GAPJC review.

b. The OGA will conduct training of assembly committee leadership and members as needed, with the assistance of GAPJC leadership, to help the assembly committee to meet its responsibilities in accomplishing its work.

c. The OGA will budget for development and implementation of the GAPJC self-study.

3. Work of the Committee of the General Assembly Committee for Review as Set Out in the Manual for Review of the General Assembly Permanent Committees and Commission

a. The review assignment will be assigned to an assembly committee.

b. As with other committees, OGA will conduct training of the review committee.

c. Consistent with the action of the 216th General Assembly (2004) (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 88, 339–41), the assembly committee's review will be limited to the following questions:

(1) Is the GAPJC fulfilling its Constitutional Mandate as specified herein?

(2) Is the GAPJC in compliance with the Constitutional Standards as described herein?

(3) Is the GAPJC in compliance with the Non-Constitutional Standards as described herein?

d. The assembly committee may hold hearings, etc.

e. The assembly committee will be in dialogue with the representatives of the GAPJC.

f. The assembly committee may break into subgroups in conducting its work.

g. The assembly committee will make a final report, possibly with recommendations.

E. Constitutional Standards: Fidelity to Constitutional Process

Compliance by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission with the following standards is required by the Book of Order:

1. To open and close all meetings with prayer (Book of Order, G-9.0301b);

2. To secure the just, speedy, and economical determination of proceedings (Book of Order, D-1.0101);

3. To accord procedural safeguards and due process (Book of Order, D-1.0101);
4. To examine papers promptly upon receipt to determine preliminary questions (moderator and clerk only) (Book of Order, D-6.0305, D-8.0301, D-13.0301);
5. To respond to stays of enforcement in a timely fashion (Book of Order, D-6.0103);
6. To decide challenges to the findings of the moderator and clerk (Book of Order, D-6.0306, D-8.0302); rulings of the moderator (Book of Order, D-7.0303a, D-11.0304); and the composition of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission (Book of Order, D-7.0303b, D-7.0401a and b, D-11.0402);
7. To issue citations as deemed necessary (Book of Order, D-7.0202, D-11.0201);
8. To appoint counsel when necessary (Book of Order, D-11.0302);
9. To conduct pretrial and prehearing conferences when necessary (Book of Order, D-6.0310, D-10.0405, D-8.0307, D-13.0307);
10. To conduct trials and hear appeals in remedial cases, and to hear appeals in disciplinary cases (Book of Order, D-4.0202, D-7.0101, D-7.0102, D-8.0403, D-11.0101, D-13.0403); [Note: The General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission would only hold a trial on a disciplinary case in the rare event of reference from a lower governing body, since a disciplinary case would ordinarily be tried by the presbytery or session of membership.]
11. To read aloud D-1.0101 and D-1.0102 at the beginning of each trial (Book of Order, D-7.0401 and D-11.0402a);
12. To control the conduct of trials and hearings (Book of Order, D-7.0303, D-11-0304);
13. To decide cases after private deliberations (Book of Order, D-7.0402, D-8.0404, D-11.0403, D-13.0404);
14. To write, amend, proofread, and finalize written decisions with the signatures of the moderator and clerk while in session, and immediately disseminate and timely file those decisions (Book of Order, D-7.0402, D-8.0404, D-11.0403, D-13.0404);
15. To prepare and process records of proceedings following a trial before the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission (Book of Order, D-7.0600, D-11.0600).

F. Review Criteria for Constitutional Standards

Constitutional Standard	Review Criteria
	(The following review criteria provide an objective measure for determining compliance to Constitutional Standards.)
#1 Open and close with prayer	All meetings should be opened and closed with prayer.
#2 Just, speedy and economic determination of proceedings	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> a. Time lapse between receipt of complaint or notice of appeal and final disposition of case should not exceed an average of 1 year. b. GAPJC meeting arrangements should be made by staff in a manner that reflects the needs of the commission to do its work, as well as reflecting the stewardship concerns of the church.
#3 Procedural safeguards and due process	Procedural safeguards and due process should be accorded to all parties.
#4 Prompt determination of preliminary questions	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> a. Time between receipt of initial case filings by OGA and forwarding the same to the moderator and clerk of the GAPJC for their determination on preliminary questions should not exceed an average of 14 days. b. Time between receipt of initial case filings by the moderator and clerk from OGA and their determination on preliminary questions should not exceed an average of 30 days.

- #5 Stays of enforcement
- a. Time between receipt by OGA of a request for a stay of enforcement and forwarding the same by OGA to members of the commission should not exceed an average of 5 working days.
 - b. Time between receipt of a request for a stay of enforcement by the moderator and clerk and the notification to commissioners of their recommendation regarding preliminary jurisdictional questions should not exceed an average of 5 working days.
- #6 Rule on challenges
- a. In each applicable case, parties should be given the opportunity to present evidence and arguments on any challenges made to findings of moderator and clerk on preliminary questions.
 - b. In each applicable case, parties should be given the opportunity to object to the composition of the commission.
 - c. In each applicable case, the GAPJC should address any challenges and/or objections raised by the parties.
- #7 Issue citations
- In applicable cases, the moderator or clerk should consider and act upon requests for the issuance of citations.
- #8 Appoint counsel
- In applicable cases, GAPJC should appoint counsel for an accused.
- #9 Conduct pretrial and prehearing conferences
- a. Pretrial or prehearing committees should be appointed in appropriate cases.
 - b. Pretrial or prehearing conferences should be conducted in appropriate cases.
- #10 Conduct trials and hearings
- Trials should be conducted formally with full decorum in a neutral place suitable for the occasion.
- #11 Read aloud D-1.0101 and D-1.0102
- Sections D-1.0101 and D-1.0102 should be read at the beginning of each trial.
- #12 Control conduct of trials and hearings
- a. The GAPJC should exercise its authority and power to control conduct of trials and of all parties, witnesses, counsel and public, including removal of them, to the end that proper dignity and decorum are maintained.
 - b. Moderator should decide all questions as to procedure or the admissibility of evidence after parties have been given an opportunity to be heard.
 - c. In each case where applicable, all parties and commissioners should be given the opportunity to appeal from a decision of the moderator to the GAPJC.
 - d. The GAPJC should decide by majority vote all appeals from decisions of the moderator.
 - e. The absence of any member of GAPJC after trial has commenced should be recorded.
- #13 Decide cases
- For each case in which a decision has been rendered, there should be
- a. private deliberations by the commission;
 - b. for an appeal, a separate vote on each specification of error, which may be combined or altered for clarity and efficiency;
 - c. for a trial, a separate vote on each irregularity, delinquency, or charge.
- #14 Prepare and disseminate written decisions
- For each case in which a decision has been rendered:
- a. a written decision should have been prepared while the commission was in session;
 - b. a copy of the decision should have been delivered to the parties by personal service or certified mail;
 - c. the decision should have been filed with the Stated Clerk within thirty days of the hearing.

#15 Prepare and process records Following trials before the GAPJC, the full record of the proceedings should be prepared, processed, and transmitted to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly for permanent preservation.

G. Non-Constitutional Standards

In addition to the standards mandated by the Constitution, the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission has established the following other standards as guidance in conducting its work:

1. To participate in daily corporate worship for the duration of GAPJC meetings;
2. To maintain and follow the Manual of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission including its Code of Ethics;
3. To build community among members of the GAPJC;
4. To orient newly elected commissioners;
5. To communicate effectively with the greater church by various means including:
 - a. writing headnotes for each decision;
 - b. ensuring that decisions are disseminated in a timely manner;
6. To implement an ongoing self-evaluation program;
7. To engage in “continuing education” programs involving matters relevant to the work of the GAPJC;
8. To maximize attendance at GAPJC meetings;
9. To keep minutes of GAPJC meetings.

H. Review Criteria for Non-Constitutional Standards

Non-Constitutional Standard	Review Criteria
	(The following review criteria provide an objective measure for determining compliance to Non-Constitutional Standards.)
#1 Daily worship	Commissioners should participate in daily corporate worship.
#2 GAPJC Manual	The GAPJC Manual , including its appendices, should be reviewed and, if necessary, updated following each meeting of the General Assembly.
#3 Community building	Each meeting of the GAPJC will include time for sharing of personal joys and concerns, time for intercessory prayer for one another, and time for fellowship.
#4 New commissioner orientation	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> a. The GAPJC Moderator should send welcoming letters to new commissioners at the conclusion of the electing General Assembly, which would include all scheduled GAPJC meetings. b. At the first GAPJC meeting following election by the General Assembly, newly elected commissioners shall participate in an orientation in matters pertaining to the GAPJC, held prior to the convening of the full commission.
#5 Communicate effectively with the greater church	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> a. Case decisions should contain headnotes as appropriate. b. Case decisions should be disseminated to the parties within 7 days after adjournment of the meeting. c. Case decisions should be forwarded to OGA within 7 days after adjournment of the meeting for immediate posting to the denominational website.

- #6 Ongoing self evaluation The GAPJC should implement an ongoing self-evaluation program, which includes:
- a. completion of evaluation forms by commissioners at the conclusion of each GAPJC meeting;
 - b. a triennial self-study by the Self-Study Review Team conducted in accordance with the Standards For Review as approved by the General Assembly.
- #7 Continuing education for commissioners Each GAPJC meeting should include an allocation of time for continuing education as feasible and needed.
- #8 Maximize GAPJC meeting attendance
- a. All members should attend all GAPJC meetings unless excused.
 - b. All members should be present at the time when the meeting is initially convened.
 - c. All members should remain in attendance until the meeting is adjourned and no member should leave before a meeting is concluded.
 - d. The GAPJC meetings should be scheduled at least one year in advance in order to provide commissioners with adequate time to arrange their schedules.
 - e. The GAPJC meetings should be held at locations that minimize commissioner travel time on a rotating basis while weighing the attendance or convenience of the parties and the funds available for meetings.
 - f. Meeting arrangements should be made so as to facilitate the work of the commission, while accommodating the health, safety, and reasonable personal needs of commissioners.
- #9 Keep minutes The clerk shall keep adequate minutes of GAPJC meetings.

I. Review Process

The self-study will be conducted on a triennial basis by a four-person Self-Study Review Team composed of one person from each of the last four classes elected to the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission. The review team will accomplish its work in accordance with the Manual of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission and will render a report at the fall meeting of the commission in the year in which the review was conducted. The commission will act on the report, and thereafter, in applicable years, forward the report to the General Assembly in accordance with the Standing Rules of the General Assembly.

J. Effectiveness of Service

The services of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission are to be consistent with the constitutionally required process.

Rationale

This recommendation is in response to the following referral: 2004 Referral: Item 04-19, Recommendation 3. On Referring to the 217th GA (2006) the Decision of the Application of the General Assembly Review Process as It Relates to the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 88, 341).

The 214th General Assembly (2002) approved a recommendation (Item 02-09), which requested the Office of the General Assembly together with the General Assembly Council to “develop a process and propose language for the Standing Rules of the General Assembly that would create an independent review process for all General Assembly permanent, advocacy, and advisory committees.” In the subsequent recommendation to implement the requested process submitted to the 216th General Assembly (2004), the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission (GAPJC) was included. Because it is a commission of the assembly, rather than a committee, the GAPJC requested and was granted additional time to study the constitutional implications of such a review.

This report is the response to the referral from the General Assembly. As the General Assembly studies that part of its own body that performs its judicial function, it needs to be assured that all constitutionally required processes are being followed in conducting hearings, trials, and appeals. Because, in deciding appeals, the voice of the GAPJC reflects the “collected wisdom and united voice of the whole Church” (Book of Order, G-1.0400), this review process is limited to assuring adherence to constitutionally required processes. The above review process is designed to accomplish the assigned task, which allows the GAPJC to assure itself and the General Assembly that all constitutional processes are being implemented diligently, with care and concern for the Constitution of the PCUSA, for its constituent churches and members, and to the glory of God.

Item 03-Info

A. General Assembly Nominating Committee Agency Summary

*God, whose giving knows no ending,
From Your rich and endless store,
Nature's wonder, Jesus' wisdom,
Costly cross, grave's shattered door:
Gifted by You, we turn to You,
Offering up ourselves in praise;
Thankful song shall rise forever,
Gracious donor of our days.*

*Skills and time are ours for pressing
Toward the goals of Christ, Your Son:
All at peace in health and freedom,
Races joined, the church made one.
Now direct our daily labor,
Lest we strive for self alone;
Born with talents, make us servants
Fit to answer at your Throne.*

(God, Whose Giving Knows No Ending, Hymn #422, verses 1 and 2, By Robert L. Edwards, © 1961, Ren. 1989 by The Ymn Society [admin. Hope Publishing Company, Carol Stream, IL 60188]. All rights reserved. Used by permission.)

1. Assigned Responsibilities

The General Assembly Nominating Committee (GANC) exists to “... ensure careful nominations of members of such boards, agencies, and committees as the General Assembly shall from time to time designate ...” (G-13.0111).

The General Assembly Nominating Committee

- presents to the General Assembly for election, nominees for at-large vacancies on General Assembly entities;
- submits to the General Assembly for election, nominees from persons proposed by synods and presbyteries in consultation with the General Assembly Nominating Committee for rotation vacancies or for middle governing body representation on General Assembly entities; and
- transmits to the General Assembly the names of persons from General Assembly entities for their representatives (linkages) to other General Assembly entities.

Cynthia Campbell says,

Not infrequently you will hear people complain about the never-ending use of committees in the Presbyterian Church; frustrated members and pastors sometimes say, ‘if you want something done right, do it yourself.’ The notion that we are called to be together has led Presbyterians to conclude that this is how we should make decisions: not independently or unilaterally, but together. This is as true within the life of a local congregation as it is for the denomination as a whole. Decisions are shared among the various members or governing bodies for the good of the whole, because together we are the body of Christ. (Presbyterian Polity for Church Officers, Third Edition, Gray & Tucker, p. xii).

The General Assembly Nominating Committee (GANC) is responsible for identifying persons who are qualified to serve as responsible and faithful members of General Assembly entities. The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) commitment to the ministry of the whole people of God moves Presbyterians to respond to God’s call for service—to use their gifts for the life and mission of the church. In cooperation and consultation with the General Assembly Committee on Representation, the General Assembly Nominating Committee gives careful consideration to Book of Order mandates that persons of all racial ethnic groups, different ages, both sexes, various disabilities, diverse geographical areas, different theological positions consistent with the Reformed tradition, as well as different marital conditions, be guaranteed full participation and access to representation in the decision making of the church” (G-4.0403 and G-13.0108). The GANC follows, insofar as possible, Book of Order guidelines, G-13.0111, that consideration shall be given to the nomination of equal numbers of ministers, laymen, and laywomen, except where other membership is mandated by the Book of Order. The GANC also encourages synods, presbyteries, and other linking entities to keep Book of Order mandates in mind as they submit persons for nomination.

2. Accomplishments in 2004–2006

The General Assembly Nominating Committee publishes a brochure explaining the nominating process, as well as providing a description of all committees, agencies, and boards to which it makes nominations. This brochure is disseminated, as part of a packet of nomination materials including an “application for nomination” form, to all middle governing bodies and sent to congregations and individuals at no cost upon request.

The General Assembly Nominating Committee solicits applications for nomination to at-large positions from all governing bodies, other official Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) groups, and individual Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) members. Presbyteries and synods provide the names of persons to be considered for nomination to middle governing body positions on the various committees, boards, and commissions where such membership is mandated.

The nominating committee maintains a rotation system by which synods and/or presbyteries nominate persons to serve on the Mission Development Resources Committee, the Presbyterian Investment and Loan Program, Inc., and the National Committee on the Self-Development of People, as well as a rotation system for presbytery representation on the General Assembly Council, as outlined in the Organization for Mission. It is important to remember that nominations for these middle governing body positions, as well as for positions on the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission, are made from proposals received from presbyteries or synods—through their regular nominating process.

Members of the General Assembly Nominating Committee are actively engaged with middle governing bodies and General Assembly entities throughout the year. Each General Assembly Nominating Committee member serves as a liaison to the nominating committee of the synod in which the member resides. Each member attends at least one synod or synod nominating committee meeting annually to observe and to explain the nominations process.

The General Assembly Nominating Committee asks all General Assembly entities to send a written report every year concerning the specific needs of the entity regarding nominees presented to the General Assembly. In addition to this effort, the General Assembly Nominating Committee’s liaison member meets with the entity or is in contact by telephone or mail. It is the responsibility of each liaison to ensure that the nominating process is explained and that the skills and expertise needed by the entity are identified. This information, along with advice and counsel received from the General Assembly Committee on Representation, assists the General Assembly Nominating Committee in its work.

The General Assembly Nominating Committee continues to be concerned about issues concerning the needs of persons with disabilities, persons with children and/or other dependents, and youth and young adults on entities of the General Assembly. The General Assembly Nominating Committee and the General Assembly Committee on Representation are committed to working together to discover persons with disabilities, youth, and young adults who are willing to be considered for service on General Assembly committees and agencies. The General Assembly Nominating Committee and the General Assembly Committee on Representation take note that many applicants do not identify themselves as persons with disabilities even when a disability does exist. Thus, the number of persons with disabilities serving the church on committees at the General Assembly level is actually higher than reported.

Through conversations and engagement with the General Assembly Committee on Representation and with the Cross Caucus, as well as individual contact at all governing body levels, the General Assembly Nominating Committee strives to increase the number of racial ethnic persons in its pool of applicants.

Most persons serving on General Assembly agencies, committees, or entities are a member of a congregation or a member of a presbytery of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). Several committees include within their membership persons who are not Presbyterian. These committees are the General Assembly Committee on Ecumenical Relations, the National Committee on the Self-Development of People, and the Review Committees on General Assembly Agencies.

About a year before it meets to make nominations, the GANC publishes on its website and mails to each presbytery and synod a list of vacancies to be filled. Additionally the GANC website provides instructions, committee descriptions, and information about the nominations process.

Persons interested in being considered for service on a General Assembly level committee and persons who wish to suggest persons for consideration may do so by submitting an application for nomination form either online at the GANC’s website, electronically via an email version of the application form, or by completing and returning a printed version of the form. The number of online web forms submitted has increased significantly over the past two years. As of March 1, 2006, more than 350 applications were received.

The GANC solicits reference materials for each of the applications it receives. Three of the references are from persons the applicant has suggested as evaluators and who are able to respond regarding the applicant's abilities, gifts, and experience. A reference is also solicited from the governing body for each applicant. The references are treated in confidence and are critical in the discernment process the members of the GANC use. All application forms are shared with each General Assembly Nominating Committee member. Each member of the General Assembly Nominating Committee has access to the confidential appraisal materials for all applicants.

The Standing Rules of the General Assembly provide that terms for most agencies, committees, or entities are four years with eligibility to serve an additional four-year term. Renomination to a second term is not automatic. The GANC uses several factors in determining whether or not to renominate a person. Key in this discernment process is an evaluation instrument completed by the agency, committee, or entity on which the member serves, diversity issues, special skills and expertise needed by the agency, committee, or entity to respond to assigned mandates.

During 2003–2004, the General Assembly Nominating Committee substantially realigned classes and converted member terms in order to be responsive to changes in committee membership that were required because of the move to biennial General Assemblies. Although the majority of these changes were brought to the 216th General Assembly (2004) for action, a few adjustments to terms for members of the Board of Pensions needed to wait until the 217th General Assembly (2006) and are included in the slate of nominees being presented at this assembly.

Since the 216th General Assembly (2004), there have been three meetings of the nominating committee: January 2005 in Phoenix, Arizona; October 2005 in Louisville, Kentucky; and March 2006 in Atlanta, Georgia. A fourth meeting will be held immediately preceding and during the meeting of the 217th General Assembly (2006). New members of the General Assembly Nominating Committee participated in an intensive orientation meeting in Newark, New Jersey, in August 2004.

3. Membership

There are sixteen members on the General Assembly Nominating Committee—one member residing in each of the sixteen synods. The General Assembly, upon the nomination of the General Assembly Moderator, elects the members of the General Assembly Nominating Committee; members serve a six-year term. The following officers were elected and served in 2004–2006: Melva Wilson Costen, elder, Synod of the South Atlantic, moderator; Albert G. (Pete) Peery, minister, Synod of Mid-Atlantic, vice-moderator; Anna Pinckney Straight, minister, Synod of the Trinity, secretary. The other members of the committee are David H. Bennett, minister, Synod of the Northeast; Greg Elmore, elder, Synod of Living Waters; Donald A. Ericson, elder, Synod of Alaska-Northwest; Rita R. Fossell, elder, Synod of Lincoln Trails; Richard Kampa, elder, Synod of the Southwest; Grace S. Kim, elder, Synod of the Pacific [until March, 2006]; Robert Lucy, elder, Synod of the Sun; James Madson, elder, Synod of Mid-America; Janet Schlenker, minister, Synod of Rocky Mountains; Cynthia Schweitzer Vives, elder, Sinodo Presbiteriano Boriquen en Puerto Rico; Elona Street-Stewart, elder, Synod of Lakes and Prairies; A. Jarrell (Jerry) Tankersley, minister, Synod of Southern California and Hawaii; and Laura VanDale, elder, Synod of the Covenant.

The office of the General Assembly Nominating Committee is located in the Office of the General Assembly, 100 Witherspoon Street, Louisville, KY 40202-1396. Assistant Stated Clerk Valerie Kiriishi Small, elder, serves as the manager for General Assembly Nominations.

The General Assembly Nominating Committee's website can be found at www.pcusa.org/nominations.

*Treasure too You have entrusted,
Gain through powers Your grace conferred;
Ours to use for home and kindred,
And to spread the gospel Word.
Open wide our hands, in sharing,
As we heed Christ's ageless call,
Healing, teaching, and reclaiming,
Serving You by loving all.
(God, Whose Giving Knows No Ending, Hymn #422, verse 3)*

B. Affinity Groups

The Office of the General Assembly, in response to Overture 00-49, was directed by the 212th General Assembly (2000) to request that all affinity groups that use the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) in their name provide information to assist commissioners in understanding the goals of each affinity group and whom they represent.

The 213th General Assembly (2001) modified the amount of information to be request from groups by taking action on Commissioners' Resolution 01-23. According to that action, the request for information will be annual and the compliance is voluntary. The information received is provided to assembly commissioners.

The Office of the General Assembly sent a communication to a wide range of groups related to the PC(USA) who might be considered an affinity group. Listed below are the groups to which this communication was sent in both 2004 and 2005. Attached is that material that was submitted by the groups in response to this communication.

The following groups have indicated in the past that they do not qualify as an affinity group (as defined by the assembly's actions in 2000 and 2001): BorderLinks; Knox Fellowship; Literacy and Evangelism International; Presbyterian Council for Chaplains and Military Personnel; Presbyterian Lay Committee; Presbyterian Outlook Foundation; Presbyterian Reformed Renewal Ministries International; Presbyterians for Faith, Family & Ministry; Presbyterians Pro-Life; and Voices of Orthodox Women.

A.P.C.E.
The Association of Presbyterian Church Educators

The mission of APCE is to Connect, enrich, empower and sustain persons serving in the educational ministries of the Reformed family of churches.

Though our 1600+ members are primarily from the PC (USA), we have formal partnerships with the Christian Reformed Church, the Presbyterian Church in Canada, and the Reformed Church in America. We are also primarily professionals in the fields of Christian education, Directors of Christian education and pastors with education portfolios, but we encourage the membership of volunteers as well.

We produce a quarterly professional journal called The APCE Advocate, which features articles on timely themes and is a privilege of membership. Our largest endeavor is our annual event, which this year took place February 2-5, in Vancouver, BC. It is typical to have over 1,000 of our members at these conferences where we offer internationally recognized keynote speakers and dozens of workshops, in addition to honoring our own Educator of the Year. Throughout the year, we work in many areas of advocacy for both Christian educators and Christian education in our denominations. We continually lift up the certification process through courses and recognition. We also post updates on our website: www.apcenet.org.

Our membership is organized into fourteen geographical regions. Each region elects a member to our governing cabinet. In addition, our racial ethnic members elect four representatives. Our officers are elected out of this rotating cabinet of volunteers. The cabinet meets twice a year, for several days each October and in conjunction with the annual event. We have no employees, but we have several part-time contracts. There is a contract with the editor of our journal and with a copy editor, and we are in our second contract year with a new management team, American PressWorks. This fine organization, which serves non-profits, manages our membership database, mailings, and financial transactions. We are also most grateful for the staff hours contributed to us by PC (USA). Pat Murphy, from Congregational Ministries Division, puts many hours in as our Annual Event Registrar. Ed Craxton and Donna Cook meet with us as advisors.

Our 2005-2006 operating budget is $146,580, exclusive of our annual event expenses, which are covered by the income from the event. Our annual event budget is usually $297,116 (depending on location, leadership, and attendance). Our primary source of income is our annual membership dues. We also receive a grant from the PC (USA), through our covenants with Congregational Ministries Division and National Ministries Division. Realizing that we need to develop other sources for our growing operating budget, we have established an Endowment Fund managed by the Presbyterian Foundation. We encourage gifts in memory and in honor of educators. This fund is still too small to contribute to our budget, but it is an investment in our future.

Association of Presbyterian Interim Ministry Specialists

Vision Statement

The Association of Presbyterian Interim Ministry Specialists (APIMS) exists to provide support for pastors, spouses and families as well as governing bodies within the Presbyterian Church (USA) who are involved with interim ministry and to provide information regarding placement, training, certification, and research in the specialized field of interim ministry.

APIMS' Goals

Our goals as a servant of the Church are:

In service to the Church...

1. To develop a body of Interim Ministry Specialists who will be available to congregations, governing bodies, and other church organizations;
2. To encourage more effective placement systems for interim ministry clergy within the Church;
3. To develop, maintain, and advocate the highest standards of all interim ministry specialists.

In service to members...

1. To encourage continuing growth in interim ministry skills;
2. To provide guidance and support for that growth;
3. To advocate within the Church a clear understanding of the value of interim ministry, thus promoting the use of interim ministers or pastors;
4. To advocate the concerns of interim pastors and their families.

Meetings, Membership, and Dues

Annual business meetings are held in conjunction with the Interim Ministry Network's Annual Conference. Each member and governing body has one vote.

APIMS Association annual dues are used to support:

- Circulation of availability lists
- Professional certification
- Advocacy within the Church
- Advocacy at General Assembly
- Dissemination of information about interim ministry Collegial Support
- Interim Pastor's Publications and office

Membership is open to all members of the Presbyterian Church (USA) who subscribe to the purpose, charter, and bylaws of APIMS, and remit annual dues. Members may attend all APIMS meetings, vote, serve on committees, and hold office. They receive printed membership materials and have access to the membership lists.

Governing Body membership is open to any Governing Body or recognized group within any Governing Body which will: subscribe to the purpose, charter, and bylaws of APIMS, remit Governing Body annual dues, and encourage the study and practice of interim ministry within the Governing Body and the Church at large.

APIMS supports the use of all denominational relocation procedures. In addition, APIMS supplies Presbytery and Synod executives with lists showing APIMS members' names, addresses, phone numbers, and anticipated dates of availability.

APIMS does not espouse a theological position and is as diverse theologically as its membership.

Association of Presbyterian Tentmakers (APT)

Purposes

- To be advocates for alternative models of ministry throughout the church
- To define and affirm tentmaking as a valid expression of Christian ministry
- To nurture and support tentmakers as continuing active members in good standing of presbyteries
- To foster mutually beneficial contacts and relationships with similar organization in other denominations and other parts of the world
- To organize conferences which will provide opportunities for worship, fellowship, spiritual growth, and for meetings of the association

Activities

- An annual national conference for worship, fellowship, spiritual growth, discussion of issues of concern to tentmakers, and meeting of the Association
- A newsletter (Tent Talk) for APT members and denominational leaders
- Providing resources for congregations, governing bodies, and other interested groups for the purpose of interpreting tentmaking
- Facilitating greater communication among tentmakers through various forms of networking
- Providing supportive service and training for governing bodies

Did you know?

- John Calvin was a tentmaker
- Most Presbyterian pastors on the American frontier supplemented their parish income with farming, teaching, or other work
- One third of all Presbyterian congregations have less than 100 members – many of these don't have regular pastoral leadership
- Tentmaking also works well in multi-staff congregations
- An increasing number of Presbyterian congregations are searching for tentmaking pastors
- Tentmaking has a long and continuous history with our denomination
- APT members include ordained ministers, commissioned lay pastors, churches, presbytery staff, members of committees on ministry, and other interested persons and institutions
- The Office of the General Assembly recognizes tentmaking pastors through the 170 series in the statistics volume

The Association of Stated Clerks

Scope:

The Association of Stated Clerks is an organization of Stated Clerks of the Presbyterian Church (USA), and Affiliate members who share common goals and interests relating to the work of the office of Stated Clerk. Affiliate Members are (1) persons not currently in active service as stated clerks, but who formerly served at least five years as a stated clerk and who have paid current dues; or (2) persons not currently in active service as stated clerks but who support the purposes of the organization, (3) persons who serve as instructors in polity, (4) or persons who wish to embark upon training preparatory to election as a stated clerk. This organization represents all Synods and Presbyteries within the United States and Puerto Rico, and is divided into seven regions throughout the denomination.

Regional Representatives

All Regional Representatives are elected at the Annual Meeting of the Association by ballot of the voting members of each region. Each representative serves for two years or until their successors are elected. Representatives representing the odd-numbered regions shall be elected in the odd-numbered years, and those representing even-numbered regions shall be elected in even-numbered years. Regions are designated by the following Synod boundaries:

- 1) Northwest: Alaska-Northwest, Pacific, and Rocky Mountains
- 2) Southwest: Southern California and Hawaii, and Southwest
- 3) Northcentral: Covenant, Lakes and Prairies, and Lincoln Trails
- 4) Southcentral: Mid-America, and Sun
- 5) Northeast: Boriquen en Puerto Rico, and Northeast
- 6) Eastcentral: Mid-Atlantic, and Trinity
- 7) Southeast: Living Waters, and South Atlantic

Organization:

At the annual meeting of the Association of Stated Clerks, Officer and regional representatives are elected. The terms of office are designated by the Bylaws of the Association. Officers are: President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer. The Association currently has a website at www.statedclerks.org that serves as a resource for all interested persons.

Goals:

The Association has developed the Manual on Judicial Process, produces an analysis of proposed amendments to the Book of Order, and has available a Skills Bank where names and contact information of Stated Clerks who have expertise and experience in a wide range of subjects are available. The Association conducts an annual gathering/conference of Stated Clerks and participates in planning the annual Fall Polity Conference conducted by the Office of the General Assembly. Every bit as important, membership in the Association provides outstanding opportunities for networking and fellowship.

Theological Emphasis:

It is not customary for stated clerks to identify with or espouse any particular theological viewpoint. It is customary, however for stated clerks to uphold the tenets of the Book of Order and offering training and direction relating to the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (USA).

Annual Budget:

The Association of Stated Clerks receives income from dues ($30.00 per year per member) and from the annual spring conference (participants pay a registration fee which is based on costs for the conference program, meals, and lodging). At year-end 2004, the General Fund Balance was over $9,000. It has an Annual Budget of nearly $15,000.

Employees:

The Association has one part-time employee, its Executive Secretary, Elder Stafford Fredericks at 70 hours per year.

COALITION FOR APPALACHIAN MINISTRY AFFINITY REPORT – 2005
(1329 Wears Valley Road, Townsend, TN 37882-3417, Ph. 865-448-5940)

Our Mission Statement says:

“The mission of the Coalition for Appalachian Ministry is to make positive impact wherever Reformed tradition and Appalachian culture come together by networking with church and community, to provide educational and service opportunities.”

To that end we continue to strive to:

- Serve as a communications link among church governing bodies in the region.
(Our member communions include the Presbyterian Church USA, The Reformed Church in America, The Cumberland Presbyterian Church, The Cumberland Presbyterian Church in America and the Christian Reformed Church)
- Hold events on issues of concern to the churches in the Appalachian Region
- Provide information to congregations and judicatories (governing bodies) on issues such as small membership church ministry, Appalachian culture and ethnic diversity in the region.
- Channel grant funds from the Presbyterian Hunger Program and other sources to grassroots projects and communicate with governing bodies about this.
- Maintain relationships with other church-related Appalachian agencies.
- Provide help in orienting clergy and laity to minister in the region.
- Provide through the CAM Cabin Crafts a means for craft-persons in the region to market their products.
- Provide a means by which those looking for volunteer opportunities in Appalachia can be put in touch with projects seeking volunteers.

SOME ACCOMPLISHMENTS (As of Fall Board Meeting 2004)

The Volunteer Program placed 1,324 Volunteers from 57 groups. The estimated value of their work in cash donations and labor was $525,546.00 Among the volunteers was Andras Pentek of the Romanian Reformed Church who served as a summer intern in Lewisburg, WV.

The CAM Cabin Crafts program provided Appalachian Crafts for sale at twenty judicatory and congregational programs as well as through the sales outlet near Townsend, TN. Sales for the year were projected to reach the $70,000.00 level with about 65% of this going to the makers of the crafts. Crafts come from 120 crafters in 8 states.

The Coalition for Appalachian Ministry worked with the Commission on Religion in Appalachia in determining the use of Presbyterian Hunger Funds for projects in Appalachia.

In March of 2004 Frank Hare, retired Presbyterian Clergy person, became part-time interim Coordinator for Mission/Head of Staff for the Coalition during this period of transition. He will serve through the fall of 2005. This position has been vacant for many months.

The Coalition worked with the Pennsylvania Wee Kirk committee in designing an introduction to Appalachian Ministry segment for that 2004 conference.

A new brochure describing the work of the Coalition was developed and work is being done on a Power Point presentation to replace a video that has become dated.

Affinity Group Report 2005

I. Goals, methods of operation and theological emphases:

Mission Statement: Compañeros en Misión is a program of La Iglesia Nacional Presbiteriana de México and Presbyterian Church (USA) in the state of Sonora, México, and the state of Arizona, U.S.A. The mission of the program is to increase the reign of God by:

- establishing self-sufficient, self-governing and self-propagating churches in Sonora
 - participating in holistic evangelism
 - strengthening reciprocal and mutual ministries between the churches of the two countries
- ...always guided by the Holy Spirit.*

Compañeros en Misión is one of the seven bi-national programs of Presbyterian Border Ministry. Our offices are located in Nogales, Arizona. We currently work directly with six small mission congregations in five cities within the state of Sonora, México:

- Caborca (agriculture-based desert city located 3 hours southwest of Nogales)
- Guaymas (seaport city of 150,000 on the Sea of Cortés, 6 hours south of the US/México border)
- Hermosillo (state capital city, 3 hours' drive south of the border, with 900,000 residents)
- Navojoa (agricultural city located 375 miles south of the border)
- Nogales (border city of 400,000, an hour's drive south of Tucson, AZ)

We host an annual average of 18 short-term mission trips by U.S. church groups, focusing on three goals:

- Building faith - of visiting U.S. participants and our Mexican brothers and sisters
- Building understanding - raising awareness among people from both sides of the border
- Building relationships - among U.S. visitors and their Mexican hosts, and with Compañeros

II. Organization's annual budget:

2005 budget is $151,535.00

Covenant Network of Presbyterians

1. The Covenant Network of Presbyterians envisions a church as generous and just as God's grace. We work to uphold and act on the Presbyterian Church's historic, progressive vision. We actively pursue conversation and fellowship across theological divides, even as we continue to press for constitutional change to permit the full participation of gay and lesbian Presbyterians and to welcome the leadership gifts of all whom God calls to ordained service. We are committed to helping the church stay together in faithful ministry despite our differences.

The Covenant Network addresses a broad range of theological, biblical, pastoral, and ecclesiastical matters facing our church by:

- Fostering communication and theological dialogue through our quarterly newsletter, Covenant Connection, our website, www.covenantnetwork.org, and occasional books, booklets, and videos;
- Mounting annual national conferences and regional conferences on theological topics;
- Encouraging discussion, study, and mutual prayer both on-line and through local groups;
- Providing education and information on matters relating to ordination, and giving moral, legal, and financial support to officers and sessions challenged under the provisions of G-6.0106b of the Book of Order;
- Working for needed changes in the church, including the eventual removal of G-6.0106b.

The Covenant Network encourages all Presbyterians to participate actively in the work and deliberations of their local presbyteries. Local chapters in a number of presbyteries and seminaries connect supporters and others for discussion, study, and political action. We also assist commissioners prepare for and be effective at General Assembly, when invited to do so.

With others in the church, we desire to live out the Reformed faith found in Scripture and our confessions. We strive to proclaim and embody the gospel as we have learned it from the life and ministry of Jesus; we affirm the centrality of the Bible in our church; and we value the dynamic tension between unity and diversity.

Our vision for the church is embodied in "A Call to Covenant Community," which is posted on our website.

2. Total expenditures in 2004 were approximately $450,000. This included nearly $100,000 spent on a new video, Turning Points, and a widely distributed booklet, Far From Home. Other principal expense categories include salaries, printing and mailing, travel, G.A. participation, and expenses for the annual conference.

The Covenant Network is supported by donations of varying sizes from individuals and congregations in the Presbyterian Church (USA). In 2004 we received contributions from 90 congregations and more than 1,100 individuals. Twenty-eight individuals or couples and 23 sessions made donations of more than $1,000. These 23 sessions are listed on the attachment.

3. In 2004, the Covenant Network employed two full-time and three part-time staff members.

Frontera de Cristo is one of the seven Presbyterian Bi-national Border Ministry (PBM). PBM is a partnership of the National Presbyterian Church of Mexico (INPM) and the PCUSA formed in the 1980's by the Joint Mission Commission of our two national denominations.

I. Your organization's goals, methods of operation and theological emphases,

Goals:

Mission Statement: "Frontera de Cristo is a border ministry of two churches: The Presbyterian Church (USA) and the National Presbyterian Church of Mexico which form a single family. As a team of equal partners working together with God in the extension of the kingdom, we are called to demonstrate the transforming and saving grace of God. We sow the seeds of love and hope on the border, responding to the physical and spiritual needs of the people on both sides."

Frontera de Cristo's main goal is to share the gospel of Jesus Christ in word and deed through six areas of ministry: New Church Development, Health Ministry, Family Ministry, Community Development, Mission Education, and Micro-Credit Ministry. (Each area of ministry has its own set of goals and objectives. Please let us know if you would like a copy.)

Methods of Operation:

Frontera de Cristo is governed by a twelve member bi-national board consisting of the 6 members from the Presbiterio de Chihuahua (INPM) and 6 members from the Presbytery de Cristo (PCUSA). The goals and objectives of the ministry are implemented in partnership with the presbyteries and local congregations and are facilitated by a bi-national staff. There are two coordinators for the ministry: a pastor from the National Presbyterian Church of Mexico and a PCUSA Mission Co-worker.

Theological Emphases:

We witness to the reality that Christ is our peace who has torn down the dividing wall of hostility and calls us to live as one new humanity. We follow Jesus Christ across physical, religious, social, cultural and economic borders to participate in the ministry of reconciliation and we help individuals and churches on both sides of the border do the same.

National Association of Presbyterian Clergywomen (NAPC)

Purpose: Convene a National Association for Presbyterian Clergywomen, with local and regional emphasis, inclusive in membership, supportive in community, and representative in advocacy within the PC(USA). The first NAPC assembly was in Arlington, VA, October 10, 1986.

Vision and Theological Emphasis: Believing in the all-encompassing love of God in Christ, we seek to enable all Presbyterian Clergywomen to serve one another in the spirit of the Paraclete: to stand alongside one another, to comfort one another, to counsel one another, to be advocates of justice for one another, to empower one another.

Membership: Members may be any active or retired Presbyterian Clergywoman, candidate for ministry in the PC(USA), or any other person who accepts the vision of NAPC, who indicates a desire to work toward its growth and goals, and remains current in the payment of dues.

Meetings: The membership convenes at least triennially in a Triennial National Conference. The most recent conference was in Princeton, New Jersey 3/31/05 – 4/3/05 and celebrated 50 years of women in ministry in the PC(USA). The previous conference was in Albuquerque, New Mexico 4/26/02 – 4/29/02. These conferences provide challenging addresses, education, worship, workshops, and networking opportunities. NAPC also is present at each General Assembly with a booth and a luncheon event.

Staff: NAPC has no paid staff.

NAPC Officers (April, 2002-April, 2005):

Kathy Keener-Han -- Moderator

Karen Cobb -- Vice-Moderator

Susan Wesley Hartley -- Historian/Secretary

Beth Garrod-Logsdon -- Membership Secretary

Peggy Cross -- Treasurer

Becca King -- Triennial Coordinator

Kimberly Chastain -- Newsletter Editor

Karen Hernandez Granzen & Connie Lee -- Racial/Ethnic Representatives

Rebecca Tollefson -- Liaison to National Entities of the PC(USA)

Annual Budget: Membership dues generate about $6,000 per year. Contributions, gifts, and interest are about $300 per year. Expenditures cover membership advertising & mailings, annual GA presence, quarterly newsletter printing & mailing, meetings & conference calls for the officers & steering committee, and other supplies & postage.

Contributions over $1,000: NAPC receives income of $1,500 to $5,500 per year, separate from its annual budget, through the Presbyterian Foundation, from The Reverend Anne Marie Meyerhoffer Endowment. Revenues received are accumulated over a three year period and then are used to further the development of the organization at its Triennial Conference by providing scholarships to selected attendees requesting financial assistance and by helping to defray some of the Triennial leadership honoraria and costs. The income from the Meyerhoffer Endowment is the only donation to NAPC by an individual or organization which exceeds $1,000 per year.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PRESBYTERIAN SCOUTERS – CY 2005

ANNUAL REPORT TO GENERAL ASSEMBLY
PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH (USA)

The National Association of Presbyterian Scouters (NAPS) mission is to “Develop Scouting in Presbyterian Churches to teach and recognize religious values”:

To accomplish our mission, NAPS is working in the following areas:

- Promote church ownership and Bible based material.
- Promote the Religious Awards Programs.
- Develop material for the Troop Chaplain and Chaplain Aide for use within the Troop or Crew Programs.
- Develop a covenant relationship with each Presbytery.
- Develop an effective NAPS organization.
- Support the BSA National Chaplains Fund

To meet these goals NAPS actively promotes church ownership by encouraging Presbyterian churches to adopt the full range of Programs of the Boy Scouts of America (Cub Scout Packs, Boy Scout Troops and Venturing Crews), as an outreach to their community. In order to accomplish this goal at the national level. In the past year we have attended and provided staff and displays at the 215th General Assembly in Richmond VA; the Association of Presbyterian Christian Educators Convention in Vancouver BC and provided support to the conference on “Scouting in the Church Ministries” during Religious Relations Week at the BSA National Training Center at the Philmont Training Center in Cimarron NM. We also held our 1st Conference for “Youth Leaders, Educators and Ministers also at Philmont Training Center. Just as a note of interest we are planning our next conference September 26th through 30, 2005. In addition to our national activities many of our members and area officers have attended Presbytery Meetings to promote Scouting. These efforts are to inform Presbyterian Churches of the benefits of enhancing their youth programs by the use of the Boy Scout Programs.

NAPS encourages Presbyterian Churches to adopt the God and Country Program as an enhancement to their Youth Christian Education Program, not as a replacement. Thus providing an additional opportunity for all youth to increase their knowledge of their faith through the Presbyterian Religious Awards Program (The God and Country Series). Also, NAPS provides vehicles to recognize adults for their work with Youth (God and Service Award and the Celtic Cross Award). We further encourage Scouting Units to emphasize the twelfth part of the Scout Law “A Scout is Reverent” through the “Unit Award of Excellence” Program The Award is presented to Units chartered to PC(USA) Church’s for meeting stringent requirements for religious growth of the youth . To place further emphasis on the Scouts “Duty to God” we have provided updated materials for Unit Chaplains and Chaplains Aides, for distribution through the BSA.

The adoption of the full Scouting Program increases the benefits of the individual Scout the Programs by including youth from ages 7 to 18 years old. I would like to emphasize “Venturing” is a relatively new program that is coeducational for youth ages 14 through 18. It makes available access to all BSA Properties and Programs. It offers Youth Groups program diversity, excitement, and an opportunity to add outdoor dimensions to the church’s Youth Programs.

Many of our members represent NAPS on the BSA National and Council Religious Relations Committees.

Our annual budget is dependent on the number of annual membership renewals. The money is only used for direct expenses of communications media with the members, printing, postage, phone and support of the BSA, PRAY and PC(USA) activities.

NAPS is chartered in the State of Texas as a nonprofit corporation has no paid personnel, all NAPS efforts are staffed by volunteers whom pay their own expenses.

NAPS received no contributions for $1000.00 or more.

Yours in Christ,

Wray C. Johanning
President

National Council of Presbyterian Fourth Day Movements

The National Council of Presbyterian Fourth Day Movements is an organization of local groups, which are predominantly composed of Presbyterian (PCUSA) members, around the nation. These groups, or communities, are utilizing the Cursillo Method as a vehicle to attempt, through spiritual renewal, to implement the commission of our Lord Jesus Christ, to "go into all the world and proclaim the Gospel" of God's grace. The Cursillo Method was established and has been refined by Roman Catholics over the past 50 years. A number of expressions similar to Catholic Cursillo have developed in the United States over the past 25 years, including Walk to Emmaus, Great Banquet, Tres Dias, Presbyterian Pilgrimage, and Via de Cristo, all of which allow interdenominational participation. Expressions which utilize the name Cursillo, i.e. Episcopal Cursillo and Presbyterian Cursillo, are required by license agreement with the Catholic Church to restrict participation to members of their denominations. These movements all follow the basic format of Catholic Cursillo, which includes a Pre-Cursillo phase, a Three-day weekend centered around 15 talks, and the Post-Cursillo (known as Fourth Day) which is an accountability and support organization made up of those individuals who have participated in a Three Day weekend.

The role of the National Council is to (1) develop, offer and support a model Cursillo-like weekend experience; (2) assist local groups in implementing their weekends and developing their communities; (3) assist new groups in starting communities as opportunities present themselves and as the Holy Spirit leads; (4) certify new member Fourth Day Movement communities and re-certify existing Fourth Day Movement member communities on a periodic basis, and (5) continually emphasize that the overriding purpose of Cursillo is the evangelization of our environments, to be realized as a result of the spiritual renewal of individual participants who are called the Fourth Day. The National Council supports a version of the Cursillo Movement which is consistent with Reformed theology and the Constitution of the PC(USA), and will make it available as desired throughout the denomination. This Movement is offered as one method of supporting the denominational emphasis on evangelization and spiritual formation, and to encourage growth in Christian faith and commitment within the local church. Presbyterian Fourth Day Communities are led by lay members of the PC(USA), in partnership with their clergy, for members of the PC(USA). The theological emphasis of Presbyterian Fourth Day Movements is on the infinite grace available to all who recognize and accept the love of Christ. The weekend experience proposes a method of living the Christian Life based on piety, study, and action. No doctrinal positions have been adopted or are supported, and no positions are taken on the volatile theological and polity issues facing the PC(USA) today.

The National organization is currently made up of fourteen Presbyterian Cursillo Communities and six Presbyterian Pilgrimage Communities. Each community elects two representatives to attend, at their own expense, semi-annual meetings of the National Council. All officers serve on a volunteer basis. There are no "staff" members associated with Presbyterian Fourth Day Movements, either at the local or national level. Each community is requested on a voluntary basis to contribute funds to the National Council based on a "per participant at Three Day Weekends" basis. Over the past several years this has produced total revenues of between $3,000 and $4,000 annually. The primary expenditure of the National organization over the past few years has been the expense associated with having a booth at General Assembly. There are no individual "donors" to the National Council of Presbyterian Fourth Day Movements.

Network of Presbyterian Women in Leadership

OUR MISSION

The mission of NPWL is to serve as a catalyst for radical, God-directed life transformation and widespread renewal at every level of the PC(USA) by connecting, challenging and resourcing women and multiplying their effectiveness in leadership as they serve Jesus Christ in the twenty-first century.

OUR MOTIVATING BELIEFS

1. We believe God calls women to leadership at all levels in Christ's church.
2. We believe women benefit from the strength and support found in community with other women.
3. We believe it is vital to build an organization that recognizes, affirms, and raises up women for leadership at all levels within the PC(USA).
4. We believe the PC(USA) needs renewal in areas that women can uniquely effect.
5. We believe that every woman who works for renewal, whether from the pulpit, pew, or prayer closet, is a leader in the PC(USA).

OUR VISION STATEMENT

Our Vision is a community of women, Christ-centered and used by God to renew the PC(USA).

We will work toward this vision by developing networks in which women experience community,
share resources,
equip and nurture one another, encourage greater commitment to the renewal of the church, and urge one another toward deeper submission to Jesus Christ.

We work toward the day when women of our denomination are obedient to Jesus Christ,
growing in faith,
biblically literate, and actively serving Christ in the world and their communities, congregations, work places, and homes.

Our mission is to equip and educate the church
to minister the transforming grace and power of the Lord Jesus Christ to those who are in conflict with their sexuality.

How Can You Be Faithful in a Sexually Unfaithful Culture?

- Don't just say no. Respond pastorally to individuals struggling to live in chastity in singleness or fidelity in a covenant of marriage.
- Invite a OneByOne Speaker's Bureau representative to your church or presbytery in order to teach about pastoral care to individuals with sexual conflict.
- Consider starting a local support group.

Recommended Resources:

- OneByOne Pastoral Care Guide: a 190 page manual. Topics include: "Responding to Pro-Gay Theology; An Overview of Sexual Conflict; The Transformation Process; Becoming a Listening, Healing Community" and more! To order, send $16.50 to OneByOne.
- OneByOne Testimonial Booklet - 14 individuals who have experienced freedom from homosexuality. Can be ordered in bulk-$1each.
- Other articles and testimonies, go to www.oneby1.org.

Our ministry activities involve the following:

- (1) Educational seminars in PCUSA congregations by members of the OneByOne Speaker's Bureau.
- (2) Resource development - OneByOne is developing a series of educational booklets on the following topics: A Reformed Theology of Marriage and Sexuality; Understanding and Ministering to the Individual Struggling with Pornography; Personal Devotions for Individuals Seeking to Overcome Sexual Addiction; Ministry to the Sexual Abuse Victim; Is Sexual Reorientation Possible?
- (3) Youth and Sexuality Resources - OneByOne representatives will review curricula that address sexual brokenness among youth. We will promote this information to PCUSA youth pastors.
- (4) Website - OneByOne recognizes that the internet is the fastest growing medium for communication and education. Our site, www.oneby1.org includes articles, testimonies, and book reviews.
- (5) Support Group Curriculum Development - OneByOne is establishing a writing team that will develop a support group curriculum to be implemented in PCUSA congregations. The curriculum will serve individuals who struggle with various forms of sexual sin and temptation--both heterosexual and homosexual.

OneByOne Inc. has a staff of two (2) part-time employees and dedicated, volunteer Board of Directors of ten (10).

The Reverend Kerry Clements
Associate Stated Clerk
Office of the General Assembly
Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)
100 Witherspoon Street, #4418
Louisville, KY 40202

Dear Mr. Clements:

In response to the Office of the General Assembly's request for information about our work, The Outreach Foundation of the Presbyterian Church, Inc., is a Validated Mission Support Group that works in covenant relationship with the General Assembly Council of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to strengthen Presbyterian involvement in mission around the world.

The programmatic emphases of our work include supporting missionaries, planting and building churches, training leaders for the global Church, caring for vulnerable children, and serving as a catalyst for the renewal of PC(USA) congregations in their mission purpose. As we help congregations and individuals to find personal ways that they can participate in God's mission in the world, we seek to preserve a high level of trust with all who share in mission through The Outreach Foundation by strictly honoring donor intent, insuring strong financial accountability, and facilitating communication between mission supporters, projects and missionaries. In addition to providing mission partnership opportunities, we provide congregations with information about how to organize and take mission trips and how to hold mission conferences.

Each year, with input from PC(USA) staff, missionaries and global partners, the Board of Trustees of The Outreach Foundation identifies high-priority projects of holistic evangelism for which we then seek funding from individuals and congregations. We also identify PC(USA) missionaries who need salary support or ministry funds for their work. In 2004 we disbursed more than $4.6 million for Presbyterian mission efforts, over $730,000 through the Worldwide Ministries Division.

Our administrative budget enables us to develop new projects, facilitate partnerships, handle communications, and raise and disburse funds in ways that expand evangelistic mission. Our Board requests permission to apply 5% of each gift received by The Outreach Foundation to our administrative budget, but no amount is withheld from gifts that are given by donors who also make contributions that are designated for our administrative budget. The Board considers our donor list to be confidential and does not publish that information.

The Board of Trustees, all of whom are ministers or officers in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), is being led in its work during 2005 by the following officers:

Chair – Rev. Dr. John W. Daniel, Richmond, VA
Vice-Chair – Rev. Harry L. Slye, Katy, TX
Secretary – Florida Ellis, Atlanta, GA
Treasurer – Don Swain, Nashville, TN

The staff of The Outreach Foundation presently includes 9 full-time persons in our office in Franklin, Tennessee, and a Missionary to the U.S., the Rev. Jose Carlos Pezini, who serves Portuguese-speaking immigrants in the United States. The Outreach Foundation has also contracted with mission consultants who help to facilitate our work in key parts of the world.

Sincerely yours in Christ,

Robert J. Weingartner
Executive Director

The Presbyterian Association on Science, Technology, and the Christian Faith

March 2005

General: The Presbyterian Association on Science, Technology and the Christian Faith (PASTCF) is an independently incorporated non-profit membership organization recognized by the US Internal Revenue Service as a tax-exempt organization under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. Its affiliation with the Presbyterian Church (USA) is expressed through a formal covenant with the Office of Theology and Worship of the Congregational Ministries Division of the Presbyterian Church (USA).

Goals: The general purpose of the Association, as stated in the Bylaws, is “to challenge and assist the Presbyterian Church (USA), at all levels, to study, understand, discuss and act on the implications of science and technology as they affect the theology, worship, practice and moral actions of the church; and to challenge and assist Presbyterian scientists, engineers and other technical professionals to study, understand, discuss and act on the implications of the Reformed theological tradition for their scientific and technical vocations.”

Methods of Operation: The Association seeks to fulfill this purpose through the following activities:

1. Publishing a quarterly newsletter (SciTech).
2. Maintaining a web page www.pastcf.org with information about the Association and links to other sites dealing with science and religion.
3. Providing an exhibit at the annual meeting of the Association of Presbyterian Church Educators to the extent that financial and personnel resources permit..
4. Providing an exhibit at the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (USA).
5. Hosting a luncheon with speaker for commissioners and visitors at the General Assembly.
6. Recognizing Presbyterian scientists, engineers, science educators, and other science-related professionals, whose professional work is illumined by their faith and whose faith is enriched by their professional engagement.
7. Encouraging the formation of local Chapters to promote the goals of the Association at a local level (local chapters have been organized in the greater Denver, CO, area, in Gaithersburg, MD, and in Central Iowa), and supporting these by providing resources and advice.
8. Sponsoring educational programs for churches, presbyteries, synods, and Presbyterian conference centers and camps whenever opportunity arises.
9. Providing printed materials as resources for churches wishing to develop educational programs dealing with science and the Christian faith, and for individuals seeking such resources for personal growth.
10. Representing the Presbyterian Church (USA) in the Ecumenical Roundtable on Science, Technology and the Church.
11. Providing consultative services to the Office of Theology and Worship, and to other Church bodies within the Presbyterian Church (USA), as requested.
12. Organizing mini-conferences on science and Christian faith in years when there is no General Assembly.

Theological Emphasis: There are no specific theological criteria for membership, but members are expected to be in sympathy with the goals of the Association. The Association respects the integrity of the scientific endeavor and of those who pursue it, regarding science as providing insights into the workings of God’s creation. The Association also respects the integrity of the Reformed tradition and of those Christians who identify with it. The Association believes that there is no necessary conflict between these two principles, and encourages members to explore their implications for theology and worship.

Annual Budget: During the calendar year 2004, the Association received membership dues totaling $11,720.00, gifts amounting to $ 11,840.00 and other miscellaneous income amounting to $ 486.36, for a total income of $24,046.36. The largest expense items were those associated with the General Assembly booth and luncheon, together with the Annual Meeting of the Association ($4,286.60), Board meetings and participation in the annual meeting of the Ecumenical Round Table ($5,245.73), publishing SciTech ($4,332.29), and office expense ($1,854.52). Total expenses for the calendar year 2003 were $16,979.44. On December 31, 2003, the Association’s bank balance was $20,193.00.

Staff: The Association remains a fully voluntary organization with no paid staff. It is governed by an Executive Board comprised of three elected officers, five other elected Board members (to be increased to six in 2005), and three non-voting ex officio members (SciTech editor and web master, development officer, and Theology and Worship representative).

Donors giving more than $1,000.00 to PASTCF during the calendar year 2004:

Derek and Barbara Pursey
James Hathaway
Franklin D. Schowengerdt

Presbyterian Children's Homes and Related Ministries (PCUSA) is a resource and an advocate in the Church on the issues of children and families.

The established goals of the Association are:

- To provide a focus for children's issues within the PCUSA.
- To serve as a faith-based resource for churches, families and children.
- To provide opportunities for collaboration between Presbyterian child and family caring agencies.
- To serve as a national resource to the PCUSA on children's issues.

All members of the association shall be nonprofit child and family caring organizations that operate under a covenant agreement with a Synod or Presbytery of a Presbyterian or other Reformed ecclesiastical body. There shall be only one class of members.

The management and government of the affairs of the association shall be vested in the members. The members shall act only as a board, and an individual member shall have no power as such. All powers of the association shall be exercised by the members or under their authority, and the members shall control the business and affairs of the association. The members may give general, limited, or special power and authority to the committees, officers, and employees of the association to transact the general business, or any special business, of the association and may give powers of attorney to agents of the association to transact any special business requiring such authorization.

The association shall have the power to own, accept, acquire, mortgage, and dispose of real and personal property, and to obtain, invest, and retain funds, in advancing the purposes of the association. The association shall have the power to do any lawful acts or things reasonable necessary or desirable for carrying out the association's purposes and for protecting the lawful rights and interest of its members.

There is no staff; members of the association on a strictly volunteer basis share work.

REPORT OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CUBA CONNECTION – YEAR 2004 TO THE 216TH GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH (U.S.A.)

Purpose: The Presbyterian Cuba Connection is an unofficial not-for-profit network of Presbyterians for support, interpretation and advocacy of the life and witness of the Presbyterian Reformed Church in Cuba.

Activities: The Presbyterian Cuba Connection publishes an occasional newsletter with news of developments in the life of the Cuban church and information about partnership activities within the PC (USA). The contributions of individual and congregational members are transmitted to the Presbyterian Reformed Church in Cuba for the support of programs and projects of the PRCC through the Treasury Department license held by the PC (USA).

Theological Emphases: The Presbyterian Cuba Connection does not promote or advocate theological positions. We affirm and seek to support the policies of the General Assembly regarding Cuba and work cooperatively with the Worldwide Ministries Division to support the mission policies and priorities of the General Assembly in relation to the Presbyterian Reformed Church in Cuba.

Staff: The Presbyterian Cuba Connection has a board of 9 persons, one of whom serves as the Executive Secretary. All serve as volunteers.

Budget: The Presbyterian Cuba Connection does not adopt a budget since the income is unpredictable and the only program expenditure is for grants to support the life and mission of the Presbyterian Reformed Church in Cuba. Income from member contributions for the year 2004 was $36,872.79 for mission projects, and $1190.00 for the newsletter and other administrative costs. Expenses for the year 2004 were $37,070.00 for mission projects and $1683.58 for the newsletter and other administrative costs.

Membership: There are approximately 400 members of the Presbyterian Cuba Connection within all 15 synods of the PC (USA).

Major Donors: Contributors of $1000.00 or more in 2004 were: Dean and Marianne Lewis, Ruth Clancy, United Church of Los Alamos NM, Second Presbyterian Church of Indianapolis IN, Trinity Presbyterian Church of Atlanta GA, Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church of Bryn Mawr PA, Westminster Presbyterian Church of Minneapolis MN, First Presbyterian Church of Rochester MN, Holston Presbytery.

Respectfully submitted,

03 ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON GENERAL ASSEMBLY PROCEDURES

The Presbyterian Forum

I.a) GOALS AND METHODS OF OPERATION

The Presbyterian Forum is the “certain trumpet” for denominational reform. We are committed to our confessional theology, and to our representative polity. The purpose of the Forum is to bring about the spiritual and theological reformation of the P.C.(USA), beginning at the local presbytery level.

We are working to equip pastors, elders and members to be able to use our connectional and representational system, in order to foster confessional integrity and discipline throughout the denomination, including the General Assembly.

The way we do this is by developing networks of cooperation and communication, by phone and by email; by publishing resources and tools for involvement in the polity of the Church, primarily on our website; and by advising interested church members on polity issues over the phone or in person, the latter especially at General Assembly meetings.

Many around our denomination lament that we should be getting back to the real work of the church. Empowering the clergy and equipping the laity IS the real work of the church. That’s discipleship. Strong mission grows out of strong discipleship.

More than ever, the P.C.(USA) needs to be led by people issuing a clarion call via a certain trumpet; building up and encouraging those who can be servant leaders “in the field”.

I.b) THEOLOGICAL EMPHASES

Equipping the people of the Church to do the work of the Church is a joyful task. It is vital--both for the Church as a whole, and for each member therein--not only to be convinced that each has a God-given purpose, but also to be fully aware of that purpose, and of how each can structure their work and life to fulfill that purpose.

Rediscovering, as it were, not “only” that our Church has a Confessional Heritage, but that those confessions embody both the identity and the purpose of the Church, and of each of us as members, is marvelous business.

When, beyond that, Presbyterians recognize the value of the Biblical form of government our Church is known for and blessed with, as laid down in the Book of Order, they can regain a sense of ownership and responsibility for the decisionmaking that goes on at the various levels of the Church’s governing bodies. Presbyterian “connectionalism” encourages church members to expect accountability from one another, as each of us seeks to follow that call we all share, the call to pursue the “Great Ends of the Church:”

The proclamation of the Gospel for the salvation of humankind; the shelter, nurture, and spiritual fellowship of the children of God; the maintenance of divine worship; the preservation of the truth; the promotion of social righteousness; and the exhibition of the Kingdom of Heaven to the world (G.-1.0200).

This positive use of connectionalism is what the Presbyterian Forum seeks to bring back to the forefront of what it means to be a Presbyterian. None of us, no church and no governing body, should passively rely on others to “be the Church for us”. It takes all of us together, each doing the part he or she is called to, to be the Church. Making one’s vote count, one’s voice heard, and one’s vision of the Kingdom of God seen and understood by others, is the call and responsibility of everyone who would be part of a godly denomination.

It is a simple outworking of our belief in the “priesthood of all believers” that propels us in the Presbyterian Forum to remind all Presbyterians that the P.C.(USA) is not a body “out there”, but a body made up of people like us, who need to work together if they want to be faithful to their Lord. Only then will the Church be what she is called to be—faithful in her confessions, as well as in her ministry.

AFFINITY GROUPS REPORT

Greetings in our Lord Jesus Christ. This report responds to your request for an annual report from “PC(USA) Affinity Groups.” Presbyterian Frontier Fellowship does not include “Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)” in its legal/official name and so does not meet the criteria presented. However, in a spirit of openness and recognition of – in truth, appreciation for – our relationship to the PC(USA), we offer the following information.

Presbyterian Frontier Fellowship (PFF) is an expression within the PC(USA) of the worldwide frontier mission movement. As Presbyterians we join Christians of many cultures and communions in seeking to establish viable, indigenous Christian movements among the remaining unreached people groups on earth by calling and mobilizing the PC(USA) to fulfill the biblical mandate to declare Jesus Christ among all the “ethne” (people groups) of the earth.

PFF is a Validated Mission Support Group related by covenant agreement to the General Assembly Council. Our board-approved mission statement says: “We challenge, mobilize and empower Presbyterian congregations into global partnerships that establish indigenous churches among unreached people groups.” We work closely with GAC, WMD and NMD and existing/newly emerging international partners to support, fund and advance mission among unreached peoples. Our direct link to the PC(USA) is through its Office of International Evangelism (OIE).

The PFF board and OIE jointly and initially determine our projects, which are subsequently ratified by the GAC. Our geographically dispersed team of 8 program, 12 adjunct (volunteer), and four office-support members speak and preach continually in local churches and at presbytery, synod, and GA gatherings and at other conferences. We share our vision of deep engagement in Presbyterian frontier mission through frontier mission networks and partnerships at local, regional, national, and international mission gatherings. We invite generous donations to PC(USA) Frontier Mission projects through Extra Commitment Opportunity #863001 and related accounts. Our staff members raise personal support separately so that 100% of donations are delivered to General Assembly for frontier projects.

Our board-approved “Core Values” detail our theological emphases:

PFF is a missional servant community committed to the Lordship of Jesus Christ, seeking the empowerment of the Holy Spirit, rooted in Scripture and prayer, devoted to faithful stewardship of life and possessions, boldly proclaiming the gospel to every people, serving the Presbyterian Church (USA), uplifting the congregation’s faithfulness to God’s mission calling, focusing on the congregation as a wellspring for mission initiative, calling forth people movements to Jesus among unreached people groups, advocating the indigenous expressions of the body of Christ in all people groups, supporting the planting of indigenous churches committed to God’s mission, advocating a partnership approach to mission, [and] committed to the unity of the global church in mission.

Through our mission interpretation, we mobilize people and funds for PC(USA) frontier mission and also more generally promote all aspects of PC(USA) mission and provide resources to congregations. Interestingly, we urge donors to send funds for mission projects directly to the PC(USA) Frontier Mission Program, not to us. We take no percentage, overhead or administrative fee. In this sense we operate to raise funds for the PC(USA).

PFF’s budget (for FY 07/01/04-06/30/05) is $976,036 (aspirational). We remain grateful to God for our contributors and hold deeply the trust they place in our organization and the mission we advance in partnership with them. In 2004, some 275 congregations and foundations, and some 650 individuals/families, contributed financially to PFF. As a result of our ministry, $1,358,820 was donated directly to the PCUSA Frontier Mission Program for mission among unreached peoples. We decline to list donors to PFF to protect our organization’s viability and our donors’ privacy.

Sincerely partnering with you in Christ’s ministry,

Presbyterian Parents of Gays and Lesbians

Presbyterian Parents of Gays and Lesbians is a parent-to-parent support group that attempts to minister to families during critical times in their lives. PPGL is a non-advocacy group. We do not take positions on issues before the General Assembly. Our intention is to reach out pastorally through parents who have come to terms with having a son or daughter who is homosexual, in a safe and confidential setting, to parents who are just learning of their child's sexual orientation. We do not attempt to have persons change their sexual orientation, but rather help parents, through the resources of the church, begin to understand and appreciate their child's sexual orientation. We provide resources through books and small grants to groups that wish to start.

We had no donors over $1,000 during 2004.

We have no employees. The board and parent participants are volunteers.

2004 REPORT OF THE PRESBYTERIAN PEACE FELLOWSHIP TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

The Mission Statement of the Presbyterian Peace Fellowship is:

"The PPF is a national community of Presbyterians who trust in the nonviolent Jesus Christ. We call forth and celebrate prophetic action by individuals and by our denomination in the search for alternatives to violence, exploitation, militarism and war. Through the decades, across generations and in the changing circumstances of history, this is our trust and our task. Come and join us!"

We were founded in 1944 by conscientious objectors and their supporters to maintain a peace witness in the Presbyterian Church. In addition to influencing the church's corporate witness on issues of peace and justice, we support those Presbyterians who take nonviolent risks of conscience. Since 2004 marks 60 years of this witness, we are rededicating our commitment to both the Church and to society to develop the practice of nonviolence for a world that better reflects God's purpose of peace among all people.

Our strength is in the fellowship of committed Presbyterians who work through local churches and Presbyteries to bring our church to a more faithful response to the nonviolence of Jesus. Our members attend General Assembly at their own expense to staff our booth, where we provide information that helps people become more engaged in a witness for peace. Our major public event is our General Assembly Peace Breakfast, in which we present our Peacemaker Award to a Presbyterian who has been engaged in a particularly meaningful peacemaking endeavor, and our keynote speaker encourages our church to faithful response.

We testify on peacemaking matters before GAcommittees, and throughout the church we advocate vociferously for peace-related issues. We are supportive to the leadership of our church, while offering our own perspective in peaceable dialogue. Our members participate fully in the life of the PCUSA, and some are elected as commissioners, or members of boards and agencies, or are on staffs of colleges, seminaries, or governing bodies.

We organize an annual Presbyterian delegation to Fort Benning, GA, to implement GA policy calling for the closing of the Western Hemisphere Institute for Security Cooperation, because of its continuing abysmal human rights record.

In the last 4 years we have sponsored seminars at Ghost Ranch, along with the Witherspoon Society and Presbyterians for Restoring Creation, dealing with globalization and militarism, alternatives to international violence, and the militarization of space. In July, 2005, the seminar will be "Paths to a Just and Peaceful World,"

In cooperation with the Christian Peacemaker Teams we have conducted two trips to Israel/Palestine.

We continued our support for the Colombian Presbyterian Church with three projects:

- We sent a second delegation to visit Presbyterian churches and hear the stories of some of the thousands of displaced persons whom they are struggling to help. Fourteen Presbyterians, aided by grants from New York Presbytery and PPF's video profits, traveled in Uruba, Medellin, and Bogotá, and on return spoke in many churches about the Colombian crisis. We contributed $1000 to the Displaced Persons fund in Uruba Presbytery.

-We hired Kelly Wesselink as our "Partner in Peacemaking." Kelly is traveling around the country, speaking in churches, colleges, and seminaries about Colombian Presbyterians, and is recruiting for our third delegation to Colombia, scheduled for June 5-17, 2005.

-We received the unexpected honor of recruiting, training, and supervising six volunteer "accompaniers," persons who protect and support Colombians who are receiving death and arrest threats. This request from the Colombian church was brought home to us by Moderator Rick Ufford-Chase. We will train another dozen or so accompaniers in 2005.

In the past year we have worked to reduce the disastrous effects of the occupation of Iraq, to support those who take conscientious-objector status against the war, and to promote personal commitment to Jesus' nonviolence. Our solidarity was also expressed by support for Presbyterians who went to prison as part of nonviolent opposition to US terrorism in Latin America. We have emphasized the continuing threat of nuclear weapons, with a special concern for the development of new nuclear weapons. We have a commitment to alternatives to war and an end war emphasis. Violence in the nation related to guns continues to claim attention, as in the May Million Mom March.

Besides our Partner in Peacemaking we have two part-time paid staff. We have a quarterly publication called "Briefly," which goes to over 2000 people. We are affiliated with the Fellowship of Reconciliation, an interfaith, international, pacifist organization (Box 271, Nyack, NY 10960); being part of the FOR keeps us in touch with 15 other religious peace fellowships.

Our basic theological position, within our affirmation of Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior, lies in our agreement with the universal testimony of the early church for active nonviolence and a rejection of the idolatry of the powers that be. We build upon the foundation of the prophets and apostles who sought justice and peace through sacrificial love. Scripture gives us our understanding of Jesus, who is our peace. We seek to be faithful to the blessing in the Sermon on the Mount in Matthew, where peacemakers are called the children of God. We recognize that this word from Jesus has within it a very sobering challenge, since Jesus the peacemaker, like the prophets, was put to death; we are called upon to embrace even this possibility, knowing that we too shall be raised to dwell in the peaceable reign of God.

PRESBYTERIAN WRITERS GUILD

Information requested by the 216th General Assembly

1. The organization's goals, methods of operation and theological emphasis

The Presbyterian Writers Guild is a voluntary, non-profit organization of writers who are affiliated with the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). The Guild operates through a Board which is elected at the biennial meeting held at the General Assembly, for terms that run for four consecutive years. The Board "meets" during the year through telephone conference calls, ordinarily held on the second Saturday of the month in September, December, February, and April, and in person, when possible, during General Assembly.

Dues per member per year are $25.00, with all dues expiring at the end of each calendar year.

The Guild provides support and encouragement to its members through two annual awards: The David Steele Distinguished Writer Award, given to a Presbyterian writer whose works have made an impact on the church at large; and the Jim Angell Award given to a writer for a first published book. The David Steele Distinguished Writer Award offers a prize of $1,000 and the Jim Angell Award offers a prize of $500, funded through an account given by Virginia Angell, widow of Jim Angell, for whom the award is named.

The General Assembly luncheon and an information booth provided in conjunction with the Presbyterian Publishing Corporation offers members of the Guild introduces non-members to the work of the Guild.

A newsletter, The Writer, is published four times a year, providing information about the Guild, updates on publications of members, articles of help and interest to writers, and occasional examples of writing by members (for instance, hymns written by participants from the Hymn Writers Workshop have been published in the newsletter for the benefit of the readers).

Writing Workshops may be held regionally and nationally but not on a regularly scheduled basis. The intent of the workshops is to encourage new writers and to assist seasoned writers with programs to increase their writing opportunities.

The Guild operates a web site, www.presbywriters.org, for which it has received funding through the Presbyterian Publishing Corporation.

The Guild welcomes all theological viewpoints expressed by Presbyterians throughout the denomination, and encourages open dialogue among its members. The Guild's theological emphasis is that found in The Book of Order and The Book of Confessions of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

2. The organization's annual budget

In 2004-2005, the annual budget was set at $6,355.00

The majority of the income is raised through membership dues (currently set at $25.00), and through gifts made to the Guild, none of which have exceeded $1,000 in the past year.

3. The number of staff in your organization

The Board consists of President, Vice-President, Immediate Past-President, Treasurer, Recording Secretary, Membership Secretary, Corresponding Secretary, Corporate Agent, Editor, and at least two Members at Large.

A listing of current officers of the Board is attached.

Respectfully submitted,
Cathy Cummings Chisholm, President, Presbyterian Writers Guild

Presbyterians for Renewal

Our Mission:

*As followers of Jesus Christ,
seeking to conform our lives and beliefs to the Word of God,
our mission is to participate in God's renewing, transforming work in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).*

Our Values:

Obedience Submitted to the Lordship of Jesus Christ
Faithfulness Anchored in God's Word and the historic Reformed faith
Conviction Passionate about shaping the church's life and theology
Engagement Involved positively in the structure and politics of the PCUSA
Collaboration Working with others who share our mission and vision
Servanthood Committed to ministry that reflects the graciousness of Christ
Prayer Depending upon God's direction and power

Our Vision:

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) will be a church that boldly proclaims Jesus Christ the incarnate Son of God and the only Savior
and Lord of the world;
confidently relies upon Scripture as the authority for our faith and life;
effectively equips disciples to live abundantly in Christ;
intentionally develops godly leaders for future generations consistently supports congregations as the primary agents of God's mission to the world;
willingly relies upon healthy governing bodies for accountability, mutual encouragement, and shared witness;
courageously embraces action for social justice and evangelism as essential dimensions of our primary task, to proclaim the Good News; and faithfully lives with holy abandon in the power of the Holy Spirit, willing to risk all and serve all in order to show the love of Christ to all.

PFR seeks to accomplish its mission by calling the church to prayer, by networking congregations and individuals with the same values and vision, and by providing resources such as printed materials, conferences, and training events. In addition, PFR provides a team of informed persons during the Assembly for spiritual, theological and polity support. Contact can be made through the PFR Booth in the Exhibit Hall, or by email to Jim Berkley, PFR Issues Ministry Director, jim@pfrenewal.org.

The 2005 PFR Budget is $1,150,000. PFR currently employs five full-time and two part-time staff persons, and gratefully acknowledges the volunteer support of hundreds of individuals and congregations.

Presbyterians for Restoring Creation Organizational Information 2005

1a) Presbyterians for Restoring Creation's goals and theological emphases:

In 1990, the 202nd General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church USA, adopted (by a resounding 97% majority) the policy report, Restoring Creation for Ecology and Justice. This report calls Presbyterians to focus on caring for creation as a central concern to be incorporated into the life and mission of the church at every level. In 1995, Presbyterians for Restoring Creation (PRC) was founded as a grassroots organization to help the church to educate and energize its members about the environmental crisis. In 2001, the Presbyterian General Assembly approved by 85% an overture on Preserving Bio-Diversity and Halting Mass Extinction. This overture was actively support by PRC. In 2002, PRC supported overtures on clarifying the PCUSA stance on "takings," cleaning up old coal-fired power plants, and others. PRC continues to help the church to fulfill its current environmental policies and to create new policies. We help the members of the church to address environmental concerns from a faith perspective.

PRC invites and encourages others to join us in:

- Reclaiming awareness of our spiritual connections with the whole of God's Creation, empowered by our rich biblical and theological heritage,
- Understanding our role in causing the suffering of Creation and repenting of that role,
- Trusting that Christ – whose incarnation reveals God's love and compassion, who suffered death that we might have life – has shown us how to challenge injustice with love and to transform brokenness into wholeness,
- Engaging in study, reflection, and dialogue to deepen our understanding of the issues,
- Working with agencies of ministry within the church to include environmental issues,
- Consciously resisting the values and norms of consumer-based economic systems, which emphasize growth at all costs;
- Cooperating with others actively involved in promoting values based on compassion, frugality, accountability, participation and sufficiency for all, and
- Celebrating the power of community, and utilizing the gifts, skills, and experience of all people to preserve and restore God's creation for future generations.

1b) PRC's methods of operation:

PRC's volunteer leadership is composed of a ten person Steering Committee (Moderator, Vice Moderator, Treasurer, Publications Manager, and six regional representatives). Leadership is elected in staggered terms each year by the membership through newsletter ballots. Positions are elected for two-year terms (with no person serving more than six consecutive years.)

2) PRC 2005 operational budget is $47,475. Income is mainly from membership dues and donations. Additional funds come from grants and investments. Major expenses include newsletter printing, postage, presence at General Assembly and other meetings, office supplies and consultant. The fifth biennial national conference will be held June 9-12, 2005 at Silver Bay, NY.

3) PRC employs a part-time consultant who helps coordinate the activities, membership, publications, web site, special projects, semi-annual national conferences and general promotion of the organization.

All donors who gave more than $1,000 to Presbyterians for Restoring Creation in the calendar year 2004:

- 1) Environmental Justice Office (PCUSA) – support grant
- 2) Presbytery of Albany – Conference Grant
- 3) Westminster Woods Conference Center – Conference Grant

Voluntary annual information for 2004
as requested by 212th and 213th General Assemblies

"We aim to chronicle the life and mission of the Church of Jesus Christ everywhere."

1. Goals, methods of operation and theological emphases

Presbyweb, "The Daily News for Presbyterians", is an independent news organization for members of the PC(USA). We post 6 daily issues on the web every week, at <http://www.presbyweb.com>. During GA we update throughout the day as needed.

We provide several categories of information:

- a. All the national Presbyterian news, "from left to right", official and unofficial, that can be found on the worldwide web.
- b. News about the church in the U.S. and worldwide, and the interaction with the cultures in which they minister, as far as we believe it to be of interest to our readers.
- c. Opinion pieces, columns, theological essays, book reviews etc.
- d. Links, directly or indirectly, to all Presbyterian web sites.
- e. We also offer a platform for our readers in our popular Letters section, and we highlight some unsolicited letters and op-ed pieces by posting them as Viewpoint articles. You will find "voices from the entire spectrum" on Presbyweb.

As much as is humanly possible, we keep our own theological convictions from interfering with our purpose of providing the news. We do not try to create balance. Over time proponents of one side of an issue might generate more news than their opponents, and that will be reflected on Presbyweb. So be it. We don't try to control the process. We try not to stand between the news and the readers.

We give summaries of the news in such a way that our readers can get a real sense of the content of the articles to which we link, even if they don't have the time or interest to click on the link and read the full article themselves.

Nowhere else can one find all this news together in one place.

In short: Coming to Presbyweb first is the smart and easy way to miss nothing.

2. Our finances

Presbyweb is owned by CHURCHandWORLD.com Inc, a privately held corporation. We don't solicit donations. We are not an affinity group in the real sense of the word.

Presbyweb is subscription-based.

We offer a free trial subscription for a month to all who register. We ask our subscribers to determine themselves what they will pay for a year's subscription; we only have set a minimum of $15 (for seminary students).

Report to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (USA)
Proyecto Amistad, Presbyterian Border Ministry
Eagle Pass TX/Piedras Negras, Coahuila, Mexico

PO Box 867 Eagle Pass, TX 78853 Tel. 830.773.8984 Email: amistad@hilconet.com

Proyecto Amistad is one of the seven ministry sites of the Presbyterian Border Ministry, a binational ministry of the Presbyterian Church USA (PCUSA) and the National Presbyterian Church of Mexico (INPM). Operating out of Eagle Pass, TX and Piedras Negras, Coahuila, Mexico, Amistad is governed by an eight-member binational board of directors and overseen by the Presbyterian Border Ministry Council and the International Joint Mission Commission of the PCUSA and the INPM. The program is administrated by two staff members, US Coordinator Susanne Frerichs who is a mission coworker of the PCUSA and Mexican Coordinator Roberto Medina Solis who is a mission worker of the INPM/Presbiterio del Noreste.

Amistad's Mission is: To encourage, equip, and support the Presbyterian Churches of Mexico (INPM) and the United States (PCUSA), facilitating their joint ministry as witnesses and instruments of the Kingdom of God. The ministry accomplishes its mission by (1) providing financial grants and logistical support to Noreste Presbytery (INPM) and its congregations for evangelistic programs, compassion ministries coordinated by the local church, church construction projects, continuing education for pastors, and scholarships for seminary and Bible school students. And (2) facilitating missionary encounters (mission trips) between Mexican and U.S. American Christians who seek to share their gifts, learn from one another, and worship and serve Christ together, in Mexico, the US, and around the world, gaining a greater understanding of what it means to be members of God's Kingdom, one not divided by political, cultural or economic boundaries.

As a result of its ministry on the US-Mexico border, Amistad envisions:

- Growing, God-dependent Presbyterian Churches that are fulfilling their mission as bearers of the holistic Gospel to the people of their communities.
- Pastors who are motivated and empowered to effectively minister to and facilitate the ministry of the People of God on the border.
- People who, having been transformed by the power of Christ, are maturing in their relationships with God and with one another and using their spiritual gifts, learned skills, and natural abilities in ministry.
- Communities that are transformed into peaceful, prosperous, and God-honoring environments by the power of God working in them through the prayers, words, and deeds of the Presbyterian Churches of their communities.
- Believers from both nations living, worshipping, and serving as one body, that the world may know that Jesus Christ is Lord.
- Political, cultural, socio-economic, and religious borders torn down by the power of the Spirit as God's people unite their efforts to reconcile and be reconciled.

The Amistad ministry is governed by the following beliefs:

- We affirm the authority of Scripture, the basic tenets of the Reformed faith, and the Statements of Faith of the Presbyterian Church (USA) and the National Presbyterian Church of Mexico (2 Timothy 3:16-17).
- We believe that in Christ there are no borders (Ephesians 2:11-22).

- We believe we are called to work together as one body; recognizing and respecting our cultural and theological differences, but also embracing them as ways in which God wishes to challenge our own assumptions and understandings (1 Corinthians 12:12-31, Ephesians 4:1-16).
- We believe God can and will transform us as we worship and minister together along our common border (Ephesians 4:1-16).
- We believe that Christ can and will transform the lives of the people on the border and that this is the only way to bring complete transformation to our communities and nations (Jn 14:6, 2 Cor 5:17).
- We believe that our best witness is our unity and love as the Body of Christ (Jn 13:34-35, 17:20-23).
- We believe we are the very hands and feet of Christ, called to follow His example of bearing the living Word to a broken and hurting world (Js 2:14-26, 1 Jn 2:6, Mat 10:7-8, Jn 14:12, Mat 25:34-36).
- We believe the mission of the Church is to communicate the Gospel of Jesus Christ in word and deed in forms culturally appropriate to the communities and people to which we seek to witness (Mat 28:19-20, Mat 5: 13-16, Phil 2:5-11, 1 Cor 9:19-23).
- We believe that we are called to honor civil law, though we believe also, that we, as Children of God, are called to seek the transformation of our communities and nations into God-honoring societies, speaking against any and all actions that oppress, harm, or otherwise undermine the dignity, worth, and rights of men and women anywhere. This demands our use of our prophetic role, speaking against injustice and sin in our midst (Ezekiel 2:3-5).
- We believe all believers and all communities of faith are gifted and called to participate in Christ's ministry in the world (1 Corinthians 12:12-31, Acts 1:8).
- We believe that to be partners in mission means uniting our efforts and resources to carry out a common mission in such a way that extends the Kingdom of God on earth and mutually empowers and edifies each of us (Ephesians 4:1-16).
- We believe that each community of faith is responsible to God for the city in which it lives and ministers (Jeremiah 29:7, Genesis 12:2-3).

That All May Freely Serve (TAMFS) was founded in 1993. In January of that year the Rev. Dr. Jane A. Spahr was named evangelist and funded by the Downtown United Presbyterian Church. In March of the same year the mission project That All May Freely Serve was launched.

Background. A 1992 court decision by the Presbyterian Church General Assembly's Permanent Judicial Commission set aside the pastoral call of the Rev. Dr. Jane Adams Spahr to the Downtown United Presbyterian Church (DUPC) of Rochester, New York. The Commission's reason: Dr. Spahr ("Janie") though an eminently qualified candidate, was a self-affirming lesbian. As a constructive response to this painful denial, DUPC in March 1993 established That All May Freely Serve (TAMFS) to participate in an intentionally educational process in the dialogue called for by the General Assembly. DUPC then invited Janie to become an evangelist to spread the "good news" of God's love for everyone by "personing" this issue. She has since travelled widely throughout the United States, most often with "touring partners," many of whom are from DUPC. This mission of evangelism has opened countless hearts and minds, as TAMFS has accepted invitations to preach, teach, counsel, and encourage inclusiveness throughout both the Presbyterian Church and the wider community.

Mission/Theological emphasis. Called by the life and teachings of Jesus, compelled by our faith and charged by our conscience, we advocate for an inclusive church that honors diversity and welcomes lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender persons as full members. Full membership includes eligibility for ordination to the offices of elder, deacon, and pastor.

Organization. TAMFS has national offices in Rochester, NY at the Downtown United Presbyterian Church (DUPC) and eight regional partnerships (TAMFS Baltimore, TAMFS South, TAMFS Michigan, TAMFS Chicago, TAMFS Northern California, TAMFS Texas, Presbyterian Promise and Presbyterian Welcome). Each region has a team dedicated to the same core principles of inclusiveness.

Currently the office of the National That All May Freely Serve is located at the Downtown United Presbyterian Church. There are three full-time staff: Dr. Spahr, Minister Director, Lisa Larges, Regional Partnership Coordinator, and Cassandra Womack, Administrative Associate, who manages the Rochester office.

Since 1993 DUPC has shared sponsorship of this special mission project with Westminster Presbyterian Church of Tiburon, California, which serves as employer and fiscal agent for TAMFS, enabling Dr. Spahr's relationship with Redwoods Presbytery to remain in good standing. The Minister Director and the Regional Partnership Director are employees of Westminster Presbyterian Church. The Administrative Associate is an employee of the Downtown Presbyterian Church.

A semi-annual newsletter has a mailing list of 7,000 individuals, many of whom are members of PC(U.S.A.). TAMFS has a Web Page at www.tamfs.org.

The TAMFS budget for 2005 is $314,210. In the past year eighteen donors gave $1,000-1,999; three donors contributed $2,000-2,999, five donors gave $3,000-5,999, two donors gave $5,000-9,999 and three donors contributed over $10,000. In total 467 individuals made donations to the organization.

3 AND 4

Where we are. TAMFS is growing and evolving with its regional partnerships each with its team of workers dedicated to the same core principles of inclusiveness. Since 1993 DUPC has shared sponsorship of this special mission project with Westminster Presbyterian Church of Tiburon, California, which serves as employer and fiscal agent for TAMFS, enabling Janie's relationship with Redwoods Presbytery to remain in good standing.

Where we are going. We will continue to - Educate and engage in dialogue with members of faith communities; colleges; universities; seminaries; and other relevant groups to further this work of justice through education and advocacy.

- Build and coordinate a national network of regional partnerships
- Encourage regional partnerships to employ or call ministers of outreach and evangelism.
- Collaborate with More Light Presbyterians and other advocates for justice and inclusion.
- Honor the ALL in That All May Freely Serve by deepening our commitment and connections with other marginalized groups so named by the dominant culture. Our particular emphasis has and will continue to be our anti-racism work.

TAMFS has had a booth at the General Assembly and has cooperated with More Light Presbyterians and Shower of Stoles on a shared hospitality suite, dinner, strategy room, and pastoral care.

Mary S. Rees

Voices of Orthodox Women

1. Voices of Orthodox Women is a nationwide network of people committed to renew and reform the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) through the promotion of the doctrines and practices of historic, biblical and confessional orthodoxy against those of an encroaching culture.

The work of the VOW network includes:

- Purposeful and specific prayer for our church and its ministries
- The encouragement of like-minded individuals and groups
- The political empowerment of orthodox women
- Education
- Calls for accountability
- A faithful and gently assertive presence

As Voices of Orthodox Women we believe in the Triune God—Father, Son and Holy Spirit, the authority of Scriptures, the biblical doctrines taught in The Book of Confessions, the sinfulness of human nature, the redemptive and transforming work of Jesus Christ, and Christ’s sole Lordship over every area of life.

In submission to the Scriptures, we believe the intrusions of culture into the life of the church must be exposed and resisted; most particularly, that radical feminism is irreconcilable with biblical orthodoxy; an idolatry -in both our Church and our culture-to be unmasked.

In submission to Christ’s Lordship over every area of life, we believe ourselves called, therefore, to build up the PC(U.S.A.) by promoting the doctrines and practices of historic biblical orthodoxy against those of this encroaching culture.

VOICES OF SOPHIA

Goals and Theological Emphases

Voices of Sophia, established in 1995, is a community of women and men in the larger community of the Presbyterian Church (USA) being reformed by God through the Spirit of the living Christ and working toward the transformation of the church into a discipleship of equals:

*where the gifts and voices of the LAOS form our theology and inform the directions we take:

*where truth-telling in relation to the interpretation of Scripture, tradition, and human experience is essential to the community:

*where we hear and value individuals' stories;

*where we provide a model for action throughout the church as we claim our power and empower others;

*where we stand with women, all marginalized persons, including children, around the world whose lives are crushed by the burden of patriarchal systems;

*where we are open to ecumenical communities of similar purpose and to new ways of being reformed by the world and untamed Spirit;

We acknowledge the changed role of women and men in church and society.

We unite as women and men of faith to take our place as equal partners in the expression of that faith;

We claim our voices in expressing who God is for us;

We share our vision of the church as an inclusive community and we call upon the church to celebrate the theological contributions of women in the life of the community.

Voices of Sophia seeks to speak wisely and prophetically to the church as it calls the church into accountability to fulfill the Gospel and General Assembly policy regarding feminist theology, inclusiveness and diversity.

Methods of Operation

We plan to operate by maintaining a website, have gatherings, and continue a booth and breakfast at General Assembly. We have been in transition in the last 6 months so all is not up and running at this time but will be soon.

Budget

Our annual budget last year was $11,000.00. We expect it to be about $15,000.00 for the next year which will include the website and mailings and hopefully a gathering. 2006 will include a booth and breakfast at General Assembly.

We no longer have any staff but work as an all volunteer organization.

Donors

It is the policy of Voices of Sophia not to divulge the names of our donors.

The Association of Stated Clerks

Scope:

The Association of Stated Clerks is an organization of Stated Clerks of the Presbyterian Church (USA), and Affiliate members who share common goals and interests relating to the work of the office of Stated Clerk. Affiliate Members are (1) persons not currently in active service as stated clerks, but who formerly served at least five years as a stated clerk and who have paid current dues; or (2) persons not currently in active service as stated clerks but who support the purposes of the organization, (3) persons who serve as instructors in polity, (4) or persons who wish to embark upon training preparatory to election as a stated clerk. This organization represents all Synods and Presbyteries within the United States and Puerto Rico, and is divided into seven regions throughout the denomination.

Regional Representatives

All Regional Representatives are elected at the Annual Meeting of the Association by ballot of the voting members of each region. Each representative serves for two years or until their successors are elected. Representatives representing the odd-numbered regions shall be elected in the odd-numbered years, and those representing even-numbered regions shall be elected in even-numbered years. Regions are designated by the following Synod boundaries:

- 1) Northwest: Alaska-Northwest, Pacific, and Rocky Mountains
- 2) Southwest: Southern California and Hawaii, and Southwest
- 3) Northcentral: Covenant, Lakes and Prairies, and Lincoln Trails
- 4) Southcentral: Mid-America, and Sun
- 5) Northeast: Boriquen en Puerto Rico, and Northeast
- 6) Eastcentral: Mid-Atlantic, and Trinity
- 7) Southeast: Living Waters, and South Atlantic

Organization:

At the annual meeting of the Association of Stated Clerks, Officer and regional representatives are elected. The terms of office are designated by the Bylaws of the Association. Officers are: President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer. The Executive Committee consists of the currently elected officers, the chairperson of the nominating committee and the regional representatives. The Association currently has a website at www.statedclerks.org that serves as a resource for all interested persons.

Goals:

The Association has developed the Manual on Judicial Process, produces an analysis of proposed amendments to the Book of Order, and has available a Skills Bank where names and contact information of Stated Clerks who have expertise and experience in a wide range of subjects are available. The Association conducts an annual gathering/conference of Stated Clerks and participates in planning the annual Fall Polity Conference conducted by the Office of the General Assembly. Every bit as important, membership in the Association provides outstanding opportunities for networking and fellowship.

Theological Emphasis:

It is not customary for stated clerks to identify with or espouse any particular theological viewpoint. It is customary, however for stated clerks to uphold the tenets of the Book of Order and offering training and direction relating to the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (USA).

Annual Budget:

The Association of Stated Clerks receives income from dues ($30.00 per year per member) and from the annual spring conference (participants pay a registration fee which is based on costs for the conference program, meals, and lodging). At year-end 2005, the General Fund Balance was over $11,000. It has an Annual Budget of nearly $25,000.

Employees:

The Association has one part-time employee, its Executive Secretary, Elder Stafford Fredericks at 70 hours per year.

SOME ACCOMPLISHMENTS (2005 year)

The Volunteer Program placed 1,140 Volunteers from 49 groups. The estimated value of their work in cash donations and labor was $464,196.00. Among the volunteers was Andras Pentek of the Romanian Reformed Church who served as a summer intern in Lewisburg, WV.

The CAM Cabin Crafts program provided Appalachian Crafts for sale at judicatory and congregational programs as well as through the sales outlet near Townsend, TN. Sales for the year were $42,000.00 with about 65% of this going to the makers of the crafts. Crafts come from over 100 crafters in seven states.

The Coalition for Appalachian Ministry worked with the Commission on Religion in Appalachia in determining the use of Presbyterian Hunger Funds for projects in Appalachia.

In March of 2004 Frank Hare, retired Presbyterian Clergy person, became part-time interim Coordinator for Mission/Head of Staff for the Coalition during this period of transition. He will serve in this capacity at least through the 2006 year... This position has been vacant for many months.

CAM presented a program on Globalization and Appalachian for its Board and those from judicatories in the Townsend, TN area in the Fall of 2005 and in the Spring of 2006 at Charleston WV a program on the New Faces of Appalachia dealing with ethnicity and gender changes in Appalachia..

A new brochure and a Power Point presentation describing the work of CAM have been developed.

CAM has adopted a Partners structure in an effort to broaden its base of support and to adapt to the changing patterns of the church.

Covenant Network of Presbyterians

1. The Covenant Network of Presbyterians envisions a church as generous and just as God's grace. Founded in 1997, we work to uphold and act on the Presbyterian Church's historic, progressive vision. We actively pursue conversation and fellowship across theological divides, even as we continue to press for constitutional change to permit the full participation of gay and lesbian Presbyterians and to welcome the leadership gifts of all whom God calls to ordained service. We are committed to helping the church stay together in faithful ministry despite our differences.

The Covenant Network addresses a broad range of theological, biblical, pastoral, and ecclesiastical matters facing our church by:

- Fostering communication and theological dialogue through our quarterly newsletter, Covenant Connection, our website, www.covenantnetwork.org, and occasional books, booklets, and videos;
- Mounting annual national conferences and regional conferences on theological topics;
- Encouraging discussion, study, and mutual prayer both on-line and through local groups;
- Providing education and information on matters relating to ordination, and giving moral, legal, and financial support to officers and sessions challenged under the provisions of G-6.0106b of the Book of Order;
- Working for needed changes in the church, including the eventual removal of G-6.0106b.

The Covenant Network encourages all Presbyterians to participate actively in the work and deliberations of their local presbyteries. Local chapters in a number of presbyteries and seminaries connect supporters and others for discussion, study, and political action. We also help commissioners prepare for and be effective at General Assembly, when invited to do so.

With others in the church, we desire to live out the Reformed faith found in Scripture and our confessions. We strive to proclaim and embody the gospel as we have learned it from the life and ministry of Jesus; we affirm the centrality of the Bible in our church; and we value the dynamic tension between unity and diversity.

Our vision for the church is embodied in "A Call to Covenant Community," which is posted on our website.

2. Total expenditures in 2005 were approximately $335,000. Principal expense categories include salaries, printing and mailing, travel, and expenses for the annual and regional conferences.

The Covenant Network is supported by donations of varying sizes from individuals and congregations in the Presbyterian Church (USA). In 2005 we received contributions from 86 congregations and nearly 1,000 individuals. Eighteen individuals or couples and 22 sessions made donations of more than $1,000. These 22 sessions are listed on the attachment.

3. In 2005, the Covenant Network employed two full-time and three part-time staff members.

Messiah Now Ministries

1 Plymouth Meeting Mall, Suite 405 Plymouth Meeting PA 19462 610-832-8080 office@messiahnow.com

"I bring you good news of great joy"

LUKE 2:10

Messiah Now Ministries is an equipping and service ministry. It was formally known as the Christian Approach to the Jews and was approved by the General Assembly more than seventy years ago. The goal is to proclaim the Good News of the Messiah in a sensitive way to the Jewish people. It also seeks to remind the church of its rich heritage in Jewish roots. As the Book of order states, we seek to proclaim the gospel to all people. Messiah Now Ministries conducts several holiday celebrations for the Jewish believers that highlight the connection between the Old and New Testaments. Messiah Now has facilitated several small groups for those who want to explore the claims of Jesus, and the Ministry works with churches in Sunday school programs, speaking at Missions conferences and conducting various holiday demonstrations (Purim, Passover, Chanukah, Holocaust Remembrance, etc). The treasurer is an elder and CPA, all the other officers are PC USA Ministers of the Word & Sacrament. Most of the board members are pastors or elders from three presbyteries (Philadelphia, Donegal and West Jersey). We are listed as a Mission Neighbor in the Presbytery of Philadelphia Directory.

Total expenses for 2005 were $155,000. Major expense categories: 49K for the Executive Director (including severance), 15K grant to Presbytery of Philadelphia, 18.6K for Administrative Assistant, 27.5K for rent. Most of the balance is used for other routine items including FICA, printing, postage, telephone and insurance.

The staff consists of two people; An Executive Director (part-time in 2005 and now full time as of 2006) and a part-time administrative assistant. The Executive Director is an Approved Lay Preacher and Commissioned Lay Pastor Candidate. The administrative assistant is an elder.

Messiah Now Ministries is very grateful and appreciative of the generosity of our faithful constituency, and in 2005 we were blessed with donations of over $1,000 each from 11 churches and 2 individuals.

We are excited about the future of this ministry and have been granted some wonderful opportunities to proclaim the significance of Jesus' message to all people

MLP goals, methods of operations and theological emphasis

Our Theological Emphasis

Following the risen Christ, and seeking to make the Church a true community of hospitality, the mission of More Light Presbyterians is to work for the full participation of lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender (LGBT) people of faith in the life, ministry and witness of the Presbyterian Church (USA).

Our Method of Operation

We are individual members and congregations of the Presbyterian Church (USA) who are faithful to God's call and believe that God continues to open new understandings of scripture and the Word in the life of Christ. As a Christian community, we believe that the church must seek to live out those understandings in our life together. Our national network includes 119 More Light Presbyterian Churches, over 500 Welcoming Churches, and two dozen MLP Chapters in presbyteries and/or Presbyterian college and seminary campuses. We are led by a National Board of Directors comprised of 15 Presbyterians who volunteer their leadership and service.

Our Goals

- Create sanctuary -- safe and welcoming places in local churches and challenge discrimination within our denomination against LGBT persons and their families
- Provide a ministry of care for inclusive congregations and build new MLP Chapters around the country through the outreach of the National Field Organizer;
- Educate individuals, churches, and presbyteries on LGBT issues through published materials
- Train leaders in congregations and presbyteries to advocate for the full participation of LGBT Christians in the life and ministry of the Presbyterian Church;
- Fund proactive work in passing legislation that eradicates homophobia and injustice in the Presbyterian Church and in society;
- Partner with other faith traditions to support the LGBT community in matters of justice;
- Bear witness to the individual God-given gifts of lesbian, gay bisexual and transgender people in the Presbyterian Church.

Annual Budget

Our budget for 2006 is $177,670.

Staff

We have one full-time national field organizer, one part-time administrative assistant, and one part-time book keeper. All other work, i.e. website, More Light Update, fundraising, etc., is done by board members and other volunteers.

2006 Informational Report for the first year of the 217th General Assembly of PCUSA
National Association of Presbyterian Clergywomen (NAPC)

Purpose: Convene a National Association for Presbyterian Clergywomen, with local and regional emphasis, inclusive in membership, supportive in community, and representative in advocacy within the PC(USA). The first NAPC assembly was in Arlington, VA, October 10, 1986.

Vision and Theological Emphasis: Believing in the all-encompassing love of God in Christ, we seek to enable all Presbyterian Clergywomen to serve one another in the spirit of the Paraclete: to stand alongside one another, to comfort one another, to counsel one another, to be advocates of justice for one another, to empower one another.

Membership: Members may be any active or retired Presbyterian Clergywoman, candidate for ministry in the PC(USA), or any other person who accepts the vision of NAPC, who indicates a desire to work toward its growth and goals, and remains current in the payment of dues.

Meetings: The membership convenes at least triennially in a Triennial National Conference. The most recent conference was in Princeton, New Jersey 3/31/05 – 4/3/05 and celebrated 50 years of women in ministry in the PC(USA). The previous conference was in Albuquerque, New Mexico 4/26/02 – 4/29/02. These conferences provide challenging addresses, education, worship, workshops, and networking opportunities. NAPC also is present at each General Assembly with a booth and a luncheon event.

Staff: NAPC has no paid staff.

NAPC Officers (April, 2005-April, 2008):

Kathy Keener-Han -- Moderator
Karen Cobb -- Vice-Moderator
Susan Wesley Hartley -- Historian/Secretary
Beth Garrod-Logsdon -- Membership Secretary
Peggy Cross -- Treasurer
Rebecca King Harrison -- Triennial Coordinator
----- Newsletter Editor
Karen Hernandez Granzen & Connie Lee -- Racial/Ethnic Representatives
Rebecca Tollefson -- Liaison to National Entities of the PC(USA)

Annual Budget: Membership dues generate about $6,000 per year. Contributions, gifts, and interest are about $300 per year. Expenditures cover membership advertising & mailings, annual GA presence, quarterly newsletter printing & mailing, meetings & conference calls for the officers & steering committee, and other supplies & postage.

Contributions over $1,000: NAPC receives income of $1,500 to $5,500 per year, separate from its annual budget, through the Presbyterian Foundation, from The Reverend Anne Marie Meyerhoffer Endowment. Revenues received are accumulated over a three year period and then are used to further the development of the organization at its Triennial Conference by providing scholarships to selected attendees requesting financial assistance and by helping to defray some of the Triennial leadership honoraria and costs. The income from the Meyerhoffer Endowment is the only donation to NAPC by an individual or organization which exceeds $1,000 per year.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PRESBYTERIAN SCOUTERS

2006 REPORT TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH (USA)

The National Association of Presbyterian Scouters (NAPS) mission is to “Develop Scouting in Presbyterian Churches and to teach and recognize religious values”.

To accomplish our mission, NAPS has the following goals:

- ! Promote Presbyterian Churches ownership of Scouting Programs and Bible-Based material.*
- ! Promote Religious Awards Programs.*
- ! Develop material for religious emphasis for use within Scouting Units at all levels.*
- ! Develop covenant relationships with each Presbytery.*
- ! Develop an effective NAPS organization.*
- ! Support the BSA National Chaplains Fund.*

To accomplish these goals NAPS actively promotes church ownership by encouraging Presbyterian Churches to adopt the full range of Programs of the Boy Scouts of America (Cub Scout Packs, Boy Scout Troops and Venturing Crews), as an outreach to the youth of their community. We have accomplished this goal. Since the last General Assembly we have attended, provided staff and displays at the last General Assembly in Richmond Va., the Association of Presbyterian Christian Educators in St. Louis Mo, the 2005 Boy Scout National Jamboree at Fort A. P. Hill VA, and provided support to the conference on “Scouting in the Church Ministries” during Religious Relations Week at the BSA National Training Center in Cimarron NM. NAPS will be holding a conference for “Youth Leaders, Educators and Ministers”, also at the National Training Center, October 30 through November 2006. These efforts are to inform Presbyterian Churches of the benefits of enhancing their youth programs by the use of the Boy Scout Programs.

As a note of interest at the National Jamboree NAPS hosted one of the Protestant Worship Services led by Rev. Dr. Donald Campbell and Rev. Ed. Craxton. Both, at the time, were members of the PC(USA) GA Staff. Their message was heard by an estimated 6,000 to 7,000 adults and youth in the congregation.

NAPS encourages Presbyterian Churches to adopt the “God and Country Program” as an enhancement to their Youth Christian Education Programs, not as a replacement. Thus, providing an additional opportunity for all youth to increase their knowledge of their faith through the Presbyterian Religious Awards Program (The God and Country Series). Also, NAPS provides vehicles to recognize Adults who work with youth with the “God and Service” Award for adults who work through the Scouting Programs and the “Celtic Cross” Award for those who work with youth through the Presbyterian Church Programs. NAPS also encourages Scout Units to emphasize the twelfth part of the Scout Law a “Scout is Reverent” through the “Unit Award of Excellence” Program. The award is presented to Units chartered to PC(USA) Churches for meeting stringent requirements of religious growth of the youth. To place further emphasis on the Scouts “Duty to God” we have provided updated materials for Unit Chaplain and Chaplains Aides at the Troop and Crew Levels and are preparing a devotional booklet for Cub Packs. In conjunction with Programs of Religious Activities with Youth (PRAY) we are developing a Religious Emphasis Program for use during BSA Long Term and High Adventure Camping Programs.

The adoption of the full “Scouting Program” increases the benefits of the individual programs by including youth from ages 7 to 18 years old. I would like to emphasize the “Venturing” Program it is a relatively new program that is coeducational for youth 14 through 18. It makes available access to all BSA properties and facilities. It offers Church Youth Groups an opportunity for additional program diversity, excitement and can add an outdoor dimension to the church’s Youth Programs.

Many of the officers and members represent NAPS on the BSA National and Council Religious Relations Committees, have attended Presbytery Meetings and been instrumental in conducting “Ten Commandment Hikes” and religious retreats for youth and adults.

One statistic and editorial, if I may, as of January 2006 BSA have 152,793 youth and adults registered in Units sponsored by Presbyterian Churches. This is a major Outreach Program, with major impact on many communities.

NAPS’s annual budget is dependent on the number of new and annual renewal memberships. The money is used for direct expenses of communications media, printing, postage, phone and support of PC(USA), BSA and PRAY. activities.

NAPS is chartered in the State of Texas as a non profit corporation. We have no paid personnel, all NAPS efforts are staffed by volunteers whom pay their own expenses.

NAPS has received no contributions of $1,000 or more.

Yours in Christ,

Wray C. Johanning

National Council of Presbyterian Fourth Day Movements

The National Council of Presbyterian Fourth Day Movements is an organization of local groups, which are predominantly composed of Presbyterian (PCUSA) members, around the nation. These groups, or communities, are utilizing the Cursillo Method as a vehicle to attempt, through spiritual renewal, to implement the commission of our Lord Jesus Christ, to "go into all the world and proclaim the Gospel" of God's grace. The Cursillo Method was established and has been refined by Roman Catholics over the past 50 years. A number of expressions similar to Catholic Cursillo have developed in the United States over the past 25 years, including Walk to Emmaus, Great Banquet, Tres Dias, Presbyterian Pilgrimage, and Via de Cristo, all of which allow interdenominational participation. Expressions which utilize the name Cursillo, i.e. Episcopal Cursillo and Presbyterian Cursillo, are required by license agreement with the Catholic Church to restrict participation to members of their denominations. These movements all follow the basic format of Catholic Cursillo, which includes a Pre-Cursillo phase, a Three-day weekend centered around 15 talks, and the Post-Cursillo (known as Fourth Day) which is an accountability and support organization made up of those individuals who have participated in a Three Day weekend.

The role of the National Council is to (1) develop, offer and support a model Cursillo-like weekend experience; (2) assist local groups in implementing their weekends and developing their communities; (3) assist new groups in starting communities as opportunities present themselves and as the Holy Spirit leads; (4) certify new member Fourth Day Movement communities and re-certify existing Fourth Day Movement member communities on a periodic basis, and (5) continually emphasize that the overriding purpose of Cursillo is the evangelization of our environments, to be realized as a result of the spiritual renewal of individual participants who are called the Fourth Day. The National Council supports a version of the Cursillo Movement which is consistent with Reformed theology and the Constitution of the PC(USA), and will make it available as desired throughout the denomination. This Movement is offered as one method of supporting the denominational emphasis on evangelization and spiritual formation, and to encourage growth in Christian faith and commitment within the local church. Presbyterian Fourth Day Communities are led by lay members of the PC(USA), in partnership with their clergy, for members of the PC(USA). The theological emphasis of Presbyterian Fourth Day Movements is on the infinite grace available to all who recognize and accept the love of Christ. The weekend experience proposes a method of living the Christian Life based on piety, study, and action. No doctrinal positions have been adopted or are supported, and no positions are taken on the volatile theological and polity issues facing the PC(USA) today.

The National organization is currently made up of fourteen Presbyterian Cursillo Communities and six Presbyterian Pilgrimage Communities. Each community elects two representatives to attend, at their own expense, semi-annual meetings of the National Council. All officers serve on a volunteer basis. There are no "staff" members associated with Presbyterian Fourth Day Movements, either at the local or national level. Each community is requested on a voluntary basis to contribute funds to the National Council based on a "per participant at Three Day Weekends" basis. Over the past several years this has produced total revenues of between $3,000 and $4,000 annually. The primary expenditure of the National organization over the past few years has been the expense associated with having a booth at General Assembly. There are no individual "donors" to the National Council of Presbyterian Fourth Day Movements.

Network of Presbyterian Women in Leadership

OUR MISSION

The mission of NPWL is to serve as a catalyst for radical, God-directed life transformation and widespread renewal at every level of the PC(USA) by connecting, challenging and resourcing women and multiplying their effectiveness in leadership as they serve Jesus Christ in the twenty-first century.

OUR MOTIVATING BELIEFS

1. We believe God calls women to leadership at all levels in Christ's church.
2. We believe women benefit from the strength and support found in community with other women.
3. We believe it is vital to build an organization that recognizes, affirms, and raises up women for leadership at all levels within the PC(USA).
4. We believe the PC(USA) needs renewal in areas that women can uniquely effect.
5. We believe that every woman who works for renewal, whether from the pulpit, pew, or prayer closet, is a leader in the PC(USA).

OUR VISION STATEMENT

Our Vision is a community of women, Christ-centered and used by God to renew the PC(USA).

We will work toward this vision by developing networks in which women experience community,
share resources,
equip and nurture one another,
encourage greater commitment to the renewal of the church, and urge one another toward deeper submission to Jesus Christ.

We work toward the day when women of our denomination are obedient to Jesus Christ,
growing in faith,
biblically literate, and actively serving Christ in the world and their communities, congregations, work places, and homes.

Affinity Group Report: New Wilmington Missionary Conference

THE GOAL of the New Wilmington Missionary Conference is primarily the deepening of the missionary spirit with a view to the fulfillment of our Lord's Great Commission. To this end, a prominent place is given in the conference to Mission Interpretation and to the presentation of the duty and ideal of carrying the gospel to ALL the world. Because of the vital relations existing between the missionary spirit and a deep spiritual life, the conference aims at the cultivation of a life of fellowship with God by promoting service and witness for Jesus Christ.

Our mission is to equip and educate the church
to minister the transforming grace
and power of the Lord Jesus Christ
to those who are in conflict with their sexuality.

How Can You Be Faithful in a Sexually Unfaithful Culture?

- Don't just say no. Respond pastorally to individuals struggling to live in chastity in singleness or fidelity in a covenant of marriage.
- Invite a OneByOne Speaker's Bureau representative to your church or presbytery in order to teach about pastoral care to individuals with sexual conflict.
- Consider starting a local support group.

Recommended Resources:

- OneByOne Pastoral Care Guide: a 190 page manual. Topics include: "Responding to Pro-Gay Theology; An Overview of Sexual Conflict; The Transformation Process; Becoming a Listening, Healing Community" and more! To order, send $16.50 to OneByOne.
- OneByOne Testimonial Booklet - 14 individuals who have experienced freedom from homosexuality. Can be ordered in bulk-$1each.
- Other articles and testimonies, go to www.oneby1.org.

Our ministry activities involve the following:

- (1) Educational seminars in PCUSA congregations by members of the OneByOne Speaker's Bureau.
- (2) Resource development - OneByOne is developing a series of educational booklets on the following topics: A Reformed Theology of Marriage and Sexuality; Understanding and Ministering to the Individual Struggling with Pornography; Personal Devotions for Individuals Seeking to Overcome Sexual Addiction; Ministry to the Sexual Abuse Victim; Is Sexual Reorientation Possible?
- (3) Youth and Sexuality Resources - OneByOne representatives will review curricula that address sexual brokenness among youth. We will promote this information to PCUSA youth pastors.
- (4) Website - OneByOne recognizes that the internet is the fastest growing medium for communication and education. Our site, www.oneby1.org includes articles, testimonies, and book reviews.
- (5) Support Group Curriculum Development - OneByOne is establishing a writing team that will develop a support group curriculum to be implemented in PCUSA congregations. The curriculum will serve individuals who struggle with various forms of sexual sin and temptation--both heterosexual and homosexual.

OneByOne Inc. has a staff of one (1) full-time employee, one (1) part-time employee and a dedicated, volunteer Board of Directors of ten (10).

The Reverend Kerry Clements
Associate Stated Clerk
Office of the General Assembly
Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)
100 Witherspoon Street, #4418
Louisville, KY 40202

Dear Mr. Clements:

In response to the Office of the General Assembly's request for information about our work, The Outreach Foundation of the Presbyterian Church, Inc., is a Validated Mission Support Group that works in covenant relationship with the General Assembly Council of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to strengthen Presbyterian involvement in mission around the world.

The programmatic emphases of our work include supporting missionaries, planting and building churches, training leaders for the global Church, caring for vulnerable children, and serving as a catalyst for the mission renewal of PC(USA) congregations. As we help congregations and individuals to find personal ways that they can participate in God's mission in the world, we seek to preserve a high level of trust with all who share in mission through The Outreach Foundation by strictly honoring donor intent, insuring strong financial accountability, and facilitating communication between mission supporters, projects and missionaries. In addition to providing mission partnership opportunities, we provide congregations with information about how to organize and take mission trips and how to hold mission conferences.

Each year, with input from PC(USA) staff, missionaries and global partners, the Board of Trustees of The Outreach Foundation identifies high-priority projects of holistic evangelism for which we then seek funding from individuals and congregations. We also identify PC(USA) missionaries who need salary support or ministry funds for their work. We are now guaranteeing full salary support for three PC(USA) mission coworker couples.

In 2005 we disbursed nearly $5.8 million for mission

Disbursements to PCUSA	$ 341,256.45
Disbursements directly to PCUSA-related projects	$4,929,484.28
Other mission supported by TOF	$ 526,450.10
TOTAL	$5,797,190.83

Our administrative budget enables us to develop new projects, facilitate partnerships, handle communications, and raise and disburse funds in ways that expand evangelistic mission. Our Board of Trustees is committed to keeping our administrative expenses below 15% of total expenditures. In support of those administrative expenses, our Board requests permission to apply 5% of each gift received by The Outreach Foundation to our administrative budget, but no amount is withheld from gifts that are given by donors who also make contributions that are designated for our administrative budget. Some modest investment income also helps to fund our operating expenses.

The Board of Trustees of The Outreach Foundation considers our donor list to be confidential and does not publish that information. A copy of our audited annual financial report is available to anyone upon request.

Our projected mission disbursements for the current year of 2006 are $6.5 million.

The Board of Trustees, all of whom are ministers or officers in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), is being led in its work during 2006 by the following officers:

Chair – Robert N. Wesley, Winston-Salem, NC
Vice-Chair – Rev. Harry L. Slye, Katy, TX
Secretary – W. Powell Jones, Thomasville, GA
Treasurer – Donald D. Swain, Nashville, TN

The staff of The Outreach Foundation presently includes 9 full-time persons in our office in Franklin, Tennessee, and several Missionaries to the U.S. who support church planting, redevelopment, and leadership development efforts. The Rev. Jose Carlos Pezini serves Portuguese-speaking immigrants, Joseph Faragalla serves Arabic-speaking immigrants, and Revs. Charles and Diane Wonnenberg serve Native American peoples through the Dakota Presbytery. The Outreach Foundation has also contracted with mission consultants who help to facilitate our work in key parts of the world.

We welcome further inquiries about our service to the church and to God's mission.

Sincerely yours in Christ,

Robert J. Weingartner
Executive Director

Phone 202/682-4131 FAX 202/682-4136 E-mail: jberkley@ird-renew.org

What is Presbyterian Action for Faith and Freedom?

- Presbyterian Action is a group of members of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) who are concerned about their church's witness to society. It seeks to connect our Christian faith to the responsible freedom that we believe God intends us all to exercise in Christ.
- Presbyterian Action sees itself as part of a larger movement of renewal. It aspires to be one instrument, among many, by which the Holy Spirit may convey afresh to the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) its calling to "always being reformed according to the Word of God."
- Presbyterian Action encourages a Presbyterian social witness that is more clearly centered on basic biblical teachings, more consistently derived from an open process by which church members discern how those teachings might apply, and more fully expressed in the lives of 2.4 million Presbyterians.
- Presbyterian Action is affiliated with the Institute on Religion and Democracy, an ecumenical Christian group that seeks similar goals in various other denominations.

What does Presbyterian Action for Faith and Freedom believe?

- ◆ Presbyterian Action believes that a truly reformed church will have a profound impact on society.
- ◆ Presbyterian Action believes that the most powerful message the church can deliver to any society is simply the Gospel of Jesus Christ.
- ◆ Presbyterian Action believes that, in saying "yes" to the Gospel, the church must say "no" to any other ideology that would replace the Gospel or divert us from it.
- ◆ Presbyterian Action believes that church pronouncements about partisan political issues should be made rarely, tentatively, and with full respect for others who reach different conclusions about the best means of pursuing the principles of the Gospel.
- ◆ Presbyterian Action believes that the church must set an example of biblically-based democratic practice in its own life. Debates should be open and orderly, information should be freely available, and power should be widely distributed.
- ◆ Presbyterian Action believes that among the current issues on which the church should be able to speak most compellingly is the defense of fundamental human rights worldwide – including especially the freedom of religious belief and practice. The church should be the foremost voice on behalf of fellow Christians and others who are persecuted for their faith. It should also play a leading role in upholding and strengthening marriage, a basic institution in God's providential design for human society.

What does Presbyterian Action for Faith and Freedom do?

- Presbyterian Action challenges church social witness statements and programs that seem to represent only the partisan political views of a narrow segment of the church.
- Presbyterian Action suggests ways in which those statements and programs might more closely reflect the teachings of Scripture, the input of church members, and the outcome of a fair democratic process.
- When a political debate appears to have become slanted in one direction, Presbyterian Action points out alternative facts and arguments that ought to be heard.
- Presbyterian Action supplies information and encouragement to Presbyterians seeking to defend religious freedom worldwide and strengthen marriage in U.S. society.

Who is on the Steering Committee of Presbyterian Action for Faith and Freedom?

Mr. John L. Boone
Nashville, TN
Chairman

The Rev. Robert P. Mills
Lenoir, NC
Secretary

Mr. Gary Green
Chandler, AZ

Dr. Herbert Schlossberg
Burke, VA

Ms. Mary Elizabeth Lewis
Alexandria, VA

Mrs. Terry Schlossberg
Burke, VA

Mrs. Rebecca McElroy
Monroe City, MO

All of the above are members of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

Who is on the staff of Presbyterian Action for Faith & Freedom?

There is one staff member, the interim director, the Rev. James D. Berkley of Bellevue, WA.

What is the annual budget of Presbyterian Action for Faith & Freedom?

The total expenses for 2005 (unaudited) were $65, 559.77.

Who supports the work of Presbyterian Action for Faith & Freedom?

Approximately 200 individuals and congregations contributed to support the work of Presbyterian Action. Because these donors expect and deserve confidentiality, we will not publish a list of their names.

Presbyterian Children's Homes and Related Ministries (PCUSA) is a resource and an advocate in the Church on the issues of children and families.

The established goals of the Association are:

- To provide a focus for children's issues within the PCUSA.
- To serve as a faith-based resource for churches, families and children.
- To provide opportunities for collaboration between Presbyterian child and family caring agencies.
- To serve as a national resource to the PCUSA on children's issues.

All members of the association shall be nonprofit child and family caring organizations that operate under a covenant agreement with a Synod or Presbytery of a Presbyterian or other Reformed ecclesiastical body. There shall be only one class of members.

The management and government of the affairs of the association shall be vested in the members. The members shall act only as a board, and an individual member shall have no power as such. All powers of the association shall be exercised by the members or under their authority, and the members shall control the business and affairs of the association. The members may give general, limited, or special power and authority to the committees, officers, and employees of the association to transact the general business, or any special business, of the association and may give powers of attorney to agents of the association to transact any special business requiring such authorization.

The association shall have the power to own, accept, acquire, mortgage, and dispose of real and personal property, and to obtain, invest, and retain funds, in advancing the purposes of the association. The association shall have the power to do any lawful acts or things reasonable necessary or desirable for carrying out the association's purposes and for protecting the lawful rights and interest of its members.

There is no staff; members of the association on a strictly volunteer basis share work.

REPORT OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CUBA CONNECTION – YEAR 2005 TO THE 217TH GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH (U.S.A.)

Purpose: The Presbyterian Cuba Connection is an unofficial not-for-profit network of Presbyterians for support, interpretation and advocacy of the life and witness of the Presbyterian Reformed Church in Cuba.

Activities: The Presbyterian Cuba Connection publishes an occasional newsletter with news of developments in the life of the Cuban church and information about partnership activities within the PC (USA). The contributions of individual and congregational members are transmitted to the Presbyterian Reformed Church in Cuba for the support of programs and projects of the PRCC through the Treasury Department license held by the PC (USA).

Theological Emphases: The Presbyterian Cuba Connection does not promote or advocate theological positions. We affirm and seek to support the policies of the General Assembly regarding Cuba and work cooperatively with the Worldwide Ministries Division to support the mission policies and priorities of the General Assembly in relation to the Presbyterian Reformed Church in Cuba.

Staff: The Presbyterian Cuba Connection has a board of 9 persons, one of whom serves as the Executive Secretary. All serve as volunteers.

Budget: The Presbyterian Cuba Connection does not adopt a budget since the income is unpredictable and the only program expenditure is for grants to support the life and mission of the Presbyterian Reformed Church in Cuba. Income from member contributions for the year 2005 was $24,361.64 for mission projects, and $1075.43 for the newsletter and other administrative costs. Expenses for the year 2004 were $22,270.48 for mission projects and $1253.18 for the newsletter and other administrative costs.

Membership: There are approximately 400 members of the Presbyterian Cuba Connection within all 15 synods of the PC (USA).

Major Donors: Contributors of $1000.00 or more in 2005 were: Dean and Marianne Lewis; United Church of Los Alamos NM; Trinity Presbyterian Church of Atlanta GA; Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church of Bryn Mawr PA; The Outreach Foundation; First Presbyterian Church of Bandon OR; Monmouth Presbytery.

Respectfully submitted,

Dean H. Lewis, Executive Secretary

I.a) GOALS AND METHODS OF OPERATION

The Presbyterian Forum is the “certain trumpet” for denominational reform. We are committed to our confessional theology, and to our representative polity. The purpose of the Forum is to bring about the spiritual and theological reformation of the P.C.(USA), beginning at the local presbytery level.

We are working to equip pastors, elders and members to be able to use our connectional and representational system, in order to foster confessional integrity and discipline throughout the denomination, including the General Assembly.

The way we do this is by developing networks of cooperation and communication, by phone and by email; by publishing resources and tools for involvement in the polity of the Church, primarily on our website; and by advising interested church members on polity issues over the phone or in person, the latter especially at General Assembly meetings.

Many around our denomination lament that we should be getting back to the real work of the church. Empowering the clergy and equipping the laity IS the real work of the church. That’s discipleship. Strong mission grows out of strong discipleship.

More than ever, the P.C.(USA) needs to be led by people issuing a clarion call via a certain trumpet; building up and encouraging those who can be servant leaders “in the field”.

I.b) THEOLOGICAL EMPHASES

Equipping the people of the Church to do the work of the Church is a joyful task. It is vital--both for the Church as a whole, and for each member therein--not only to be convinced that each has a God-given purpose, but also to be fully aware of that purpose, and of how each can structure their work and life to fulfill that purpose.

Rediscovering, as it were, not “only” that our Church has a Confessional Heritage, but that those confessions embody both the identity and the purpose of the Church, and of each of us as members, is marvelous business.

When, beyond that, Presbyterians recognize the value of the Biblical form of government our Church is known for and blessed with, as laid down in the Book of Order, they can regain a sense of ownership and responsibility for the decisionmaking that goes on at the various levels of the Church’s governing bodies. Presbyterian “connectionalism” encourages church members to expect accountability from one another, as each of us seeks to follow that call we all share, the call to pursue the “Great Ends of the Church:”

The proclamation of the Gospel for the salvation of humankind; the shelter, nurture, and spiritual fellowship of the children of God; the maintenance of divine worship; the preservation of the truth; the promotion of social righteousness; and the exhibition of the Kingdom of Heaven to the world (G.-1.0200).

This positive use of connectionalism is what the Presbyterian Forum seeks to bring back to the forefront of what it means to be a Presbyterian. None of us, no church and no governing body, should passively rely on others to “be the Church for us”. It takes all of us together, each doing the part he or she is called to, to be the Church. Making one’s vote count, one’s voice heard, and one’s vision of the Kingdom of God seen and understood by others, is the call and responsibility of everyone who would be part of a godly denomination.

It is a simple outworking of our belief in the “priesthood of all believers” that propels us in the Presbyterian Forum to remind all Presbyterians that the P.C.(USA) is not a body “out there”, but a body made up of people like us, who need to work together if they want to be faithful to their Lord. Only then will the Church be what she is called to be—faithful in her confessions, as well as in her ministry.

Presbyterian Parents of Gays and Lesbians

Presbyterian Parents of Gays and Lesbians is a parent-to-parent support group that attempts to minister to families during critical times in their lives. PPGL is a non-advocacy group. We do not take positions on issues before the General Assembly. Our intention is to reach out pastorally through parents who have come to terms with having a son or daughter who is homosexual, in a safe and confidential setting, to parents who are just learning of their child's sexual orientation. We do not attempt to have persons change their sexual orientation, but rather help parents, through the resources of the church, begin to understand and appreciate their child's sexual orientation. We provide resources through books and small grants to groups that wish to start.

We had no donors over $1,000 during 2005.

We have no employees. The board and parent participants are volunteers.

2006 REPORT OF THE PRESBYTERIAN PEACE FELLOWSHIP TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

The Mission Statement of the Presbyterian Peace Fellowship is:

"The PPF is a national community of Presbyterians who trust in the nonviolent Jesus Christ. We call forth and celebrate prophetic action by individuals and by our denomination in the search for alternatives to violence, exploitation, militarism and war. Through the decades, across generations and in the changing circumstances of history, this is our trust and our task. Come and join us!"

We are affiliated with the Fellowship of Reconciliation, an interfaith, international, pacifist organization (Box 271, Nyack, NY 10960); being part of the FOR keeps us in touch with 15 other religious peace fellowships.

Our basic theological position, within our affirmation of Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior, lies in our agreement with the universal testimony of the early church for active nonviolence and a rejection of the idolatry of the powers that be. We build upon the foundation of the prophets and apostles who sought justice and peace through sacrificial love. Scripture gives us our understanding of Jesus, who is our peace.

We were founded in 1944 by conscientious objectors and their supporters to maintain a peace witness in the Presbyterian Church. Our members attend General Assembly at their own expense to staff our booth and to host our General Assembly Peace Breakfast, where we present our Peacemaker Award to a Presbyterian who has been engaged in a particularly meaningful peacemaking endeavor, and our keynote speaker encourages our church to faithful response. We testify on peacemaking matters before GA committees, and advocate throughout the church on peace-related issues. Our quarterly newsletter, Briefly, reaches more than 2,000 subscribers.

We organize an annual Presbyterian delegation to Fort Benning, GA, following GA policy calling for the closing of the Western Hemisphere Institute for Security Cooperation (School of the Americas), because of its continuing abysmal human rights record.

In the last 6 years we have sponsored seminars at Ghost Ranch, along with the Witherspoon Society and Presbyterians for Restoring Creation, dealing with globalization and militarism, alternatives to international violence, the militarization of space, and living in a time of empire.

In cooperation with the Christian Peacemaker Teams we have conducted two trips to Israel/Palestine, and together with Witness for Peace we have sent three delegations to Colombia.

Leaders in The Presbyterian Church of Colombia are taking great risks in their human rights work and their support of the communities of Colombians who have been displaced by the violence of the forty-year war in their country. In 2004 they asked us to act as international accompaniers in order to provide a measure of safety - international eyes - for their work. The Presbyterian Peace Fellowship is working with the Worldwide Ministries Division of the PC(USA) and the Presbyterian Church of Colombia to train and deploy short-term mission workers to Colombia. Since November of 2004, we have recruited, trained and sent 19 volunteer accompaniers to provide a continuous presence with Colombian Presbyterians who are receiving death and arrest threats. We have also attended and provided leadership for the Presbyterian Colombia Mission Network annual meetings. Our "Partner in Peacemaking," Kelly Wesselink, spoke in churches, colleges, and seminaries about Colombian Presbyterians, and recruited accompaniers and delegation participants. Kelly now serves as our Colombia Accompaniment coordinator.

Paid staff: 3 part-time. Administrative assistant, database consultant, Accompaniment Coordinator

PRESBYTERIAN WRITERS GUILD1. The organization's goals, methods of operation and theological emphasis

The Presbyterian Writers Guild is a voluntary, non-profit organization of writers who are affiliated with the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). The Guild operates through a Board which is elected at the biennial meeting held at the General Assembly, for terms that run for four consecutive years. The Board "meets" during the year through telephone conference calls ordinarily held on the second Saturday of the month in September, December, February, and April, and in person, at the luncheon held during General Assembly.

Dues per member per year are $25.00, with all dues expiring at the end of each calendar year.

The Guild provides support and encouragement to its members through two annual awards: The David Steele Distinguished Writer Award, given to a Presbyterian writer whose works have made an impact on the church at large; and the Jim Angell Award given to a Presbyterian writer for a first published book. The David Steele Distinguished Writer Award offers a prize of $1,000 and the Jim Angell Award offers a prize of $500, funded through an account given by Virginia Angell, widow of Jim Angell, for whom the award is named.

An awards luncheon at General Assembly provides members of the Guild a chance to meet in person, and introduces non-members to the work of the Guild.

A newsletter is published four times a year, providing information about the Guild, updates on publications of members, articles of help and interest to writers, and occasional examples of writing by members (for instance, hymns written by participants from the Hymn Writers Workshop have been published in the newsletter for the benefit of the readers).

Writing Workshops have been held both regionally and nationally but not on a regularly scheduled basis. The intent of the workshops is to encourage new writers and provide helpful information, and to assist seasoned writers with programs to increase their writing opportunities.

The Guild maintains a website at www.presbywriters.org.

The Guild welcomes all theological viewpoints expressed by Presbyterians throughout the denomination, and encourages open dialogue among its members. The Guild's theological emphasis is that found in The Book of Order and The Book of Confessions of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

2. The organization's annual budget

The annual budget for 2005-2006 was set at $7,200.00 anticipated income; $6620 anticipated expenses.

The majority of the income is raised through membership dues and through gifts made to the Guild, none of which have exceeded $1,000 in the past year.

3. The number of staff in your organization

The Guild has no paid staff. The Board consists of President, Vice-President, Immediate Past-President, Treasurer, Recording Secretary, Membership Secretary, Corresponding Secretary, Corporate Agent, Editor, and at least two Members at Large.

Presbyterians for Renewal

Our Mission:

*As followers of Jesus Christ,
seeking to conform our lives and beliefs to the Word of God,
our mission is to participate in God's renewing, transforming work in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).*

Our Values:

Obedience Submitted to the Lordship of Jesus Christ
Faithfulness Anchored in God's Word and the historic Reformed faith
Conviction Passionate about shaping the church's life and theology
Engagement Involved positively in the structure and politics of the PCUSA
Collaboration Working with others who share our mission and vision
Servanthood Committed to ministry that reflects the graciousness of Christ
Prayer Depending upon God's direction and power

Our Vision:

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) will be a church that boldly proclaims Jesus Christ the incarnate Son of God and the only Savior
and Lord of the world;
confidently relies upon Scripture as the authority for our faith and life;
effectively equips disciples to live abundantly in Christ;
intentionally develops godly leaders for future generations consistently supports congregations as the primary agents of God's mission to the world;
willingly relies upon healthy governing bodies for accountability,
mutual encouragement, and shared witness;
courageously embraces action for social justice and evangelism as essential dimensions of our primary task, to proclaim the Good News; and faithfully lives with holy abandon in the power of the Holy Spirit, willing to risk all and serve all in order to show the love of Christ to all.

PFR seeks to accomplish its mission by calling the church to prayer, by networking congregations and individuals with the same values and vision, and by providing resources such as printed materials, conferences, and training events. In addition, PFR provides a team of informed persons during the Assembly for spiritual, theological and polity support. Contact can be made through the PFR booth in the Exhibit Hall, or by email to pffoffice@pfrenewal.org.

The 2006 PFR Budget is $1,500,000. PFR currently employs four full-time and four part-time staff persons, and gratefully acknowledges the volunteer support of hundreds of persons.

Presbyterians for Restoring Creation Organizational Information 2006

1a) Presbyterians for Restoring Creation's goals and theological emphases:

In 1990, the 202nd General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church USA, adopted (by a resounding 97% majority) the policy report, Restoring Creation for Ecology and Justice. This report calls Presbyterians to focus on caring for creation as a central concern to be incorporated into the life and mission of the church at every level. In 1995, Presbyterians for Restoring Creation (PRC) was founded as a grassroots organization to help the church to educate and energize its members about the environmental crisis. In 2001, the Presbyterian General Assembly approved by 85% an overture on Preserving Bio-Diversity and Halting Mass Extinction. This overture was actively support by PRC. In 2002, PRC supported overtures on clarifying the PCUSA stance on "takings," cleaning up old coal-fired power plants, and others. PRC continues to help the church to fulfill its current environmental policies and to create new policies. We help the members of the church to address environmental concerns from a faith perspective.

PRC invites and encourages others to join us in:

- Reclaiming awareness of our spiritual connections with the whole of God's Creation, empowered by our rich biblical and theological heritage,
- Understanding our role in causing the suffering of Creation and repenting of that role,
- Trusting that Christ – whose incarnation reveals God's love and compassion, who suffered death that we might have life – has shown us how to challenge injustice with love and to transform brokenness into wholeness,
- Engaging in study, reflection, and dialogue to deepen our understanding of the issues,
- Working with agencies of ministry within the church to include environmental issues,
- Consciously resisting the values and norms of consumer-based economic systems, which emphasize growth at all costs;
- Cooperating with others actively involved in promoting values based on compassion, frugality, accountability, participation and sufficiency for all, and
- Celebrating the power of community, and utilizing the gifts, skills, and experience of all people to preserve and restore God's creation for future generations.

1b) PRC's methods of operation:

PRC's volunteer leadership is composed of a ten person Steering Committee (Moderator, Vice Moderator, Treasurer, Publications Manager, and six regional representatives). Leadership is elected in staggered terms each year by the membership through newsletter ballots. Positions are elected for two-year terms (with no person serving more than six consecutive years.)

2) PRC 2006 operational budget is $41,250. Income is mainly from membership dues and donations. Additional funds come from grants and investments. Major expenses include newsletter printing, postage, presence at General Assembly and other meetings, office supplies and consultant. The fifth biennial national conference was held June 8-12, 2005 at Silver Bay, NY with over 150 in attendance.

3) PRC employs a part-time consultant who helps coordinate the activities, membership, publications, web site, special projects, semi-annual national conferences and general promotion of the organization.

All donors who gave more than $1,000 to Presbyterians for Restoring Creation in the calendar year 2005:

- 1) PCUSA – Peacemaking, Conference Grant,
- 2) Presbytery of New York City
- 3) Holly Hallman
- 4) Richard Webber
- 5) PCUSA – Hunger Action Enablers, Memberships
- 6) PCUSA – Conference Grant

1. Goals, methods of operation and theological emphases

Presbyweb, "The Daily News for Presbyterians", is an independent news organization for members of the PC(USA). We post 6 daily issues on the web every week, at <http://www.presbyweb.com>. During GA we update throughout the day as needed.

We provide several categories of information:

- a. All the National Presbyterian News, "from left to right", official and unofficial, that can be found on the worldwide web.
- b. News about the church in the U.S. and worldwide in the broadest sense of the word, and the interaction with the cultures, as far as we believe it to be of interest to our readers.
- c. Opinion pieces, theological essays, book reviews etc.
- d. Links, directly or indirectly, to all Presbyterian web sites.
- e. We also offer a platform for our readers in our popular Letters section, and we highlight some unsolicited letters and op-ed pieces by posting them as Viewpoint articles. We also post columns. You will find "voices from the entire spectrum" on Presbyweb.

As much as is humanly possible, we keep our own theological convictions from interfering with our purpose of providing the news. We do not try to create balance. Over time proponents of one side of a certain issue might generate more news than their opponents. So be it. We don't try to control the process. We try not to stand between the news and the readers.

We give summaries of the news, and always provide links to the "horse's mouth."

Coming to Presbyweb first is the smart and easy way to miss nothing.

2. Our finances

We offer all newcomers a free trial subscription, which gives them free access to our entire web site for a whole month, so they have ample opportunity to determine if Presbyweb is of interest to them. Not wanting to price Presbyweb out of reach of some (such as seminary students), we suggest an average annual payment of $50, but we leave it up to our readers to determine themselves what they will pay, no questions asked, as long as it is no less than $15 per year.

Presbyweb is owned by CHURCHandWORLD.com Inc, a privately held corporation.

Proyecto Amistad

A joint ministry of the Presbyterian Church (USA) and the National Presbyterian Church of México
PO Box 867 Eagle Pass TX 78853-0867 Tel. 830.773.8984

Email: proyectoamistad@sbcglobal.net Webpage: www.pcusa.org/border/Amistad
Susanne Frerichs and Roberto Medina, Missionary Coordinators

Based out of Piedras Negras, Coahuila, México and Eagle Pass, Texas, Proyecto Amistad was established in 1985 by the Presbyterian Border Ministry, a binational ministry of the PCUSA and the National Presbyterian Church of Mexico (INPM) overseen by the International Joint Mission Commission.

During its 21 year history, Amistad has financially supported Noreste Presbytery (Mexico) in the development of three Presbyterian Churches in Piedras Negras and Ciudad Acuña, Coahuila, Mexico. For years it also operated medical and educational programs in the city of Piedras Negras. However, today the ministry's primary purpose is to facilitate mutually edifying partnerships (fellowship and joint ministries) between US and Mexican Presbyterian congregations by serving as a liaison or ligament between the two denominations that they might experience and live out in very concrete ways their unity as the body of Christ across cultural, linguistic, geographic, and socio-economic barriers. Amistad's facilitation services include mission trips in the US and Mexico (pre-trip orientation and on-the-ground presence and support), translation and delivery of communications, and general partnership oversight and consultation.

Though its home base continues to be Piedras Negras, Coahuila and Eagle Pass, Texas, Amistad partners with four presbyteries of the INPM (Noreste, Fronterizo, Tamaulipas, and Huastecas) which minister primarily in the north and central-east quadrant of Mexico (including communities in the states of Coahuila, Tamaulipas, Nuevo León, San Luis Potosi, Hidalgo, Aguascalientes, Nayarit, and Jalisco). In 2006, the ministry will facilitate missionary encounters for churches in that region that are seeking partnerships with US congregations. The ministry will also provide grants to support congregation-based evangelistic and compassion ministry programs on an as-requested basis.

During 2005, Amistad facilitated 17 missionary encounters for PCUSA and INPM congregations. Two of those encounters were in the United States. A total of 206 US Presbyterians participated in such encounters along with an innumerable number of Presbyterians in 9 different host congregations. In 2006, Amistad will coordinate another 18 missionary encounters in Mexico and the United States.

Amistad's proposed 2006 budget is $114,850.00.

Proyecto Amistad has only two staff members: the US Coordinator, Susanne Frerichs, who is a PCUSA mission coworker, and Mexican Coordinator, Roberto Medina, who represents Noreste Presbytery and the National Presbyterian Church of Mexico.

"From him the whole body, joined and held together by every supporting ligament, grows and builds itself up in love, as each part does its work." Ephesians 4:16

The Amistad Mission Statement

Amistad seeks to encourage, equip, and support the Presbyterian Churches of Mexico (INPM) and the United States (PCUSA), facilitating their joint ministry as witnesses and instruments of the Kingdom of God.

The Amistad Vision Statement

As a result of its ministry on the US-Mexico border, Amistad envisions:

- Growing, God-dependent Presbyterian Churches that are fulfilling their mission as bearers of the holistic Gospel to the people of their communities.
- Pastors who are motivated and empowered to effectively minister to and facilitate the ministry of the People of God on the border.
- People who, having been transformed by the power of Christ, are maturing in their relationships with God and with one another and using their spiritual gifts, learned skills, and natural abilities in ministry.
- Communities that are transformed into peaceful, prosperous, and God-honoring environments by the power of God working in them through the prayers, words, and deeds of the Presbyterian Churches of their communities.
- Believers from both nations living, worshipping, and serving as one body, that the world may know that Jesus Christ is Lord.
- Political, cultural, socio-economic, and religious borders torn down by the power of the Spirit as God's people unite their efforts to reconcile and be reconciled.

The Amistad Values Statement

The Amistad ministry is governed by the following beliefs:

- We affirm the authority of Scripture, the basic tenets of the Reformed faith, and the Statements of Faith of the Presbyterian Church (USA) and the National Presbyterian Church of Mexico (2 Timothy 3:16-17).
- We believe that in Christ there are no borders (Ephesians 2:11-22).
- We believe we are called to work together as one body; recognizing and respecting our cultural and theological differences, but also embracing them as ways in which God wishes to challenge our own assumptions and understandings (1 Corinthians 12:12-31, Ephesians 4:1-16).
- We believe God can and will transform us as we worship and minister together along our common border (Ephesians 4:1-16).
- We believe that Christ can and will transform the lives of the people on the border and that this is the only way to bring complete transformation to our communities and nations (John 14:6, 2 Corinthians 5:17).
- We believe that our best witness is our unity and love as the Body of Christ (John 13:34-35, 17:20-23).
- We believe we are the very hands and feet of Christ, called to follow His example of bearing the living Word to a broken and hurting world (James 2:14-26, 1 John 2:6, Matthew 10:7-8, John 14:12, Matthew 25:34-36).
- We believe the mission of the Church is to communicate the Gospel of Jesus Christ in word and deed in forms culturally appropriate to the communities and people to which we seek to witness (Matthew 28:19-20, Matthew 5: 13-16, Philippians 2:5-11, 1 Corinthians 9:19-23).
- We believe that we are called to honor civil law, though we believe also, that we, as Children of God, are called to seek the transformation of our communities and nations into God-honoring societies, speaking against any and all actions that oppress, harm, or otherwise undermine the dignity, worth, and rights of men and women anywhere. This demands our use of our prophetic role, speaking against injustice and sin in our midst (Ezekiel 2:3-5).
- We believe all believers and all communities of faith are gifted and called to participate in Christ's ministry in the world (1 Corinthians 12:12-31, Acts 1:8).
- We believe that to be partners in mission means uniting our efforts and resources to carry out a common mission in such a way that extends the Kingdom of God on earth and mutually empowers and edifies each of us (Ephesians 4:1-16).
- We believe that each community of faith is responsible to God for the city in which it lives and ministers (Jeremiah 29:7, Genesis 12:2-3).

Annual Report to the General Assembly 2006

Puentes de Cristo is one of the seven projects of the Presbyterian Border Ministry

- I. Goals, Methods of Operation, and Theological Emphasis
 - a. Mission Statement – We as members of the Presbyterian Church (USA) and the National Presbyterian Church of México (INPM) acknowledge the call of Jesus Christ to proclaim the Good News in a holistic manner and to work as partners. In response, our mission is to attend to the spiritual, physical and emotional needs of people, with special emphasis on the poorest of the poor in the constantly changing and dynamic Reynosa/McAllen border communities.
 - b. Goals
 - i. To share the message of the Good News of Jesus Christ
 - ii. To establish programs directed by Mexicans which become self-sufficient and enable the poor to live with dignity and hope.
 - iii. To facilitate communication between two churches, two cultures and two nations.
 - c. Methods of Operation – Puentes views evangelism holistically and works in the following areas:
 - i. New Church Development – Two mission churches in México
 - ii. Medical and Health Education Program – Two clinics in México
 - iii. Nutrition Program – Meals to malnourished children, two sites
 - iv. Education Program – Tutoring, scholarships, classes
 - v. Mission Education – Mission Teams from around the U.S.
 - d. Theological Emphasis – Breaking down the walls of separation and learning to live as neighbors. (Eph. 2:14)
- II. Annual Budget - $120,000
- III. Number of Staff in Organization
 - a. Two paid staff
 - b. Fourteen stipended volunteers

Voices of Orthodox Women

1. Voices of Orthodox Women is a nationwide network of people committed to renew and reform the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) through the promotion of the doctrines and practices of historic, biblical and confessional orthodoxy against those of an encroaching culture.

The work of the VOW network includes:

- Purposeful and specific prayer for our church and its ministries
- The encouragement of like-minded individuals and groups
- The political empowerment of orthodox women
- Education
- Calls for accountability
- A faithful and gently assertive presence

As Voices of Orthodox Women we believe in the Triune God—Father, Son and Holy Spirit, the authority of Scriptures, the biblical doctrines taught in The Book of Confessions, the sinfulness of human nature, the redemptive and transforming work of Jesus Christ, and Christ’s sole Lordship over every area of life.

In submission to the Scriptures, we believe the intrusions of culture into the life of the church must be exposed and resisted; most particularly, that radical feminism is irreconcilable with biblical orthodoxy; an idolatry -in both our Church and our culture-to be unmasked.

In submission to Christ’s Lordship over every area of life, we believe ourselves called, therefore, to build up the PC(U.S.A.) by promoting the doctrines and practices of historic biblical orthodoxy against those of this encroaching culture.

2. We have no “staff.” We are all volunteers.

4. We decline to send a statement that lists all donors who gave more than $1,000 to VOW in a given calendar year. We believe that is up to our donors to disclose that information if they so choose.

Affinity Group Report: World Mission Initiative at Pittsburgh Theological Seminary

PURPOSE: World Mission Initiative is a fellowship of Presbyterians dedicated to: developing mission vision; nurturing missionary vocations; cultivating missional congregations.

Seminary Focus: extending God's call to missionary vocations; sending seminary students to cross-cultural mission experiences; preparing seminary students to become world Christian pastors.

Congregational Focus: providing mission resources for the church; consulting with pastors and mission committees; educating the church about what God is doing in the world; networking to help churches reach out to the world; directing congregations to greater involvement and support.

DOCTRINAL STANDARD: World Mission Initiative is connected to Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, a graduate professional institution of the Presbyterian Church (USA), so our standard is the Book of Confessions

METHODS OF OPERATION:

World Mission Initiative is governed by a board comprised of staff, a representative of the Worldwide Ministries Division of the Presbyterian Church (USA), and eighteen members elected annually by the board in three classes of six. The WMI Board reports to the Board of Directors of Pittsburgh Theological Seminary.

STAFF:

Rev. Dr. Donald Dawson, Director
Rev. Dr. Scott Sunquist, Missiologist
Dr. Glendora Paul, Treasurer
Rev. James and Lois Caldwell, Consultants

DONORS of more than $1,000 in 2005: We believe it is the responsibility of the Board to protect the privacy of donors, so we will not report individual donors. Following are the churches that have contributed:

C. General Assembly Per Capita Payments by Presbytery

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) is grateful to the presbyteries for their continued level of faithfulness in the payment of per capita apportionments. The COGA is glad to report that since the year 1996, the amount of unpaid per capita has been reduced from approximately $350,000 to about $203,000 in the year 2003, and about $270,000 in 2004. Improvement of the level of giving is encouraged in the future.

“Per capita is an opportunity for all communicant members of the Presbyterian church through the governing bodies to participate equally, responsibly, and interdependently by sharing the cost of coordination and evaluation of mission” (Minutes, 1995, Part I, p. 301).

Full participation in per capita giving preserves the connectional nature of our Presbyterian system and provides a strong witness to good stewardship as believers of the Reformed Theology, based on the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ.

The following pages contain a statement of all per capita payments to the General Assembly for the last five years (2001–2005) by presbytery, indicating the total annual per capita apportionment, the amount paid, and the unpaid balance. It can be observed that the total unpaid per capita for 2005 (as of May 22, 2006) stands at $471,000. The OGA will continue to receive further payments for 2005 from a few presbyteries, which will hopefully reduce the level of unpaid per capita to be closer to last year’s level.

We are grateful that the vast majority of our congregations continue to be faithful and support our denomination by participating in per capita giving, even when they may have disagreements with our governing bodies. Each member’s share of these costs for the year (2006) is $5.57.

D. Office of the General Assembly Report on Compliance with Recommendation from Commissioners' Resolution 99-9.

The Office of the General Assembly was directed by Commissioners' Resolution 99-9 (Minutes, 1999, Part I, pp. 77–78, 684) to gather data on the opportunities that congregations are given to hear from racial ethnic minority preachers. This question was included on the 2004 Congregational Annual Report. A total of 6,331 congregations responded to this question (out of 11,019). Of those congregations responding, 29 percent indicated that their congregations did invite a racial ethnic minister to preach during the year. Of those answering in the affirmative, 1,862 responded to the question of how often that opportunity was extended in 2004. The result was that the mean was 2.7 and the median was 1.

E. Moderator of the 216th General Assembly (2004) Report

The Little Prince, by Antoine de Saint Exupery, has long been one of my favorite books. In it, the little prince—who has left his own tiny planet to visit other stars and planets in the sky—has an interaction with a fox, who has invited the little prince to tame him. As they say goodbye to one another, the fox shares a secret that he suggests will be of use to the little prince:

“Goodbye,” said the fox. “And now here is my secret, a very simple secret: It is only with the heart that one can see rightly; what is essential is invisible to the eye.”

How does one sum up the essence of the two-year adventure of serving as the Moderator of the General Assembly? So much of my experience of connecting with Presbyterians across the country and around the world has been about that which is invisible to the eye. In the end, most of the stories that have remained in my heart are the stories of connection, the moments when one person has risked deep sharing with another, or when I've glimpsed a congregation whose members are willing to be vulnerable to the possibility that God might have a surprise in store for them.

Without a doubt, I have been changed by what can be seen only by the heart:

- By my new friend Ben Terpstra, eleven years old when I met him, who made a deal with his parents to give up the family television in return for the chance to go on a mission trip together, and who ended up asking them if the forty dollars a month they used to spend on cable could now be sent to a little Presbyterian church in northern Mexico to buy phone cards for migrants to call their families. As I finish my moderatorial term, Ben and I are hiking the migrant trail through seventy-five miles of the Sonoran desert in order to help bring attention to the deaths of those crossing our southwest border.

- By a father and mother in Peru who wept as they told me of the loss of their son twenty years ago—“disappeared” by government soldiers—and of their coming to grips with their own pain through counseling and support groups paid for by Presbyterian Disaster Assistance funds.

- By dozens of young adults I've met who are giving their lives to follow Jesus into the world through the Young Adult Volunteer programs, and by the teenagers in high school who write me in frustration that they aren't old enough for that program and are looking for ways that they, also, can commit to mission.

- By so many small churches whose members are ready to risk everything in order to stay biblically centered and relevant in the world. My recent favorite is Grandview Park in Heartland Presbytery, whose European American members bought a drum set and put it in the sanctuary twenty years ago with the expectation that God would produce someone from their changing, Hispanic/Latino neighborhood who would know how to play it. Today, they are ninety members strong—about half Anglo and half Hispanic.

- By the experience of sitting in the mist as the sun went down, surrounded by children in a meadow in the mission station of Bulape, Democratic Republic of the Congo, where courageous Presbyterians dared to risk everything for what they believed more than a hundred years ago, and where the church, school, and hospital they planted there are still the foundational institutions of the community.

- By the transformation I've experienced as I've read the Bible with new eyes, and preached the lectionary through two years of liturgical seasons. God has spoken to me continuously as I've pushed myself to re-read the stories I thought I already understood and reflect on their meaning for our changing church and world.

- By the earnestness of countless Presbyterians across the denomination who have written to insist to tell me ways that they have “gotten in the boat with Jesus,” and that they want to be counted among those who are willing to build their entire lives around the radical call of Jesus Christ to the margins of our world.

- By several dozen Presbyterians who have renewed our understanding of mission as they've gone to accompany our Colombian Sisters and Brothers for a month at a time in the midst of the worsening human rights situation there.

- By the way that Presbyterians all over the country have been transformed by the ability to step up and offer their hearts and hands to respond to the victims of the hurricanes of the last two years. Savvy historians will remember both the history of the church, and the character of our country, as Katrina marked our transition from a "me first" world to a world in which we find our greatest meaning in our service to one another.

I've been changed, too, by the gift so many have offered me in order to make this time of service to the church possible. Through God's grace and a great deal of effort on the part of my wife and son, we seem to have grown stronger as a family as they have they have released me for this adventure. I suspect no Quaker has ever given more to support the mission of the Presbyterian church than my wife Kitty has over the last few years. My folks have supported me through yet another life-changing dream. I'll be forever grateful to my colleagues at BorderLinks who believed in the dream that I might become Moderator to share the border story across the denomination, and the many friends and colleagues among our national staff and in the middle governing bodies who have been excited, like me, about uncovering the best our church has to offer.

I've been humbled by hundreds of Presbyterians who have committed to be in prayer for me and for our sisters and brothers whom I've met as I have traveled across the church and around the world. I've been enriched by the partnership of Valerie Small, Deborah Harrison, Sharon Youngs, and Cliff Kirkpatrick in the Office of the General Assembly, and by their constant encouragement throughout my term. I've kept my head above water (just barely) because my close friend, Heather Craigie, has kept me sane and on track with the details of my itineration over the last two years.

Finally, I've been touched as I have encountered dozens of commissioners and advisory delegates who served with me for the 216th General Assembly (2004), many of whom have stories to share about special moments we shared together that week in Richmond. I owe a debt of gratitude that I'll never be able to repay for my ever-deepening friendship with Vice-Moderator Jean Marie Peacock and her husband Peter. Even as they have lost their home, all their belongings, and the foundations of their vocations have been shaken in the aftermath of Katrina, they have remained committed together to Jean Marie's commitment to the broader church.

Somewhere around the middle of my term as Moderator, those essential experiences began to become a rich tapestry like the ones woven by the Mayan women of Guatemala. As I look now on that full tapestry, some conclusions emerge from the many threads of my visits and relationships across the country and around the world.

First, our healthiest congregations share a common commitment to transform the lives of their members and to insist that one's faith in Jesus Christ trumps everything else. Those churches ask for more, not less, from their members. They know that leadership and the formation of our faith must be nurtured in every age group, that our members must be sent out into the world to be and to make disciples, and that we are called to stand against the empty promises of the dominant culture that constantly competes for our allegiance. Though I've encountered some churches that have watered down the gospel to the point of meaninglessness, my pulse has been continually quickened by the ones that are clear that Jesus meant what he said—even the hard parts.

Second, the brightly colored threads of new immigrant fellowships and multicultural churches are just beginning to emerge in the tapestry of our church. Together with our historically racial/ethnic schools and racial/ethnic congregations, they weave together the hues that have traditionally made our denomination's witness most vivid. If we are to honor those threads in the multicultural communities we are becoming, we must let go of the comfort many of us find in our single color, monocultural, mostly European American congregations and surrender ourselves to God's clear intention to make us a multicultural people. The churches that are willing to go down this road are discovering that no work could be more challenging, nor more rewarding.

Third, we must nurture a new generation of leaders who understand what it means to follow the movement of God's spirit, and we need older adults who have given their heart and soul to the church to step up and partner with young adults who want to fan the flames of that movement. This will be hardest on traditionalists in our pews who remember the glory days of the church of fifty years ago and who want desperately to go back, but there is no going back. The good news is that I've met many, many young adults, and older ones as well, who are anxious to offer the leadership we desperately need in order to become the church of God's deepest desire for us in the future.

This new kind of church will look a little different, because it will be all about encouraging Presbyterians to constantly seek to live their faith in the world. It's clear to me that this kind of mission can't be done by proxy. The energy of this emerging generation, if it is to be sustained, will demand a greater level of commitment from all of us. Their patience will quickly wane if they do not see a clear, unequivocal desire in all of us to live changed lives because of who Jesus calls us to be.

Many of the most exciting expressions of the movement of God's spirit have been on the margins of the institution of church. We would be wise to be attentive to those places on the margins. For instance:

- What if our Christian education programs were transformed into lifelong spiritual formation, providing consistent, theologically grounded biblical study to anchor each Presbyterian's growing experience in mission in their communities and in the world? What if that kind of formation was the very center of our life together as church?
- What if we treated the Presbyterian colleges and universities, and our Presbyterian campus chaplains at other schools, as genuine partners? Perhaps they could provide real renewal for our church, renewal that would come from a clear commitment to use the college experience as the best time to nurture young adults into the vocation of living their faith in Jesus Christ.
- What if we developed new leadership academies to work cooperatively with our seminaries to teach our pastors, commissioned lay pastors, and members the leadership skills they will need to create the missional and multicultural church?
- What if the Presbyterian Church Camp and Conference Association and all of its related facilities would become the hands-on, outdoor classroom for students of a new eco-theology that will inspire the next generation of Presbyterians to give their lives to the care of God's creation?
- What if we were to reach out to the Presbyterian Council for Chaplains and Military Personnel, and ask how we might better support our chaplains as they minister to the young adults who are serving in the military?
- What if we built on the partnership we've begun with the Presbyterian Peace Fellowship to develop the Colombia Accompaniment Program, encouraging hundreds of Presbyterians to become involved in nonviolent direct intervention work in situations of violence, and uniting Presbyterians around a common commitment to stand, together with the Jesus who calls us to love our enemies, against the increasing insecurity and violence that characterizes our world?
- What if our congregations tested every new passion we pursue against God's call to us from Scripture, and what if we sustained that passion through a sacred covenant to pray for one another? Imagine the unbelievable energy we could discover as we step up ourselves to pursue our passions instead of waiting for a professional class of church workers to do it for us?

Friends, there are so many ways God is clearly calling us to become a new thing. I have received the greatest of gifts as your Moderator, for I have been invited into the most intimate places in our church—the places where Presbyterians are struggling to weave a new tapestry of ever more vivid colors. I've been honored to touch the sacred, that which is essential, in the heart of God's people around the world.

In the book of Exodus, as the people of Israel wandered in the desert, they grew increasingly bitter and angry with Moses. "Why did you bring us out of the land of Egypt, to kill us and our children and our livestock with thirst?" Moses was at his wit's end. "God," he cried, "do something, for they are almost ready to stone me."

And then God did the most unlikely thing. To break the cycle of bickering and the visionlessness of the people of Israel, he instructed Moses to take a few trusted elders—leaders, opinion-shapers, stakeholders—and to go on ahead to the Mount of Horeb. "I will be waiting there, on a rock," God said. "Strike the rock, and water will flow forth."

Sisters and Brothers, we're in need of leaders who will look in unlikely places for water in the desert. After two years as the Moderator of the 216th General Assembly (2004), I am confident that the water is there, and that good people are committed to the hard work of discerning which rock God is standing on.

No work could be more important to our church, to our country, to our world, or in the end, to our God.

Your brother in Christ,

Rick Ufford-Chase

F. Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA)/Office of the General Assembly (OGA) Agency Summary

1. Office of the General Assembly

The Office of the General Assembly (OGA) exists to serve the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) as the ecclesiastical arm of the PC(USA). The OGA enables the church to shape its life and ministry in accord with the vision of the Church as defined in The Book of Confessions and the Book of Order.

The work of OGA is carried out through seven departments under the direction of the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly, who is elected by the assembly to a four-year term. The 15-member Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) oversees and supports the ministry of the Stated Clerk and staff, and partners with OGA in carrying out work assigned by the General Assembly.

2. Pastors Retreat to the Desert

The first-ever National Pastors Retreat, a joint effort by all six Presbyterian agencies, was a huge success by any standard. The event was an opportunity for more than 600 people to commune with nature and each other at Snowbird Resort in Utah. The keynote speaker was the Reverend Dr. Walter Brueggemann, while the Reverend Dr. James Forbes, the Reverend Dr. Barbara Brown Taylor, and the Reverend Dr. Tony Campolo served as retreat preachers.

The theme of the event, “Come away to a deserted place all by yourselves and rest a while,” came from Mark 6:30–32. Apparently, the purpose was achieved! More than 98 percent of the participants gave the conference “high marks.” Written comments included, “wonderful,” “enriching experience,” “great not to have debate on issues,” “Sabbath was just what was needed,” “best conference I have ever attended,” and finally, “I arrived in despair, left with hope.”

In a hugely collaborative effort, all the agencies agreed to put up seed money to initiate the planning and support the program in the future to be held in the “off years” that do not include a General Assembly.

3. A Letter from Clifton Kirkpatrick, Stated Clerk, and Steve Grace, Moderator, COGA

Sisters and Brothers in Christ,

The 217th General Assembly is upon us! Thanks to you nearly 800 commissioners and advisory delegates for giving your time, talent, and energy to serve on the General Assembly.

This year’s assembly is unique in many ways—the first biennial assembly; concurrent meeting with the Cumberland Presbyterian Church and the Cumberland Presbyterian Church in America; and the 300th anniversary of the first presbytery meeting in the Americas. Also, the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity, a special committee of the General Assembly staffed by OGA, will give its final report to the assembly.

In 2005, OGA and COGA have continued their work in support of leadership development in the church. COGA members helped conduct a survey of sessions regarding useful materials for elder training; OGA and the Congregational Ministry Division are working together to consider new and revised training resources. As highlighted elsewhere in this report, OGA was one of the joint sponsors of the first National Pastors Retreat and provided staff support for it. OGA also provided staff support for the annual Moderators’ Conference. For the first time, young adult representatives were invited to be a part of this conference so that dialogue could begin on the issue of involving youth in a more active role in the church.

The Office of Middle Governing Body Relations (an OGA/GAC shared office) held an orientation for 12 new executive presbyters. Held for the first time in at least a decade, this session provided an excellent opportunity for the participants to get to know about OGA and GAC programs and to meet the staff who would be valuable to their ministry. They also held the fourth annual Assessment Seminar with 25 persons in attendance who are exploring a call to middle governing body service.

The Presbyterian Historical Society (PHS), another part of OGA, continued its work, which includes the responsibility of collecting, preserving, and sharing the archival records of the church. To enhance the “sharing” component, COGA invited Columbia Theological Seminary (CTS) to create a program for the study of Presbyterian and Reformed History and Theology at CTS, which will include educational components at CTS and Montreat Conference Center. To support this program and for financial considerations, the PHS facilities at Montreat will be closed and the archival records moved to CTS or PHS headquarters in Philadelphia.

OGA staff worked throughout 2005 to organize a travel study group of about 15 persons, preparing them to attend the 9th World Council of Churches meeting to be held in February 2006. This is a major ecumenical event in the life of our church.

In support of the important responsibility to preserve and defend the PC(USA) Constitution, the Constitutional Services Department provided training, advice, consultation, and advisory opinions regarding our governance and the church’s Constitution. This vital ministry of OGA also includes an annual Fall Polity Conference for officers of the church.

We enjoyed working with OGA staff, COGA members, and the whole church on these and other ministries over the past year in an effort to build up the community of faith and help the church continue to proclaim, in word and deed, the gospel of Jesus Christ.

4. Immigration Work Becomes Part of OGA

In recognition of the enormous opportunities in working with immigrants, as well as the challenges, the 216th General Assembly (2004) took action to establish a new position to help presbyteries and congregations deal with immigration issues. It is estimated that there are at least 11 million undocumented workers in the US, and every one of our 173 presbyteries is affected by immigration-related issues.

Last summer (2005), attorney Julia Thorne assumed the position of manager for immigration issues, counsel for immigration. She had previously worked in a private law practice, where she specialized in immigration law. This very-specialized work is lodged in the Department of Constitutional Services in the Office of the General Assembly.

The responsibilities of this new office include: advocacy, helping programs at the national headquarters that serve immigrants, and coordinating with presbyteries as they encounter new opportunities to partner with immigrants. In the first six months of her work, Ms. Thorne fielded more than 50 phone calls from presbyteries. She reports that the calls have come from every size city/town in all parts of the US. Calls have also come to her regarding immigration issues in churches — questions about undocumented workers for example.

The PC(USA) has a long history of partnering with newcomers to our shores. Today, much of the growth in our churches is happening in new immigrant groups; therefore, they are in great need of resources and guidance as they respond to this challenging opportunity.

Two different groups, composed of employees from several divisions at the national headquarters, have met to share information about what is going on throughout PC(USA). They hope to develop resources on immigration issues for the denomination as it continues to grow as a multicultural church.

People who may previously have been served and evangelized by one of our missionaries in a far-away country are now on our doorstep — perhaps after having suffered persecution for their religious beliefs. These are persons who bring unique gifts, and they are worthy of welcome and aid as they become acclimated to the U.S.

5. Moderator's "Top 10 Learnings"

Rick Ufford-Chase of Tucson, Arizona, was elected Moderator at the 216th General Assembly (2004). The first Moderator ever elected to serve a two-year term provides his top ten list of "Listenings and Learnings" from the Moderator's Journey:

1. Everything we need is in the biblical tradition. I have been transformed by the unusual opportunity, as an elder, to follow the lectionary in my preaching for the last eighteen months. I've been converted, yet again, to the Christian faith.

2. The churches that are most alive, whether they are large or small, rural or urban, conservative or liberal, are the ones that are insisting mission cannot be done by proxy. They are getting out of the pews and into the world.

3. The worship that is most meaningful, whether it is traditional or contemporary, house church or tall steeple, emerging or multicultural, is the worship that is scripturally grounded and is the center of the congregation's life together. It is worship that engages the soul, the spirit, the body, and the mind.

4. The clear role for the national level of the church is to do everything in its power to enable Presbyterians in local congregations to carry out the work of the church in a way that honors the best of our reformed theology. It sounds basic, but congregations do mission, and the role of all other bodies is to connect, encourage, and resource those congregations.

5. God's spirit is trying to break out in new ways in our communities and around the world. The challenge to institutions from the local to the national level is to let go of the tendency toward suspicion about that which is new (which is typical of most institutions). Instead, we must blow gently on the embers of that spirit and help breathe new life into God's work all around us.

6. If we genuinely desire new life for the church, we should look first to the edges of the institution. Look among the immigrants and the young people. Check out the churches that have gotten so near their own death that they're willing to follow Jesus to a totally new location. God is at work in surprising places.

7. Mission is going to get messier as more people get involved. That's OK, but it makes our long-term mission personnel even more important as they try to support increasingly complex relationships.

8. It's good to build the church by inviting people into a personal relationship with Jesus Christ. It's wonderful to do justice in the world. The art form is looking for the moment of synergy when one can no longer distinguish between the two.

9. We should be raising the bar on what it takes to profess faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. Too many of our churches try to make it easier, not harder, to be a Christian. There is much about our culture that is antithetical to the teachings of Jesus.

10. We have a Christian obligation to treat one another with dignity and respect, even when we disagree. The level of rancor and hatred only grows when we abandon that fundamental obligation. I'm heartened by a sea change that I sense across the church as we reclaim the practice of being kind to one another.

6. Ecumenical and Agency Relationships Department Provides Leadership to Churches Uniting in Christ

Churches Uniting in Christ (CUiC) was organized in 2001 to begin intensive dialogue that would result in a fully reconciled ministry. It was hoped that one day ordained ministers of any of the member churches could serve and lead worship in each of the communions, when invited. The predecessor to this group was the Consultation on Church Union, which had a forty-year history. The nine members are: African Methodist Episcopal Church, African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, The Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), Christian Methodist Episcopal Church, Episcopal Church, International Council of Community Churches, Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), United Church of Christ, and United Methodist Church.

In 2005, a task force made up of representatives from all nine denominations completed their report on the issue of reconciled ministry. In 2006, individual member denominations will review the report prior to a vote being taken on its adoption. PC(USA) representatives have played a major role in the formation of this report.

The Ecumenical and Agency Relationship Department of OGA had significant experience to share as a result of the current bilateral dialogue between the Episcopal Church in the United States and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

During the CUiC process, the goal was never to “dictate” or change what an individual church believes/practices, but rather to commit to realizing that sharing experiences between the denominational lines is an essential dimension of practicing faith.

With a new director of CUiC and this proposal being discussed, the new year brings wonderful possibilities for strengthening the organization and the bonds between the member denominations.

7. The Presbyterian Historical Society

In 2004, the Presbyterian Historical Society’s (PHS) new Board of Directors, created by action of the 216th General Assembly, first convened in the fall of 2004. Its mission is to guide the Society in its strategic planning and funds development work.

“The nominations committee intentionally looked for individuals from the non-profit and corporate world with expertise in funds development and non-profit management,” PHS director Fred Heuser said. “We needed individuals with significant board experience both in the church and in more traditional non profit institutions.” The current members are: Eugene Bay, Douglas S. Callantine, Diana D’Agostino, Kyung Ghymn II, John Kuykendall, Bridget Piper, James F. Reese, Joyce Schafer, Charles W. Soltis, and Allister Waldrop.

While the national board hails from throughout the US, several of its members are strategically located in cities where the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) Foundation has regional offices, thereby allowing for more collaborative efforts.

The board’s tasks will include developing a strategic plan, establishing regional volunteer development groups, and eventually launching a capital campaign.

Heuser sees the creation of the PHS board as a real turning point at this stage in PHS’s history. “But the board and staff also recognize that current and future efforts are built upon the work of those who have gone before.” And for that, PHS is grateful for those many individuals who have shared their time and expertise in order to insure the future of our past.

9. Where did per capita money go?

The Office of the General Assembly is funded entirely by per capita, an assessment based on church membership. This source of funding provides a means for all Presbyterians to participate equally in supporting the costs of the coordination and evaluation of the church's mission to authentically proclaim the gospel of Jesus Christ.

In 2005, the General Assembly per capita rate for presbyteries was $5.57. These dollars allow us to mutually share the costs of coming together to discern the Spirit's leading for the future.

Item 04-01

[The assembly disapproved Item 04-01. See pp. 31, 33.]

On Deleting G-6.0106b, and on Providing a New Authoritative Interpretation—From the Presbytery of Heartland.

The Presbytery of Heartland respectfully overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to do the following:

1. Provide the following authoritative interpretation:

Interpretative statements concerning ordained service of homosexual church members by the 190th General Assembly (1978) of the United Presbyterian Church in the United States of America and the 119th General Assembly (1979) of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, and all subsequent affirmations thereof, have no further force or effect.

2. Direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall G-6.0106b be stricken? [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through.]

~~“b. Those who are called to office in the church are to lead a life in obedience to Scripture and in conformity to the historic confessional standards of the church. Among these standards is the requirement to live either in fidelity within the covenant of marriage between a man and a woman (W-4.9001), or chastity in singleness. Persons refusing to repent of any self acknowledged practice which the confessions call sin shall not be ordained and/or installed as deacons, elders, or ministers of the Word and Sacrament.”~~

Rationale

Current denominational policies regarding ordination contradict the foundational principle of Jesus’ teachings—God is love. From the early chapters in the Old Testament where we read of Abraham and Sara inviting three strangers to stay for dinner (Genesis 18) to the frequent accounts of disciples in the early New Testament churches creating an environment of welcoming, reconciliation, hospitality, and generosity (Romans 13 and 14, 1 Corinthians 13, Ephesians 2, Colossians 3, Hebrews 13, 1 John, etc.), the story of our faith is one in which God and God’s people are instructed to practice love. Jesus himself makes it clear that the greatest commandment is love of God and that the second is like it: “you shall love your neighbor as yourself” (Matthew 22, esp. 22:39). There are no exceptions to this expectation and yet our ordination policies certainly do not communicate a message of God’s love.

Current denomination policies regarding ordination contradict the Great Commission of Christ, who instructed his followers to go into all the world, making disciples, baptizing and teaching (Matt. 28:16–20). The Scriptures call the church out of itself and direct us to practice hospitality towards all—even strangers (Hebrews 13), thereby demonstrating the message of grace and welcome that draws people into the community of faith. The Apostle Paul points out that “God shows no partiality, but in every nation anyone who fears [God] and does what is right is acceptable to [God]” (Acts 10:34–35).

Current denominational policies regarding ordination contradict Scripture’s teachings about the freedom of God’s Spirit to engage in surprising, new, and unpredictable activities (John 3). Who of us can say with absolute certainty precisely what is God’s will with regard to the leadership of the church? For centuries we used biblical texts as the basis of our opposition to the ordination of women and inclusion of African Americans in our congregations. Now we know both practices were sinful violations of God’s will. Likewise, A Brief Statement of Faith reminds us that same Spirit “calls women and men to all ministries of the Church” (The Book of Confessions, 10.4, line 64).

Current denominational policies regarding ordination contradict the value Scripture places on inclusive welcome (Acts 8:26ff, 10:28 and 11:17). So, too, current ordination policies conflict with numerous parts of the Book of Order that underscore the church’s call to openness and inclusiveness (G-3.0401, G-4.0100–.0404) and the rights granted to members (G-5.0102 and G-5.0103, G-6.0107 and G-6.0108).

Current denominational policies regarding ordination contradict the church’s understanding of the Sacrament of Baptism. The Book of Order tells us that in baptism “we die to what separates us from God.” To be consistent with that teaching, we cannot then set up a barrier (ordination) that separates some of the baptized from their unity with God. Likewise we are told “baptism is a sign and symbol of inclusion in God’s grace and covenant” (W-2.3002), and “barriers of race, gender, status, and age are to be transcended. Barriers of nationality, history, and practice are to be overcome” (W-2.3005). If we are willing to baptize all believers, then is it not incumbent upon us to ordain all believers who are called by God into service?

Current denominational policies regarding ordination contradict the basic principle of the church that grants all men and women who are church members the right to respond to God's call to special ministries as elders, deacons, or ministers of Word and Sacrament (G-6.0106a). There is only one status or church membership, which means one's sexual orientation should not be regarded when considering service.

Rationale

There are times in the life of the community of faith when humility before God's divine initiative must take priority over the human tendency to presume to know the mind of God. There are Pentecost moments when the Spirit blows new life and new vision into being, opening possibilities for speech and action that transcend the barriers constructed by human pride. There are historical moments in the life of God's covenant people that cry out for a witness to the world that rises above polarized institutional debates. We believe that time is now.

We further believe that G-6.0106b, as it has been used specifically to discriminate against gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgendered Christians, presumes to say more than we are entitled to say about the actions of God's Spirit in calling faithful persons to particular ministries within Christ's Church. The challenges of the twenty-first century compel us to recognize and honor the gifts of all who profess Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior. As reformed Christians, we affirm that discernment regarding who may be called to particular ministries is an on-going process to be approached prayerfully in community rather than through institutionally imposed restrictions that leave no room for the movement of God's Spirit.

In this 50th anniversary year of the approval of the ordination of women to ministries of Word and Sacrament, we gratefully acknowledge that the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has been enhanced by the leadership of those once denied the privilege of responding to God's call by the limited vision of the institutional tradition. In affirming the work of God's Spirit in calling women to ministry, the 1956 General Assembly also affirmed the freedom of the Spirit and the Church's mandate to remain open to it:

God may endow women for service in His church today. Whom He will call, and how many, and when and where, we do not know. Only the Holy Spirit can say. We would infer, however, that the manner of calling women into service would be similar to that by which He has called men into His service. . . . Let us seek to avoid being in the position of making rules for our church which would prevent the Holy Spirit calling those whom He desires. (Minutes, PCUS, Part I 1965:138, 140.) [Note: In using this quotation, we acknowledge the presence of masculine exclusive language while rejoicing that our language has continued to evolve in a way that is more inclusive and just.]

In the year 2006 we continue to affirm: God may endow men and women—regardless of sexual orientation—for service in God's church today. Whom God will call, and how many, and when and where, we do not know. Only the Holy Spirit can say.

Rationale

The Gospel of Matthew tells us that the last words of Jesus to his disciples were a commissioning: to "make disciples," to "baptize them," and to "teach them to obey" everything that Jesus commanded. A list of his commandments for us today would include, at a minimum, "love one another," "feed my lambs . . . tend my sheep," and "do to others as you would have them do to you."

For some years now, the church has been sorely ineffective in reaching disciples and in teaching them to care for those most in need. Sadly, even those already in the church have been negligent in meeting the tasks of feeding, clothing, housing, visiting, and welcoming. In significant part, our preoccupation with the matters that are addressed by G-6.0106b and by the various interpretative statements on ordination of homosexuals has caused us to fall far short of Jesus' great commandment.

The time has come for all in the church to repent of our preoccupations. The repeal of G-6.0106b and the negating of the interpretative statements will allow us to do just that. If we can honestly and respectfully relate to one another, we will realize that the removal of these provisions will lead neither to the wholesale ordination of unqualified or unworthy candidates to the offices of the church, nor to the creation of a "right" to ordination for any class of candidates. Rather, such an action will return ordination decisions to the hands of our governing bodies, where we can expect such decisions to be handled with integrity, discernment, and prayer. When that happens, we can assume with confidence that, in the wisdom of the Reformed tradition and with the guidance of the Holy Spirit, the church's ordained leadership will continue to be composed of those whom God would entrust with leadership.

Our energies can then refocus on those who are hungry in body and those who are hungry in spirit.

Concurrence to Item 04-01 from the Presbytery of the Cascades (with Additional Rationale)

Rationale

The General Assembly has agreed that homosexual persons who sincerely affirm "Jesus Christ is my Lord and Savior" should not be excluded from membership (The Church and Homosexuality, as approved by the General Assembly of the UPCUSA, 1978, p. 59)

The Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) declares that all active members are "entitled to all the rights and privileges of the church, including the right ... to hold office" (Book of Order, G-5.0202).

The Historic Principles of the PC(USA) state that "every Christian church, or union or association of particular churches, is entitled to declare the terms of admission into its communion, and the qualifications of its ministers and members ..." (Book of Order, G-1.0302).

It will "further the peace, unity, and purity" of our churches, presbyteries, and denomination (G-14.0207g) to allow sessions and presbyteries their historic rights and responsibilities to ordain to leadership those whom they find called to serve.

Concurrence to Item 04-01 from the Presbytery of Chicago (with Additional Rationale).

Rationale

The impact of G-6.0106b in its application has been far greater than simply excluding some from ordained office. It has allowed a class distinction to be constitutionally enshrined, creating two classes of baptized Christians—those who are eligible for ordained office in the church, and those who are not.

Not since the now-abandoned prohibitions on divorced officers and clergy in our predecessor denominations has one class of members been singled out in a Presbyterian constitution for automatic disqualification from eligibility for ordained office.

The automatic exclusion of such persons from eligibility inexcusably divides the body of Christ. In the first letter to the church at Corinth, the Apostle Paul reminds us:

For in the one Spirit we were all baptized into one body ... and we were all made to drink of one Spirit. Indeed, the body does not consist of one member but of many. If the foot would say, "Because I am not a hand, I do not belong to the body," that would not make it any less a part of the body ... The eye cannot say to the hand, "I have no need of you," nor again the head to the feet, "I have no need of you." (1 Cor. 11:13–15, 21)

But G-6.0106b does precisely that. One class of Christians is effectively being told, "the body has no need of you." This communicates to those same children of God that in our denomination, they are not part of One Body, but are foreign, to be isolated and treated differently from all others. Such a position puts the lie to what Scripture says about baptism, what we say active membership means (G-5.0202), and what we say is the relationship between membership and ordained office (G-6.0102).

Though its proponents argue that the measure deals only with conduct, in reality G-6.0106b and its predecessors in our polity are statements by one portion of the baptized body of Christ to all lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender Christians, whether partnered or not, sexually active or not, that in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) their "membership" in the body is at best second class, and, at worst, neither desired nor honored as equal with all other members. This is a scandal to the gospel of Jesus Christ and has no place in the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

Concurrence to Item 04-01 from the Presbytery of Des Moines (with Additional Rationale).Rationale

Definitive guidance and authoritative interpretations issued by the General Assemblies and Permanent Judicial Commissions of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), the United Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, and the Presbyterian Church in the United States prior to the inclusion of G-6.0106b in the Book of Order stated that “self-affirming, practicing homosexual persons” were not fit for service in ordained positions within the church. These statements had the effect of amending our constitutional standards for ordination without the ratification of the presbyteries. These statements also have contributed to conflict and confusion in the church, and undermined respect for the Constitution.

We believe that the presence of G-6.0106b within the Book of Order creates a hostile and divisive environment in our church contrary to God’s reconciling love and the spirit of our Reformed faith, and increasing numbers of accusations and judicial cases have caused the church to spend invaluable financial and human resources defending this policy. These resources have taken away from the primary mission of the church.

The effects of compliance with G-6.0106b are counter to the sentiment of G-5.0103 that “Each member must seek the grace of openness in extending the fellowship of Christ to all persons.” Failure to do this “constitutes a rejection of Christ himself and causes a scandal to the gospel.”

The church “is called to be a sign in and for the world of the new reality which God has made available to people in Jesus Christ. . . (1) Sin is forgiven. (2) Reconciliation is accomplished. (3) The dividing wall of hostility are torn down” (Book of Order, G-3.0200). This leads to an affirmation of diversity and the welcoming inclusion of all people (Book of Order, Sections G-3.0401, G-4.0203, G-4.0401–.0403, G-5.0202, G-9.0104, The Book of Confessions, Sections 9.06–.07, 9.10, 9.19–.20, 9.22, 9.29, 9.31–.33, and 9.44).

Concurrence to Item 04-01 from the Presbytery of Detroit (with Additional Rationale).Rationale

“God alone is Lord of the conscience” (G-1.0301).

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) “believe[s] that there are truths and forms with respect to which men [sic] of good characters and principles may differ” as to which “it [is] the duty both of private Christians and societies to exercise mutual forbearance toward each other” (G-1.0305).

Those who undertake particular ministries, including those called to exercise special functions in the church as deacons, elders, and ministers of Word and Sacrament, “should be persons of strong faith, dedicated discipleship, and love of Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord. . . [whose] manner of life should be a demonstration of the Christian gospel in the church and in the world” (G-6.0106a).

Presbyterians of good characters and principles may differ on the actions necessary to demonstrate the Christian gospel in the church and in the world.

In each church the congregation has the power to nominate and elect deacons and elders and the session has responsibility and power to examine the qualifications of elders and deacons (G-6.0106a, G-10.01021, and G-14.0200).

Each presbytery has the responsibility and the power to ordain, receive, dismiss, install, remove, and discipline ministers of Word and Sacrament (G-11.0103n and G-14.0101).

Section G-6.0106b is being used to exclude from elective office baptized active members of our churches who are “entitled to all the rights and privileges of the church, including the right . . . to vote and hold office” (G-5.0202).

Section G-6.0106b abridges the responsibility of sessions and presbyteries to determine the readiness for office of active members. (G-6.0108b: “The decision as to whether a person has departed from essentials of Reformed faith and polity . . . ultimately becomes the responsibility of the governing body in which he or she serves. (G-1.0301; G-1.0302)”)

Historically, persons of strong faith, dedicated discipleship, and love of Jesus Christ (both heterosexual and homosexual) have been elected and ordained by their congregations and presbyteries.

Although G-6.0106b applies equally to heterosexual and homosexual persons, its enforcement is being directed only toward gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender persons.

Attempts by the General Assembly and Permanent Judicial Commission to resolve this issue have consumed great amounts of time, energy, and money, and have led to threats of schism and other actions that endanger the peace, purity, and unity of the church.

Concurrence to Item 04-01 from the Presbytery of East Iowa (with Additional Rationale).

Rationale

It is our hope that the 217th General Assembly (2006) will mark the beginning of the end to the discrimination against gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transsexual persons in the life and ministry of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). Removing G-6.0106b and the related authoritative interpretations would enhance mutual trust because such removal would be a sign that presbyteries and sessions are respectful of the others' integrity. The connectional system is a precious hallmark of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and can only function effectively when there is trust. The removal of G-6.0106b would be an important step toward furthering the peace, unity and the purity of the church.

God is the One who loves us all into being and the One who calls people to ministry. Many have heard God's call to ordained ministry in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) but are prohibited by G-6.0106b and the related authoritative interpretation from ordination. Nominating committees are at a great disadvantage in many congregations because there are people who are called by God to serve but may not be asked because of G-6.0106b.

"Reformed and always reforming" is a precious tenet of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). That is consistent with the biblical view of God who is always creating and always doing a brand new thing (Isa. 42:9; 43). God is calling many people to ordained ministry whom the church is excluding through G-6.0106b. And yet, "God, who knows the human heart, testified to them by giving them the Holy Spirit, just as he did to [the rest] of us" (Acts 15:8). Just as God did a new thing in the Jerusalem church when Gentiles were admitted as members in full standing, we believe that God continues to offer newness and more inclusivity today, including the full inclusion and participation of those persons that G-6.0106b presently excludes. We believe that it is faithful to continue opening doors that the church has closed because of contextual, historical, or societal conventions.

The Historic Principles of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) indicates that "every Christian Church, or union or association of particular churches, is entitled to declare ... the qualifications of its ministers and members ..." (G-1.0302). Presbyteries and sessions have always been the place of that tradition of decision-making. Section G-6.0106b puts a severe constraint on sessions and presbyteries to fulfill their historic functions. Just as the confessions over the centuries have incorporated new ideas and concerns that reflect different periods of time, Scripture, too, is often its own self-corrective as seen in the admission of Gentiles into the early church, people that Scripture had formerly declared unclean. Jesus understood that the law was often used as a trap. In his life, Jesus illustrated over and over again that living by the spirit of the law superseded living by the letter of the law. We believe that he gave the scribes and all of us a definitive word: "The first [commandment] is, 'Hear, O Israel: the Lord our God, the Lord is one; you shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind, and with all your strength.' The second is this, 'You shall love your neighbor as yourself.' There is no other commandment greater than these" (Mark 12:29-31).

Concurrence to Item 04-01 from the Presbytery of Genesee Valley (with Additional Rationale).

Rationale

Section G-6.0106b of the Book of Order violates our great theological and constitutional tradition of hospitality and compassion. Jesus gave us this commandment: "You shall love your neighbor as yourself." The Apostle Paul, addressing some of the major divisions of his day, said: "There is no longer Jew or Greek, there is no longer slave or free, there is no longer male and female; for all of you are one in Christ Jesus" (Gal. 3:28).

The recent confessions affirm these commandments. "Congregations, individuals, or groups of Christians who exclude, dominate, or patronize their fellowmen, however subtly, resist the Spirit of God and bring contempt on the faith which they profess" (The Book of Confessions, The Confession of 1967, 9.44). "In sovereign love God created the world good and makes everyone equally in God's image, male and female, of every race and people, to live as one community" (The Book of Confessions, The Brief Statement of Faith, 10.3, lines 29-32).

The confessions describe the basic principles of our Reformed faith (Book of Order, G-2.0500). Section G-6.0106b is blatantly inconsistent with the confessions because it violates the overarching principle proclaimed in the recent confessions—namely the equality of all people—and reinstates lists of sins and categories of “second-class citizens,” which have long since been placed in historical context by the more recent confessions. The Larger Catechism alone described 153 sins. Interpreted literally, a law that bars ordination based on any of these sins would make most church members ineligible for ordination.

The standards set forth in G-6.0106a have served us well for many years and provide that candidates for ordination should be persons of strong faith, dedicated discipleship and love of Jesus Christ. “Their manner of life should be a demonstration of the Christian gospel in the church and in the world” (Book of Order, G-6.0106a).

Section G-6.0106b subverts the welcoming essence of our faith. It creates absolute, categorical exclusions and disregards important facts in specific cases. It excludes entire categories of people regardless of their character and qualifications. It attempts to make this exclusion absolute, as if it were an essential tenet, which it is not. It ignores freedom of conscience, one of the Historic Principles of Church Order (Book of Order, G-1.0301(1)(a)). It undermines the authority and responsibility of ordaining bodies to examine, ordain, and welcome those persons whom they deem qualified for ordained office in our church. It contradicts provisions in the Book of Order that mandate an inclusive church (G-3.0401, G-4.0403, G-5.0103, and G-5.0202). Finally, it is in conflict with the recent confessions.

It is not possible to accept a broad, punitive meaning of G-6.0106b, and, at the same time, implement the clear commandments of Jesus and the provisions in our Constitution that require equality and inclusion. Failure to honor these commandments and constitutional provisions “constitute a rejection of Christ himself and causes a scandal to the gospel” (Book of Order, G-5.0103).

Section G-6.0106b of the Book of Order and the related authoritative interpretations concerning ordained service are all theologically and constitutionally flawed and must be eliminated.

Concurrence to Item 04-01 from the Presbytery of Lake Michigan (with Additional Rationale).

Rationale

The biblical values of inclusive welcome (Acts 10:28, 11:17) and love of neighbor (Rom. 13:8–10) compel us to proclaim that we are committed to eliminating all barriers to the full participation of Presbyterians who are gay and lesbian in the life, witness, and ministry of the church.

The Apostle Paul taught, “Now there are varieties of gifts, but the same Spirit; and there are varieties of services, but the same Lord; and there are varieties of activities, but it is the same God who activates all of them in everyone. To each is given manifestation of the Spirit for the common good” (1 Cor. 12:4–7). We believe, as Presbyterians, the Holy Spirit speaks through the voice and the vote of a congregation or governing body when calling deacons, elders, and ministers of Word and Sacrament. Section G-6.0106b of the Book of Order hinders the movement of the Holy Spirit in discerning call to church office. Furthermore, G-6.0106b conflicts with the long-held standard set forth in G-6.0107, which states, “the government of this church is representative, and the right of God’s people to elect their officers is inalienable.”

We uphold the words and ideals outlined by a majority of the biblical scholars who were faculty members of our Presbyterian seminaries in their 2001 statement, “The Whole Bible for the Whole Human Family.” Their statement encourages us to interpret biblical passages in light of the whole Bible, to be careful not to “wrest” passages out of context, to be mindful that the concept of homosexuality as we now understand it was not in the Bible, and to remember that it is Jesus Christ, the Redeemer and Resurrected Savior, who is the Living Word of God. Furthermore, the statement reminds us “this debate often revolves around six passages that refer to same-sex relationships. On careful reading, these passages seem to be advocating values such as hospitality to strangers, ritual purity, or the sinfulness of all human beings before God.”

This is consistent with the tone of The Confession of 1967, which states, Confessions and declarations are subordinate standards in the church, subject to the authority of Jesus Christ, the Word of God, as the Scriptures bear witness to him. No one type of confession is exclusively valid, no one statement is irreformable. Obedience to Jesus Christ alone identifies the one universal church and supplies the continuity of its traditions (The Book of Confessions, The Confession of 1967, Preface, 9.03).

Furthermore, “The Scriptures, given under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, are nevertheless the words of men, conditioned by the language, thought forms, and literary fashions of the places and times at which they were written. They reflect views of life, history, and the cosmos which were then current” (The Book of Confessions, 9.29).

Careful study of the gospel accounts shows that Jesus never once mentioned, let alone condemned, homosexuality. The four gospel accounts repeatedly tell the story of Jesus' clear and unequivocal condemnation of self-righteousness, piety, hypocrisy, and the hoarding of wealth and resources. We ask, why then should we include those who are condemned by Jesus and yet exclude those whom Jesus did not condemn?

Concurrence to Item 04-01 from the Presbytery of Mid-Kentucky (with Additional Rationale).

Rationale

Over the centuries and under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, the Church has changed its understanding and teaching concerning how God would have us live together in God's world. From the "Divine Right of Kings" and "the earth as the center of the universe" to slavery, segregation, and women as property, the Holy Spirit has awakened the Church's consciousness in ways the writers of the Bible, conditioned by the culture of their day, could never have imagined. (The Book of Confessions, The Confession of 1967, 9.29)

In our time this Spirit-led emerging consciousness is giving us new knowledge through literary and historical (especially medical and psychological) understandings of human sexual orientation and behavior. The church has an "obligation to approach the Scriptures with [this] understanding (The Book of Confessions, The Confession of 1967, 9.29) and is, therefore, confident that God is speaking in our changing world and is calling for the full inclusion of fellow Christians whose sexual orientation is not heterosexual (The Book of Confessions, The Confession of 1967, 9.30).

To continue, therefore, to exclude an entire category of Christians from particular ministries in the church, based on understandings made inoperative by new knowledge, is not only destructive of sisters and brothers in Christ (Acts 10:28 and Book of Order, G-4.0403), but it is also to stand against God (Acts 11:17). It is further to sin against God by denying the possibility of God's call to these persons for particular ministries and by depriving Christ's Church of their gifts (Book of Order, G-6.0106a).

Concurrence to Item 04-01 from the Presbytery of New York City (with Additional Rationale).

Rationale

We have reflected patiently and prayerfully for three decades, in a spirit of inquiry and openness, striving to be faithful both to our beloved family of faith in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and to the gospel message.

We have heard the stories of countless individuals called to ministry who live in fear of rejection by the very body they are called to serve. This fear keeps them from responding to God's call to serve and being whole and integrated members of the body of Christ.

We have observed with sadness the judicial trials ripping the fabric of our communities, with anger the conclusion that some are more worthy than others, and with alarm the increasing desire in our fellowship to debate supposed heretics rather than to nurture sincere believers. However we see hopeful signs of God's presence in the midst of confusion, chaos, and disappointment as we seek to discern with one another the will of God in our lives.

We affirm the founding principle of our denomination, that God alone is Lord of the conscience (G-1.0301) in all things.

We are faithful to the Living Word of God in Scripture when we believe Christ's promise; "anyone who comes to me, I will never drive away" (John 6:37b).

We affirm the possibilities of revelation and reform, that Scripture may deliver a fresh word of hope and challenge to every generation that faithfully searches its pages for the truth and that our understandings of the natural world and human sexuality are incomplete.

We are faithful to all our brothers and sisters in Christ when we value reconciliation and walk alongside all those who search for the Christian path in their lives as, indeed, we all do.

We are faithful to our Lord God when we honor and express in our corporate and individual lives the reality of the amazing and unfathomable grace on which we all depend.

Therefore, we urge the General Assembly and presbyteries to prayerfully consider the removal of both G-6.0106b and the related authoritative interpretations in an effort to further the peace, unity, and purity of the church.

Concurrence to Item 04-01 from the Presbytery of Newark (with Additional Rationale).

Rationale

Section G-6.0106b states that church officers are “to lead a life in obedience to Scripture and in conformity to the historic confessional standards of the church.” Scripture calls us to be obedient to Jesus Christ (1 Peter 1:2) and to truth (1 Peter 1:22). Furthermore, the confessional standards require us to be “led and instructed” by these standards (G-14.0405b3), rather than conform.

In identifying aspects of “the manner of life of church officers that demonstrates the Christian gospel” (G-6.0106a), we are concerned that G-6.0106b singles out sexual practice for special treatment while ignoring other actions that Scripture and the confessions consider to be of equal or greater importance. For example: oppression, and injustice toward the poor and hungry (Isa. 58:1–10), “undue silence in a just cause,” “speaking untruth, lying, slandering, backbiting, detracting, talebearing, whispering, scoffing, reviling.” (The Book of Confessions, The Larger Catechism 7.254).

Concurrence to Item 04-01 from the Presbytery of Newton (with Additional Rationale).

Rationale

In the bible, Paul tells the church at Galatia: “As many of you as were baptized into Christ have clothed yourselves with Christ. There is no longer Jew or Greek, there is no longer slave or free, there is no longer male and female; for all of you are one in Christ Jesus (Gal. 3:27–28).

In the Book of Order we find the following statement: “Baptism enacts and seals what the Word proclaims: God’s redeeming grace offered to all people. Baptism is God’s gift of grace and also God’s summons to respond to that grace. Baptism calls to repentance, to faithfulness, and to discipleship. Baptism gives the church its identity and commissions the church for ministry to the world” (W-2.3006).

In The Confession of 1967 it states: “By humble submission to John’s baptism, Christ joined himself to [all people] in their need and entered upon his ministry of reconciliation in the power of the Spirit. Christian baptism marks the receiving of the same Spirit by all his people...” (The Book of Confessions, 9.51)

In A Brief Statement of Faith it says:

In sovereign love God created the world good and makes everyone equally in God’s image male and female, of every race and people, to live as one community. (The Book of Confession, 10.3, lines 29–32)
and
The Spirit justifies us by grace through faith, sets us free to accept ourselves and to love God and neighbor,
and binds us together with all believers
in the one body of Christ, the church.
The same Spirit who inspired the prophets and apostles rules our faith and life in Christ through Scripture, engages us through the Word proclaimed, claims us in the waters of baptism, feeds us with the bread of life and the cup of salvation, and calls women and men to all ministries of the Church. (The Book of Confessions, 10.4, lines 54–64)

It is well stated in the PC(USA) that all people are baptized by the same Spirit and everyone in our faith community is eligible to receive the gift of God’s grace. Therefore, we believe it is an egregious act for some in our church to be marked as if they are not baptized and to be treated as if they stand outside of God’s grace and full fellowship of the church. Paul tells the church at Rome, Nothing we do, or fail to do, can “separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord” (Rom. 8:38). And yet, we exclude some because of who they are as human persons. We believe that continuing to use statements of interpretation that do not recognize the full baptism of every member of the church is harmful to both the truth of the gospel and the integrity of the church.

Concurrence to Item 04-01 from the Presbytery of the Redwoods (with Additional Rationale).Rationale

We, the members and representatives of the Presbytery of Redwoods, affirm that Jesus Christ alone is the head of the church. Christ calls the church into being, giving it all that is necessary for its mission to the world, for its building up, and for its service to God. We trust in Jesus Christ, who gives the church its faith and life, its unity and mission, and its officers and ordinances, to lead us in love and service (G-1.0100c).

Our church is divided over the issue of ordination of gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender church members. Because it is Christ who gives us our unity, our church's division over the issue of ordination of gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender church members constitutes a scandal against Christ. We are called to be one body, the church, living within the one Spirit of God known through Christ, and because we have Christ we have one faith, one baptism, one God and Creator of us all (Eph. 4:5–6, G-4.0202). In reaffirming our commitment to Jesus Christ as head of the church, we remember that the church's unity is a gift of God (G-4.0201).

The church universal consists of all persons in every nation, together with their children, who profess faith in Jesus Christ (G-4.0101). With the earliest Christians, we confess that Jesus is the Christ, that he is our hope, and that the church, as Christ's body, is bound to his authority and thus free to live in the lively, joyous reality of the grace of God (G-1.0100d).

Therefore, we proclaim:

Jesus Christ is our hope. Membership in our churches is made visible through baptism and profession of faith in Jesus Christ as Savior and acceptance of his Lordship in all of life (G-5.0101). Profession of faith in Jesus Christ is the cornerstone of participation and membership in the church universal and particular.

Jesus Christ is our unity. In hope and joy, the congregation shall welcome all persons who respond in trust and obedience to God's grace in Jesus Christ and desire to become part of the membership and ministry of his church. No persons shall be denied membership because of race, ethnic origin, worldly condition, or any other reason not related to profession of faith (G-5.0103).

Jesus Christ is our life. As with church membership, suitability for church leadership and ordination is demonstrated by the candidate's faith, dedicated discipleship, and love of Jesus Christ as Savior (G-6.0106a). The questions for ordination comprehensively affirm the candidate's undivided faith in and full commitment to Jesus Christ in all of life (G-14.0207 and G-14.0405b).

Jesus Christ is our standard. When any singular moral, ethical or doctrinal stance—from any point on the theological spectrum—becomes the standard for membership, leadership, or ordination in the church, we deny the definitive and fundamental importance of faith in Christ and the sincerity of the candidate's proclamation of who Christ is in her or his life. God alone is Lord of the conscience (G-1.0301.1a), and the church belongs to Christ alone to rule, to teach, to call, and to use the church as he wills, exercising his authority by the ministry of women and men for the establishment and extension of his kingdom (G-1.0100b).

We seek God's will for our church, and we recommit to and proclaim the centrality of Jesus Christ and his love, ministry, and proclamation of God's coming realm in all that we do. Our faith and life, unity and mission, officers and ordinances are rooted in Christ alone, by the grace and guidance of the Holy Spirit. Let us dare to do as our Savior and invite all who confess Jesus Christ to participate in the full life and membership of our church.

Concurrence to Item 04-01 from the Presbytery of San Francisco (with Additional Rationale).Rationale

With the Church Universal, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is commanded to “go ... and make disciples of all nations ...” (Matt. 28:19). We have good news—life-saving news—to share. People in our cities—confronted by unrelenting economic demands; surrounded by clashing social cultures; buffeted by despair, anxiety, and hopelessness; and often very far from home—need especially to hear the good news of the Gospel of the unfathomable and unfailing love of God. Like first-century Corinth, or Ephesus, or Rome, our cities are ripe mission fields.

Yet evangelism in cities and beyond is greatly hampered by our church's rules that exclude and disqualify a whole class of people whom our members and potential members know well. A polity that appears to welcome gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgender people to sit in our pews, sing in our choirs, teach in our Sunday Schools, and contribute to our offerings—but not to serve in ordained office—is unpersuasive as “good news.” Our own confessions remind us that “congregations, individuals, or groups of Christians who exclude, dominate, or patronize their fellowmen, however subtly, resist the Spirit of God and bring contempt on the faith which they profess” (The Book of Confessions, The Confession of 1967, 9:44).

Our church has in recent years made significant changes to offer needed flexibility in order to provide leadership in diverse and emerging contexts. These actions appropriately recognized that “... there are varieties of gifts, but the same Spirit” (1 Cor 12:4) and that it is the Spirit (not the Presbyterian church) that “... calls women and men to all ministries of the Church” (The Book of Confessions, A Brief Statement of Faith, 10.4, line 64).

Section G-6.0106b as usually interpreted excludes an entire class of Presbyterians from service. Categorically refusing to consider a substantial percentage of our members for ordained service impedes the work of the Spirit, stands in the way of discipleship, and impoverishes the work of the Kingdom.

Rationale

Reconciliation is the hope of this overture. Despite all the passionate rhetoric, rumors and innuendoes, we believe reconciliation through clarification and resolution was the hope of those who drafted and ratified what is now G-6.0106b. Sadly, G-6.0106b has failed in its purpose. If anything, it has deepened the painful divisions experienced by men and women of good faith.

Reconciliation must be our hope. Reconciliation is not a compromise of true belief. It is the possibility God has given us. We are God's people, brothers and sisters. As God's people, we have no choice. We are family. Anything that makes reconciliation harder must be overcome.

Reconciliation is God's promise to us. All have sinned. None deserve God's love. It is not ours to use God's gifts to cause the alienation of any of God's people. Reconciliation is not ours to withhold. It is God's gift.

Reconciliation will not be achieved by winning votes. Yet this overture must pass before the work of reconciliation can begin. Removing G-6.0106b will not heal our denomination; it is a step toward that end. Removing it will affirm of our trust and love for each other. It will affirm that we trust each other to act for the good of the whole church when we ordain and install leaders.

Reconciliation is our hope in God. In calling for the passage of this overture, we lay claim to hope. Section G-6.0106b and its related interpretive statements create a situation where some have power over others. Many dare not speak the truth of their experience of God. Many live in fear that their truth will cause others to exclude them from their livelihood, from their church community, from their family. People of all theological perspectives know this fear. Many experience G-6.0106b and its interpretations as denying the reality of God's reconciling grace. We still see as if in a dim mirror. In humility, we need to learn all we can from each other. We need to move beyond our past efforts, however well intentioned, so we can reason together and again show the world how Christians love one another.

Concurrence to Item 04-01 from the Presbytery of the Twin Cities Area (with Additional Rationale).

Rationale

We believe that the presence of G-6.0106b within our Book of Order has created a hostile and divisive environment in our church that is contrary to God's reconciling love and the spirit of our Reformed faith. We are greatly saddened over the number of accusations and judicial cases that have arisen as a result of this measure. These trials have caused the church to spend inordinate financial and human resources defending an exclusionary policy that is not an essential of the Reformed faith, drawing precious resources away from the primary mission of the church.

The effects of compliance with G-6.0106b run counter to the sentiment of G-5.0103 that “Each member must seek the grace of openness in extending the fellowship of Christ to all persons.” Failure to do this, it continues, “constitutes a rejection of Christ himself and causes a scandal to the gospel.” We would honor Christ's last prayer with his disciples that all may be one (John 17:11) and would heed the admonition of the New Testament writers that we avoid needless controversies lest the body of Christ be divided.

Presbyterians have historically valued the rights of governing bodies to make decisions that affect them the most directly, seeking unity in the essentials of faith but not necessarily in “truths and forms with respect to which [people] of good characters and principles may differ” (Book of Order, G-1.0305). Biblical interpretations differ, and the church may therefore leave it to local governing bodies to act out of their own faith as discerned together in prayer and under the guidance of the Holy Spirit when such interpretations are in conflict.

The confessions of our church are valuable guides in our decisions about ordination and many other issues, but they are always subordinate to Jesus Christ and the authority of Scripture (Book of Order, G-1.0307 and G-20200; The Book of Confessions, 3.18–20, 5.011–.014, 6.010, and 9.03). Our constitution affirms that “God alone is Lord of the conscience, and hath left it free from the doctrines and commandments of men which are in anything contrary to his Word, or beside it, in matters of faith or worship” (Book of Order, G-1.0301; see also G-1.0305 and G-1.0307; The Book of Confessions, 5.010–.014, 6.109, 6.174–.175, 7.215, and 8.20–21).

The church “is called to be a sign in and for the world of the new reality which God has made available to people in Jesus Christ,” reflecting that “(1) Sin is forgiven. (2) Reconciliation is accomplished. (3) The dividing walls of hostility are torn down” (Book of Order, G-3.0200b). This leads to an affirmation of diversity and the welcoming inclusion of all people (Book of Order, G-3.0401, G-4.0203, G-4.0401–.0403, G-5.0202, and G-9.0104; The Book of Confessions, 9.06–.07, 9.10, 9.19–.20, 9.22, 9.29, 9.31–.33, and 9.44).

We understand our polity and system of ordination to mean that leaders are called by God and confirmed by the people, and that all members whose manner of life demonstrates the gospel and who possess the gifts and training for leadership have opportunities to participate in leadership. In faithfulness to our call to be good stewards of the resources entrusted to us, we would affirm and enable ordained service and outreach by all in whom we discern a call to serve (Book of Order, G-1.0306, G-4.0402, G-4.0403, G-6.0102, G-6.0107, G-7.0103, G-10.0102l, G-14.0201, and G-14.0204).

In our continuing struggle on these issues, the church is called to be open to God’s continuing reformation “according to the Word of God and the call of the Spirit” (Book of Order, G-2.0200; see also G-4.0401, G-4.0303, G-10.0102j, and G-18.0101; The Book of Confessions, 9.03 and 9.29).

In contrast to the dominant anti-gay culture, which continues to send the message that lesbian and gay persons and their families are not acceptable in many communities, the biblical values of inclusive welcome (Acts 10:28, 11:17) and love of neighbor (Romans 13:8-10) compel us to proclaim unambiguously that we remain committed to the elimination of all barriers to the full participation of gay and lesbian Presbyterians in the life and ministry of the church, for it is the Spirit who “calls women and men to all ministries of the church” (The Book of Confessions, A Brief Statement of Faith, 10.4, line 64).

It is profoundly anti-evangelical, antithetical to the Gospel, for the church to send the message that persons for whom Christ died are outside the love of God. In addition to the Scriptures, we stand on our confessions, lifting up particularly these affirmations from A Brief Statement of Faith:

The Spirit justifies us by grace through faith,
sets us free to accept ourselves and to love God and neighbor,
and binds us together with all believers
in the one body of Christ, the Church. . . .

In a broken and fearful world the Spirit gives us courage to pray without ceasing, to witness among all peoples to Christ as Lord and Savior, to unmask idolatries in Church and culture, to hear the voices of peoples long silenced, and to work with others for justice, freedom, and peace. (The Book of Confessions, A Brief Statement of Faith, 10.4, lines 54–57, 65–71)

As part of its 1978 judgment that homosexual members should not be ordained, the church also declared that “There can be no place within the Christian faith for the ... fear that is called homophobia” and that “Homosexual persons who sincerely affirm ‘Jesus Christ is my Lord and Savior’ ... should not be excluded from membership.” Further, it called upon Presbyterians “to reject in their own lives ... the sin of homophobia, which drives homosexual persons away from Christ and the church” (The Church and Homosexuality, Minutes, UPCUSA, 1978, Part I). The Book of Order stipulates that “An active member is entitled to all the rights and privileges of the church, including the right to ... hold office” (G-5.0202) and that the church “shall give full expression to the rich diversity within its membership ...” (G-4.0403). The continued practice of barring gays and lesbians from ordination is in direct conflict with the call to avoid homophobia and with our understanding of what membership means and represents.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 04-01

Advice on Item 04-01—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) with the following comment.

Ordination Overview

Because Presbyterians hold significant differences of opinion about the wisdom of our current ordination standards, many presbyteries have submitted overtures seeking changes in those standards since the adoption of G-6.0106b in 1997.

In our history, Presbyterians, in the midst of our most serious conflicts have found themselves being reformed according to the Word of God (Book of Order, G-2.0200). One example is found in the Adopting Act of 1729, which anchored the ordination standards in the essentials of the Reformed faith and allowed candidates to declare differing opinions on matters not deemed “essential and necessary.” Another example is the deep division in the 1920s in the fundamentalist/modernist controversy that led to the report of the “Swearingen Commission” (Special Commission of 1925, Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A.). The report said in 1926, “The Church at large should illustrate, as well as demonstrate, the power of the Gospel to bind up wounds and to soften animosities; and such, we are convinced, was the purpose of incorporating in the Presbyterian Constitution, the obligation for [Presbyterians] to maintain a patient, considerate and [caring] attitude toward each other” (Minutes, PCUSA, 1926, Part I, p. 78).

If we desire to resolve our present conflict, we must use the many and varied gifts God has provided.

For several years, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution (ACC) has sought to make the following salient points:

1. There are three sources of constitutional authority for the PC(USA):

(a) The Constitution itself and amendments to it,

(b) General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission decisions interpreting the Constitution,

(c) Deliberate General Assembly interpretations adopted pursuant to process described in G-13.0112. Decisions by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission and General Assembly interpretations under G-13.0112 together are referred to as “authoritative interpretations” (G-13.0103r).

2. The most recent interpretation of a provision of the Book of Order shall be binding.

3. The process of constitutional amendment is carefully defined in the Book of Order (Chapter XVIII).

4. The constitutional structure of the church is not modeled on the United States federal system with the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission as a supreme court that has final authority in constitutional matters because the General Assembly itself also has power to provide authoritative interpretations of the Constitution in accordance with G-13.0103r.

In 1978, the former UPCUSA adopted a policy statement that came to be called “definitive guidance.” The next year, 1979, the former PCUS adopted a similar statement. Both sought to prohibit the ordination of “self-affirming practicing homosexual persons.” The General Assembly of this church determined in a PJC decision (Union Presbyterian Church of Blasdell v. The Presbytery of Western New York, Minutes, 1985, Part I, p. 118 et seq.) that those earlier statements carried the authority of the present Constitution. Thus, the earlier “definitive guidance” became an “authoritative interpretation.”

Business Before the 217th General Assembly (2006)

Possible Responses the 217th General Assembly (2006) May Make

1. Answer the various overtures (Items 04-01, 04-02, 04-04, 04-06, 04-08) by the advice of Item 6 of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity and Purity of the Church (Item 06-01).

2. Take one of several approaches to possible change:

a. Delete G-6.0106b and set aside previous authoritative interpretations regarding ordination standards: (Item 04-01 from the Presbytery of Heartland)

Item 04-01 proposes the deletion of G-6.0106b in its entirety and the setting aside of existing authoritative interpretations with respect to ordination standards. The ACC advised the 213th General Assembly (2001) that the removal of G-6.0106b alone would not alter the church’s position on ordination standards unless the General Assembly also amended or rescinded current authoritative interpretation regarding the eligibility of homosexual persons to hold church office. Adoption of this overture would accomplish its intent to modify the church’s position on ordination standards.

b. Leave the current understanding of ordination standards unchanged, and provide pastoral advice to the denomination urging compliance with those standards.

c. Modify the authoritative interpretations to limit current restrictions on ordination:

Item 04-04 from the Presbytery of the Cincinnati proposes deleting seven sections of the 1978 UPC and 1979 PCUS statements regarding ordination standards that preceded the adoption of G-6.0106b, but proposes no amendment to the Constitution. The presbytery suggests that the language it proposes to delete these statements as “long standing insults to our gay and lesbian members.” Approval of Item 04-04 would have no effect on ordination standards.

However, Item 04-04 imprecisely suggests deleting seven portions of Minutes of prior assemblies. Deletion or correction of Minutes is only appropriate if those Minutes incorrectly reflect the actions taken. If the assembly agrees with the rationale of Item 04-04, it should instead approve an authoritative interpretation finding the specified actions no longer have any force or effect. Moreover, if the assembly wishes to alter the authoritative interpretations consistent with the rationale of Item 04-04 so as to remove the explicit prohibitions to ordination of self-affirming homosexual persons, the assembly would need to add an Item #8 to the list of provisions having no further force or effect in Item 04-04:

[Additional paragraphs to be deleted.]

“8. For the church to ordain a self-affirming, practicing homosexual person to ministry would be to act in contradiction to its charter and calling in Scripture, setting in motion both within the church and society serious contradictions to the will of Christ.

“That unrepentant homosexual practice does not accord with the requirements for ordination set forth in Form of Government (Minutes, UPC, 1978, Part I, p. 265)

“For the church to ordain a self-affirming practicing homosexual person to ministry would be to act in contradiction to its charter and calling in scripture, setting in motion both within the church and in society serious contradictions to the will of Christ. (Minutes, PCUS, 1979, Part I, p. 207, lines 294–97)”

While it is not fully clear what the precise effect of such action would be, the church would no longer rely upon the 1978/79 policy statements (“definitive guidance”) and subsequent authoritative interpretations based upon them when interpreting the Book of Order. Ordaining bodies would apply the language of G-6.0106b as they understand it unless and until new authoritative interpretations of that provision are crafted according to the process set forth in the Book of Order.

e. If Item 04-01 and Item 04-04 (as modified above) were approved, the ordination standards would be changed.

f. Interpret current ordination standards by approving an authoritative interpretation of the word “chastity” and/or the phrase “practice which the confessions call sin” in G-6.0106b or by amending G-6.0106b to define those terms. See the Advisory Committee on the Constitution’s advice concerning Items 04-02, 06-02, 06-03, 06-04, 06-05, and 06-06.

Item 04-02

[The assembly disapproved Item 04-02. See p. 33.]

On Confirming the Requirements in G-6.0106b of “Fidelity” and “Chastity”—From the Presbytery of Mississippi.

The Presbytery of Mississippi overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to approve the following authoritative interpretation:

The 217th General Assembly (2006) of the PC(USA) hereby confirms that the requirement for fidelity and/or chastity as set forth in Section G-6.0106b of the Book of Order plainly prohibits practicing homosexuals, adulterers, or anyone engaged in sexually immoral conduct from being ordained and/or installed to church office whether as deacons, elders, or ministers of the Word and Sacrament.

[Section G-6.0106b of the Book of Order provides that “Those who are called to office in the church are to lead a life in obedience to Scripture and in conformity to the historic confessional standards of the church. Among these standards is the requirement to live either in fidelity within the covenant of marriage between a man and a woman (W-4.9001), or chastity in singleness. Persons refusing to repent of any self-acknowledged practice which the confessions call sin shall not be ordained and/or installed as deacons, elders or ministers of the Word and Sacrament.”]

Rationale

The conduct of all persons, in matters concerning sexual activity, is clearly taught in the Holy Scripture.

The particular sexual disposition of a candidate for ordination is not mentioned.

The proper actions of the people of God are addressed in the inspired Word, and should be obeyed by all Christians.

Membership in a church is open to all believers, and all are sinners.

Ordination and/or installation as an officer of the church lays on the person special responsibility and authority, calling for special qualifications.

Reference is made to The Book of Confessions, The Larger Catechism, 7.249, Question 139 and answer; and to Hebrews 13:4 as well as other constitutional statements.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 04-02

Advice on Item 04-02—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 04-02.

Rationale

This overture from the Presbytery of Mississippi proposes that the General Assembly “confirm the requirements for fidelity and/or chastity” for those being ordained and/or installed into church office.

The ACC finds the overture problematic for the following reasons:

- The language of the overture does not address the reference to “self-acknowledged practice” in G-6.0106b. Eliminating this reference would, in effect, amend G-6.0106b without the amendment process.
- The proposed standard of “sexual immorality” is too vague to be helpful to the church. If the assembly wishes to identify particular conduct that would prohibit persons from ordination and installation, the ACC urges that the assembly be as specific as possible in naming those behaviors.

For a fuller discussion of related issues, see the ACC response to Item 04-01.

On Commending Study of the Authoritative Interpretation of 1978—From the Presbytery of Indian Nations.

The Presbytery of Indian Nations overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk to send to each congregation in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) the following:

1. A pastoral letter explaining the role of an authoritative interpretation of the Constitution.
2. A new copy of the “Policy Statements and Recommendations” section from the 1978 United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. (UPCUSA) report “The Church and Homosexuality,” (which included definitive guidance that was subsequently declared an authoritative interpretation in 1993).
3. A theologically informed study guide prepared by the Office of Theology and Worship and commended for use by sessions and congregations for study of this document. The study guide shall be sent to congregations no later than one year prior to the convening of the 218th General Assembly (2008).

[Original Financial Implications: (2006): $0; (2007): $16,320; (2008): $0 (Per Capita-OGA)] [Committee Action: (2006): $0; (2007): $0; (2008): $0]

Rationale

In response to a call from the church and in great wisdom and pastoral concern, the UPCUSA General Assembly in 1978 and the PCUS General Assembly in 1979 explained the teachings of Holy Scripture on human sexuality and expressed the historic understanding of the Presbyterian church, by establishing the policy statements and recommendations on homosexuality, which included statements specifically identified as “Definitive Guidance.” This definitive guidance in turn was made an authoritative interpretation by the 1993 General Assembly of the PC(USA). The authoritative interpretation demonstrates Christ’s love, grace, and call to discipleship, speaking clearly and lovingly about the nature of human sexuality. This definitive guidance/authoritative interpretation has also been used many times in the establishment of case law by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission.

God’s design for human sexual practice, as expressed in this authoritative interpretation, has been affirmed time and again by subsequent General Assemblies and by presbytery votes across the country. Moreover, the mission of Christ’s church has been enhanced by this authoritative interpretation, which calls us to love all those whom God has made, and gives substance and meaning to that love. The authoritative interpretation lifts up both the grace and the call to obedience of our Lord, and has been a resource for countless followers of Jesus Christ, helping them to be more faithful witnesses to the Gospel.

Unfortunately, the teachings of this authoritative interpretation and its contribution to the life of the church have not always been adequately understood. In recent years, and particularly at the 216th General Assembly (2004), misstatements about the authoritative interpretation have made it very difficult for the church to appropriately assess the biblical nature and ongoing vitality of its own standards. Recommendations regarding this authoritative interpretation will be before the 217th General Assembly (2006), so widespread study of the document is therefore essential for the church to be familiar with its own standards.

Such study can be enabled by distributing three critical pieces of literature: (1) The authoritative interpretation itself needs to be distributed to every church and commended for study. (2) A letter from the Stated Clerk needs to accompany the authoritative interpretation, explaining the role of an authoritative interpretation of the Constitution in order to clear away many misunderstandings that persist among pastors, elders, and members of the PC(USA). And finally, (3) an official study guide needs to accompany the authoritative interpretation. It is essential that this study guide be theologically informed in order to help the church carefully discern (a) the biblical nature of its standards and (b) the continuity between these standards and the historic theological understanding of the Presbyterian church. The Office of Theology and Worship is the appropriate office to write such a study guide, as its unique mission is to assist “all governing bodies to engage theological, confessional, ethical, and liturgical issues.”

With such a tool, broad-based study of the authoritative interpretation is commended, for the enlightenment, edification, and unification of our denomination.

OGA, GAC, PPC COMMENT ON ITEM 04-03

Comment on Item 04-03—From the General Assembly Council, the Office of the General Assembly, and the Presbyterian Publishing Corporation.

The General Assembly Council, the Office of the General Assembly, and the Presbyterian Publishing Corporation advise that Items 04-03, 04-05, and 04-08 be disapproved. A study guide for the 1978 Definitive Guidance is already available. The Presbyterian Publishing Corporation published Definitive Guidance The Church's Statements on Homosexuality in 2004. It contains a foreword by Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick and a study guide by Dr. Jack Stotts, former president of Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary. The book contains the paper The Church and Homosexuality approved by the UPCUSA in 1978 and known in the church as Definitive Guidance. It also contains two papers by the PCUS approved in 1977 and 1979. The book is an excellent and accessible resource and would serve the purpose of these overtures.

On Amending the 1978 Policy Statement of the UPCUSA and the 1979 Position Paper from the PCUS by Deleting Certain Statements—From the Presbytery of Cincinnati.

The Presbytery of Cincinnati respectfully overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to amend the policy statement adopted by the 190th General Assembly (1978) of the United Presbyterian Church in the United States of America (UPCUSA) by deleting the following statements, as found in the Minutes of that General Assembly (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1978, Part I, pp. 261–67); and further, it amends the “position paper,” “Homosexuality and the Church,” adopted in 1979 by the 119th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States (Minutes, PCUS, 1979, Part I, pp. 201–9) by deleting these same statements:

1. “We conclude that homosexuality is not God’s wish for humanity. This we affirm, despite the fact that some of its forms may be deeply rooted in an individual’s personality structure” (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1979, Part I, p. 262; Minutes, PCUS, 1979, Part I, p. 203, lines 108–110).
2. “In many cases homosexuality is more a sign of the brokenness of God’s world than of willful rebellion. In other cases homosexual behavior is freely chosen or learned in environments where normal development is thwarted” (Minutes, UPCUSA, p. 262; Minutes, PCUS, p. 203, lines 111–114).
3. “Even where the homosexual orientation has not been consciously sought or chosen, it is neither a gift from God nor a state nor a condition like race; it is a result of our living in a fallen world” (Minutes, UPCUSA, p. 262; Minutes, PUCS, p. 203, lines 114–116).
4. “As we examine the whole framework of teaching bearing upon our sexuality from Genesis onward, we find that homosexuality is a contradiction of God’s wise and beautiful pattern for human sexual relationships revealed in Scripture and affirmed in God’s ongoing will for our life in the Spirit of Christ” (Minutes, UPCUSA, p. 262; Minutes, PCUS, p. 204, lines 174–178).
5. “Homosexual persons who will strive toward God’s revealed will in this area of their lives, and make use of all the resources of grace, can receive God’s power to transform their desires or arrest their active expression” (Minutes, UPCUSA, p. 263; Minutes, PCUS, p. 205, lines 197–200).
6. “Yet the New Testament declares that all homosexual practice is incompatible with Christian faith and life” (Minutes, UPCUSA, p. 263; Minutes, PCUS, p. 206, lines 239–240).
7. “On the basis of our understanding that the practice of homosexuality is sin, we are concerned that homosexual believers and the observing world should not be left in doubt about the church’s mind on this issue during any further period of study” (Minutes, UPCUSA, p. 264; Minutes, PCUS, p. 207, lines 324–328).

Rationale

Having read this series of quotations, readers of this overture may think that seeking to remove them is confrontational, at odds with cultivating the “disciplines of patience, mutual forbearance, and dedicated communal discernment” recommended in The Final Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church (lines 650–51). We remind our readers that the passages above, adopted in 1978 and 1979 by a majority, have been read in the decades since by a homosexual minority as well. Indeed, the seventh passage is specifically addressed to this minority. We ask our readers to consider whether it was not this minority that was entitled to feel confronted—insulted, even injured.

As The Final Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church rightly points out, “The Reformed family of churches believes that there is no teacher but Jesus Christ” (lines 54–55). If Jesus taught us anything, it is that we must love our neighbor as we love ourselves. Like the Samaritan, our neighbor may be quite different from us and unpopular. Because mainline Christianity has not always felt the inclusive love of Jesus, it has lived to regret every one of its exclusionary practices.

Under our Constitution, it is The Book of Confessions that declares “what [the church] believes”—our “convictions” and our “doctrines” (Book of Order, G-2.0100). Nothing in our whole Book of Confessions, that “cloud of witnesses to one true faith,” declares homosexual practice per se to be sin. Their authors were surely aware of Leviticus 18:22, Romans 1:26–27, and the like. For example, the author of the Heidelberg Catechism (1573) specifically omits a possible reference to homosexual practice while otherwise incorporating a list of sins from 1 Corinthians 6:9. We are entitled to believe that the authors of our confessions are silent here because they have been instructed by the great Teacher, first, on what it is that God really requires of us and then on how to read Scripture to begin with. The Book of Order rightly makes The Book of Confessions our church’s “guide ... in its study and interpretation of the Scriptures” (G-2.0100b).

A Presbyterian belief that can be found in The Book of Confessions holds that when we “exclude, dominate, or patronize” our fellow human beings, “however subtly,” we “resist the Spirit of God and bring contempt” on our faith (The Book of Confessions, The Confession of 1967, 9.44). In interpreting baptism, the Directory of Worship tells us that, “[a]s they are united with Christ through faith, Baptism unites the people of God with each other and with the church of every time and place. Barriers of race, gender, status, and age are to be transcended. Barriers of nationality, history, and practice are to be overcome” (Book of Order, W-2.3005).

While the policy statement of 1978 asks that “[g]reat love and care ... be exercised toward homosexual persons already within our church” (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1978, Part I, p. 264), the sentences that we seek to delete constitute a massive inhospitality. Gays and lesbians can hardly feel welcomed by a church that sees their sexual identity as an indication of the fallenness of the world.

The policy statement of 1978 was at odds with informed opinion even then on whether sexual orientation has ever been a matter of choice. The statement ignored informed opinion available even then about the danger of teaching gays and lesbians—especially young gays and lesbians—that they needed to reorient themselves sexually. To the social pressure from a heterosexual majority already felt by this sexual minority, the church has dangerously, uncharitably added the suggestion that they are cut off from grace if they are unable to make members of the other sex their chief objects of attraction.

We seek to delete statements telling us that, no matter the fidelity, hopefulness, and charity of our gay and lesbian members in their intimate relations, those members are not permitted to make love. These statements will embarrass us more and more as time goes on because they are so alien to the example of Jesus, who taught that we are defiled only by what comes out of our heart. In 1978 and 1979, a majority read Scripture as imposing lifelong celibacy on millions of homosexual persons, all the while this majority considered the solace of covenanted, faithful relationships a birthright available only to itself. The sentences we seek to delete have made the Christian church a hypocrite.

The policy statement of 1978 was hardly limited to, and is not to be confused with, “definitive guidance.” On the question of ordaining self-affirming, practicing homosexual persons, the lengthy statement offered to presbyteries a short section specifically identified as “definitive guidance,”¹ later considered by the Permanent Judicial Commission of the General Assembly and then approved by the 205th General Assembly (1993) as “authoritative interpretation.” Although we believe the “guidance” to have been in error, no part of “definitive guidance,” and thus no part of an “authoritative interpretation,” would be amended by approval by this overture. Moreover, whether one agrees or not with the recommendation of the task force that the General Assembly “approve no additional authoritative interpretations” and “remove no existing authoritative interpretations” on “sexuality and ordination” (Report lines 1307–1308, 1311–1312), approval of this overture would do neither.

We ask the General Assembly to yield to the Spirit of God and delete from the policy statement of 1978 those statements of longstanding insult to our gay and lesbian members. No less than our brothers and sisters and children who are heterosexual, they are part of God's good creation.

Endnote

1. "Therefore, the 190th General Assembly (1978) of The United Presbyterian Church in the United States of America offers the presbyteries the following definitive guidance:

"That unrepentant homosexual practice does not accord with the requirements for ordination set forth in Form of Government, Chapter VII, Section 3 (37.03): . . . 'It is indispensable that, besides possessing the necessary gifts and abilities, natural and acquired, everyone undertaking a particular ministry should have a sense of inner persuasion, be sound in the faith, live according to godliness, have the approval of God's people and the concurring judgment of a lawful judicatory of the Church.'"

On Commending Study of the Definitive Guidance of 1978—From the Presbytery of Stockton.

The Presbytery of Stockton overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk to send to each congregation in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) a pastoral letter explaining the role of an authoritative interpretation of the Constitution, a copy of the "Policy Statements and Recommendations" from the 1978 report "The Church and Homosexuality" (also known as the Authoritative Interpretation of 1993), and a brief study guide prepared by the Office of Theology and Worship and commended to sessions and congregations for study of this authoritative interpretation. The study guide shall be written in a manner sympathetic to the standards and intention of the Authoritative Interpretation of 1993, commending it to congregations as the historic policy of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). It shall be sent to congregations no later than one year prior to the convening of the 218th General Assembly (2008). [Electronic communication will be used as a means of saving costs.]

Rationale

In response to a call from the church and with much prayer, study, and pastoral concern, the UPCUSA General Assembly in 1978 listened to the voice of God and established the Policy Statements and Recommendations on homosexuality that became known as "Definitive Guidance." These same Policy Statements and Recommendations were adopted in 1979 by the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. They were later given the status of an authoritative interpretation by the 205th General Assembly (1993) of the PC(USA). The authoritative interpretation spoke clearly and lovingly about the nature of human sexuality, shining the light of Christ's love, grace, and call to discipleship. This authoritative interpretation has been used since then in the establishment of case law by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission.

The creation of this definitive guidance/authoritative interpretation and subsequent endorsements of it have been the result of God speaking amid periods of extensive biblical and theological reflection. Through numerous periods of much study, dialogue, and discernment, the church has repeatedly failed to find that this authoritative interpretation is in error, for it is not.

The mission of Christ's church has been enhanced by this authoritative interpretation, which calls us to love all those whom God has made and gives substance and meaning to that love. The authoritative interpretation lifts up both the grace and call to obedience of our Lord and has helped followers of Jesus Christ to live in greater holiness and witness.

In recent years, and particularly at the 216th General Assembly (2004), misstatements and untruths have been voiced concerning the words and tone of the authoritative interpretation—statements that betray a lack of familiarity with this vital document in our denominational life and which clouded and distorted the consideration of the authoritative interpretation at the 216th General Assembly (2004). Inasmuch as this document is likely to be further discussed, it will be for the good of all to have an accurate knowledge of the topic. Therefore, broad-based study is commended for the enlightenment, edification, and unification of our denomination.

On Reaffirming Our Standards for Ordination—From the Presbytery of Pueblo.

The Presbytery of Pueblo overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to affirm that the ordination standard stated in G-6.0106b and the authoritative interpretation of 1978 are faithful and accurate expressions of what Scripture and our Confessions teach about the holiness of life expected of church officers, particularly with respect to marriage and singleness.

Rationale

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has demonstrated its commitment to G-6.0106b as our ordination standard and has made its will clear through votes of its presbyteries. Approximately 58 percent of the presbyteries voted to adopt the G-6.0106b amendment in 1996. Two attempts to remove it in 1997 and 2001 were defeated by even larger margins (66 percent and 73 percent respectively).

In 2001, there was an attempt to delete G-6.0106b from the Book of Order. If that amendment had been approved and a subsequent authoritative interpretation approved, ordination of practicing homosexuals would have been allowed at the discretion of individual presbyteries—local option. By the largest margin ever, 73 percent, presbyteries voted to reject the amendment and instead, maintain uniform, biblical ordination standards across the church.

In the face of continued efforts to remove this standard, this overture asks the General Assembly to acknowledge what our presbyteries have said repeatedly, and give reassurances to our churches by reaffirming a commitment to our standards.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 04-06

Advice on Item 04-06—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 04-06

Rationale

See comment on Item 04-01 from the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

Item 04-06 is not a proposed amendment to the Book of Order. Rather, this overture asks the General Assembly to affirm the standards set forth in G-6.0106b and the authoritative interpretation of 1978 as “faithful and accurate expressions of what Scripture and our Confessions teach about the holiness of life expected of church officers . . .”

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the assembly against “reaffirming” these standards for the reasons Robert’s Rules of Order (10th ed., §10, ¶ 10, p. 100) strongly advises against such motions:

Motions to “reaffirm” a position previously taken by adopting a motion or resolution are not in order. Such a motion serves no useful purpose because the original motion is still in effect; also, possible attempts to amend a motion to reaffirm would come into conflict with the rules for the motion to Amend Something Previously Adopted (35); and if such a motion to reaffirm failed, it would create an ambiguous situation.

If the assembly desires existing standards to remain unchanged, and to remind the denomination those standards, it may do so by directing that a pastoral letter be sent to the denomination reminding it of those standards.

On the Authority of Holy Scripture and the Lordship of Christ—From the Presbytery of San Joaquin

The Presbytery of San Joaquin overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to approve the following:

1. In the belief that the Old and New Testaments of Holy Scripture is the authoritative Word of God, the 217th General Assembly (2006) does affirm that “All scripture is inspired by God and is useful for teaching, for reproof, for correction, and for training in righteousness” (2 Tim. 3:16, NRSV) and is “... most necessary; those former ways of God’s revealing his will unto his people being now ceased” (The Book of Confessions, The Westminster Confession of Faith, 6.001).

2. The 217th General Assembly (2006) also does affirm that “The authority of the Holy Scripture, for which it ought to be believed and obeyed, dependeth not upon the testimony of any man or church, but wholly upon God (who is truth itself), the author thereof; and therefore it is to be received, because it is the Word of God” (The Book of Confessions, The Westminster Confession Faith, 6.004).

3. The 217th General Assembly (2006) also does affirm that because Holy Scripture is the authoritative Word of God, we, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), believes that Jesus Christ is “... the way, and the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through [him]” (John 14:6, NRSV) and that “God has put all things under the Lordship of Jesus Christ and has made Christ Head of the Church, which is his body” (The Book of Order, Form of Government, G-1.0100a).

4. Insofar as God’s will for the Church is set forth in Holy Scripture, it is to be obeyed as the infallible and authoritative guide to our worship and life together as God’s people. Therefore, the 217th General Assembly (2006) does reaffirm that, “those who are called to office in the church are to lead a life in obedience to Scripture and in conformity to the historic confessional standards of the church. Among these standards is the requirement to live either in fidelity within the covenant of marriage between a man and a woman (W-4.9001), or chastity in singleness. Persons refusing to repent of any self-acknowledged practice which the confessions call sin shall not be ordained and/or installed as deacons, elders, or ministers of the Word and Sacrament” (The Book of Order, Form of Government, G-6.0106b).

5. The 217th General Assembly (2006) also does affirm that any deviation from or compromise of the authoritative Word of God and the historic confessional standards of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) constitutes conformity to the world and its culture, and weakens the witness of the church as God’s transforming agent in the world, and separates us from God’s good and acceptable and perfect will (cf. Rom. 12:2, NRSV).

Rationale

Through unclear, muddled, and deceptive language, misinterpretation of Scripture, and blatant disregard of and unwillingness to enforce the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), the following three issues have left this denomination in shambles, a mere shell of the great church it once was: (1) the controversy concerning the authority of Scripture as the Word of God; (2) faith in Jesus Christ as exclusively Lord and Savior; and (3) the continued efforts of some to divide the church by repeatedly attempting to repeal established church law: the ban against practicing homosexuals from ordination (1978 “Authoritative Interpretation” and G-6.0106 passed in 1997). We believe that proper conclusions regarding issues such as these that result in serious concern and debate within the church can be best settled by searching, studying, and prayerfully discerning God’s will as disclosed in his revealed Word. To adapt, mold, or conform the church in accordance with contemporary mores and patterns of sinful life will separate us from God and from God’s will. The system of doctrine revealed in the Holy Scripture, and as interpreted faithfully by The Book of Confessions, do clearly reveal God’s will for the church (cf., Overture 9 to the 217th General Assembly (2006) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) from the Presbytery of Mississippi).

GAC (CMD) COMMENT ON ITEM 04-07

Comment on Item 04-07—From the General Assembly Council (Congregational Ministries Division).

Item 04-07 asks the General Assembly to confirm the PC(USA)’s belief in the authority of Scripture by explicit affirmation of two quotations from the Westminster Confession of Faith.

The Book of Order states clearly the role of the confessions in the life of the PC(USA): “The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) states its faith and bears witness to God’s grace in Jesus Christ in the creeds and confessions in The Book of Confessions. In these confessional statements the church declares to its members and to the world who and what it is, what it believes, what it resolves to do” (G-2.0100a).

The Book of Confessions contains several declarations concerning the authority of Scripture, specifically in The Scots Confession (3.19), The Second Helvetic Confession (5.001–.009), The Westminster Confession of Faith (6.001), The Theological Declaration of Barmen (8.10–.12), The Confession of 1967 (9.27–9.30), and A Brief Statement of Faith (10.4).

That Ordination Standards Be Affirmed, and That a Study Guide Be Produced—From the Presbytery of Trinity.

The Presbytery of Trinity respectfully overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) that the ordination standard stated in G-6.0106b and the authoritative interpretation of 1978 are faithful and accurate expressions of what Scripture and our confessions teach about the holiness of life expected of church officers, particularly with respect to marriage and singleness be affirmed; and a study guide be made by the Office of Theology and Worship.

Rationale

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) have invested more than twenty-eight years of overtures, amendments, and judicial cases to clearly define the teachings of Scripture and our confessions regarding the need of repentance from ongoing sin as being a characteristic of our ordained elders, ministers of Word and Sacrament, and deacons.

Our national permanent judicial committee previously called for defining language from our General Assembly prior to enforcing these ethical standards of all officers.

We recognize that elders, deacons, and ministers remain ordained for life and serve at various levels of our denomination and are called to share the same confession, creed, and discipleship relationship with Jesus and thus influence the witness of our whole body to Jesus.

We are called on to demonstrate social righteousness (including growth in holiness) in our personal relationships so that glory be brought to God.

Jesus called sinners and tax collectors to repentance through the story of the prodigal son and called the Pharisees to repentance with regard to Jesus work of forgiveness and restoration.

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) knows its mind on our ordination standards and has made its will clear through votes of its presbyteries. Majorities of the 2.4 million-member PCUSA voted to put G-6.0106b into the Constitution (by 54 percent) and larger majorities protected it through various attempts to change or remove it (66 percent and 73 percent).

The very year (1997) that G-6.0106b was placed in the Book of Order by a vote of 54 percent of the presbyteries, 1997, the General Assembly sent to the presbyteries an amendment that would have changed “fidelity and chastity” in G-6.0106b to “fidelity and integrity in marriage or singleness, and in all relationships of life.” This would have allowed each presbytery to decide what integrity meant for a particular candidate—essentially, local option. This amendment was rejected by 66 percent of the presbyteries.

In 2001, there was an attempt to delete G-6.0106b from the Book of Order. If that amendment had been approved and a subsequent authoritative interpretation approved, ordination of practicing homosexuals would have been allowed at the discretion of individual presbyteries—local option. By the largest margin ever, 73 percent, presbyteries voted to reject the amendment and instead, maintain uniform, biblical ordination standards across the church.

In the face of continued efforts to remove these standards, this overture asks the General Assembly to acknowledge what our presbyteries have said repeatedly, and give reassurances to our churches by reaffirming a commitment to our standards.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 04-08

Advice on Item 04-08—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to answer Item 04-08 with its action on Item 04-06

Rationale

See Advisory Committee on the Constitution advice on Item 04-01 for background.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution notes that there are a plethora of study materials available on these issues.

OGA, GAC, PPC COMMENT ON ITEM 04-08

Comment on Item 04-08—From the General Assembly Council, the Office of the General Assembly, and the Presbyterian Publishing Corporation.

The General Assembly Council, the Office of the General Assembly, and the Presbyterian Publishing Corporation advise that Items 04-03, 04-05, and 04-08 be disapproved. A study guide for the 1978 Definitive Guidance is already available. The Presbyterian Publishing Corporation published Definitive Guidance The Church's Statements on Homosexuality in 2004. It contains a foreword by Stated Clerk Clifton Kirkpatrick and a study guide by Dr. Jack Stotts, former president of Austin Presbyterian Theological Seminary. The book contains the paper The Church and Homosexuality approved by the UPCUSA in 1978 and known in the church as Definitive Guidance. It also contains two papers by the PCUS approved in 1977 and 1979. The book is an excellent and accessible resource and would serve the purpose of these overtures.

Item 04-09

[The assembly answered Item 04-09 by the action taken on Items 04-01 and 06-01. See pp. 28–29, 33–34.]

On Amending G-6.0106b to Provide for a Decade of Peace Concerning Further Amendment—From the Presbytery of Central Washington.

The Presbytery of Central Washington overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall G-6.0106b be amended as follows: [Text to be inserted is shown as italic.]

“Those who are called to office in the church are to lead a life in obedience to Scriptures and in conformity to the historic confessional standards of the church. Among these standards is the requirement to live either in fidelity within the covenant of marriage between a man and a woman (W-4.9001), or chastity in singleness. Persons refusing to repent of any self-acknowledged practice which the confessions call sin shall not be ordained and/or installed as deacons, elders, or ministers of the Word and Sacrament. This paragraph may not be amended prior to 2018.”

Rationale

It is God’s desire that the church should live in unity and community, and not be torn by constant and recurring strife. The church should be able to give first priority to the advancement of the Gospel and Gospel values in the world.

Thus, a hiatus from perpetual conflict is in order in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)—a period during which the church can concentrate on its mission to the world without the threat of biennial battles about ordination standards, disagreements that sap the church’s strength and continue to produce winners and losers. The decade following implementation in 2008 can instead be a period of renewed evangelism, discipleship, fellowship, service, and mission, apart from the acrimony of fixed controversy.

The provision in our Book of Order, Section G-6.0106b, commonly known as “fidelity and chastity,” has been a fitting expression of the peace, unity, and purity Jesus Christ seeks for his church. There is no new consensus in the church that would cause us to conclude our understanding of the Scriptures on these issues has been in error. Nor has the constant and perpetual nature of conflict been good for the ministry and welfare of our denomination.

There is longstanding precedent already in our Constitution for an amendment such as the one proposed by this overture. Section G-8.0701, for instance, concludes with, “This paragraph may not be amended.” This current overture concerning G-6.0106b proposes a more modest approach, asking merely that further possible amendment be forestalled only for a decade. During this hiatus of ten years, we pray that the ensuing peace will enable us to hear clearly what God speaks to us through the Word, that our church may do justice, honor God’s intentions for human sexuality, and be a loving, faithful witness to the world. We would be free to take up the debate again after a healthy period of peace and further discernment.

For now, however, we need not break into the same argument every time Presbyterians meet! May we call a halt to the acrimony and seek above all obedience to Christ that we may live out the great ends of the church with vigor and harmony.

Concurrences to Item 04-09 from the Presbyteries of Beaver-Butler and San Joaquin.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 04-09

Advice on Item 04-09—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 04-09.

Rationale

Item 04-09 and the concurrence from the Presbytery of Beaver-Butler are identical in language, including the rationale; Item 04-10, proposes the moratorium with a different rationale, and for eight years rather than ten from the effective amendment date.

The intent of these overtures would be to permit no amendment to G-6.016b for an extended period of time. The Advisory Committee on the Constitution does not believe that the proposed amendments are capable of carrying out this purpose. If approved, the amendments could not prevent a future assembly from proposing to the presbyteries both the elimination of the restriction on amendment and the elimination of G-6.0106b.

Item 04-10

[The assembly answered Item 04-10 by the action taken on Items 04-01 and 06-01. See pp. 28–29, 33–34.]

On Amending the Form of Government to Provide for No Further Amendment of G-6.0106b for Eight Years—From the Presbytery of the Upper Ohio Valley.

The Presbytery of the Upper Ohio Valley overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall G-6.0106b be amended as follows: [Text to be inserted is shown in italics.]

“Those who are called to office in the church are to lead a life in obedience to Scripture and in conformity to the historical confessional standards of the church. Among these standards is the requirement to live either in fidelity within the covenant of marriage between a man and a woman (W-4.9001), or chastity in singleness. Persons refusing to repent of any self-acknowledged practice which the confessions call sin shall not be ordained and/or installed as deacons, elders, or ministers of the Word and Sacrament. This paragraph may not be amended for eight years from the time it is amended by the addition of this last sentence.”

Rationale

It is God’s desire that the church live in purity, peace, and unity, for without any one of these, recurring strife will be a constant battle within the church. The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has experienced strife for decades concerning the intent of the above section of the Book of Order. The presbyteries (the people in the pews) have voted on this section of the Book of Order three times, each time affirming with an ever-increasing margin their support of this paragraph. It is time to put this matter to rest and to affirm what God has told us in his Word and to listen to what the people in the pews have voted upon. The constant and perpetual nature of this conflict has not been good for the ministry, mission, and welfare of our denomination. The provision in our Book of Order section G-6.0106b, commonly known as “fidelity and chastity,” has been a fitting expression of the purity, peace, and unity Jesus Christ seeks for his church. Let us not be hesitant to proclaim what God has told us in Scripture.

This amendment to the Book of Order is in conformity with our Reformed tradition. Our Reformed tradition calls upon us to be a church reformed, always reforming, according to the Word of God, and the leading of the Holy Spirit. We must always be open to the leading of the Holy Spirit when He calls upon us to change, but that reformation must always be according to the Word of God. It is in the conjunctive and not the disjunctive. Second Timothy 4:1–5 gives us guidance to take a stand.

In the presence of God and of Christ Jesus, who is to judge the living and the dead, and in view of his appearing and his kingdom, I solemnly urge you: proclaim the message; be persistent whether the time is favorable or unfavorable; convince, rebuke, and encourage, with the utmost patience in teaching. For the time is coming when people will not put up with sound doctrine, but having itching ears, they will accumulate for themselves teachers to suit their own desires, and will turn away from listening to the truth and wander away to myths. As for you, always be sober, endure suffering, do the work of an evangelist, carry out your ministry fully.

Section G-6.0106b is reflective of what God’s Word tells us. To change or delete this section from the Book of Order so that any other standard would be permissible is contrary to God’s Word. There is long-standing precedent already in our Constitution for an amendment such as the one proposed by this overture. Section G-8.0701, for instance, concludes with, “This paragraph may not be amended.”

However, the intent of this overture is not to preclude further discussion, but to encourage further dialogue prior to the end of the eight-year time frame.

Let us affirm, let us proclaim, let us embrace what God has told us in his Word. Let us put this matter to rest for a period so that we may live out the great ends of the church, so that we may truly be One Body! Amen!

Item 04-11

[The assembly disapproved Item 04-11. See pp. 31, 34]

On Amending W-4.9001, Christian Marriage—From the Presbytery of Mississippi.

The Presbytery of Mississippi overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) of the PC(USA—in the belief that God has ordained the institution of holy matrimony, and the Scriptures speak clearly to Godly unions, and that marriage should be between one man and one woman—directs the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall W.4.9001 of the Book of Order be amended as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italics.]

“Marriage is a gift God has given to all humankind for the well-being of the entire human family. ~~Marriage is a civil contract between a woman and a man. For Christians marriage is~~ In addition to marriage being a civil contract between a woman and a man, marriage for Christians is also a covenant through which a man and a woman are called to live out together before God their lives of discipleship. In a service of Christian marriage a lifelong commitment is made by a woman and a man to each other, publicly witnessed and acknowledged by the community of faith.

“While the civil government may, from time to time, authorize civil marriage contracts of various terms and conditions, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) affirms that all ‘marriage’ contracts should be between one woman and one man, and proclaims that ‘same-gender unions’ are clearly in opposition to Scripture and the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).”

Rationale

A statement defining marriage as a civil contract between a woman and a man fails to recognize or emphasize that God laid down the basics of marriage for His people. While civil contracts, and other actions by the civil courts, are realities, the church should clearly stand for marriage as a manifestation of God’s care and concern for His people.

Same-gender unions, while still facing certain court challenges, have become law in Massachusetts and are being practiced under the color of law there, as well as being supported by other civil jurisdictions in other states.

The PC(USA) cannot force its will on non-believers and others, even if they wish to live in a manner clearly in opposition to the Scriptures and the PC(USA) Constitution.

Compassion and care are our duty to all, regardless of their beliefs and practices, for we are all children of God. Our mission to those considering such “unions” should be to minister to them at any and every opportunity, emphasizing God’s love and care as well as God’s will for his people as revealed in the Scriptures.

It is proper, it is our duty, to state what we clearly believe in this case, to point out the error inherent in same-gender unions, and to carefully avoid encouraging in any way, such “same-gender unions.”

Reference is made to the Book of Order Sections W-4.9000 and 4.9006, and The Second Helvetic Confession Sections 5.245–.251, and The Westminster Confession of Faith Sections 6.131–.139, and to other references in the church’s Constitution.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 04-11

Advice on Item 04-11—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 04-11.

Rationale

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution believes that any proposal for constitutional change should be clear in its intent and effect. While the rationale of the overture does not say so, the intent of the overture may be to overturn the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission’s decision in Benton, et al. v. Presbytery of Hudson River (Minutes, 2000, Part I, p. 586). In Benton, the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission reaffirmed an authoritative interpretation adopted in 1991:

There is no mention in the Book of Order of same sex unions (ceremonies). If a same sex ceremony were considered to be the equivalent of a marriage ceremony between two persons of the same sex, it would not be sanctioned under the Book of Order. In section W-4.9001, Christian marriage is specifically defined as:

[A] covenant through which a man and a woman are called to live out together before God their lives of discipleship. In a service of Christian marriage[,] a lifelong commitment is made by a woman and a man to each other, publicly witnessed and acknowledged by the community of faith. (emphasis added)

Inasmuch as the session is responsible and accountable for determination of the appropriate use of the church building and facilities (G-10.0102n), it should not allow the use of the church facilities for a same sex union ceremony that the session determines to be the same as a marriage ceremony.

Likewise, since a Christian marriage performed in accordance with the Directory for Worship can only involve a covenant between a woman and a man, it would not be proper for a minister of the Word and Sacrament to perform a same sex union ceremony that the minister determines to be the same as a marriage ceremony. (Minutes, 1991, Part I, pp. 55, 57, 395)

The GAPJC then went on to find that this authoritative interpretation did not bar the blessing of all same-sex ceremonies:

... [The] Authoritative Interpretation clearly assumes that some same-sex ceremonies could be the equivalent of a marriage ceremony, and therefore, would contravene the Book of Order, and some might not. A determinative distinction between a permissible same-sex ceremony and a marriage ceremony is that the latter confers a new status whereas the former blesses an existing relationship. The Book of Order makes this theological distinction concerning marriage in W-4.9004: "In the name of the triune God the minister shall declare publicly that the woman and the man are now joined in marriage." This and similar pronouncements declaring a new status are to be reserved for services of marriage.

Because of this theological distinction, there should also be a liturgical distinction in services blessing a same-sex relationship. The 1991 General Assembly Authoritative Interpretation leaves to the judgment of individual ministers and sessions (if church property is to be utilized) whether to conduct same-sex ceremonies. In exercising this judgment, however, ministers and sessions should take special care to avoid any confusion of such services with services of Christian marriage. Ministers should not appropriate specific liturgical forms from services of Christian marriage or services recognizing civil marriage in the conduct of such ceremonies. They should also instruct same-sex couples that the service to be conducted does not constitute a marriage ceremony and should not be held out as such.

Notwithstanding the above admonitions, the Directory for Worship affirms the value of worship services in the practice of pastoral care and gives great latitude to ministers and sessions in addressing the pastoral care of members. A same-sex ceremony celebrates a loving, caring, and committed relationship. Therefore, it would be appropriate for this worship occasion to be in the form and spirit of W-6.3010 and W-6.3011. Such a same-sex ceremony does not bless any specific act, and this decision should not be construed as an endorsement of homosexual conjugal practice proscribed by the General Assembly. (Minutes, 2000, Part I, p. 588)

In the context of these standards, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution recommends disapproval of this overture for the following reasons:

1. The first paragraph of the proposed amendment does not appear to change the meaning of the existing language in W-4.9001, and therefore seems unnecessary.
2. The intention and effect of the proposed addition of a second paragraph to the existing provisions of W-4.9001 is unclear. This additional paragraph may be understood simply to add commentary on civil practices rather than as adding anything to the nature of the church's understanding of Christian marriage. Commentary on social witness issues is not the purpose of the Directory for Worship. Thus, if such commentary is the intent of this overture, amendment to the Directory for Worship rather than to social witness policy is inappropriate.
3. On the other hand, if this overture is intended to change the standards set forth in Benton regarding the participation of ministers of the Word and Sacrament in ceremonies that are not understood to be Christian marriage, and the assembly concurs in that intent, then it should provide for such a prohibition in clear and direct terms, rather in the form of commentary on civil practice. In this regard, it is important to note that the Benton decision found authority for such participation in W-6.3010 and W-6.3011, and it is therefore appropriate that any proposal for change address those provisions, rather than in W-4.9001.

ACSWP ADVICE AND COUNSEL ON ITEMS 04-11, 04-12, and 04-13

Advice and Counsel on Items 04-11, 04-12, and 04-13—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

Items 04-11, 04-12, and 04-13 all concern changes in polity, policy, and/or definitions of marriage and specific proscriptions against same-gender unions.

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises disapproval of Items 04-11, 04-12, and 04-13.

Rationale

The ACSWP shares some of the concerns of the proponents of these overtures, but would note the extensive policy and study of marriage and family approved by the 216th General Assembly (2004), only two years ago. In that policy, Transforming Families, the General Assembly affirmed marriage as “a basic social relationship of unique importance” and reaffirmed “marriage is a gift God has given to all humankind for the well-being of the entire human family” (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 750, 757) (Book of Order, W-4.9001). The matter of excluding same-gender couples from any of the benefits of either civil unions or marriages has itself been debated repeatedly and more directly by past General Assemblies, with current policies reviewed without recommendations for change, by the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church (TTTPUP).

Among the chief threats to marriage and family life carefully examined in the recent policy were economic and cultural pressures on the time and attention spouses can give each other and their children. The report provides many recommendations for Christians to practice “family-strengthening virtues and habits in their own lives” (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 758). Congregations are encouraged to offer supportive, nurturing, and educational programs for couples and families (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 758–59). The report contains many resources from within and beyond the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) for strengthening the love of spouses and their children.

Transforming Families is also pastoral to the millions in our culture and thousands in our churches who do not live in nuclear families. “The church upholds the meaning and significance of marriage between a man and a woman, but it does not denigrate other forms of family life that demonstrate and nurture godly character” (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 751). For these reasons, the ACSWP finds that pursuing the proposals in these overtures would be redundant.

Item 04-12

[The assembly disapproved Item 04-12. See pp. 31, 34.]

On Reaffirming That Marriage Between a Man and a Woman Is a Gift God Has to All Humankind—From the Presbytery of Redstone.

The Presbytery of Redstone overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to reaffirm that the church, as salt and light in society, bears witness to the timeless truth that marriage between a man and a woman is “a gift God has given to all humankind for the well-being of the entire human family” (Book of Order, W-4.9001). Therefore, no sexual union outside the bonds of marriage, such as in domestic partnerships or same-sex unions, is within the will of God or approved by this body. The matter is so serious, and of such great import in our own time, that we urge our churches to provide loving and consistent teaching in this area and to call erring members and leaders to repentance.

We direct our national offices to uphold and urge this historic understanding of marriage in their communications with both church and society.

Rationale

For the church’s witness to be effective, we must examine our own teaching and living in order that we may live lives consistent with God’s intentions for us and in so doing bear witness in our culture with integrity. Although some in society seek to redefine marriage, marriage is a relationship instituted and defined by God and we are not free to change it. We believe that God’s revealed intent must be the basis for our life and witness. Our culture needs the consistent witness of the church in order to resist pressures that would distort the meaning of marriage.

The following examples show God’s revealed intent for and affirmation of the marriage union, as well as God’s disapproval of a sexual relationship outside the bonds of marriage between a man and a woman:

Genesis 1:26–27: “Then God said, ‘Let us make humankind in our image, according to our likeness; and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the wild animals of the earth, and over every creeping thing that creeps upon the earth.’ So God created humankind in his image, in the image of God he created them; male and female he created them.”

Genesis 2:20–24: “... but for the man there was not found a helper as his partner. So the Lord God caused a deep sleep to fall upon the man, and he slept; then he took one of his ribs and closed up its place with flesh. And the rib that Lord God had taken from the man he made into a woman and brought her to the man. Then the man said, ‘This at last is bone of my bones and flesh of my flesh; this one shall be called Woman, for out of Man this one was taken.’ Therefore a man leaves his father and his mother and clings to his wife, and they become one flesh.”

Exodus 20:14: “You shall not commit adultery.”

Leviticus 18:22: “You shall not lie with a male as with a woman; it is an abomination.”

Matthew 19:4–6: “... Have you not read that the one who made them at the beginning ‘made them male and female,’ and said, ‘For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and the two shall become one flesh. So they are no longer two, but one flesh. Therefore what God has joined together, let no one separate.’”

Romans 1: 26–27: “For this reason God gave them up to degrading passions. Their women exchanged natural intercourse for unnatural, and in the same way also the men, giving up natural intercourse with women, were consumed with passion for one another. Men committed shameless acts with men and received in their own persons the due penalty for their error.”

Ephesians 5:31–32: “ ‘For this reason a man will leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and the two will become one flesh.’ This is a great mystery, and I am applying it to Christ and the church.”

Hebrews 13:4: “Let marriage be held in honor by all, and let the marriage bed be kept undefiled; for God will judge fornicators and adulterers.”

1 Corinthians 6:9–11: “Do you not know that wrongdoers will not inherit the kingdom of God? Do not be deceived! Fornicators, idolaters, adulterers, male prostitutes, sodomites, thieves, the greedy, drunkards, revilers, robbers—none of these will inherit the kingdom of God. And that is what some of you used to be. But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and by the Spirit of our God.”

1 Corinthians 6:18–20: “Shun fornication! Every sin that a person commits is outside the body, but the fornicator sins against the body itself. Or do you not know that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit within you, which you have from God, and that you are not your own? For you were bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body.”

The following examples show the PC(USA) constitutional position and teaching affirming and blessing marriage while condemning sexual relationships outside the marriage of a man and a woman:

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has several passages in its Constitution expressing its understanding of marriage. For example, the Westminster Confession of Faith declares, “Marriage is a union between one man and one woman, designed of God to last so long as they both shall live” (The Book of Confessions, 6.133).

The Directory for Worship (Book of Order, W-4.9001):

Marriage is a gift God has given to all humankind for the well-being of the entire human family. Marriage is a civil contract between a woman and a man. For Christians marriage is a covenant through which a man and a woman are called to live out together before God their lives of discipleship. In a service of Christian marriage a lifelong commitment is made by a woman and a man to each other, publicly witnessed and acknowledged by the community of faith.

The Larger Catechism interprets the Seventh Commandment as forbidding “adultery, fornication, rape, incest, sodomy, and all unnatural lusts; all unclean imaginations, thoughts, purposes, and affections ... and all other provocations to, or acts of, uncleanness either in ourselves or others” (The Book of Confessions, 7.249).

The Book of Order stated more succinctly, among the historic confessional standards of the church, the requirement to live either in fidelity within the covenant of marriage between a man and a woman (W-4.9001), or chastity in singleness (G-6.0106b).

In 1978, the United Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) adopted a policy statement on “The Church and Homosexuality.” According to that policy statement, “We conclude that homosexuality is not God’s wish for humanity. Even where the homosexual orientation has not been consciously sought or chosen, it is neither a gift from God nor a state nor a condition like race; it is a result of our living in a fallen world.” Reviewing biblical passages related to sexuality, the statement found: “that homosexuality is a contradiction of God’s wise and beautiful pattern for human sexual relationships revealed in Scripture and affirmed in God's ongoing will for our life in the Spirit of Christ. It is a confusion of sexual roles that mirrors the tragic inversion in which men and women worship the creature instead of the Creator."

The PC(USA) has, at various times and in a variety of documents and policies, declared its position on marriage and sexual relationships outside marriage. However, on some occasions the message from our church to the culture has been unclear. In this time of sexual confusion, so prevalent in our society and in the church, including occasions in which some in the church seek to challenge the teaching, it is proper for our General Assembly to reassert itself succinctly on this matter as a means of clarifying its teaching and making it indisputable that such teaching applies to our own time.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 04-12

Advice on Item 04-12—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 04-12.

Rationale

This overture asks the assembly to approve a statement affirming that marriage between a man and woman is a gift of God, and declaring on that basis that other sexual conduct is impermissible. While this overture is characterized as a reaffirmation, its approval would result in a change in constitutional standards. It is unclear whether the intention of this statement is that it be an authoritative interpretation of W-4.9001 or that it be approved as social witness policy. Despite this lack of clarity, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution believes that if this overture is approved, it would constitute an authoritative interpretation of W-4.9001.

However, the impact of such an authoritative interpretation on church practice are less than clear. The existing standards regarding the conduct of ministers of Word and Sacrament are found in Benton, et al. v. Pby of Hudson River (Minutes, 2000, part I, pp. 586–89, Remedial Case 212-11). A discussion of that decision is set forth in the Advisory Committee on the Constitution's advice concerning Item 04-11. Item 04-12 does not directly address the provisions of W-6.3010 and W-6.3011, or the Benton decision's statement that "[s]uch a same-sex ceremony does not bless any specific act, and this decision should not be construed as an endorsement of homosexual conjugal practice proscribed by the General Assembly."

Any modification of existing standards regarding participation in same-sex ceremonies could be the source of disciplinary actions against officers of the church. Accordingly, if the assembly desires to overturn or modify the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission's Benton decision, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution urges it to be as specific as possible in setting forth what types of participation in civil ceremonies or unions are or are not permissible, and to address the specific meaning of W-6.3010 and W-6.3011 in these circumstances.

ACSWP ADVICE AND COUNSEL ON ITEMS 04-11, 04-12, and 04-13

Advice and Counsel on Items 04-11, 04-12, and 04-13—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP).

Items 04-11, 04-12, and 04-13 all concern changes in polity, policy, and/or definitions of marriage and specific proscriptions against same-gender unions.

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises disapproval of Items 04-11, 04-12, and 04-13.

Rationale

The ACSWP shares some of the concerns of the proponents of these overtures, but would note the extensive policy and study of marriage and family approved by the 216th General Assembly (2004), only two years ago. In that policy, Transforming Families, the General Assembly affirmed marriage as "a basic social relationship of unique importance" and reaffirmed "marriage is a gift God has given to all humankind for the well-being of the entire human family" (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 750, 757) (Book of Order, W-4.9001). The matter of excluding same-gender couples from any of the benefits of either civil unions or marriages has itself been debated repeatedly and more directly by past General Assemblies, with current policies reviewed without recommendations for change, by the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church (TTTPUP).

Among the chief threats to marriage and family life carefully examined in the recent policy were economic and cultural pressures on the time and attention spouses can give each other and their children. The report provides many recommendations for Christians to practice “family-strengthening virtues and habits in their own lives” (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 758). Congregations are encouraged to offer supportive, nurturing, and educational programs for couples and families (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 758–59). The report contains many resources from within and beyond the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) for strengthening the love of spouses and their children.

Transforming Families is also pastoral to the millions in our culture and thousands in our churches who do not live in nuclear families. “The church upholds the meaning and significance of marriage between a man and a woman, but it does not denigrate other forms of family life that demonstrate and nurture godly character” (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 751). For these reasons, the ACSWP finds that pursuing the proposals in these overtures would be redundant.

On Pastoral Counsel for Sexual Sin—From the Presbytery of Redstone.

The Presbytery of Redstone overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to declare the following:

Recognizing the clear biblical teaching on sexuality and its own long history of upholding a standard of fidelity in marriage between a man and a woman and chastity in singleness, the assembly urges our pastors, elders, and all those who serve in ministries of discipleship to offer pastoral counsel and support toward repentance, forgiveness, and new life in Christ to all those struggling, sometimes failing, to live a life in accordance with biblical standards, and further,

We direct that the materials produced by our national offices reflect both the standard of fidelity in marriage between a man and a woman and chastity in singleness, and God’s readiness to forgive and restore every person through Christ, and further,

That our national offices not encourage governing bodies at any level to recognize as legitimate or confer to couples of either same-sex or opposite sex, domestic partnerships or civil unions, the same rights and benefits as those men and women living in a covenant marital relationship as defined by our confessions and the Bible.

Rationale

Reformed people hold very basic beliefs both about God’s standards of holiness and about God’s tender mercies and readiness to forgive. John Calvin wrote that as we cross the threshold of the Christian Church our first experience is with God’s forgiveness. We are, each one, broken, and in need of a Savior.

As our Confession of 1967 says, our time in history is characterized by sexual confusion and anarchy. Our culture is replete with messages and pressures to abandon biblical sexual standards. Even in the church, the voices are often mixed in the conflict between those who are committed to upholding and those who are committed to changing the church’s historical understanding of God’s will for blessing in sexual expression. As a consequence, many Christians fall into sexual temptations and practices that do not honor God.

As much as we acknowledge the harm of living outside God’s will, we also rejoice that the life-changing power of God and the desire of God to redeem us, forgive us, and restore us is at the heart of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. As his disciples, we are called to love each other and care for each other, and especially to care for those among us who fall into sin. Scripture teaches us to lead our erring brothers and sisters gently to repentance and a knowledge of the truth. (2 Tim. 2:25)

On Amending G-12.0101, Synod Membership, to Make It Possible for a Synod to Enroll Specified Persons as Members of the Synod—From the Presbytery of Lake Huron.

The Presbytery of Lake Huron respectfully overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall G-12.0101 be amended by inserting an “a.” at the beginning of the current paragraph and adding a new paragraph “b.” to read as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“a. Synod is the unit of the church’s life and mission which consists of not fewer than three presbyteries within a specific geographic region. ... [The rest of the paragraph remains the same.]

“b. Each person elected an officer of the synod (other than moderator), a member of the council of the synod, a chairperson of a synod unit (committee, cabinet, trustees, etc.), the moderator of Presbyterian Women of the Synod and Presbyterian Men of the Synod, may be enrolled as a member of the synod for the term of office.”

In response to Item 05-01, the 217th General Assembly (2006) approved the following resolution:

Direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall G-12.0101 be amended to read as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“G-12.0101

“Synod is the unit of the church’s life and mission which consists of not fewer than three presbyteries within a specific geographic region.

“a. When a synod meets it shall be composed of commissioners elected by the presbyteries. The synod shall determine, with the consent of a majority of its presbyteries, the basis of election and the ratio of commissioners to members represented in the presbyteries, as well as its method to fulfill the principles of participation and representation found in G-9.0104 and G-9.0105. The commissioners from each presbytery shall be divided equally between elders and ministers of the Word and Sacrament. ~~Each person elected moderator shall be enrolled as a member of the synod until a successor is elected and installed, and then shall be enrolled as a corresponding member of the synod.~~

“b. When a synod meets, in addition to commissioners elected by the presbyteries, the officers of the synod and other individuals as determined by the governing documents of the synod may be enrolled during their respective terms of office so long as the balance of elders and ministers of the Word and Sacrament is maintained in the voting members of the body.”

Rationale

The Book of Order permits presbyteries to enroll officers, committee chairpersons, and council members as members of the presbytery for the term of office. The Council of the Synod of the Covenant believes that the same privilege should be granted to synods. This would allow persons in the specified positions to have both voice and vote at meetings of the synod assembly, a privilege currently denied to persons in key and responsible positions. It would allow those persons and the groups they represent to have participation and representation in actions taken by the assembly.

The Presbytery of Lake Huron, a member presbytery of the Synod of the Covenant, concurs with the synod council. The synod council does not have the authority to submit an overture to the General Assembly and the synod assembly will not meet until after the meeting of the 217th General Assembly (2006). Therefore the Presbytery of Lake Huron submits this overture on its own behalf and with the concurrence of the synod council.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-01

Advice on Item 05-01—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) that it concurs with the intent of the overture, to permit the governing body to determine who will be enrolled for meetings of that body, but offers different language for the Stated Clerk to send to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative vote.

“Synod is the unit of the church’s life and mission which consists of not fewer than three presbyteries within a specific geographic region.

“a. When a synod meets it shall be composed of commissioners elected by the presbyteries. The synod shall determine, with the consent of a majority of its presbyteries, the basis of election and the ratio of commissioners to members, represented in the presbyteries, as well as its method to fulfill the principles of participation and representation found in G-9.0104 and G-9.0105. The commissioners from each presbytery shall be divided equally between elders and ministers of the Word and Sacrament. ~~Each person elected moderator shall be enrolled as a member of the synod until a successor is elected and installed, and then shall be enrolled as a corresponding member.~~

“b. When a synod meets, in addition to commissioners elected by the presbyteries, the officers of the synod and other individuals as determined by the governing documents of the synod may be enrolled during their respective terms of office so long as the balance of elders and ministers of the Word and Sacrament is maintained in the voting members of the body.”

Rationale

There is a lack of consistency in the language used in the Book of Order to refer to membership in the four governing bodies.

- Section G-10.0101 states “The session of a particular church consists of the pastor ... and the elders in active service. ...”
- Section G-11.0101 states “Presbytery is a corporate expression of the church consisting of all the churches and ministers of the Word and Sacrament within a certain district. When a presbytery meets, each church shall be represented by an elder commissioned by the session”
- Section G-12.0101 states “Synod ... consists of not fewer than three presbyteries within a specific geographic region. When a synod meets it shall be composed of commissioners elected by the presbyteries. ...”
- Section G-13.0101 states “The General Assembly is the highest governing body of this church When the General Assembly meets ... it shall consist of equal number of elders and ministers in the following proportions. ...”

Individual Presbyterians are members either of a particular church, or in the case of ministers of the Word and Sacrament, of a presbytery. The two upper governing bodies are not viewed as having individual members, but of receiving commissioners from the presbyteries to meetings of the synod or General Assembly.

Section G-12.0101, which this overture seeks to amend, was amended in 1985 to add the sentence that is now the last sentence in that section. “Each person elected moderator shall be enrolled as a member of the synod until a successor is elected and installed, and then shall be enrolled as a corresponding member of the synod.” The Advisory Committee on the Constitution believes that the proposed new sub-paragraph a. retains that option as well as broadening those whom a synod may choose to enroll in meetings. The governing documents may specify that one who has served as moderator as a corresponding member. The governing documents may specify whether those enrolled under sub-paragraph a. serve with or without vote.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises that if the General Assembly wishes to concur with the intent of the overture, that language which is more consistent with the language of G-13.0101 be approved to be submitted to the presbyteries.

The paragraph would have a sub-paragraph a., which consists of the balance of the current 12.0101, except that the last sentence would be deleted. A new sub-paragraph b. would be added.

The advisory committee would also note that while the role of synods is delineated in Chapter Twelve, there is great diversity in how the sixteen synods have chosen to structure themselves. It is appropriate that each synod determine who may be enrolled in its meetings so long as it adheres to the principle that the presbyteries elect the commissioners on the basis set forth in paragraph a.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution believes that the wording proposed in this advisory opinion will permit more latitude to the synods in determining who participates in meetings of the synods.

Rationale

The Book of Order currently contains a Scriptural Allusion Index for the Form of Government. This index lists Scripture references for various sections of the Form of Government and sequences the references according to the Form of Government chapters and sections within each chapter.

The proposed reverse concordance does not replace the Scriptural Allusion Index currently in the Book of Order. Rather, it complements this index by ordering it according to Scripture and cross-linking the Scripture references to the Book of Order section references. This reverse concordance will be helpful to pastors and others when they are preaching or teaching on a particular text and want to refer to related material in the Book of Order.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-02

Advice on Item 05-02—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to approve Item 05-02 with the following amendment: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

"The Presbytery of Redstone overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to ~~amend the Book of Order by adding~~ instruct the Office of the General Assembly to add the following reverse concordance of Scriptural allusions (in the order of Scripture) to the Indexes of the Book of Order, consulting with the appropriate General Assembly entities as necessary in the preparation of such concordance:"

[Include listing of scriptural allusions.]

Rationale

The overture proposes to expand the Scriptural Allusion Index of the Book of Order by the addition of a reverse concordance of scriptural allusions. The index would make it possible to identify citations of Scripture in the Book of Order beginning with a particular passage of Scripture.

Neither the Index nor the Scriptural Allusion Index is a part of the Book of Order. Therefore, the proposed action would not require an amendment to the Constitution and would not require the assent of the presbyteries.

The language of the overture is clear, and the form of the proposed Reverse Concordance of Scriptural Allusions is consistent with the Scriptural Allusions Index already existing in the Book of Order; indeed, it is simply the reverse of that index.

Item 05-03

[The assembly disapproved Item 05-03. See pp. 38–39.]

On Amending G-13.0103r Regarding Authoritative Interpretations—From the Presbytery of Mississippi.

The Presbytery of Mississippi overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the Book of Order to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall G-13.0103r be amended as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“r. to provide authoritative interpretation of the Book of Order which shall be binding on the governing bodies of the church when rendered in accord with G-13.0112 and with the consent of a majority of all the presbyteries, or when rendered through a decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission in a remedial or disciplinary case. The most recent interpretation of a provision of the Book of Order shall be binding.”

Rationale

Interpretations of the Book of Order can easily have the effect of altering the meaning of the Constitution even while leaving its words unchanged. Although the proposed amendment would undoubtedly increase the number of General Assembly actions the presbyteries would be asked to approve, the amendment would nevertheless preserve the presbyteries’ constitutional right to have direct input into important changes to the way that they relate to one another. Any changes that are binding on the governing bodies of the church should have the approval of the presbyteries.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-03

Advice on Item 05-03—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 05-03.

Rationale

General Assemblies have provided what we now call “authoritative interpretation” throughout most of our history since 1786. J. Aspinwall Hodge, in What Is Presbyterian Law as Defined by the Church Courts (Philadelphia, Pa.: Presbyterian Board of Publication and Sabbath School Work, 1907), responding to the question, “What authority have the decisions of the Assembly?” answered citing the Presbyterian Digest, “Its replies to overtures are authoritative interpretations of the constitution [sic]” (p. 271).

There are three sources of constitutional authority for the PC(USA):

1. The Constitution itself and amendments to it,
2. General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission decisions interpreting the Constitution,

3. Deliberate General Assembly interpretations adopted pursuant to process described in G-13.0112. Decisions by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission and General Assembly interpretations under G-13.0112 together are referred to as “authoritative interpretations” (G-13.0103r).

Accordingly, the current processes of constitutional authority reflect a theology and polity that provide Presbyterians with a variety of opportunities to change the Constitution.

The effect of Item 05-03 would be to dramatically restrain and restrict the General Assembly from making responses in a timely manner to emerging questions and issues in the church. This is especially true in light of biennial General Assemblies. Moreover, the presbytery ratification process would further exacerbate the matter.

Item 05-03 is an awkward attempt to micromanage Presbyterian law and is an unwise approach to furthering the peace, unity, and purity of the church.

Item 05-04

[Note: Item 05-04 was reassigned to 12 Assembly Committee on Church Growth and Christian Education. It became Item 12-18. See pp. 1094.]

Item 05-05

On Amending G-11.0503, Open Communication, to Include Elders Who Are Commissioned as Lay Pastors—From the Presbytery of the Western Reserve.

The Presbytery of the Western Reserve respectfully overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall G-11.0503 be amended as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“The committee shall be open to communication at all times with the ministers, elders who are commissioned as lay pastors, elders who are members of sessions, sessions of the presbytery, and Certified Christian Educators within the bounds of the presbytery.”

Rationale

Elders who are commissioned as lay pastors act as the pastor of a congregation, with the responsibilities given by the presbytery. Churches and their pastors fall under the care and guidance of the committee on ministry. An elder serving on the session of a particular church served by a commissioned lay pastor has constitutional access to the committee on ministry. An elder who has been commissioned to serve as the pastor, but who is most likely not a member of the church, may or may not have been named moderator of the session, and may not be recognized as named under G-10.0101 as being included in the membership of the session, should be able to have the same access to the committee on ministry as a minister who serves similar functions in the particular church.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-05

Advice on Item 05-05—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to approve Item 05-05.

Rationale

The overture seeks to add “elders who are commissioned as lay pastors” to the list of persons with whom a presbytery’s committee on ministry shall engage in open communication.

A committee on ministry is open to communication with ministers, elders, and certified Christian educators so that it can assist in providing congregations with good pastoral care and in seeing that those providing that pastoral care are properly treated by congregations. A commissioned lay pastor is granted a commission to "... lead worship and preach the gospel, watch over the people, and provide for their nurture and service ..." (Book of Order, G-14.0801a). Because these functions are akin to the services provided by pastors, it would be appropriate for the committee on ministry to be in a similar relationship to both pastors and commissioned lay pastors. In practice many committees on ministry are already overseeing the work of commissioned lay pastors. It would be appropriate to amend the Book of Order to give formal recognition to this practice.

On Amending G-10.0302a(2)(c), "When Active Members Move" to Include Provision for College Students and Military Personnel—From the Presbytery of San Francisco.

The Presbytery of San Francisco overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to do the following:

Direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall G-10.0302a(2)(c) be amended as follows? [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

"(c) When a member moves or is temporarily relocated for an extended period of time and can no longer be active in the work and worship of the church of membership, it shall be that person's duty to become an active member of a church in the community where that person is living. The session of the church of membership shall inform the person of this duty as soon as practicable and shall notify a church in the new community and request it to provide pastoral care with a view to membership. In addition, notice shall be sent to either the presbytery office or to the stated clerk of the presbytery, or both. In the case of an extended temporary residence, such as for military personnel or college students, the member shall be encouraged to affiliate with a congregation, military chapel, or campus ministry, and notification of their arrival shall be sent to the area congregations, military chapels, and/or campus ministries or college chaplains."

Comment: Pastors and clerks of session are reminded of the provisions in G-10.0302a(2)(c) and are strongly encouraged to communicate with campus ministers and military chaplains when college students and military personnel from their congregations relocate for an extended period of time.

Rationale

The Worship Leader: "Do you, as members of the church of Jesus Christ, promise to guide and nurture, N. and N., by word and deed, with love and prayer, encouraging this person to know and follow Christ and to be a faithful member of his church."

The People respond: "We do." (From The Sacrament of Baptism, Book of Common Worship, Westminster/John Knox Press)

For young adult members of Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) congregations, going away to college or to service in the nation's military is the first leg of a journey that will, almost certainly, lead them farther and farther away from their "home" church in more directions than just geographic. Unfortunately this departure is the point where the church loses its connection with persons it has guided and nurtured, educated and loved through their childhood and adolescence. It is, for all practical and relational purposes, the end of the illustrative words and good deeds, even loving and prayerful encouragement of the military and college bound young adult members of the congregation.

The means to notify military chaplaincies and Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) collegiate ministries are readily available to congregations. The Presbyterian Council for Chaplains and Military Personnel (<http://www.pccmp.org/>) and the General Assembly Collegiate Ministries Office (<http://www.pcusa.org/collegiate/>) are both capable of receiving and redirecting this information. Our denomination has related ministries serving on more than 1,150 colleges and universities in all fifty states. For most of these ministries, their staff have no way of knowing that a member of a PC(USA) congregation is on campus. The best way they can know this is if a referral notice arrives in their email box. Our military chaplains, although serving often in more mobile and complex settings than a college campus, welcome the notification of a church member's presence on their base of operations.

This overture will go a long way to keeping touch with the youth of our church as they make that critical transition into the academic and career world of the young adult.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-06

Advice on Item 05-06—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 05-06, on the grounds that the actions envisioned by the overture are already permitted by the existing provisions of G-10.0302a(2)(b) and (c).

Item 05-07

[The assembly disapproved Item 05-07. See pp. 38–39.]

On Amending G-8.0201, “Property Is Held in Trust”—From the Presbytery of Stockton.

The Presbytery of Stockton overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendments to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

1. Shall G-8.0201 be amended to read as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

~~“All property held by or for a particular church, a presbytery, a synod, the General Assembly, or the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), whether legal title is lodged in a corporation, a trustee or trustees, or an unincorporated association, and whether the property is used in programs of a particular church or of a more inclusive governing body or retained for the production of income, is held in trust nevertheless for the use and benefit of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) no matter how title is held or by whom, is the sole property of that church, except that the amount of any financial assistance provided by the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to that church to purchase, improve, or repair that property, is a lien on that property for the benefit of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)”~~

2. Shall G-8.0300 and 8.0301 be deleted and “G-8.0400-.0701” be re-numbered as “G-8.0300-.0601:

~~“G-8.0300 3. Property Used Contrary to Constitution~~

~~“G-8.0301 Property Used Contrary to Constitution~~

~~“Whenever property of, or held for, a particular church of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) ceases to be used by that church as a particular church of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) in accordance with this Constitution, such property shall be held, used, applied, transferred, or sold as provided by the presbytery.”~~

3. Shall current G-8.0401 be amended to read as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

~~“Whenever a particular church is formally dissolved by the presbytery, or has become extinct by reason of the dispersal of its members, the abandonment of its work, or other cause and no longer exists as a church body, such property as it may have shall be held, used, and applied for such uses, purposes, and trusts as the presbytery may direct, limit, and appoint, or such property may be sold or disposed of as the presbytery may direct, in conformity with the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)”~~

4. Shall current G-8.0501 be amended to read as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

~~“So long as a particular church is a member of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), it shall not sell, mortgage, or otherwise encumber any of its real property and it shall not acquire real property subject to an encumbrance or condition without the written permission of the presbytery transmitted through the session of the particular church.”~~

5. Shall current G-8.0502 be amended to read as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“So long as a particular church is a member of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), it shall not lease its real property used for purposes of worship, or lease for more than five years any of its other real property, without the written permission of the presbytery transmitted through the session of the particular church.”

6. Shall current G-8.0601 be amended to read as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“The relationship to the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) of a particular church can be severed ~~only~~ by either constitutional action on the part of the presbytery- (G-11.0103i), or by the vote of sixty (60) percent of the active membership of that particular church. If there is a schism within the membership of a particular church and the presbytery is unable to effect a reconciliation or a division into separate churches within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), ~~the presbytery shall determine if one of the factions is entitled to the property because it is identified by the presbytery as the true church within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). This determination does not depend upon which faction received the majority vote within the particular church at the time of the schism~~ the sixty (60) percent vote of the active membership within that particular church shall determine what shall be done with that church’s property not withstanding the provisions of G-11.0103i or any other provision in the Book of Order.”

Rationale

As Chapter VIII of the Book of Order now reads, if a congregation has any irreconcilable theological differences with the actions of the leadership of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) [PC(USA)], or to any future amendments to the Book of Order, that congregation has only two options: it can stay in the PC(USA) in spite of those irreconcilable differences, or it can separate from the PC(USA) and forfeit all of its assets to the PC(USA).

There is no biblical or moral basis why a congregation’s property should be controlled by or forfeited to the PC(USA) upon severance by that congregation from the PC(USA), except only to the extent the PC(USA) has expended funds in behalf of such church to acquire, improve, or repair such property. Then PC(USA) should have the limited right to reimbursement for those funds.

No church should have to forfeit its assets to uphold its biblical beliefs. Amending Chapter VIII will eliminate these forfeiture clauses in the Book of Order and protect the assets of each congregation: the body of Christ that paid for those assets.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-07

Advice on Item 05-07—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 05-07.

Rationale

This overture would change the specific character of Chapter VIII of the Form of Government, and represents a Congregationalist rather than Presbyterian understanding of the nature of church property.

The current provision of Chapter VIII of the Form of Government codifies a Presbyterian understanding of property ownership that prior to its adoption was settled in Presbyterian polity. Section G-8.0201 was only added as a constitutional provision to avoid confusion in the civil courts as to the status of church property.

The origins of Chapter VIII of the Form of Government are found in both the Presbyterian Church in the United States (1981, pp. 224–25, 229–43) and the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. (1980, pp. 99–105). Both denominations shared a long and common history of understanding a congregation’s property to be held in trust for the whole church. This history is reflected in a number of judicial decisions, all the way to the United States Supreme Court, most notable in an 1872 case, Watson v. Jones, 80 U.S. (13 Wall) 679 (1872). However, for the protection of Presbyterian principles it became clear that it was necessary for the denominations to put in place a provision in its constitutional documents that which was implied in the earlier precedents, that is, that property is indeed held in trust for the benefit of the whole church. Both predecessor denominations engaged in long and careful studies of the history of these judicial decisions in the context of historic Presbyterian principles in adopting the antecedents to G-8.0201.

This necessity for adoption of G-8.0201 arose from court decisions that changed the permissible role of courts in determining disputes as to church property. Until a few years before the adoption of G-8.0201, courts determining property disputes sought to determine from the doctrinal documents of a denomination whether the property of local congregations was held in trust for the larger church (this was referred to as the “implied trust” analysis). However, in 1979, the United States Supreme Court found that this type of inquiry into the doctrine of a denomination was an improper intrusion into the First Amendment right to freedom of religion. Accordingly, the courts were required to determine property disputes without seeking to interpret a denomination’s doctrine (the so-called neutral principles of law analysis). For Presbyterians, this change in the legal framework the civil courts applied suggested specific reference in property matters in a denomination’s constitutional documents was prudent. Section G-8.0201 provides that explicit understanding of the long held Presbyterian understanding. As such, it was not a change in our Presbyterian polity, but rather an attempt to protect the denomination’s polity against changes in the permissible framework of legal analysis applied by the civil courts.

Chapter VIII gives broad discretion to the presbytery in the resolution of property disputes. These provisions, which allow the presbytery to exercise its discretion in a property dispute in light of the mission of the Gospel within its bounds, provide a sound foundation for resolution of property disputes and should not be abandoned.

COGA COMMENT ON ITEM 05-07

Comment on Item 05-07—From the Office of the General Assembly.

Item 05-07 seeks to change the Book or Order regarding ownership of church property. The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) supports the comment and advice of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution to disapprove this overture.

The COGA is a committee of fifteen persons, elected by the General Assembly from across the church, made up of elders and ministers who supervise the work of the Office of the General Assembly.

On Amending G-13.0103p. and q, Responsibilities of the General Assembly—From the Presbytery of Nevada.

The Presbytery of Nevada overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendments to the Book of Order to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

1. Shall G-13.0103p be amended as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“p. to warn or bear witness against error in doctrine or immorality in practice in or outside the church; these warnings of or witnessing against errors in doctrine or immorality in practice in or outside the church must be supported by and referenced from the Bible and/or the church’s Constitution;”

2. Shall G-13.0103q be amended as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“q. to decide controversies brought before it and to give advice and instruction in cases submitted to it, in conformity with the Constitution; all decisions made to resolve controversies and the advice and instruction given in cases submitted to it shall not only conform to the Constitution, but shall be based upon and referenced from the Bible and/or the Constitution;”

Rationale

When any General Assembly passes a resolution or policy statement, that action legally represents that specific General Assembly, and not the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) as a whole. The perception of the media and many congregations in our faith, however, is that these actions and statements are the “official” stance of all Presbyterians. It is critical therefore, that the General Assembly and their advisory committees reference appropriate Scripture and/or constitutional statements of faith (which form the foundation of our members’ common beliefs) to justify their positions before taking any actions or considering any resolutions that will be perceived as representing our denomination. “. . . Who gives speech to mortals? Who makes them mute or deaf, seeing or blind? Is it not I, the Lord? Now go, and I will be with your mouth and teach you what you are to speak” (Ex. 4:11–12).

As human beings, it is very easy to become caught up in the emotions of a given issue without properly reviewing that issue against the foundations of our Faith, the Holy Bible, and our Constitution. Thus, a General Assembly may be unduly influenced by political ideology if the foundations of our faith are not considered.

The 216th General Assembly (2004) is a specific case in point. In developing the rationale for condemning the war in Iraq as “illegal and immoral,” politicians and the United Nations were cited as sources supporting the resolution. “Should the wise answer with windy knowledge ... Should they argue in unprofitable talk, or in words with which they can do no good? ... and you choose the tongue of the crafty. Your own mouth condemns you, and not I; your own lips testify against you” (Job 15:2–6). In no instance did the written material refer to the Holy Bible, the Book of Order or The Book of Confessions. This is not only wrong, but it is an unhealthy precedent to rely on secular language and politics to guide how a religious denomination sees an issue instead of using the very foundations of our belief system as our moral guide. “. . . Avoid the profane chatter and contradictions of what is falsely called knowledge; by professing it some have missed the mark as regards the faith” (1 Tim. 6:20–21).

Our great country was modeled in its form of government with similarities to the Presbyterian church’s government, but there are significant differences. Our nation’s government is a republic in which elected legislators represent the will of their constituents, and laws passed are subject to the review and judgment of the courts as to their compliance with our nation’s constitution. However, in our PC(USA) governmental structure, church members do not elect the General Assembly commissioners, the commissioners are not bound to make decisions based on the will of church members, and there is no “judicial system” in place to judge the compliance of any General Assembly decision, action, or policy statement with the foundations of our common faith.

Our governmental system provides that a majority of commissioners at a General Assembly (325 in 2004, less than 1 percent of our total membership that is in excess of 2 million) can pass resolutions that the media perceive as “the church,” when in fact the majority of congregational members do not agree.

The 216th General Assembly (2004), for example, declared that the war in Iraq was “illegal and immoral.” A survey conducted shortly thereafter found that 65 percent of pastors and 72 percent of lay members did not agree with the resolution.

We understand that commissioners are not bound by the desires of the congregations, but are to pray and listen for the “mind of Christ” to direct them. If the actions of the General Assembly reflect the “mind of Christ,” it should be evident in the language used in the statements and resolutions issued by the General Assembly. “All scripture is inspired by God and is useful for teaching, for reproof, for correction, and for training in righteousness, so that everyone who belongs to God may be proficient; equipped for every good work” (2 Tim. 3:16–17).

Congregations have no way to respond to General Assembly resolutions or actions, and without reference to the foundations of our faith, they don’t even have a way to relate these decisions to our common faith. By requiring the Bible, and/or The Book of Confessions, and/or the Book of Order to be cited as the basis for General Assembly decisions and statements, negative impact and disagreement in our congregations would be minimized. Debates and contradictions will never be eliminated because of the different interpretations of the books of our faith, but the focus of our denomination’s positions on controversial national and international issues is now based on our own moral ground, reducing the secular political influences in the debates, and promoting more peace and harmony in this body of Christ. “For it is written, ‘I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and the discernment of the discerning I will thwart.’ Where is the one who is wise? Where is the scribe? Where is the debater of this age? Has not God made foolish the wisdom of the world? ... For God’s foolishness is wiser than human wisdom, and God’s weakness is stronger than human strength” (1 Cor. 1:19–20, 25).

Christ is in all aspects of the world and is in all events. We understand that it is appropriate to research all types of data, opinions, and related material as resolutions are considered. The conclusion however must be based on all three of the most important books to our denomination: the Holy Bible, the Book of Order, and The Book of Confessions. Political opinions, unless supported by one or more of these books, should not be considered in any rationale for a resolution or recommendation.

Applicability

This overture applies to all matters brought before the General Assembly from all sources, including but not limited to —advisory committees, such as the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy and the Advocacy Committee for Women’s Concerns;

- General Assembly Council committees;
- General Assembly committees, such as the Mission Responsibility Through Investment Committee;
- task forces;
- any office of PC(USA), such as the Washington Office and the Presbyterian United Nations Office;
- officers of the General Assembly, such as the Moderator of the General Assembly and the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly;
- any other source of matters to be considered by the General Assembly.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-08

Advice on Item 05-08—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises that 217th General Assembly (2006) disapprove Item 05-08.

Rationale

This overture would add a requirement that all General Assembly actions under G-13.0103p and q contain explicit reference to biblical texts or constitutional provisions. The amendment would be unique to two of the numerous responsibilities of the General Assembly, and would apply solely to the General Assembly, and not to other governing bodies.

All General Assembly and other governing body actions are judged by their faithfulness to Scripture and the confessions. However, to make the changes suggested would not ensure greater adherence to Scripture and the Constitution, but rather would simply elevate form above substance in the discussion of General Assembly actions under G-13.0103p and q.¹

Advice and Counsel on Item 05-08—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP)

Item 05-08 from the Presbytery of Nevada concerns amending Form of Government G-13.0103 to require biblical texts for all warnings against immorality.

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises that Item 05-08 be disapproved with comment:

“The 205th General Assembly has already adopted a policy in 1993 entitled Why and How the Church Makes A Social Policy Witness that specifically requires all policy-making task groups and committees to:

“listen to the voices of the biblical text;

“the wisdom of theological discourse;

“the guidance of the Reformed confessions;

“and further requires that policy-making task forces shall cause statements to be written that:

“a. Explicates its recommended social witness policy based upon biblical scholarship;

“b. Defines its recommended social witness policy in light of theological reflection;

“c. Is consistent with the confessions of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). [See Why and How The Church Makes A Social Policy Witness, 1993, page 4.]”

The church is faithfully served by seeking to understand and internalize the major focus of Scripture on the Living Word—Jesus Christ—and the witness of God through Christ for the life of discipleship in the church and society, in keeping with the Reformed tradition as expressed especially in the twentieth century confessions, the Theological Declaration of Barmen, and the Confession of 1967. Christ calls us to reconciliation, discipleship and witness in the world.

The Bible is to be interpreted in light of its witness to God’s work of reconciliation in Christ. The Scriptures, given under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, are nevertheless the words of men, conditioned by the language, thought forms, and literary fashions of the places and times at which they were written. They reflect views of life, history, and the cosmos which were then current. The church, therefore, has an obligation to approach the Scriptures with literary and historical understanding. ... (The Book of Confessions, Section C., 2. The Bible, 9.29)

Sessions are encouraged to study the General Assembly policy document, Why and How the Church Makes a Social Policy Witness, which outlines the fidelity of the church to Scripture as the base for social policy. The biblical sections are found near the beginning in most resolutions and policy documents of the assembly; in some cases biblical themes are already included in the titles of reports, such as “Lazarus at the Gate,” “Far from the Song of Songs,” “Turn Mourning into Dancing,” etc. Also recommended for use by sessions is the book by former General Assembly Moderator, Jack Rogers, Presbyterian Understanding and the Use of Holy Scripture, and Using the Bible: Presbyterian Statements on Biblical Authority and Interpretation from the Office of Theology and Worship.

Endnote

1. The example given by the overture—the action of the 216th General Assembly (2004) regarding the United States war in Iraq—is a case in point of the difficulty of applying the proposed amendments. Proponents of the report could well point to the following language from the Confession of 1967 to support the report: “God’s reconciliation in Jesus Christ is the ground of the peace, justice, and freedom among nations which all powers of government are called to serve and defend. The church, in its own life, is called to practice the forgiveness of enemies and to commend to the nations as practical politics the search for cooperation and peace. This search requires that the nations pursue fresh and responsible relations across every line of conflict, even at risk to national security, to reduce areas of strife and to broaden international understanding. ...” (The Book of Confessions, 9.45). Alternatively, the report could point to W-7.4003 or to Matthew 5:9 to support its position. Those who disagree with the report may dispute the applicability of any these references to the report, but this disagreement is one of interpretation of the scriptural or constitutional reference and the current facts, not of the existence of the scriptural or constitutional reference.

[The assembly disapproved Item 05-09. See pp. 38–39.]

On Amending G-14.0605 Regarding Commissioned Lay Pastor Emeritus or Emerita—From the Presbytery of the Noroeste.

The Presbytery of the Noroeste respectfully overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall the first sentence of G-14.0605 be amended as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“When any pastor or associate pastor or any commissioned lay pastor retires, and the congregation is moved by affection and gratitude to continue an association in an honorary relationship, it may, at a regularly called congregational meeting, elect ~~him or her~~ the pastor or associate pastor as pastor emeritus or emerita, and the commissioned lay pastor emeritus or emerita, with or without honorarium, but with no pastoral authority or duty. ...”

Rationale

There are commissioned lay pastors who for many years have faithfully served small congregations.

There is provision in the Book of Order for honoring a pastor or associate pastor as pastor emeritus or emerita but no such provision for a commissioned lay pastor.

This creates a seeming distinction between large congregations with greater resources and small congregations with lesser resources and which seemingly disenfranchises the latter from bestowing an honor that is reserved to the former all of which is not consistent with the principles of justice and inclusiveness enshrined in the Book of Order.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution established a principle that what is not prohibited in the Book of Order is permitted, by opining in its response to Overture 89-17 “that nothing in the Book of Order prevents a congregation moved by affection and gratitude from electing officers that it wishes to honor emeritus or emerita. Such title would have no effect on the ability of those elected to represent the church in higher courts and would not deprive them of their perpetual office.”

The Presbytery of the Noroeste has interpreted G-14.0605 as not forbidding a commissioned lay pastor from being honored as a lay pastor emeritus or emerita and has authorized the Iglesia Presbiteriana Corrales in Aguadilla, Puerto Rico, to honor, upon his retirement, its commissioned lay pastor of eleven years with the title of pastor laico emérito (lay pastor emeritus).

The Presbytery of the Noroeste believes there is a substantial distinction between a lay pastor emeritus or emerita and an elder officer emeritus or emerita and that presbytery must still be consulted “concerning the wisdom of this relationship.”

The Presbytery of the Noroeste has noted (1) that an associate pastor may be honored as pastor emeritus or emerita, (2) that the title “commissioned lay pastor emeritus or emerita” is too long and there is no longer commission in effect, and (3) that the church may want to maintain the distinction between ministers and elders, although for the congregation the commissioned lay pastor is its pastor.

The Presbytery of the Noroeste wishes all small congregations and all presbyteries to be aware that faithful commissioned lay pastors may be honored with an emeritus or emerita status.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-09

Advice on Item 05-09—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 05-09.

Rationale

The Presbytery of the Noroeste has overtured the 217th General Assembly (2006) to amend the first sentence of G-14.0605 by adding “commissioned lay pastor,” so that it reads: “When any pastor or associate pastor or any commissioned lay pastor retires, and the congregation is moved by affection and gratitude to continue an association in an honorary relationship, it may, at a regularly called congregational meeting, elect ~~him or her~~ the pastor or associate pastor as pastor emeritus or emerita, and the commissioned lay pastor emeritus or emerita, with or without honorarium, but with no pastoral authority or duty.”

The status of pastor emeritus or emerita was created as a way for a congregation, moved by affection, to honor a retired pastor who has served that congregation. The status is never to be conferred until after the dissolution of the pastoral relationship. The decision to elect one as pastor emeritus or emerita is made by the congregation and approved by the presbytery.

In 1989 the General Assembly was asked to amend the Book of Order to recognize a status of elder emeritus or emerita. Upon the advice of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution, the General Assembly declined to propose such an amendment. (Minutes, 1989, Part I, p. 594). The General Assembly went on to say that there was nothing in the Book of Order to prevent a congregation from recognizing and honoring an elder, but that it was inadvisable to amend the Book of Order for that purpose.

A commissioned lay pastor is not installed in a call to a congregation. He or she is an elder who is commissioned to serve a particular congregation for a specific time period. Once that service is ended the commission ends and the authority to perform pastoral functions ceases. The commissioned lay pastor, unlike the pastor or associate pastor, has no continuing membership within presbytery. The termination of the commission is not necessarily a retirement from active service in the church. Once the commission terminates, the person is simply an elder who is available for further commissioning whenever the need arises.

It would be inadvisable to amend the Book of Order as requested by the Presbytery of the Noroeste because (1) the section that the overture proposes to amend is the wrong section. Matters relating to commissioned lay pastors are set forth in G-14.0800; (2) the status of a pastor or associate pastor emeritus or emerita is limited to those who have been granted the status of Honorably Retired. A commissioned lay pastor is an elder who is granted a local commission by the presbytery to serve a particular church for a specified period of time. When the commission of a commissioned lay pastor ends that person is not retiring, but is returning to the status of an elder who is available to be commissioned by the presbytery to serve another particular church. As with the situation of elders, there is nothing in the Book of Order that would prevent a congregation from recognizing and honoring an elder who had served as a commissioned lay pastor, but it would be inadvisable to amend the Book of Order to attempt to create an equivalency with retired pastors and associate pastors, which does not in fact exist.

On Amending G-14.0502a Regarding Election of a Pastor—From the Presbytery of Cimarron.

The Presbytery of Cimarron respectfully overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall the first sentence of G-14.0502a be amended as follows: [Text to be inserted is shown as italic.]

“a. When a church is without a pastor, or after the effective date of the dissolution of the pastoral relationship is announced, the congregation shall, with the guidance and permission of the committee on ministry, G-11.0502d, proceed to elect a pastor in the following manner.”

Rationale

Our current call process is broken in as much as it only allows congregations to begin the call process after the effective date of dissolution has passed. Presbyteries are skirting this portion of the Book of Order in various ways, the most common of which is by allowing churches to begin the search for a co-pastor when in fact there is no intention of establishing or maintaining a co-pastor model of ministry.

When taken to the extreme, the incoming co-pastor may only serve in that capacity for one day, becoming pastor upon the almost immediate exit or retirement of the current pastor. This is not only deceptive, but also cheapens the true co-pastor model.

This amendment would accomplish several things. It would level the playing field for all sizes of congregations. It would prevent churches from losing momentum resulting from long vacancies. This amendment would render unnecessary the “technical duplicity” of current practice.

It should be noted and highlighted that this would not bind a particular presbytery. A particular congregation could only proceed with the guidance and permission of the committee on ministry of that presbytery (G-14.0502 and G-11.0502d). It would not shortcut or bypass a particular presbytery’s requirements for mission studies and other work prior to allowing the congregation to proceed with a search.

For these reasons we urge prayerful consideration of this overture.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-10

Advice on Item 05-10—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 05-10.

Rationale

Item 05-10 from the Presbytery of Cimarron would amend G-14.0502 to provide for an additional starting point for the process of congregational election of a pastor. The overture would allow for that process to begin “after the effective date of the dissolution of the pastoral relationship is announced.”

The matter of when a pastoral search process may begin has been addressed most recently by the 207th General Assembly (1995) and before that by the 202nd General Assembly (1990). The current language was adopted in 1990.

At that time, the assembly responded to concerns that the difficulty of the committee on ministry to work effectively with a congregation from the outset of the search process was heightened when the retiring or departing pastor remained a presence in the congregation. It further responded to concerns that the presence of the retiring or departing pastor during any portion of the search process created awkwardness for the departing pastor, the pastor nominating committee, and the congregation. Accordingly, the General Assembly proposed amendments, which the presbyteries ratified, to establish the current language, which clearly set the beginning of the search process to follow the effective date of the dissolution of the pastoral relationship with the departing or retiring pastor (Minutes, 1990, Part I, p. 231).

Item 05-10, if approved, would reintroduce the elements of difficulty and awkwardness that the 202nd General Assembly (1990) and the presbyteries sought to remove when they adopted the current language.

If the overture were to be approved, it still would not be proper to elect a pastor nominating committee until the presbytery has approved the dissolution of the existing pastoral relationship.

Item 05-11

[The assembly approved Item 05-11 as amended. See pp. 38–39.]

The Office of the General Assembly recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) answer Item 04-12 (from the 216th General Assembly (2004)) by approval of the following actions:

1. That, in consultation with the General Assembly Nominating Committee, the Moderators of the 215th, the 216th, and the 217th General Assemblies (2003, 2004, 2006) appoint a Form of Government Task Force (hereafter FOG Task Force) composed of nine members including at least one clerk of session, one session moderator, one new immigrant pastor, one executive/general presbyter, one stated clerk, one committee on preparation for ministry member/staff, one committee on ministry member/staff, and one member of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

a. That the 217th General Assembly (2006) instruct the FOG Task Force to undertake a revision of the Form of Government in light of the foci and priorities described in (1)–(5) below and bring it back to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

(1) The new Form of Government shall preserve our foundational polity (perhaps most concisely laid out in the first four chapters of the current Form of Government).

(2) The focus of the Form of Government shall be on providing leadership for local congregations as missional communities.

(3) The presbytery shall continue as the central governmental unit, as it has been throughout most of our history. The Form of Government shall provide sufficient authority and flexibility to allow the presbytery to assist congregations in addressing the changing cultural, economic, and societal challenges in our new millennial world. The FOG Task Force shall take notice of and address the institutional and structural impediments that currently cripple so very many of our presbyteries.

(4) The new Form of Government shall provide flexibility at all levels, granting authority while permitting governing bodies to develop the structures to carry out their respective missions.

(5) The FOG Task Force shall be guided by the principles proposed by Recommendations 1–4 from the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church, using those principles as a guide for its own processes and deliberations. They shall incorporate this new Presbyterian ethos into the Form of Government so that it truly functions as the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)'s guidebook for mission.¹

[(6) The Form of Government Task Force will release the proposed revision of the Form of Government, including advisory handbooks, by September 1, 2007.]

b. As the FOG Task Force considers its proposals of the Form of Government, G-6.0106b and G-8.0201 shall be excluded from this process. The 217th General Assembly (2006) has overtures proposing changes in both provisions; such proposals should be considered on their own merits outside of this constitutional renewal project. Both provisions have the capacity to obfuscate the constitutional renewal efforts.

[Financial Implications: (2006): ($15,200; (2007): $22,950; (2008): $0 (Designated OGA)]

2. That the 217th General Assembly (2006) direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed revision of Chapter 14 of the Form of Government (Amendments A) to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes. If the revision is approved, the Stated Clerk shall be authorized to make editorial changes as may be needed to conform other sections of the Book of Order (including internal cross-references) to the changes and report such changes to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

3. That the 217th General Assembly (2006) direct the Stated Clerk to send the following six additional separate amendment possibilities (Amendments B) to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes, and that the Stated Clerk be authorized, for any of these amendments that may be approved, to make editorial changes as may be needed to conform other sections of the Book of Order (including internal cross-references) to the changes and report such changes to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

Summary for Response to Referral of Item 04-12

These recommendations are in response to the following: 2004 Referral: Item 04-12 On Undertaking a Cycle of Consultation Regarding the Form of Government—Office of the General Assembly (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 86).

A. This is the response of the Office of the General Assembly to a referral from the 216th General Assembly (2004), which directed consultation across the denomination regarding interest in a revised Form of Government. This comes after more than fifteen years of requests to substantively revise this part of the Book of Order (see Appendix A). The OGA has widely consulted with many groups in the church and offers this response:

1. A request that a task force be appointed to draft a proposal for a new simplified Form of Government to be brought to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

2. A proposal for immediate simplification of current Chapter 14 of our Form of Government to provide more flexibility to presbyteries in candidacy and minister placements.

3. A proposal for six other amendments to Chapter 14 to be sent, each to be voted upon separately, in response to requests from around the denomination.

B. The parts that make up the response are the following:

1. Proposed Action for the 217th General Assembly (2006) which includes:

a. Recommendation to create the FOG Task Force

b. Recommendation for changes to Chapter 14—gives the recommendations Office of the General Assembly (OGA) makes to the General Assembly to be acted on and the rationale for those recommendations; and includes:

2. Amendments A, contains

a. Amendment A.1.—the changed wording of Chapter 14, (this revision includes a reordering and a simplifying of the current Chapter 14 that does not intend to introduce new or different provisions or practice), and

b. Amendments A.2.—the accompanying amendments to other chapters.

3. Amendments B.1.–6. are individual amendments that will be voted on separately; each contains a short rationale explaining why it is included. They reflect strong desires of many Presbyterians with whom OGA consulted in preparing this response.

4. Table of Contents and Cross-Reference document in new Chapter 14 order, to aid in finding the location of all Chapter 14 paragraphs.

5. Cross-Reference document in current Chapter 14 order, to aid in finding the location of all Chapter 14 paragraphs.

6. Rationale for this response, including Appendix A, which gives the background of fifteen years of requests for change to the Form of Government

C. What is different in the revised Chapter 14?

1. Slightly different numbering of paragraphs.

2. Creation of advisory handbooks; some material will be moved into such handbooks.

3. Condenses inquiry and candidacy processes—moves most details to a handbook.

4. Collapses pastoral positions—installed (permanent or designated) and temporary.

5. Combines certified Christian educators and other certified persons into one section.
6. Moves sections on dissolution of relationship for elders and deacons and release from ordained office to Chapter 6.
7. Moves paragraph on validated ministry to Chapter 11 with similar subject matter.

Rationale

The 216th General Assembly (2004) directed the Office of the General Assembly “[t]o undertake an extensive cycle of consultation with various groups and constituencies within the PC(USA), including but not limited to: governing bodies (sessions, presbyteries, synods), governing body staff, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution, racial ethnic caucuses, youth, women, pastors, new immigrant leaders, and other person or groups interested in the role of the Form of Government in the mission and ministry of the PC(USA)” and “[t]o bring recommendations to the 217th General Assembly (2006)” (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 86). This report is the response of the Office of the General Assembly (OGA) to that referral.

The Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has always been a fluid document, being the living reminder of “‘Ecclesia reformata, semper reformanda,’ that is, ‘The church reformed, always reforming,’ according to the Word of God and the call of the Spirit.”² Virtually every twenty-five years since Presbyterianism came to this continent, the church has “reformed” its Form of Government, the last substantive reformation of it occurring at Reunion in 1983. Over this past decade, the church has consistently called for a new or different Form of Government.³

In 1993, the Special Committee on the Nature of the Church and the Practice of Governance recommended to the 205th General Assembly (1993) that the Book of Order be revised. This resulted in the amendment of G-9.0103 granting powers not mentioned in the Constitution to be reserved to the presbyteries. The assembly also referred further discussion and review to the Advisory Committee on the Constitution (ACC).

Every year from 1993 to 2002, the General Assembly has dealt with business that asked for, referred for more study, or reported on major proposed changes in the Form of Government (for details see Appendix A). The 213th General Assembly (2001) sent to the presbyteries as Amendment 01-H a recommended revision of Chapter 14 in its entirety. Many people maintain that the amendment was defeated because of two details, one which moved the ordination questions into the Directory for Worship, and one which allowed interim pastors to be called to installed positions in limited circumstances.

The Presbytery of St. Augustine overtured the 214th General Assembly (2002) (Overture 02-29) to send a second version of the Chapter 14 revision back to the presbyteries, but without the two offending substantive changes. This recommendation was sent to the OGA for revision, to be reported back to the 217th General Assembly (2006). The OGA presented an interim report to the 216th General Assembly (2004).

During the time since the 216th General Assembly (2004), the OGA, with the able guidance of the Office of Research Services, has undertaken an extensive cycle of information gathering. We have hosted more than thirty focus groups that have been made up of a wide range of participants. More than half of the governing body staff (executive presbyters, stated clerks, associate executives) have participated. A diverse group of Presbyterians involved in new immigrant and racial ethnic ministries (pastors, elders, staff members) took part as well. We spoke with members of a variety of presbytery committees (COMs, CPMs, councils) and the elected members of the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly. In addition, we utilized research survey instruments.

In conducting these consultations, we found an almost universal desire for change in our Form of Government. The great majority of responders hoped that a revision would provide more flexibility in favor of governing bodies and of presbyteries in particular. There was not universal agreement on what else ought to be changed, but two clearly identifiable preferences emerged.

1. There was great interest in an immediate “fix,” namely revising Chapter 14 of the Form of Government to make it shorter and more flexible in favor of presbyteries. Our second proposal is an attempt to do what Overture 02-29 asked in 2002; we have updated Chapter 14.⁴ We propose that the 217th General Assembly (2006) recommend that a whole new Chapter 14 replace the current Chapter 14. We propose that the 217th General Assembly (2006) offer the church as separate options the possibility of moving the ordination questions and allowing some temporary pastors to become installed. In our focus groups, interviews, and surveys the OGA also heard suggestions for a number of substantive changes to Chapter 14, which we suggest the 217th General Assembly (2006) propose as separate amendments. (See Amendments A and B.1.–6. of this report.)

Our consultations described above lead us to believe that the church needs the flexibility that such a revision would provide to presbyteries as soon as possible. Presbyteries are currently, and regularly, facing circumstances where they lack the flexibility to provide the pastoral leadership that is required by their member congregations. We heard great urgency in our consultations for some immediate relief from the regulatory approach currently manifested in Chapter 14, especially in relation to new immigrant fellowships, new church developments, and congregations. We see no inherent conflict in the 217th General Assembly (2006) permitting the presbyteries to vote on this reasonable revision while awaiting the report of a more dramatic revision proposal in 2008. We heard the presbyteries crying for some modest relief during the intervening three years between now and the possible implementation of a dramatically different Form of Government.

2. Approximately two-thirds of the people giving the OGA feedback on this referral wanted much more dramatic changes in the Form of Government.

a. Some advised that the church should divide the current text of the Form of Government into three distinct levels:

- Foundational Principles (which could be changed by a 2/3 vote of a General Assembly and of the presbyteries),
- Binding Policy (which could be changed as our current Book of Order is, with a simple majority of the General Assembly and the presbyteries), and
- Advisory Practice (which could be changed by a simple majority vote by any General Assembly).

Foundational Principle and Binding Policy material would be binding upon all Presbyterians, as is the current Form of Government.⁵

b. Others advised that the church's future requires an even more dramatic change. They would hope for a document that provides a framework within which governing bodies can make decisions that will allow them to move forward in mission. This group longs for a Form of Government that is written "in English," one that would fit in one's pocket (along the lines of the United States Constitution), and one that will cover the essential elements of our governance. They want a polity that is "permission giving" as opposed to regulatory (which is how they describe our current Form of Government.)

3. In reviewing the data from these two groups, the Office of the General Assembly has come to understand both perspectives as asking for an entirely different kind of Form of Government. They call the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to live out its understanding that God is still in the process of reforming us. With each new challenge in our history, the church has always felt free to change its specific governance. The Office of the General Assembly has learned through this consultation process that a very large percentage of the church believes we have come to such a time.

Endnotes

1. Excerpt from the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church final report:

1. The Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) strongly encourage:

a. every member of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to witness to the church's visible oneness, to avoid division into separate denominations that obscure our community in Christ, and to live in harmony with other members of this denomination, so that we may with one voice together glorify God in Jesus Christ, by the power of the Holy Spirit; and

b. all sessions, congregations, presbyteries, and synods to renew and strengthen their covenanted partnership with one another and with the General Assembly.

2. The Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) urge governing bodies, congregations, and other groups of Presbyterians to follow the example of the task force and other groups that, in the face of difficult issues, have engaged in processes of intensive discernment through worship, community building, study, and collaborative work.

3. The Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) commend for study the Theological Reflection that heads the task force report.

4. The Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) direct the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, and urge those who plan and moderate meetings of other governing bodies, to explore the use of alternative forms of discernment and decision-making as a complement to parliamentary procedure, especially in dealing with potentially divisive issues.

3. See Appendix A of this report for details since 1993.

4. We have included the relevant changes to Chapter 14 adopted since 2001, when this chapter was last sent to the presbyteries.

5. The Advisory Committee on the Constitution proposed this format and recommended these levels of authority when it reported to the 211th General Assembly in 1999 (paragraph 16.026ff).

Appendix A History of the Proposal to Revise the Form of Government

Excepted from a writing by Paul K. Hooker October 2005

Presented to the Advisory Committee on the Constitution

The present proposal to revise the Form of Government (FOG) has a lengthy history, beginning with the report of the Special Committee on the Nature of the Church and the Practice of Governance to the 205th General Assembly (1993).¹ As background to the proposal to change G-9.0103 by inserting the word ecclesiastical before the word acts in the penultimate sentence of the section as it stood at the time, the special committee argued for a degree of freedom and diversity among the various governing bodies of the church. It defended the idea that there were some functions—such as the process and standards for ordination—that are and should remain acts and requirements of the whole church. However, in other, less essential matters such as programs and mission initiatives, the special committee argued that a greater degree of freedom and diversity can and should be tolerated. The assembly saw fit to modify the recommended amendment to G-9.0103 by inserting an additional phrase reserving powers unmentioned in the language of the Book of Order to the presbyteries, and the amendment was adopted, providing us the current language of G-9.0103. The assembly also recognized that the discussion of freedom and diversity regarding programs, mission initiatives, etc., might well carry implications for the Form of Government (FOG) that went well beyond the decision to amend G-9.0103, and so it referred this discussion to the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

After hearings and a progress report to the 207th General Assembly (1995),² the ACC recommended to the 206th General Assembly (1996) that the ACC and that it report to the 213th General Assembly (2001) its recommendations.

...prepare proposals for revisions of the Form of Government that will take into consideration the possible division into foundational, policy, and advisory components....³

In the meantime, Overture 97-54 (209th General Assembly (1997)) from the Presbytery of West Virginia requested the General Assembly to “form a committee with the task of rewriting the Form of Government,” the committee was to be instructed to create a Form of Government (FOG)

- that is true to the historic principles of polity in the PCUSA;
- that will serve as a constitutional reference, “encouraging creativity with broad strokes of wisdom;” and
- that will “empower governing bodies... and celebrate the diversity of the church.”⁴

The assembly referred the overture to the Advisory Committee on the Constitution (ACC) with instructions to pursue the existing review process.

The ACC reported back to the 211th General Assembly (1999) on its review process, presenting the assembly with three alternatives for the future direction of its work in revising the FOG.⁵

1. A sample revision of Chapters X and XI (The Session and The Presbytery) that divided material in the current FOG into “Foundational Principles,” “Binding Policy,” and “Advisory Practice.” Foundational Principles could be amended only by supermajority vote of presbyteries. Binding Policies require the “voluntary submission of church officers. Advisory Practices are binding on the General Assembly but voluntary for other governing bodies.”⁶

2. A sample revision of Chapter XI that stated broad “Foundational Principles” and then offered a section entitled “Policies and Procedures” voluntary submission to which would be required of all officers and members.⁷

3. A revision of the entire FOG that reduced the current document to broadly stated Foundational Principles without providing either policies or advisory practices.⁸

The ACC proposed that Alternative Three, if approved, be circulated as a study document to the entire church; the assembly amended the recommendation to refer revision three back to the ACC for additional study, with a report to the 212th General Assembly (2000).

In 2000, the ACC reported to the 212th General Assembly (2000) the results of its research into revisions of the FOG, including a draft revision of G-14.0100–.0800. The revision contemplated the removal of much of the process-oriented material contained in the present Chapter XIV to the status of a handbook. The assembly approved the document for study and comment.⁹

The following year, after a year of comment, the 213th General Assembly (2001) sent to the presbyteries as Amendment 01-H a recommended revision of Chapter XIV drafted along the lines of the previous year’s study document. The amendment was defeated by a vote of 29-141-2.

In February of 2002, the Presbytery of St. Augustine overtured the 214th GA (2002) to send a second version of the Chapter XIV revision back to the presbyteries, but with two changes: (1) to make it impossible for interim pastors immediately to succeed as pastor in those congregation where they have served as interims, and (2) to restore to Chapter XIV the ordination vows for elders, deacons, and ministers of Word and Sacrament that had been removed to the Directory for Worship. Overture 02-29 was debated by the Assembly Committee on Church Polity, which recommended that the overture be referred to the Office of the General Assembly to “pursue this matter with vigor and urgency,” and to report back to the 217th General Assembly (2006) regarding its progress.¹⁰

In its progress report to the 216th GA (2004), the Office of the General Assembly (OGA) recommended to the assembly that it be assigned the task to “undertake an extensive cycle of consultations with various groups within the PC(USA)...interested in the role of the Form of Government in the ministry and mission of the PC(USA)” and that it report on those consultations to the 217th General Assembly (2006).¹¹

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-11

Advice on Item 05-11—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

1. Recommendation 1

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to approve Item 05-11, Recommendation 1.

Rationale

The recommendation proposes the creation of a nine-member Task Force on the Revision of the Form of Government (FOG), to be named by the Moderators of the current and two most recent General Assemblies, and to be charged with the responsibility of undertaking a revision of the Form of Government. The work of the FOG Task Force would be guided by five principles outlined in the text of the recommendation, including recommendations 1–4 of the Theological Task Force on the Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church. Specifically exempted from the revision would be G-6.0106b (the “fidelity and chastity” provision governing ordination and installation) and G-8.0201 (the “implied trust” clause providing that churches hold their property in trust for the benefit of the whole church).

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the General Assembly that there is a continuing need for the kind of revisions contemplated in this recommendation. The committee has on several occasions noted with concern the tendency in recent years for the Book of Order to accrue material that is less appropriate to a constitutional document than to a manual of operations.

2. Recommendation 2

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to approve Item 05-11, Recommendation 2.

Rationale

The recommendation is an omnibus action that would enable the Stated Clerk to send to presbyteries a package of amendments that, taken together, would strike the present contents of Chapter XIV of the Book of Order and replace it with a revised text. The amendments are divided into two groups: Amendments A.1 and A.2, and Amendments B.1 through B.6. Amendment A.1 consists of the strike-and-replace revision of the contents of Chapter XIV; in this revision, considerable process-oriented material would be removed to the status of a handbook and rendered optional. The remaining text would be reorganized and renumbered. Amendment A.2, which consists of five subparts, A.2.a.–e., consists of insertions in the text of Chapter 14. Amendment A.2.a.–e. is dependent on the approval of A.1. If Amendment A.1 is approved and transmitted to presbyteries, Amendment A.2.a.–e. is also approved; conversely, if A.1. is defeated, A.2.a.–e. is also defeated. The two are thus to be voted as a package rather than serially.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution has examined the work of the Office of the General Assembly in revising the contents of Chapter XIV. The committee believes that OGA has faithfully executed its charge to revise and restructure the contents of the chapter without changing the polity.

The effort to revise the Form of Government has a lengthy history. The 206th General Assembly (1996) charged the Advisory Committee on the Constitution to prepare proposals for revision of the Form of Government “that will take into consideration the possible division into foundational, policy, and advisory components...” (Minutes, 1996, Part I, p.285). The outcome of that work was presented to the 212th General Assembly (2000) in the form of a revision of Chapter 14 that contemplated the removal of considerable process-oriented material in the chapter to handbooks that made such processes optional rather than mandatory. After a year of study and comment, the 213th General Assembly (2001) approved the proposal as Amendment 01-H. Included in the proposed 01-H was an amendment approved on the floor permitting interim ministers to succeed as the next installed pastor of a congregation they have served as interim. Research indicates that the inclusion of this late-developing change was part of the reason for the failure of the amendment at the presbytery level. In 2002, the Presbytery of St. Augustine overtured the 214th General Assembly (2002) to return the substance of 01-H to the presbyteries for vote, but without the provision concerning interim pastors. The assembly referred the overture to the Office of the General Assembly for study as part of a study process to examine the wisdom of revising not Chapter 14 only, but the entire Form of Government.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the committee and the assembly that, since these amendments are of a piece and flow together, the assembly would be well served by considering amendment A as a package, rather than to seek to amend various particular provisions in the revised text. Changes to the text of Amendment A will be considered if presented in appropriate form and in a manner consistent with the policies and practices of the assembly. However, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises that, if the committee or commissioners desire to amend particular elements of the revised text of Chapter XIV, this end is best accomplished by adding particular amendments to Amendment B.

3. Recommendation 3

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to approve Item 05-11, Recommendation 3.

Rationale

Amendments B.1. through B.6. are free-standing amendments. Each may be approved for transmittal to the presbyteries or defeated independently of the approval or defeat of Amendment A, or of the other items in Amendment B.

Advice and comments on Amendments B.1 through B.6 will be provided separately for each amendment.

Amendments A

[The assembly approved Item 05-11, Recommendations A.1. and A.2. See pp. 38–39.]

The Office of the General Assembly recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendments (revision of Chapter XIV, and amendments to the Preface and in Chapters VI, IX, and XI to facilitate some of the revisions) to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

1. Amendment A.1.

Shall Chapter XIV be amended by striking the existing text and inserting the following in its place: [Text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“CHAPTER XIV. ORDINATION, CERTIFICATION, AND COMMISSIONING

“G-14.0100 Leadership in the Church

“G-14.0110 Servant Style

“The purpose and pattern of leadership in the church in all its forms of ministry shall be understood not in terms of power but of service, after the manner of the servant ministry of Jesus Christ.

“G-14.0120 Ordained Ministry

“Ordination is the act by which the church sets apart persons to be presbyters (ministers of the Word and Sacrament or elders) or deacons, and is accompanied with prayer and the laying on of hands. Ordination to the office of minister of the Word and Sacrament is an act of the presbytery. Ordination to the offices of elder and deacon is an act of the session, except that when a new church is organized, the presbytery may examine, ordain, and install the officers. (G-7.0202)

“G-14.0130 Certified Ministry

“Persons called to particular service in the church may be certified by recognized agencies affiliated with the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) as having achieved proficiency in their field of expertise. The congregation and presbytery, in appropriate services, may recognize such certification. (See G-14.0700.)

“G-14.0140 Commissioned Ministry

“In the life of the Christian community God calls people to particular acts of discipleship to use their personal gifts for service in the Church and in the world. These specific acts may be strengthened and confirmed by formal recognition and commissioning in worship. (W-4.3000)

“G-14.0200 Preparation for the Office of Elder and Deacon“G-14.0210 The Office of Elder or Deacon

“The office of elder or deacon is perpetual and no one can lay it aside at pleasure or be divested of it except as provided in this Form of Government or the Rules of Discipline. Elders or deacons are not divested of office when rotating out of active service on the session or board of deacons, or by ceasing to be a member of that church. Elders shall be entitled to be commissioners to presbytery from the particular church of which they are members if appointed by its session and to serve as a commissioner to the synod or the General Assembly when duly elected, whether or not they are in active service on the session.

“G-14.0220 Election Provisions“G-14.0221 Fair Representation

“Every congregation shall elect men and women from among its active members, giving fair representation to persons of all ages and of all racial ethnic backgrounds and to persons with disabilities who are members of that congregation, to the office of elder and to the office of deacon (if used in the congregation).

“G-14.0222 Terms

“An elder serving on session, or a deacon on a board of deacons, shall be elected for a term of no more than three years, and service in consecutive terms, either full or partial, shall be limited to six years. An elder or deacon having served a total of six years shall be ineligible for reelection to the same board for a period of at least one year. A particular church may provide for a period of ineligibility after one full term. Elders or deacons shall be elected in two or three classes as nearly equal in number as possible, of which only one shall expire each year. Terms of elders or deacons shall expire when their successors have been ordained and installed.

“G-14.0223 Nominating Committee

“Nominations shall be made by a representative nominating committee of active members of the church. The committee shall itself include both women and men, giving fair representation to persons of all age groups, of all racial ethnic members, and of persons with disabilities who are members of that congregation. At least two members of this committee shall be elders designated by the session, one of whom shall be currently on the session and serve as moderator of the committee. At least one member of this committee shall be designated by and from the board of deacons, if the church has deacons. Other members of the committee, in sufficient number to constitute a majority thereof (exclusive of the pastor), shall be chosen by the congregation or by such organizations within the church as the congregation may designate, none of whom may be in active service on the session or in active service on the board of deacons. The pastor shall be a member of this committee, serving ex officio and without vote.

“G-14.0224 Elected Annually

“The nominating committee shall be elected by the congregation annually and no member of the committee shall serve more than three years consecutively.

“G-14.0225 Nominating Procedures

“All nominating procedures shall be subject to the principles of participation and representation as stated in G-4.0403 and G-9.0104.

“G-14.0226 Exemptions for Certain Congregations

“The presbytery may approve requests by congregations for exemption from certain of these rules, subject to review periodically by the presbytery, which may grant or revoke its approval:

“a. When a particular church is unable to conform to the provisions of G-14.0221, it shall request of presbytery a waiver, stating the reasons for noncompliance and shall outline a plan for steps to compliance. Presbytery may grant the waiver of G-14.0221 by three-fourths vote and for not more than three years, subject to renewal by a three-fourths vote and to revocation by a majority vote.

“b. Any congregation of fewer than seventy members, at a regular congregational meeting, may request approval from the presbytery to elect a small church nominating committee, which shall consist of one member of the session, appointed by the session to be the moderator, and at least two members of the congregation not in active service on the session. The pastor shall be a member ex officio and without vote. Other provisions of fair representation and length of service continue to apply.

“c. If in any church it is impossible because of limited membership to provide for the rotation of terms, the congregation may request a waiver of the limitations on reelection after six years. The presbytery may grant the exemption by majority vote for three years at a time, subject to renewal or revocation at any time by majority vote.

“G-14.0230 Congregational Meeting

“The election of elders and deacons shall take place at a meeting of the congregation called for that purpose by the session (G-7.0302).

“G-14.0231 Purpose of the Meeting

“The moderator shall explain the purpose of the meeting.

“G-14.0232 Nominations from the Floor

“Full opportunity shall always be given to the congregation for nominations by any active member of the church present at the meeting. Persons to be nominated from the floor shall have given prior permission to be nominated and declared assent to serve if elected, or, if present, shall be asked to declare willingness to serve.

“G-14.0233 Ballots

“When the number of nominees equals the number of elders and deacons to be elected, the congregation may vote by voice vote or show of hands. When the number of nominees is greater than the number of elders and deacons to be elected, the congregation shall vote by secret ballot. A majority of all the voters present and voting shall be required to elect.

“G-14.0240 Preparation and Examination for Office

“When persons have been elected to the office of elder or deacon, the session shall confer with them as to their willingness to undertake the office. The session shall provide for a period of study and preparation, after which the session shall examine the officers-elect as to their personal faith; knowledge of the doctrine, government, and discipline contained in the Constitution of the church; and the duties of the office. If the examination is approved, the session shall appoint a day for the service of ordination and installation (see G-14.0300). If the examination is not approved for one or more elected officers, the session shall report its action to the congregation’s nominating committee, which shall bring nomination(s) to a meeting of the congregation for any office(s) not filled.

“G-14.0300 Ordination as Officers of the Church

“G-14.0310 Service of Ordination, Installation, and Commissioning

“The service of ordination and installation for elders, deacons, or ministers of the Word and Sacrament, and for the commissioning of certified Christian educators, certified persons and commissioned lay pastors, shall focus upon Christ and the joy and responsibility of serving him through the mission and ministry of the church, and shall include a sermon appropriate to the occasion. The minister presiding shall state briefly the nature of the office.

“G-14.0320 Setting of the Service

“The service of ordination and installation, or commissioning, may take place during the Service for the Lord’s Day as a response to the proclamation of the Word. (W-3.3503) Ordination and installation, or commissioning, may also take place in a special service that focuses upon Jesus Christ and the mission and ministry of the church and which includes the proclamation of the Word. The service of installation of a pastor or associate pastor shall be conducted at a convenient time to enable the substantial participation of the presbytery.

“G-14.0330 Constitutional Questions to Officers and Commissioned Persons

“The moderator of the governing body of those to be ordained, installed, or commissioned shall ask them to stand before the-body of membership and to answer the following questions:

“a. Do you trust in Jesus Christ your Savior, acknowledge him Lord of all and Head of the Church, and through him believe in one God, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit?

“b. Do you accept the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments to be, by the Holy Spirit, the unique and authoritative witness to Jesus Christ in the Church universal, and God’s Word to you?

“c. Do you sincerely receive and adopt the essential tenets of the Reformed faith as expressed in the confessions of our church as authentic and reliable expositions of what Scripture leads us to believe and do, and will you be instructed and led by those confessions as you lead the people of God?

“d. Will you fulfill your office in obedience to Jesus Christ, under the authority of Scripture, and be continually guided by our confessions?

“e. Will you be governed by our church’s polity, and will you abide by its discipline? Will you be a friend among your colleagues in ministry, working with them, subject to the ordering of God’s Word and Spirit?

“f. Will you in your own life seek to follow the Lord Jesus Christ, love your neighbors, and work for the reconciliation of the world?

“g. Do you promise to further the peace, unity, and purity of the church?

“h. Will you seek to serve the people with energy, intelligence, imagination, and love?

“i. (1) (For elder) Will you be a faithful elder, watching over the people, providing for their worship, nurture, and service? Will you share in government and discipline, serving in governing bodies of the church, and in your ministry will you try to show the love and justice of Jesus Christ?

“(2) (For deacon) Will you be a faithful deacon, teaching charity, urging concern, and directing the people’s help to the friendless and those in need, and in your ministry will you try to show the love and justice of Jesus Christ?

“(3) (For minister of the Word and Sacrament) Will you be a faithful minister, proclaiming the good news in Word and Sacrament, teaching faith and caring for people? Will you be active in government and discipline, serving in the governing bodies of the church; and in your ministry will you try to show the love and justice of Jesus Christ?

“(4) (For commissioned lay pastor) Will you be a faithful commissioned lay pastor, serving the people by proclaiming the good news, teaching faith and caring for the people, and in your ministry will you try to show the love and justice of Jesus Christ?

“(5) (For certified Christian educator) Will you be a faithful certified Christian educator, teaching faith and caring for people, and will you in your ministry try to show the love and justice of Jesus Christ?

“G-14.0340 Ordination or Installation of Elders or Deacons

“At the service of ordination or installation of elders and deacons

“G-14.0341 Questions to Congregation

“The elders- and deacons-elect having answered in the affirmative, an elder shall stand with them before the congregation and shall ask the congregation to answer the following questions:

“a. Do we, the members of the church, accept (names) _____ as elders or deacons, chosen by God through the voice of this congregation to lead us in the way of Jesus Christ?

“b. Do we agree to encourage them, to respect their decisions, and to follow as they guide us, serving Jesus Christ, who alone is Head of the Church?

“G-14.0342 Prayer and Laying on of Hands

“The members of the church having answered these questions in the affirmative, those to be ordained shall kneel, if able, for prayer and the laying on of hands by the session. Those previously ordained ordinarily shall stand, along with the congregation, if able, for the prayer of installation. The session may invite other elders and ministers of the Word and Sacrament to participate in the laying on of hands.

“G-14.0343 Statement

“The moderator shall say to those who have thus been ordained and installed:

“You are now elders and deacons in the Church of Jesus Christ and for this congregation. Whatever you do, in word or deed, do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him. Amen.

“G-14.0344 Session Welcomes

“Then the members of the session, and others as may be appropriate, shall welcome the newly ordained and installed, or newly installed, elders and deacons into their fellowship in ministry.

“G-14.0345 Congregation Greets

“After the service, it is appropriate for the members of the congregation to greet their new elders and deacons, showing affection and support.

“G-14.0400 Preparation for the Office of Minister of the Word and Sacrament

“G-14.0401 Presbytery Responsibility for Inquiry and Candidacy

“It is important that those who are to be ordained as ministers of the Word and Sacrament receive full preparation for their task under the direction of the committee on preparation for ministry. (G-9.0902) For this purpose, presbyteries shall enter into covenant relationship with those preparing to become ministers of the Word and Sacrament. This relationship shall be divided into the two phases of inquiry and candidacy.

“G-14.0402 Advisory Handbook

“The process and requirements for the inquiry and the candidacy phases shall be provided in an advisory handbook developed and updated as needed by the appropriate General Assembly agencies in consultation with the Office of the General Assembly, which the presbytery may adopt or modify to establish its own mandatory procedures. (G-9.0405)

“G-14.0403 Time Requirements

“An inquirer shall have been a member of the sponsoring congregation for at least six months prior to the inquirer phase. The inquirer and candidacy phases shall continue for a period of no less than two years, including at least one year as a candidate.

“G-14.0404 Inquiry Phase

“The purpose of the inquiry phase is to provide an opportunity for the church and those who believe themselves called to ministry of the Word and Sacrament to explore that call together in such a way that the decision regarding the inquirer’s suitability for ministry of the Word and Sacrament will be based on knowledge and experience of one another.

“G-14.0405 Candidacy Phase

“The purpose of the candidacy phase is to provide for the full preparation of persons to serve the church as ministers of the Word and Sacrament. This shall be accomplished through the guidance and evaluation of candidates, using learning contacts within the context of supportive relationships.

“G-14.0410 Duties of Presbytery and Session

“The presbytery, through a committee on preparation for ministry, shall seek to instruct sessions on their role in the inquiry and candidacy process. Particular direction shall be given a session that has endorsed an inquirer or candidate.

“G-14.0411 Oversight

“During the phases of inquiry and candidacy, the individual continues to be an active member of his or her particular church and subject to the concern and discipline of the session. In matters relating to preparation for ministry, the individual is under the oversight of the presbytery through the committee on preparation for ministry.

“G-14.0412 Presbytery Responsibility

“The presbytery shall exercise responsibility for the spiritual growth of inquirers and candidates, to support them with an understanding and sympathetic interest, and to give guidance in regard to courses of study, familiarity with the Bible and with the confessions, practical training and plans for education including the choice of institutions, field education, and the inquirer’s or candidate’s financial need. The presbytery shall also seek to give guidance and instruction to the inquirer or candidate in the faith and polity of the church (G-6.0108).

“G-14.0413 Session Responsibility

“The session shall function in a supportive role during the phases of inquiry and candidacy to ensure that care is provided on a continuous basis. The session shall appoint an elder from the church to be a liaison with the inquirer or candidate and the appropriate presbytery committee. The session should consider the provision of financial support for the inquirer or candidate.

“G-14.0420 Service in Covenant Relationship

“The committee on preparation for ministry shall monitor the covenant among presbytery and inquirers and candidates and the session. Inquirers and candidates shall be encouraged to engage in some form of supervised service to the church. The advisory handbook for committees on preparation for ministry shall provide guidance for supervision, evaluation, and reports on the service and preparation for ministry of inquirers and candidates. No inquirer or candidate who has not been previously ordained as an elder may serve as moderator of a session, administer the Sacraments, or perform a marriage service. An inquirer or candidate previously ordained as an elder may be authorized to administer the Lord’s Supper. (See G-6.0304, G-7.0306, G-10.0103, G-11.0103z, and G-14.0562.)

“G-14.0421 Annual Reports

“The presbytery shall require the inquirer or candidate to submit an annual written report on progress in studies and service to the church. The seminary or institution of theological education shall make an annual report on the progress of the inquirer or candidate toward preparation for ministry. The presbytery shall conduct an annual consultation for the evaluation and nurture of the inquirer or candidate. In no case shall an inquirer or candidate be excused from these annual consultations.

“G-14.0430 Examinations“G-14.0431 Five Ordination Exams

“Inquirers or candidates are encouraged to take the Bible Content Examination in their first year of seminary. The other four examinations may be taken by inquirers or candidates after completion of two full years of theological education. These four examinations shall only be taken upon approval by the committee on preparation for ministry of the inquirer’s or candidate’s presbytery. The areas of examinations are:

- “a. Bible Content.*
- “b. Open Book Bible Exegesis.*
- “c. Theological Competence.*
- “d. Worship and Sacraments.*
- “e. Church Polity.*

“G-14.0432 Grading the Exams

“The examinations required in the five specified areas shall be graded by representatives of the presbyteries under the supervision of the Presbyteries’ Cooperative Committee on Examinations for Candidates as provided in G-11.0103m. Descriptions of the examinations, the subjects, the schedule, and the procedures for their administration shall be prepared by the Presbyteries’ Cooperative Committee and approved by the General Assembly.

“G-14.0440 Negotiation for Service

“A candidate who has completed two full years of theological education or its equivalent, who has had an annual consultation within the previous year, and who has successfully completed all ordination examinations or has received presbytery’s certification of readiness according to G-14.0472 may, with approval of the committee on preparation for ministry (CPM) and the appropriate committee on ministry, enter into negotiation for his or her ministerial service. For candidates who have not yet completed the two years of theological education or successfully completed all ordination examinations, the presbytery of care may, by three-fourths vote, permit a candidate to proceed to negotiate for service prior to certification of readiness to receive a call.

“G-14.0450 Final Assessment of Readiness to Begin Ordained Ministry

“In the final year of theological education or when a candidate has satisfied all of the requirements of this section, and before the candidate has received a call, the committee on preparation for ministry of the candidate’s presbytery shall conduct a final assessment of the candidate’s readiness to begin ordained ministry. A summary of this assessment shall be reported to the presbytery and shall be transmitted to a calling presbytery when requested. The committee on preparation for ministry shall report to the presbytery when it has certified a candidate ready for examination for ordination, pending a call. This consultation shall focus on the outcomes of inquiry and candidacy and shall include each of the following requirements of certification:

- “a. demonstration of readiness to begin ministry of the Word and Sacrament as required to fulfill the candidacy phase of preparation.*
- “b. presentation of a transcript showing satisfactory grades at a regionally accredited college or university, together with a diploma;*
- “c. presentation of a transcript from a theological institution accredited by the Association of Theological Schools acceptable to the presbytery, the transcript showing satisfactory grades, and presentation of a plan to complete the theological degree including Hebrew and Greek and exegesis of the Old and New Testaments using Hebrew and Greek texts;*
- “d. presentation of satisfactory grades together with the examination papers in the five areas covered by the Presbyteries’ Cooperative Committee on Examinations for Candidates.*

“G-14.0460 Transfer of or Removal from Covenant Relationship“G-14.0461 Transfer of Relationship

“A presbytery may transfer the covenant relationship of an inquirer or candidate to another presbytery, but only with the approval of the receiving presbytery and the inquirer or candidate. An inquirer or candidate shall not transfer her or his membership to a particular church under the jurisdiction of another presbytery without the approval of the presbytery responsible for the person's preparation for ministry. Whenever a presbytery approves such a transfer, it shall send to the other presbytery a certificate of its approval, its records concerning the individual, and the reasons for the request for transfer. Failure of an inquirer or candidate to follow this procedure shall result in the forfeiture of standing as an inquirer or candidate. No presbytery may restore the candidate's status except by beginning again at the inquiry phase.

“G-14.0462 Another Reformed Body

“When a candidate is called to work under the jurisdiction of some other Reformed body, he or she may be dismissed as a candidate by certification. Likewise, candidates may be received for this purpose from other Reformed bodies by transfer of certificate.

“G-14.0463 Removal from Relationship

“An inquirer or candidate may, after consultation with the session and the committee on preparation for ministry, withdraw from covenant relationship. A presbytery may also, for sufficient reasons, remove an individual's name from the roll of inquirers or candidates, reporting this action and the reasons to the session, to the individual, and, if appropriate, to the educational institution in which the individual is enrolled. In both instances, prior to final action, the committee on preparation for ministry shall make a reasonable attempt to give the inquirer or candidate and other parties of interest an opportunity to be heard by that committee.

“G-14.0470 Extraordinary Circumstances

“All of the requirements for final assessment shall be met except in the following extraordinary circumstances:

“G-14.0471 Educational Requirements

“If the inquirer's or candidate's presbytery judges that there are good and sufficient reasons why certain of the educational requirements should not be met by an inquirer or candidate, it shall make an exception only by three-fourths vote of the members of presbytery present. A full account of the reasons for such an exception shall be included in the minutes of presbytery and shall be communicated to the presbytery to which the inquirer or candidate may be transferred. The successful completion of the course of study specified in such an exception shall fulfill the requirements for the final assessment of readiness to begin ministry.

“G-14.0472 Examination Requirements

“The examination requirements of G-14.0431 shall not be waived until an inquirer or candidate has failed on two attempts to receive a satisfactory grade, unless the inquirer or candidate has a disability, documented by a person or persons of the presbytery's choice, which disability affects the individual's test-taking ability. If the presbytery believes that the person should be certified as ready for examination for ordination, pending a call, it shall authorize an exception only by a three-fourths vote of the members of the presbytery present, and must determine an alternate means whereby it will satisfy itself of competence in the area(s) of difficulty. When the individual successfully completes the alternate pattern, the presbytery may certify readiness in the usual manner. The minutes of presbytery shall contain a full record of the reasons for the exception and the alternate pattern for determining competence. Presbyteries shall submit to the synod the process by which a candidate, who has failed one or more examinations twice, or who has such a documented disability, would be examined. Once that process has been approved, presbyteries may proceed with particular candidates, and note such exemptions in their minutes on each occasion. Such processes will be reviewed every three years.

“G-14.0473 Time Requirements

“The time requirements of the inquiry phase shall not be waived unless the presbytery judges that there are good and sufficient reasons why the time requirement should not be met by an inquirer or candidate. It shall make an exception only by three-fourths vote of the members of the presbytery present. A full account of the reasons for such an exception shall be included in the minutes of presbytery and shall be communicated to the presbytery to which the inquirer or candidate may be transferred. Under no circumstances shall the time requirement be less than one year.

“G-14.0474 If Transferred

“The foregoing exceptions shall hold if the presbytery has received the inquirer or candidate from another presbytery that approved the exemption of any of these requirements, the reception of the candidate having confirmed the action of the dismissing presbytery.

“G-14.0480 Ordination an Act of the Whole Church “Ordination for the office of minister of the Word and Sacrament is an act of the whole church carried out by the presbytery, setting apart a person to the ministry of the Word and Sacrament.

“G-14.0481 Place of Examination and Ordination

“The presbytery placing the call to a candidate for ministry shall ordinarily examine and, contingent upon the candidate’s successful completion of that examination and all requirements in G-14.0450, the presbytery responsible for the candidate’s preparation for ministry shall ordinarily ordain the candidate.

“G-14.0482 Examination for Ordination

“The candidate shall appear before the presbytery and shall make a brief statement of personal faith and of commitment to the ministry of the Word and Sacrament. The presbytery shall receive the report of its appropriate committee that the candidate has completed all requirements, and has been certified ready for ordination pending approval of the call. The report shall include a summary of waivers and exceptions of requirements granted. The presbytery may conduct further examination of the candidate’s Christian faith and views in theology, the Bible, the Sacraments, and the government of the church as it deems necessary. If the presbytery is fully satisfied of the candidate’s qualifications, it shall approve the call and vote to proceed to his or her ordination and installation.

“G-14.0483 Presbytery of Call

“The presbytery of call shall certify to the presbytery responsible for the candidate’s preparation for ministry that the candidate has been approved for ordination and installation. Ordinarily, the presbytery responsible for the candidate’s preparation for ministry shall ordain the candidate. (See G-14.0300.) Following the ordination, the stated clerk of the ordaining presbytery shall record the action, notify the session of the particular church of which the candidate has been a member so that the session may record the fact that the candidate is now ordained and has been transferred to the roll of the presbytery, and issue a letter of dismissal to the calling presbytery, which shall enroll the minister and proceed to install the minister.

“G-14.0484 Agreement on Place of Ordination

“The presbyteries and the candidate may agree that the ordination take place in the calling presbytery, in which case the presbytery may ordain and install the candidate at the same time at a service of worship in the presence of the calling congregation.

“G-14.0485 Recording the Ordination

“The presbytery shall record the ordination and installation as a part of its official records along with the acceptance and subscription of the new minister to the obligations undertaken in the ordination vows. It shall also be the duty of the stated clerk of the presbytery to enroll the newly ordained minister as a member of the presbytery and to report these actions to the Office of the General Assembly.

“G-14.0490 Ordination of Minister of the Word and Sacrament

“At the service of ordination to the office of minister of the Word and Sacrament

“G-14.0491 Ordination Questions

“The presbytery shall utilize the ordination questions laid out at G-14.0300, using these words for Question i: Will you be a faithful minister, proclaiming the good news in Word and Sacrament, teaching faith and caring for people? Will you be active in government and discipline, serving in the governing bodies of the church; and in your ministry will you try to show the love and justice of Jesus Christ?

“G-14.0492 Prayer and Laying on of Hands

“The candidate, having answered the questions in the affirmative, shall kneel, if able, and the presbytery, or presbytery commission, shall, with prayer and the laying on of hands, ordain the candidate to the office of minister of the Word and Sacrament. The member presiding shall then say:

“(Name) _____, you are now ordained a minister of the Word and Sacrament in the church of Jesus Christ. Whatever you do, in word or deed, do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him. Amen.”

“G-14.0493 Presbytery Welcomes

“Then the members of the presbytery, and others as may be appropriate, shall welcome the new minister into the ministry of the Word and Sacrament. At the conclusion of the ordination service, the new minister may make a brief statement and shall pronounce the benediction.”

“G-14.0500 Pastoral Relations

“G-14.0501 Installed or Temporary Relations

“Every church should have the pastoral services of a minister of the Word and Sacrament. The pastoral relations that may exist between a particular church and a minister of the Word and Sacrament are installed (permanent or designated) or temporary relations (see G-14.0550).”

“G-14.0510 Installed Pastoral Relations

“G-14.0511 Permanent Pastoral Relations

“A permanent pastoral relationship of pastor or associate pastor, full or part-time, is established by vote of the presbytery or its committee on ministry to approve the call to a minister of the Word and Sacrament elected by vote of the congregation. A pastor or associate pastor is installed by the presbytery and is a member of the session. The call approved by the presbytery cannot be changed or dissolved except by consent of the presbytery, at the request of the pastor or associate pastor, at the request of the church by action of the congregation, or when the presbytery, after consultation with the minister and the congregation, finds that the church’s mission under the Word imperatively demands it.”

“G-14.0512 Co-Pastors

“A congregation may call more than one minister to serve as pastor or associate pastor, sharing duties within the congregation as agreed upon by the session and approved by the presbytery, using co-pastor or co-associate pastor or other suitable titles. When there are co-pastors, the presbytery, the ministers, and the session shall agree on a schedule for sharing the times each will moderate. When a particular church has two pastors serving as co-pastors and the relationship of one of them is dissolved, the other remains as pastor of the church.”

“G-14.0513 Succession and Extraordinary Circumstances

“The official relationship of an associate pastor to a church is not dependent upon that of a pastor, but an associate pastor is not eligible to be the next installed pastor in a church that they have served together, or to be called as pastor to serve as co-pastor of that church, except in churches that currently have a co-pastor model in place which has been in effect for at least three years and the congregation desires to continue such a model. An associate pastor shall be directed in his or her work by the pastor in consultation with the session.”

“G-14.0520 Designated Pastoral Relations

“G-14.0521 Calling a Designated Pastor

“A designated pastoral relationship, full or part-time, is a call to a minister of the Word and Sacrament established by the presbytery for a term of not less than two nor more than four years. The congregation and the minister must both have agreed to be considered for a designated relationship. The congregation’s pastoral nominating committee shall nominate to the congregation for its consideration and vote, only from among those ministers designated to it by the presbytery’s committee on ministry. The minister is installed by the presbytery and is a member of the session.”

“G-14.0522 Renewing or Ending the Call

“The call approved by the presbytery is renewable anytime during the last six months of the term, and cannot be changed or dissolved except by consent of the presbytery, at the request of the pastor; or at the request of the church by action of the congregation, when the presbytery, after consultation with the minister and the congregation finds that the church’s mission under the Word imperatively demands it, or when the term specified in the call expires without action.”

having been taken to renew the call. The presbytery may designate and the congregation may call more than one minister to serve as designated pastor, sharing duties within the congregation as agreed upon by the session and approved by the presbytery. When there is more than one pastor, the ministers and the session shall agree on a schedule for sharing the times each will moderate.

“G-14.0523 Designated Pastor to Pastor

“If there has been an open search process conducted by the committee on ministry and after at least two years of the designated pastor relationship, upon the concurrence of the committee on ministry, the designated pastor, and the session, acting in place of the pastor nominating committee for the single purpose of calling the designated pastor as pastor, a congregational meeting may be held to call the designated pastor as pastor. The session, with the concurrence of the committee on ministry, may call a congregational meeting to elect a pastor nominating committee to conduct a full pastoral search or to prosecute the call to the designated pastor to become pastor. The action of the congregation shall be reported to the presbytery. If the congregational action is affirmative, the presbytery, after voting to approve the new pastoral relationship, shall install the designated pastor as pastor.

“G-14.0530 Election of a Pastor or Associate Pastor

“When a church is without a pastor, or has a vacancy in an associate pastor position, or after the effective date of the dissolution of the pastoral relationship, the congregation shall, with the guidance and permission of the committee on ministry (G-11.0502d), proceed to elect a pastor or associate pastor in the following manner.

“G-14.0531 Pastor Nominating Committee

“The session shall call a congregational meeting to elect a pastor nominating committee, which shall be representative of the whole congregation. This committee’s duty shall be to nominate a minister to the congregation for election as pastor or associate pastor. Public notice of the time, place, and purpose of the meeting to elect the pastor nominating committee shall be given in accord with G-7.0303b.

“G-14.0532 Confer with Committee on Ministry

“The pastor nominating committee shall confer with the committee on ministry as provided in G-11.0502d. When the committee is ready to report to the congregation, it shall notify the session, which shall call a congregational meeting in accord with G-7.0303b. The action of the congregation, if favorable, shall be presented to the presbytery for its concurrence.

“G-14.0533 Signing the Call

“Persons shall be elected by the vote of the congregation to sign the call and to present and prosecute the call before the presbytery. The moderator of the meeting shall certify to the presbytery that those signing the call were properly elected and that the call was in all other respects prepared as constitutionally required.

“G-14.0534 Terms of the Call

“The presbytery shall ensure that the call meets the requirements of federal and state tax laws and fully discloses the compensation of the minister. If the minister is obligated to fulfill military commitments during a period of pastoral service, an agreement should be added to the terms of call for that obligation and potential mobilization. If the call is for less than full time, the precise terms of the contract should be indicated. The terms of call shall always provide for compensation that meets or exceeds any minimum requirements of the presbytery in effect when the call is made, and the congregation’s obligation to review the adequacy of the minister’s compensation and adjust the compensation to meet changes in the presbytery’s requirements as amended from time to time. The call shall include participation in the Benefits Plan of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), including both pension and medical coverage, or any successor plan approved by the General Assembly.

“G-14.0540 Installation of Minister

“Every Christian is called by God to serve the church; however, God calls some persons to serve the church in particular and specific ways in congregations. When the congregation, the presbytery, and the minister (or candidate) have all concurred in a call to a permanent or designated pastoral position, the presbytery shall complete the call process by organizing and conducting the service of installation. Installation is an act of the presbytery establishing the pastoral relationship. A commission may be appointed to act for the presbytery.

“G-14.0541 Installation Service

“On the day designated for the installation, the presbytery or commission appointed for this purpose shall convene and shall call the congregation gathered to worship. The service shall have the same focus and form as the service of ordination and the person being installed shall be asked to answer the questions asked at the time of ordination. (G-14.0300)

“G-14.0542 Questions for Congregation

“Following the affirmative answers to the questions asked of the person being installed, an elder shall face the congregation along with the pastor-elect (associate pastor-elect) and shall ask them to answer the following questions:

“a. Do we, the members of the church, accept (Name) _____ as our pastor (associate pastor), chosen by God through the voice of this congregation to guide us in the way of Jesus Christ?

“b. Do we agree to encourage him (her), to respect his (her) decisions, and to follow as he (she) guides us, serving Jesus Christ, who alone is Head of the Church?

“c. Do we promise to pay him (her) fairly and provide for his (her) welfare as he (she) works among us; to stand by him (her) in trouble and share his (her) joys? Will we listen to the word he (she) preaches, welcome his (her) pastoral care, and honor his (her) authority as he (she) seeks to honor and obey Jesus Christ our Lord?

“G-14.0543 Installation of Minister

“The members of the congregation having answered these questions in the affirmative,

“a. a candidate being ordained and installed shall kneel, if able, and the presbytery shall, with prayer and the laying on of hands, ordain the candidate to the office of minister of the Word and Sacrament and install him or her in the particular pastoral responsibility.

“b. a minister, previously ordained, who is being installed ordinarily shall stand, if able, for the laying on of hands and the prayer of installation.

“G-14.0544 Statement to Minister

“The member presiding shall then say:

“a. (For one being ordained and installed) (Name) _____, you are now a minister of the Word and Sacrament in the Church of Jesus Christ and for this congregation. Whatever you do, in word or deed, do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him. Amen.

“b. (For a minister previously ordained) (Name) _____, you are now a minister of the Word and Sacrament in and for this congregation. Whatever you do, in word or deed, do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him. Amen.

“G-14.0545 Welcome

“Then the members of the presbytery, and others as may be appropriate, shall welcome the newly ordained and installed or newly installed minister into their fellowship in the ministry of the Word and Sacrament.

“G-14.0546 Charge

“Persons invited by the presbytery may then give brief charges to the pastor (associate pastor) and to the congregation to be faithful in their relationship and in their reciprocal responsibilities.

“G-14.0547 Benediction

“At the conclusion of the service, the newly installed minister may make a brief statement and shall pronounce the benediction.

“G-14.0550 Temporary Pastoral Relations

“All temporary relationships of a minister of the Word and Sacrament, full-time or part-time, are established by the session or commission of the presbytery with the approval of the presbytery through its committee on ministry. These temporary relationships have titles appropriate to the ministerial tasks to which the minister is called, such as stated supply, temporary supply, organizing pastor, interim pastor, and others. A minister serving in a temporary pastoral relationship is called for a specified period not to exceed twelve months in length, which is renewable with the approval of the committee on ministry. A written agreement, covenant, or terms of call signed by the minister, the clerk of session or presbytery commission, and a representative of the committee on ministry shall specify the pastoral functions, compensation, and any special skills or training required for the ministry. A temporary pastor is not installed and is not a member of the session. The presbytery shall appoint a moderator of the session who may be the temporary pastor.

“G-14.0551 May Not Become Next Installed Pastor

“A minister serving in a temporary pastoral relationship other than organizing pastor is not eligible to serve that church in the next permanent or designated pastoral relationship. A presbytery may choose to allow a temporary supply to become the next installed pastor by a two-thirds vote of the presbytery.

“G-14.0552 Organizing Pastors

“An organizing pastor is a minister or commissioned lay pastor appointed by the presbytery to serve as pastor to a group of people who are in the process of organizing a new Presbyterian church. This relationship as organizing pastor shall terminate when the new church is formally organized by the presbytery. At that time the new church may, with the approval of the committee on ministry and the presbytery, call the organizing pastor to be its pastor without being required to elect a pastor nominating committee and conduct a pastoral search, or it may choose to elect a pastor nominating committee and conduct a full pastoral search as provided in the Form of Government.

“G-14.0553 Interim Pastoral Relations

“When a presbytery and session determine that an interim pastor, interim co-pastor, or interim associate pastor is necessary and helpful, the session may consult the committee on ministry and seek an interim minister as soon as a date certain for departure has been announced by a pastor or associate pastor planning to leave. An interim pastor, interim co-pastor, or interim associate pastor is not eligible to serve that church as the next permanent or designated pastor.

“G-14.0560 Commissioned Lay Pastor

“The commissioned lay pastor is an elder of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), who is granted a local commission by the presbytery to lead worship and preach the gospel, watch over the people, and provide for their nurture and service. This commission is valid only in one or more congregations, new church development, or other validated ministries of the presbytery designated by the presbytery. Such an elder is selected by and receives training approved by the presbytery. The elder shall be instructed in Bible, Reformed Theology and Sacraments, Presbyterian Polity, preaching, leading worship, pastoral care, and teaching. The elder shall be examined by the appropriate committee of presbytery as to personal faith, motives for seeking the commission, and the areas of instruction mentioned previously. An elder who has been commissioned and later ceases to serve in a particular congregation may continue to be listed as available to serve, but is not authorized to perform the functions of a commissioned lay pastor again until appointed to a particular congregation by the presbytery.

“G-14.0561 Period Valid

“The commission shall be valid for a period up to three years as determined by the presbytery. It may be renewed at expiration or terminated at any time at the discretion of the presbytery. Presbytery shall regularly provide resources for the person’s spiritual and intellectual development. A review of the work of the commissioned lay pastor shall be conducted annually. Presbytery shall revoke the commission of any lay pastor who does not abide by these provisions or whose work is evaluated as not adequate to meet the needs of the particular congregation or the presbytery.

“G-14.0562 Authorization to Perform Functions

“When a presbytery, in consultation with the session or other responsible committee, determines that its strategy for mission in a local church requires it, and after additional instruction deemed necessary by the presbytery has been provided, a presbytery may authorize a commissioned lay pastor to perform any or all of the following functions described in a.– e. below.

“a. Administer the Lord’s Supper.

“b. Administer the Sacrament of Baptism.

“c. Moderate the session of the congregation under the supervision of and when invited by the moderator of the session appointed by the presbytery, or when appointed by presbytery as moderator.

“d. Perform a service of Christian marriage when invited by the session or other responsible committee, and when allowed by the state.

“e. Have a voice and vote in meetings of the presbytery (such vote to be counted as an elder commissioner for purposes of parity).

“G-14.0563 Pastoral Care and Confidentiality

“Those serving as commissioned lay pastors shall be bound by the same standards of trust and confidentiality as ministers of the Word and Sacrament (G-6.0204).

“G-14.0564 Supervision

“The commissioned lay pastor shall work under the supervision of the presbytery through the moderator of the session of the church being served or through the committee on ministry. A minister of the Word and Sacrament shall be assigned as a mentor and supervisor.

“G-14.0565 Questions Asked

“When the presbytery is satisfied with the qualifications of an applicant, it shall ask the applicant the constitutional questions in G-14.0300, using these words for Question i: Will you be a faithful commissioned lay pastor, serving the people by proclaiming the good news, teaching faith and caring for the people, and in your ministry will you try to show the love and justice of Jesus Christ?

“G-14.0570 Parish Associate Relationship

“A parish associate is a minister who serves in some validated ministry other than the local parish, or is a member-at-large, or is retired, but who wishes to maintain a relationship with a particular church or churches in keeping with ordination to the ministry of the Word and Sacrament. Such persons, already qualified as continuing members of presbytery, may serve as parish associates. The relation shall be established, upon nomination by the pastor, between the parish associate, the session, and the presbytery. The parish associate shall be responsible to the pastor, as head of staff, on an ‘as needed, as available’ basis and with or without remuneration.

“G-14.0571 May Not Be Next Installed Pastor

“A parish associate may not be called to be the next installed pastor or associate pastor of a church served as parish associate, unless at least six months have elapsed since the end of the parish associate relationship.

“G-14.0572 Presbytery Oversight

“The presbytery shall adopt policies and procedures for oversight by the committee on ministry of the parish associate relationships of its minister members and the churches under its care, including annual review.

“G-14.0573 Termination of the Relationship

“The agreement between the session, the parish associate, and the presbytery shall terminate when the call to the installed pastor is dissolved. The presbytery may dissolve the relationship with the parish associate upon the recommendation of the committee on ministry.

“G-14.0600 Dissolution of Installed Pastoral Relationships

“G-14.0610 Dissolved by Presbytery

“The pastoral relationship between a pastor, associate pastor, and a church may be dissolved only by presbytery. Whether the minister or the church or the presbytery initiates proceedings for a dissolution of the relationship, there shall always be a meeting of the congregation to consider the matter and to request, or consent, or decline to consent to dissolution, as provided in G-7.0304a(3).

“G-14.0611 Minister Requests

“The minister may request the presbytery to dissolve the pastoral relationship. The minister must also state her or his intention to the session. The session shall call a congregational meeting to act upon the request and to make recommendations to presbytery. The presbytery may grant authority to its committee on ministry to dissolve the pastoral relationship and to inform the presbytery in cases in which the congregation and the pastor concur. If the congregation does not concur, the presbytery shall hear from the church, through the congregation’s elected commissioners, the reasons why the presbytery should not dissolve the pastoral relationship. If the church fails to appear, or if its reasons for retaining the relationship are judged insufficient, the request of the minister may be granted and the pastoral relationship dissolved.

“G-14.0612 Congregation Requests

“If any church desires the pastoral relationship to be dissolved, a similar procedure shall be observed. A congregation, after a duly called congregational meeting, may request presbytery to dissolve its relationship with its pastor. The pastor shall moderate the congregational meeting (in accordance with G-7.0306) unless he or she deems it to be impractical. The presbytery may grant authority to its committee on ministry to dissolve the relationship and to inform the presbytery in cases in which the pastor and the congregation concur. If the pastor does not concur, the presbytery shall hear from him or her the reasons why the presbytery should not dissolve the relationship. If the pastor fails to appear, or if the reasons for maintaining the relationship are judged insufficient, the relationship may be dissolved.

“G-14.0613 Presbytery Action

“The presbytery, through its committee on ministry or an administrative commission, may inquire into reported difficulties in a congregation and may dissolve the pastoral relationship if, after consultation with the minister, the session, and the congregation (G-7.0304a(3)), it finds the church’s mission under the Word imperatively demands it.

“G-14.0620 Pastor Emeritus, Emerita

“When any pastor or associate pastor retires, and the congregation is moved by affection and gratitude to continue an association in an honorary relationship, it may, at a regularly called congregational meeting, elect him or her as pastor emeritus or emerita, with or without honorarium, but with no pastoral authority or duty. This action shall be taken only after consultation with the committee on ministry of the presbytery concerning the wisdom of this relationship for the peace of the church. This action shall be subject to the approval of presbytery, and may take effect upon the formal dissolution of the pastoral or associate pastoral relationship or anytime thereafter.

“G-14.0630 Officiate by Invitation Only

“Former pastors, associate pastors, assistant pastors, and ministers who do not have a pastoral relationship with the particular church as defined in this chapter may officiate at services for members of the church, or at services within its properties, only upon invitation from the moderator of the session or, in case of the inability to contact the moderator, from the clerk of session.

“G-14.0700 Persons Called to Certified Ministry

“G-14.0710 Christian Educators

“Christian educators are persons called by God to a ministry of education who demonstrate their faith in and love for Jesus Christ, are dedicated to the life of faith and are serious in purpose, honest in character, and joyful in service. Christian educators serving particular congregations are accountable to the session and under the supervision of the pastor, sharing with them the responsibility of providing for the spiritual growth of members for their ministry, teaching the Bible, recommending curriculum materials and resources, training and supporting lay workers, planning and administering the educational program of their congregations, and other tasks.

“G-14.0711 Training

“It is expected that Christian educators be persons with skills and training in biblical interpretation, Reformed theology, human development, religious educational theory and practice, and the polity, programs, and mission of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). They should be encouraged by their session and presbytery to meet, or prepare to meet, the accrediting requirements defined in this section.

“G-14.0720 Certification for Christian Educators

In order to provide effective guidance for educational ministry in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), the General Assembly shall offer a handbook containing the training and continuing education process for Christian Educators, which shall be administered and certification granted by the Educator Certification Council on behalf of the General Assembly Council. The handbook shall also provide suggested models for support and accountability that synods and presbyteries may adopt for their own use or modify to fit local circumstances.

“G-14.0721 Accrediting Process

“The handbook shall provide an accrediting process that evaluates the educator’s academic preparation and work experience and examines competency in the following knowledge and skill areas:

“Biblical Interpretation

“Reformed Theology

“Human Development

“Religious Education Theory and Practice

“Polity of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)

“Program and Mission of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)

“Worship and Sacraments

“G-14.0722 Educator Certification Council

“The Educator Certification Council shall establish certification standards, designate Educator Certification Advisors in consultation with presbyteries, evaluate certification examinations, and grant certificates and report to the General Assembly Council.

“G-14.0730 Presbytery and Certified Christian Educators

“The presbytery shall

“a. support the certification process by encouraging educators to seek certification, providing guidance through the Educator Certification Advisor, and encouraging sessions to make continuing education funds and time available to educators seeking certification;

“b. provide the following support to the certified Christian educators: service of recognition that shall include the constitutional questions at G-14.0300 (G-11.0103n); establish minimum requirements for compensation and benefits (G-11.0103n); and access to the committee on ministry (G-11.0503); and

“c. grant the privilege of the floor to the certified Christian educator at all its meetings with voice only, and, in the case of certified Christian educators who are ordained elders, voice and vote under the provisions of G-11.0101b. (G-11.0407)

“G-14.0731 Service of Recognition

“When the presbytery is satisfied with the qualifications of an applicant for a certified education position in ministry in the church, a service of recognition shall be provided that shall include the constitutional questions (G-14.0300), using these words for Question I: Will you be a faithful certified Christian educator, teaching faith and caring for people, and will you in your ministry try to show the love and justice of Jesus Christ?

“G-14.0740 Other Certified Persons

“Other certified persons have been called to service within particular churches, governing bodies, and church-related entities. These individuals endeavor to reflect their faith through their work and to strengthen the church through their dedication.

“G-14.0741 Organized Associations

“To that end, groups of professionals have organized for community, support, and professional development. Several of these associations have entered into formal liaison relationships with General Assembly entities. These groups include the Administrative Personnel Association, the Presbyterian Association of Musicians, and the Presbyterian Church Business Administrators Association and others.

“G-14.0742 Certification

“Certification is overseen and granted by the individual associations; the requirements for certification are reported to the appropriate body of the General Assembly Council.

“a. Members of the Administrative Personnel Association (APA) include secretaries, administrative assistants, bookkeepers, and support staff in church-related settings.

“b. Members of the Presbyterian Association of Musicians (PAM) include choir directors, organists, ministers, and other persons interested in the quality and integrity of music in the worship experience.

“c. Members of the Presbyterian Church Business Administrators Association include pastors and lay persons serving primarily as administrators in particular churches and church-related entities.

“G-14.0743 Notification of Status

“Names of those who have earned certification through these associations shall be transmitted to the appropriate body of the General Assembly Council, which will forward them to the Office of the General Assembly and to the stated clerk of the presbyteries in which those persons labor.

“G-14.0744 Recognition by Presbytery

“a. The presbytery shall affirm the skill and dedication of these certified persons by providing for recognition at presbytery at the time of their certification, asking them the constitutional questions in G-14.0300, and by inviting these employees to presbytery meetings, granting them the privilege of the floor.”

“b. When the presbytery is satisfied with the qualifications of an applicant for a certified position in ministry in the church, a service of recognition shall be provided that shall include the constitutional questions (G-14.0300), using these words for Question I: Will you be a faithful Certified _____, teaching faith and caring for people, and will you in your ministry try to show the love and justice of Jesus Christ?”

[Note: If Amendment A.1. is approved, the following amendments shall also be approved.]

2. Amendment A.2.a. (1) [Changes shown in Amendment A.2.a. deal with advisory handbooks.]

The Preface to the Book of Order shall be amended by adding a new item “(5)” to read as follows: [Text to be added or inserted is shown as italics.]

“(5) Advisory handbook signifies a handbook produced by agencies of the General Assembly to guide synods and presbyteries in procedures related to the oversight of ministry. Such handbooks suggest procedures that are commended, but not required.”

3. Amendment A.2.a. (2)

Section G-9.0405 shall be amended to read as follows: [Text to be added or inserted is shown as italics.]

“Each governing body above the session shall, in consultation with the governing body above and below it, develop a manual of administrative operations. In order to provide effective guidance in the ordination, certification, commissioning, and oversight of the work of ministry, the General Assembly shall offer, through its appropriate agencies, advisory handbooks containing suggested models for procedure that synods and presbyteries may adopt for their own use or modify to fit local circumstances. These handbooks shall be developed and updated as needed by the appropriate General Assembly agencies, in consultation with the Office of the General Assembly and middle governing bodies, to ensure conformity with the Book of Order and practicality of use.”

4. Amendment A.2.a. (3)

Section G-11.0504 shall be amended by making the current wording paragraph a. and adding a new paragraph b. so that it shall read as follows: [Text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“a. The presbytery’s committee on ministry may look to synod and the General Assembly for information and assistance in the matter of ministers and pastoral relations. Synods shall create the necessary agency to coordinate the work of presbytery committees. The General Assembly shall create the necessary agency to facilitate and support the work of the presbyteries and the synods in this matter.

“b. The advisory handbook for committees on ministry developed by the appropriate General Assembly entity, in consultation with the Office of the General Assembly and middle governing bodies, shall provide guidance in the ordination, certification, commissioning, and oversight of the work of ministry through suggested models for procedures that synods and presbyteries may adopt for their own use or modify to establish their own requirements to fit local circumstances.”

[Note: Changes shown in Amendment A.2.b. deal with elders and deacons dissolving their relationship in the local church.]

5. Amendment A.2.b.

Section G-14.0210 shall be deleted, G-6.0500 shall become G-6.0700, and the wording at G-14.0210 shall be moved to G-6.0500 so that the new G-6.0500 shall read as follows:

“G-6.0500 Dissolution of Relationship

“An elder or deacon may resign from the session or board of deacons for good cause, with the session’s consent. On ceasing to be an active member of a particular church, an elder or deacon ceases to be a member of its session or board. When an elder or deacon, because of change of residence or disability, is unable to perform the duties of the office for a period of one year, the active relationship shall be dissolved by the session unless there is good reason not to do so, which reason shall be recorded.”

[Note: G-6.0600 is dealt with in Amendment A.2.c. below.]

“G-6.0700 Renunciation of Jurisdiction

“G-6.0701 Renunciation of Jurisdiction

“When a church officer, whether a minister of the Word and Sacrament, elder, or deacon, renounces the jurisdiction of this church in writing to the clerk or stated clerk of the governing body of jurisdiction, the renunciation shall be effective upon receipt. Renunciation of jurisdiction shall remove the officer from membership and ordained office and shall terminate the exercise of office.

“G-6.0702 Persistence in Disapproved Work

“When a church officer, after consultation and notice, persists in a work disapproved by the governing body having jurisdiction, the governing body may presume that the officer has renounced the jurisdiction of this church.

“G-6.0703 Effect of Renunciation

“The renunciation shall be reported by the clerk or stated clerk at the next meeting of the governing body, which shall record the renunciation, delete the officer's name from the appropriate roll, and take such other actions of an administrative character as may be required by the Constitution.”

[Note: Changes shown in Amendment A.2.c. deal with officers being released from ordained office.]

6. Amendment A.2.c.

Section G-11.0414a–c and G-14.0211 shall be stricken and the following wording shall become new G-6.0600, so that it shall read:

“G-6.0600 Release from the Exercise of Ordained Office

“a. If a minister, elder, or deacon against whom no inquiry has been initiated pursuant to D-10.0101 and D-10.0201, against whom no charges have been filed, and who otherwise is in good standing, shall make application to the governing body in which he or she holds membership to be released from the exercise of the ordained office, the governing body, upon granting the release, shall delete that person's name from the appropriate roll. No judgment or failure on the part of the officer is implied in this action.

“b. Release from the exercise of the ordained office of minister, elder, or deacon requires a discontinuance of all functions of that office. The designation of minister, elder, or deacon shall not be used. The status of a minister, elder, or deacon so released shall be the same as any church member.

“c. A person released under this section who desires to be restored to the ordained office shall make application to the governing body that granted the release, or to the presbytery if the church has been dissolved, and upon approval of that governing body, the person shall be restored to the exercise of the ordained office without reordination.”

[Note: Changes shown in Amendment A.2.d. deal with the ability of a session to employ a minister of another denomination in a temporary relationship.]

7. Amendment A.2.d.

Section G-14.0514 shall be stricken and the wording shall be inserted to become G-11.0405c so that G-11.0405c shall read:

“G-11.0405 Ministers of Other Churches

“c. Ordained ministers of other Christian churches may be employed by the session of a particular church in a temporary pastoral relationship, provided that such ministers present to the presbytery credentials of good standing in the ecclesiastical body to which they belong, and provided that presbytery gives its approval to the temporary pastoral relationship.”

[Note: Changes shown in Amendment A.2.e. deal with the call, installation and recognition of validated ministry.]

8. Amendment A.2.e.

Section G-14.0517 shall be stricken and the wording at G-11.0408 shall become G-11.0408a; and the current wording at G-14.0517a and b shall become new G-11.0408b and c, so that G-11.0408 shall read:

“G-11.0408 Validated Ministry

“a. A minister of the Word and Sacrament who is an active member of presbytery may be engaged (1) in a validated ministry within congregations of this church, (2) in a validated ministry in other service of this church, (3) in a validated ministry in service beyond the jurisdiction of this church, or may be (4) honorably retired.

“b. A call to a validated ministry in other service of this church (G-11.0410) or in service beyond the jurisdiction of the church (G-11.0411) shall ordinarily be in a form which includes a description of the goals and working relationships, financial terms, and the signatures of the minister, a representative of the presbytery, and where possible, a representative of the employing agency.

“c. It is appropriate for presbytery to conduct a service of installation similar to that found in G-14.0540, or a service of recognition, at the inauguration of this ministry.”

[Note: Each of these B Amendments will be considered individually. The Office of the General Assembly makes no recommendation about whether they should be approved or not.]

Amendments B

[The assembly approved Item 05-11, Recommendations B.1–B.3. See pp. 38–39.]

1. Amendment B.1.

a. Shall the language at G-14.0310 be deleted and shall “Ordination, installation, and commissioning questions and service information are found at W-4.4000.” be inserted so that G-14.0310 shall read:

“G-14.0310 Service of Ordination, Installation, and Commissioning

“Ordination, installation, and commissioning questions and service information are found at W-4.4000.”

b. Shall G-14.0320 and G-14.0330 be deleted.

c. Shall the language at G-14.0340–G-14.0345 be deleted and shall “Ordination questions and installation service information may be found at W-4.4000.” be inserted at G-14.0340 so that it shall read:

“G-14.0340 Ordination or Installation of Elders or Deacons

“Ordination questions and installation service information may be found at W-4.4000.”

d. Shall the language at G-14.0490–G-14.0493 be deleted and shall “Ordination questions and installation service information may be found at W-4.4000.” be inserted at G-14.0490 so that it shall read:

“G-14.0490 Ordination of Minister of the Word and Sacrament

“Ordination questions and installation service information may be found at W-4.4000.”

e. Shall the language at G-14.0540–G-14.0547 be deleted and shall “Ordination questions and installation service information may be found at W-4.4000.” be inserted at G-14.0540 so that it shall read:

“G-14.0540 Installation of Minister

“Ordination questions and installation service information may be found at W-4.4000.”

f. Shall the language at W-4.4000 be deleted and shall the following language be inserted so that W-4.4000 shall read :

“W-4.4000 Ordination, Installation and Commissioning

“W-4.4001a Ordination and Installation

“a. In ordination the church sets apart with prayer and the laying on of hands those who have been called through election by the church to serve as deacons, elders, and ministers of the Word and Sacrament. (W-2.1005) In installation the church sets apart with prayer those previously ordained to the office of deacon, elder, or minister of the Word and Sacrament, and called anew to service in that office.

“W-4.4001b Service of Ordination, Installation, and Commissioning

“b. The service of ordination and installation for elders, deacons, or ministers of the Word and Sacrament, and for the commissioning of certified Christian educators, certified persons and commissioned lay pastors, shall focus upon Christ and the joy and responsibility of serving him through the mission and ministry of the church, and shall include a sermon appropriate to the occasion. The minister presiding shall state briefly the nature of the office.

“W-4.4002 Setting of the Service

“The service of ordination and installation, or commissioning, may take place during the Service for the Lord’s Day as a response to the proclamation of the Word. (W-3.3503). Ordination and installation, or commissioning, may also take place in a special service that focuses upon Jesus Christ and the mission and ministry of the church and which includes the proclamation of the Word. The service of installation of a pastor or associate pastor shall be conducted at a convenient time to enable the substantial participation of the presbytery.

“W-4.4003 Constitutional Questions to Officers and Commissioned Persons

“The moderator of the governing body of those to be ordained, installed, or commissioned shall ask them to stand before the-body of membership and to answer the following questions:

“a. Do you trust in Jesus Christ your Savior, acknowledge him Lord of all and Head of the Church, and through him believe in one God, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit?

“b. Do you accept the Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments to be, by the Holy Spirit, the unique and authoritative witness to Jesus Christ in the Church universal, and God’s Word to you?”

“c. Do you sincerely receive and adopt the essential tenets of the Reformed faith as expressed in the confessions of our church as authentic and reliable expositions of what Scripture leads us to believe and do, and will you be instructed and led by those confessions as you lead the people of God?”

“d. Will you fulfill your office in obedience to Jesus Christ, under the authority of Scripture, and be continually guided by our confessions?”

“e. Will you be governed by our church’s polity, and will you abide by its discipline? Will you be a friend among your colleagues in ministry, working with them, subject to the ordering of God’s Word and Spirit?”

“f. Will you in your own life seek to follow the Lord Jesus Christ, love your neighbors, and work for the reconciliation of the world?”

“g. Do you promise to further the peace, unity, and purity of the church?”

“h. Will you seek to serve the people with energy, intelligence, imagination, and love?”

“i. (1) (For elder) Will you be a faithful elder, watching over the people, providing for their worship, nurture, and service? Will you share in government and discipline, serving in governing bodies of the church, and in your ministry will you try to show the love and justice of Jesus Christ?”

“(2) (For deacon) Will you be a faithful deacon, teaching charity, urging concern, and directing the people’s help to the friendless and those in need, and in your ministry will you try to show the love and justice of Jesus Christ?”

“(3) (For minister of the Word and Sacrament) Will you be a faithful minister, proclaiming the good news in Word and Sacrament, teaching faith and caring for people? Will you be active in government and discipline, serving in the governing bodies of the church; and in your ministry will you try to show the love and justice of Jesus Christ?”

“(4) (For commissioned lay pastor) Will you be a faithful commissioned lay pastor, serving the people by proclaiming the good news, teaching faith and caring for the people, and in your ministry will you try to show the love and justice of Jesus Christ?”

“(5) (For certified Christian educator) Will you be a faithful certified Christian educator, teaching faith and caring for people, and will you in your ministry try to show the love and justice of Jesus Christ?”

“W-4.4004 Ordination or Installation of Elders or Deacons

“At the service of ordination or installation of elders and deacons:

“W-4.4004a Questions to Congregation

“a. The elders- and deacons-elect having answered in the affirmative, an elder shall stand with them before the congregation and shall ask the congregation to answer the following questions:

“(1) Do we, the members of the church, accept (names) _____ as elders or deacons, chosen by God through the voice of this congregation to lead us in the way of Jesus Christ?”

“(2) Do we agree to encourage them, to respect their decisions, and to follow as they guide us, serving Jesus Christ, who alone is Head of the Church?”

“W-4.4004b Prayer and Laying on of Hands

“b. The members of the church having answered these questions in the affirmative, those to be ordained shall kneel, if able, for prayer and the laying on of hands by the session. Those previously ordained ordinarily shall stand, along with the congregation, if able, for the prayer of installation. The session may invite other elders and ministers of the Word and Sacrament to participate in the laying on of hands.

“W-4.4004c. Statement

“c. The moderator shall say to those who have thus been ordained and installed:

“You are now elders and deacons in the Church of Jesus Christ and for this congregation. Whatever you do, in word or deed, do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him. Amen.

“W-4.4004d Session Welcomes

“d. Then the members of the session, and others as may be appropriate, shall welcome the newly ordained and installed, or newly installed, elders and deacons into their fellowship in ministry.

“W-4.4004e Congregation Greets

“e. After the service, it is appropriate for the members of the congregation to greet their new elders and deacons, showing affection and support.

“W-4.4005 Ordination of Minister of the Word and Sacrament

“At the service of ordination to the office of minister of the Word and Sacrament

“W-4.4005a Ordination Questions

“a. The presbytery shall utilize the ordination questions laid out at ~~G-14.0300~~, W-4.4003, using these words for Question i.(3): Will you be a faithful minister, proclaiming the good news in Word and Sacrament, teaching faith and caring for people? Will you be active in government and discipline, serving in the governing bodies of the church; and in your ministry will you try to show the love and justice of Jesus Christ?

“W-4.4005b Prayer and Laying on of Hands

“b. The candidate, having answered the questions in the affirmative, shall kneel, if able, and the presbytery, or presbytery commission, shall, with prayer and the laying on of hands, ordain the candidate to the office of minister of the Word and Sacrament. The member presiding shall then say:

“(Name) _____, you are now ordained a minister of the Word and Sacrament in the church of Jesus Christ. Whatever you do, in word or deed, do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him. Amen.

“W-4.4005. Presbytery Welcomes

“c. Then the members of the presbytery, and others as may be appropriate, shall welcome the new minister into the ministry of the Word and Sacrament. At the conclusion of the ordination service, the new minister may make a brief statement and shall pronounce the benediction.

“W-4.4006 Installation of Minister of the Word and Sacrament

“Every Christian is called by God to serve the church; however, God calls some persons to serve the church in particular and specific ways in congregations. When the congregation, the presbytery, and the minister (or candidate) have all concurred in a call to a permanent or designated pastoral position, the presbytery shall complete the call process by organizing and conducting the service of installation. Installation is an act of the presbytery establishing the pastoral relationship. A commission may be appointed to act for the presbytery.

“W-4.4006a Installation Service

“a. On the day designated for the installation, the presbytery or commission appointed for this purpose shall convene and shall call the congregation gathered to worship. The service shall have the same focus and form as the service of ordination and the person being installed shall be asked to answer the questions asked at the time of ordination.

“W-4.4006b Questions for Congregation

“b. Following the affirmative answers to the questions asked of the person being installed, an elder shall face the congregation along with the pastor-elect (associate pastor-elect) and shall ask them to answer the following questions:

“(1) Do we, the members of the church, accept (Name) _____ as our pastor (associate pastor), chosen by God through the voice of this congregation to guide us in the way of Jesus Christ?

“(2) Do we agree to encourage him (her), to respect his (her) decisions, and to follow as he (she) guides us, serving Jesus Christ, who alone is Head of the Church?

“(3) Do we promise to pay him (her) fairly and provide for his (her) welfare as he (she) works among us; to stand by him (her) in trouble and share his (her) joys? Will we listen to the word he (she) preaches, welcome his (her) pastoral care, and honor his (her) authority as he (she) seeks to honor and obey Jesus Christ our Lord?

“W-4.4006c Installation of Minister

“c. The members of the congregation having answered these questions in the affirmative,

“(1) a candidate being ordained and installed shall kneel, if able, and the presbytery shall, with prayer and the laying on of hands, ordain the candidate to the office of minister of the Word and Sacrament and install him or her in the particular pastoral responsibility.

“(2) a minister, previously ordained, who is being installed ordinarily shall stand, if able, for the laying on of hands and the prayer of installation.

“W-4.4006d Statement to Minister

“d. The member presiding shall then say:

“(1) (For one being ordained and installed) (Name) _____, you are now a minister of the Word and Sacrament in the Church of Jesus Christ and for this congregation. Whatever you do, in word or deed, do everything

“(2) (For a minister previously ordained) (Name) _____, you are now a minister of the Word and Sacrament in and for this congregation. Whatever you do, in word or deed, do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him. Amen.

“W-4.4006e Welcome

“e. Then the members of the presbytery, and others as may be appropriate, shall welcome the newly ordained and installed or newly installed minister into their fellowship in the ministry of the Word and Sacrament.

“W-4.4006f Charge

“f. Persons invited by the presbytery may then give brief charges to the pastor (associate pastor) and to the congregation to be faithful in their relationship and in their reciprocal responsibilities.

“W-4.4006g Benediction

“g. At the conclusion of the service, the newly installed minister may make a brief statement and shall pronounce the benediction.”

Rationale for Amendment B.1.

Moving these sections from Chapter 14 into the Directory for Worship will accomplish at least three things:

- Placing this section into the Directory for Worship embodies our belief that ordination and installation of officers must always occur in the context of worship. Our theology teaches us that these acts are forms of worship at least as much as they are of governance.

- Having one portion of the Book of Order dedicated to the ordination questions for elders, deacons, and ministers of the Word and Sacrament makes clear our understanding that ordination is to function (G-6.0102) and that everyone being ordained answers the same questions (except for the final one, which is directed to each office individually).
- The church has been asking for a shorter Chapter 14 and this is one way to move lengthy portions to a more logical placement.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-11, AMENDMENT B.1.

Advice on Item 05-11, Amendment B.1.—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution (ACC).

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 216th General Assembly (2006) to approve Item 05-11, Amendment B.1.

Rationale

The amendment would, if approved, move the questions for ordination, installation, and commissioning, together with other instructions for such services, out of Chapter XIV and into the Directory for Worship (DfW). Regardless of whether Amendment A is approved, the effect of approving this amendment would be to lodge all ordination/installation/ commissioning service information in the Directory for Worship.

The ACC finds no constitutional barrier to the action proposed in this amendment. Since the Directory for Worship has equal standing with the Form of Government as part of the Constitution of the church, transferring ordination/installation/commissioning questions and service information to the DfW does not result in a loss of constitutional force regarding these questions. Moreover, their placement in the DfW is in keeping with the character and contents of the DfW, since ordination, installation, and commissioning are all acts of worship.

2. Amendment B.2.

Shall G-14.0440 (Negotiation for Non-Ordained Service) become G-14.0441 and new language be inserted at G-14.0440 so that the sections shall read: [Text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“G-14.0440 Licensure

“When a candidate has completed all requirements for ordination, except completion of the examinations of G-14.0430a–e, the candidate and the presbytery may agree that the candidate will serve an internship prior to undertaking the exams described in G-14.0430a–e. The presbytery may grant such candidate a license to preach, and when its strategy for mission requires it, a limited license to administer the sacraments. A minister of the Word and Sacrament shall be assigned as mentor and supervisor. Upon successful completion of the examinations described in G-14.0430a–e, such candidate may be invited by the session to serve in any of the positions described in G-14.0551.

“G-14.0440 G-14.0441 Negotiation for Service

“A candidate who has completed two full years of theological education or its equivalent, who has had an annual consultation within the previous year, and who has successfully completed all ordination examinations or has received presbytery’s certification of readiness according to G-14.0472 may, with approval of the committee on preparation for ministry (CPM) and the appropriate committee on ministry, enter into negotiation for his or her ministerial service. For candidates who have not yet completed the two years of theological education or successfully completed all ordination examinations, the presbytery of care may, by three-fourths vote, permit a candidate to proceed to negotiate for service prior to certification of readiness to receive a call.

Rationale for Amendment B.2.

Many of the focus groups who gave feedback on the Form of Government project mentioned a desire for reinstating an old concept, but putting it into a new setting: licensure of candidates who have completed the preparation process except for passing all the ordination exams. The thinking is as follows:

- Deans in seminaries see the wisdom of allowing candidates to have hands-on experience, including administering the sacraments, as they prepare to finish their exams outside the academic setting. Since the exams aim to test assimilation of academic training with pastoral sense, this experience often serves to aid them in passing the exams.
- Presbyteries with many small churches are hoping that such candidates will be able to pastor some of these congregations; they can do so now, but cannot celebrate the sacraments. Experience has taught us that once such a candidate is serving such a small congregation it is much more likely that the candidate will stay on for a few years even after they are ordained. This is a winning situation for all concerned.
- Many large church pastors would like to be able to mentor a young pastor in a large congregation setting, which many candidates will not be able to experience otherwise.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-11, AMENDMENT B.2.

Advice on Item 05-11, Amendment B.2.—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to approve Item 05-11, Amendment B.2. with the following alternative language:

“G-14.0440 Licensure

“When a candidate has completed all requirements for ordination, except for completion of the examinations of G-14.0431(a)–(e), the candidate and the presbytery of care may agree that the candidate will serve an internship prior to undertaking the exams described in G-14.0431(a)–(e). The presbytery of care may grant such candidate a license to preach. When its strategy for mission requires it, the presbytery of service may also grant the candidate a limited license to administer the sacraments under the supervision of a minister of Word and Sacrament, who shall also serve as the licentiate’s mentor. Upon successful completion of the examinations described in G-14.0431(a)–(e), such candidate may be invited by the session to serve in any of the positions described in G-14.0551.”

Rationale

The amendment would, if approved, create a new paragraph G-14.0440, Licensure, in the text of the revised Chapter XIV and renumber G-14.0440 as G-14.0441. The new paragraph would create the option for a presbytery to license a candidate to preach and, with limitations at the discretion of the presbytery, to administer sacraments under the supervision of a minister of the Word and Sacrament. Service under such licensure would not restrict the candidate’s eligibility to be called to any position described in G-14.0551 upon completion of the requirements for ordination.

The committee finds no constitutional barrier to the creation of this provision.

Licensure is not a new idea for the church. In 1872, the PCUSA adopted rules governing the licensure of candidates to preach, but the practice goes well back into the early history of Presbyterianism in this country. Throughout the 19th and early 20th centuries, licensure was a regular part of preparation for ministry, and various references appear in minutes of the PCUSA describing debates on permitting licentiates to administer sacraments or perform other pastoral responsibilities. In 1927, the Swearingen Commission of the PCUSA dealt extensively with licensure as part of its study of the status of ministers and candidates (“probationers”) in the church (see Minutes, PCUSA, 1927, Part I, pp. 56–86). The practice of licensing candidates to preach was part of the PCUS Book of Church Order from at least as early as 1907 but is absent from the 1961 edition. Licensure was part of the polity of the PCUSA and was brought into the UPCUSA, where it remained until reunion, when it was omitted from the Book of Order.

The effect of approving this amendment would be to restore the option to the presbytery to provide a period of internship for candidates during which they might hone their skills as pastors and preachers before being released to the full exercise of ministry. In truth, this option already exists; this amendment has the function of strengthening the ability of the presbytery to make use of it as a tool in the task of preparation for ordination. Research indicates that candidates who serve such internships before undertaking the standard ordination examinations generally perform more satisfactorily than those who have not had such internships.

The amendment proposes to grant to licentiates a “limited license to administer the sacraments.” This does represent a change in the historic practices of all three antecedent denominations of the PC(USA). All three antecedent denominations permitted only ministers (and licentiates were clearly understood as not yet ordained to the ministry) to administer the Sacraments. However, in the years intervening between reunion and the present, the church has seen fit to change its stance regarding administration of the Sacraments in two important ways. First, in G-6.0304 and G-11.0103z, the presbytery is empowered to authorize specific elders to administer the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper after appropriate instruction by the presbytery. Second, presbyteries are permitted under the provisions of G-14.0801c to authorize commissioned lay pastors (who are elders) to celebrate both baptism and the Lord's Supper. The ACC believes that the permission to licentiates to administer the Sacraments is consistent with these existing provisions.

It is important to note that in case of both elders and commissioned lay pastors who are permitted to administer the Sacraments, both are holders of ordained office. Licentiates may or may not have been ordained as elders before completing the requirements for ordination to the ministry of the Word and Sacrament. Permitting non-ordained licentiates to administer the Sacraments would create a new category in our polity and change to this extent our theology of ordination. In view of this, the General Assembly may wish to consider either of two solutions:

1. Delete the second half of the second sentence of the proposed amendment, so that the sentence now reads: The presbytery may grant such candidate a license to preach.

2. Amend the second sentence of the amendment to include the requirement that the licentiate be given permission to administer the sacraments under the supervision of a minister of the Word and Sacrament. The assembly might accomplish this end by replacing the second and third sentences with the following: The presbytery may grant such candidate a license to preach. When its strategy for mission requires it, the presbytery may also grant the candidate a limited license to administer the sacraments under the supervision of a minister of Word and Sacrament, who shall also serve as the licentiate's mentor.

Finally, the ACC notes that there may be confusion regarding which presbytery licenses the candidate and authorizes the administration of the sacraments. The determination to license a particular candidate would be the presbytery of care. The determination of "strategy for mission" would presumably be the presbytery of service. Therefore the Advisory Committee on the Constitution suggests the following additional clarifying modifications:

3. In the first sentence add the words "of care" between the words "presbytery" and "may agree"; and in the second sentence add "of care" after the word "presbytery"; and in the third sentence, add "of service" after the word "presbytery".

If the 217th General Assembly (2006) concurs with the Advisory Committee on the Constitution, the proposed amendment, as advised above, would read:

"When a candidate has completed all requirements for ordination, except for completion of the examinations of G-14.0431(a)-(e), the candidate and the presbytery of care may agree that the candidate will serve an internship prior to undertaking the exams described in G-14.0431(a)-(e). The presbytery of care may grant such candidate a license to preach. When its strategy for mission requires it, the presbytery of service may also grant the candidate a limited license to administer the sacraments under the supervision of a minister of Word and Sacrament, who shall also serve as the licentiate's mentor. Upon successful completion of the examinations described in G-14.0431(a)-(e), such candidate may be invited by the session to serve in any of the positions described in G-14.0551."

3. Amendment B.3.

Shall G-14.0472 be amended by striking the last three sentences as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with strike-through.]

"G-14.0472 Examination Requirements

"The examination requirements of G-14.0431 shall not be waived until an inquirer or candidate has failed on two attempts to receive a satisfactory grade, unless the inquirer or candidate has a disability, documented by a person or persons of the presbytery's choice, which disability affects the individual's test-taking ability. If the presbytery believes that the person should be certified as ready for examination for ordination, pending a call, it shall authorize an exception only by a three-fourths vote of the members of the presbytery present, and must determine an alternate means whereby it will satisfy itself of competence in the area(s) of difficulty. When the individual successfully completes the alternate pattern, the presbytery may certify readiness in the usual manner. The minutes of presbytery shall contain a full record of the reasons for the exception and the alternate pattern for determining competence. ~~Presbyteries shall submit to the synod the process by which a candidate, who has failed one or more examinations twice, or who has such a documented disability, would be examined. Once that process has been approved, presbyteries may proceed with particular candidates, and note such exemptions in their minutes each occasion. Such processes will be reviewed every three years.~~"

Rationale for Amendment B.3.

The suggestion for this amendment came from several focus groups, including one made up of synod execs and stated clerks. There are a number of problems with the current requirement that synods approve an alternate ordination exam process for a presbytery:

- For the alternate exam process to be useful enough for each individual situation in which it might be needed, it would have to be too specific to be practical.
- The timeline often acts as a bureaucratic delay in a candidate's process without adding the benefits of a true safeguard.
- Synods often simply approve such processes without careful scrutiny. Presbyteries are very able to judge for themselves the adequacy of the alternate process.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-11, AMENDMENT B.3

Advice on Item 05-11, Amendment B.3.—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 216th General Assembly (2006) to approve Item 05-11, Amendment B.3.

Rationale

The amendment, if approved, would strike the final three sentences from G-14.0472 of the proposed revision of Chapter XIV in Amendment A (current G-14.0313b), which require that presbyteries who wish to use an alternate means of examining candidates in the areas specified in current G-14.0310d(1–5) must submit for synod approval a process for such examinations. At present, the Book of Order requires that the candidate has failed one or more of the examinations in G-14.0310d(1–5) at least twice before the presbytery can apply alternate means.

Paragraph G-14.0313b has been the subject of some effort at revision in the recent past. In 1996, the presbyteries approved amending G-14.0313b to insert the very language proposed for deletion in this amendment. The effort at that time was to allow presbyteries to submit for synod approval a general process for granting exceptions to the standard ordination examinations, rather than requiring synod review of every exception proposed by the presbytery. In 2000, presbyteries inserted language to G-14.0313b to allow candidates with disability affecting their test-taking ability to apply for alternate means before having twice failed one or more of the standard ordination exams.

The effect of this amendment would be to remove any requirement that the synod approve the process used by the presbytery in determining a candidate's readiness for ministry. The Advisory Committee on the Constitution finds that this removal is in keeping with other provisions of our polity, which assign the assessment of a candidate's readiness for ministry to the presbytery (G-11.1013l and G-14.0310a, b) but make no mention of any role or responsibility on the part of the synod.

4. Amendment B.4.

[The assembly disapproved Item 05-11, Recommendations B.4.–B.6. See pp. 38–39.]

Shall G-14.0513 be amended by striking the words “or to” and inserting the words “except by a two-thirds affirmative vote of presbytery.”; inserting the words “An associate may” at the beginning and striking “except” in the second sentence, and inserting a new sentence so that it shall read as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italics.]

“G-14.0513 Succession and Extraordinary Circumstances

“The official relationship of an associate pastor to a church is not dependent upon that of a pastor, but an associate pastor is not eligible to be the next installed pastor in a church that they have served together, ~~or to~~ except by a two-thirds affirmative vote of presbytery. An associate may be called as pastor to serve as co-pastor of that church, ~~except~~ in churches that currently have a co-pastor model in place which has been in effect for at least three years and the congregation desires to continue such a model. In such churches, an associate pastor may be called as pastor to serve as co-pastor of that church with a two-thirds affirmative vote of presbytery. An associate pastor shall be directed in his or her work by the pastor in consultation with the session.”

Rationale for Amendment B.4.

The request for this amendment came from a number of focus groups, asking that the presbytery be given the ultimate decision about what works best in their context for their congregations. Not every presbytery would choose to take such actions and even if they would choose to do so, the action still would require a super-majority of the presbytery to be approved. This assures that the presbytery needs to be convinced of the extraordinary circumstance for such an exception to occur.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-11, AMENDMENT B.4.

Advice on Item 05-11, Amendment B.4.—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) on Item 05-11, Amendment B.4., with the following comment:

The amendment, if approved, would amend G-14.0513 of the proposed revision of Chapter XIV in Amendment A (current G-14.0501d). The present language of G-14.0501d prohibits an associate pastor from succeeding immediately the pastor with whom he or she has served as associate pastor. The amendment would permit such succession upon supermajority vote of the presbytery. The current provisions of G-14.0501d also allow a church that has used a co-pastor model for at least three years to call an associate pastor to become co-pastor under that model, again with a supermajority vote of presbytery. The amendment would preserve that possibility, but would reduce the required presbytery supermajority from the present three-quarters to two-thirds.

There have been numerous efforts to permit associate pastors to succeed as the next installed pastor, or to become co-pastor, of the congregation where they are serving or have recently served as associate pastor. In the Presbyterian Church in the United States (PCUS), prior to 1960, the Book of Church Order required that the relationship of an associate pastor with a congregation be dissolved with the departure of the pastor. This provision was changed to allow an associate to become pastor after having ceased to be associate pastor for a period of six months (Minutes, PCUS, 1960, Part I, p. 121). The polity of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. (UPCUSA) did not preclude associate pastors from election as pastor of the church where they serve as associate upon the resignation of the pastor. This provision was changed with the adoption of the current Book of Order at reunion. Amendments were rejected by assemblies in 1984, 1985, 1986, 1987, and 2000 that would have permitted associates to succeed as pastor with various levels of majority and supermajority approval by calling congregations and presbytery.

In 1987, the current provision of G-14.0501 was amended to prohibit either pastor or associate pastor from becoming co-pastors of the congregation they are serving as pastor or associate. General Assemblies in 1989, 1995, and 1996 rejected efforts to change that provision. The only exception to this was the adoption by presbyteries in 1990 of the current language of G-14.0501d to permit an associate to be called as co-pastor in a congregation that has employed the co-pastor model for three years.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the General Assembly that the clear historical reluctance of the church to permit associate pastors to succeed as pastors of churches where they serve as associates indicates a broad sense in the church that this practice is in most cases unwise and potentially injurious to congregational health.

5. Amendment B.5.

Shall G-14.0553 be amended by adding “except by a two-thirds vote of the presbytery” at the end of the sentence, so that it reads:

“G-14.0553 Interim Pastoral Relations

“When a presbytery and session determine that an interim pastor, interim co-pastor, or interim associate pastor is necessary and helpful, the session may consult the committee on ministry and seek an interim minister as soon as a date certain for departure has been announced by the pastor or associate pastor planning to leave. An interim pastor, interim co-pastor, or interim associate pastor is not eligible to serve that church as the next permanent or designated pastor except by a two-thirds vote of the presbytery.

Rationale for Amendment B.5.

The request for this amendment came from a number of focus groups, asking that the presbytery be given the ultimate decision about what works best in their context for their congregations. Not every presbytery would choose to take such actions and even if they would choose to do so, the action still would require a super-majority of the presbytery to be approved. This assures that the presbytery needs to be convinced of the extraordinary circumstance for such an exception to occur.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-11, AMENDMENT B.5.

Advice on Item 05-11, Amendment B.5.—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) regarding Item 05-11, Amendment B.5. with the following comment:

The amendment, if approved, would amend G-14.0553 of the proposed revision of Chapter XIV in Amendment A (current G-14.0513b) to permit an interim pastor to be eligible for nomination as pastor of the congregation in which he or she is serving as interim pastor, provided that the presbytery approves the call by supermajority vote.

The amendment poses no direct conflicts with other provisions of the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution notes, however, that in 1992 the General Assembly rejected Overture 92-39, a proposed amendment that would have permitted interim pastors to succeed as pastor with the approval of a three-fourths vote of the presbytery. The specific reasoning of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution at that time is instructive:

... The safeguard to the congregation inherent in this prohibition far outweighs the inconvenience of a difficult search process. Any person who agrees to serve as interim understands that there is no possibility for a permanent relationship. That prohibition was designed to give the interim and the church freedom to engage in necessary objective evaluation of the church's future. To qualify this prohibition, as this overture suggests, will in fact change the nature of the interim position so that it will no longer be truly an interim position. Rather, it would have the effect of eliminating the distinction between temporary and permanent pastoral relationships. (Minutes, 1992, Part I, pp. 302, paragraph 21.031)

6. Amendment B.6.

Shall G-14.0613 be amended by inserting the following as the last sentence, "The relationship may be dissolved if the presbytery determines that the pastoral/congregational match is incompatible." Section G-14.0613 shall then read as follows: [Text to be added or inserted is shown as italics.]

"G-14.0613 Presbytery Action

"The presbytery, through its committee on ministry or an administrative commission, may inquire into reported difficulties in a congregation and may dissolve the pastoral relationship if, after consultation with the minister, the session, and the congregation (G-7.0304a(3)), it finds the church's mission under the Word imperatively demands it. The relationship may be dissolved if the presbytery determines that the pastoral/congregational match is incompatible.

Rationale for Amendment B.6.

This amendment addresses two not-uncommon fact patterns for many presbyteries:

- The discovery in a relatively short time that a particular minister is a very bad match for a congregation. Rather than allow the resulting conflict to build to a destructive level, the presbytery may take preemptive action in time to allow both the minister and the congregation to survive what often becomes an unhealthy departure if delayed too long.
- Occasionally a presbytery is dealing with a minister with impaired emotional or mental ability. Being able to act quickly is critical to the health of all involved.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-11, AMENDMENT B.6.

Advice on Item 05-11, Amendment B.6.—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) on Item 05-11, Amendment B.6., with the following comment:

The amendment would add a final sentence to section G-14.0613 of the proposed revision of Chapter XIV. The proposed G-14.0613 concerns the ability of the presbytery, acting directly or through its committee on ministry, to dissolve the pastoral relationship, after appropriate consultations as prescribed in G-7.0304a(3), if it finds that the church's mission "imperatively demands it." The addition proposed by Amendment B.6. would add the qualification that the determination may be made on the grounds that the match between the pastor and congregation is incompatible.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the General Assembly that there are no constitutional barriers posed by this amendment. The Advisory Committee on the Constitution further advises that the amendment is unnecessary because the presbytery already possesses the necessary authority to dissolve pastoral relationships for reasons of the health and well being of the congregation under existing provisions of the Book of Order.

[The assembly disapproved Item 05-12 with comment. See pp. 38–39.]

On Amending G-3.0300c, Christ's Faithful Evangelist, to Add a Section on Caring for God's Creation—From the Presbytery of Heartland.

The Presbytery of Heartland overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to do the following:

1. Reaffirm the statements of the 183rd, 187th, 192nd, 193rd, 195th, 196th, 199th, 201st, 202nd, 204th, 205th, 206th, 208th, 210th, 211th, 213th, 215th General Assemblies (1971, 1975, 1980, 1981, 1983, 1984, 1987, 1989, 1990, 1992, 1993, 1994, 1996, 1998, 1999, 2001, 2003) reflecting the determination of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) that protection of the environment is an essential part of the Christian faith.

2. Direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the Book of Order to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall G-3.0300c(3) be amended by adding a new section, “(e),” and re-lettering section “(f)” as “(g)” to read as follows: [Text to deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“(e) protecting the environment and promoting sustainable living, reverently working as responsible and faithful stewards of God's creation,

“(f) [Text remains unchanged.]”

Comment: These items are fully covered by W-7.5000, “Caring for Creation and Life.”

Rationale

Chapter III of the Book of Order defines the church and its mission. This overture will expand our call as Christ's Faithful Evangelist to reflect G.3.0101 (God's Activity), “God created the heavens and the earth and made human beings in God's image, charging them to care for all that lives” The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) continues to interpret this charge to include all life and the environment that sustains it. Therefore, amending the Book of Order to incorporate caring for God's creation is appropriate.

Scripture proclaims, “... You are the Lord, you alone; you have made heaven, the heaven of heavens, with all their host, the earth and all that is on it, the seas and all that is in them. To all of them you give life, and the host of heaven worships you” (Neh. 9:6). Ours is a God concerned not only with humanity but all of creation, a God whose spirit is the breath of all life and whose glory is manifest in the creation we share.

Justice, peace and the environment are interrelated. Whenever we humans abuse the environment, whenever we engage in non-sustainable consumption of our earth's finite resources, we are not only endangering the future of life on our planet, but we are committing acts of violence and injustice against other life—both present and future. Protecting and restoring creation is central to our own survival.

Caring for the environment is another way to care for people. We care about people who are hungry and impoverished as well as people who are the victims of pollution and resource depletion; we care about people who share the planet with us today as well as future generations. When we think of loving and caring for our neighbor as Jesus taught us, let us realize that we all live upwind and upstream from someone else—both in time and space. Ecosystems and people systems are intricately interwoven and interconnected, forming the tapestry of life.

We in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) have a rich tradition of justice and reverence for life. Included in our mission is responsible and faithful stewardship of God's earth. We have been commanded to tend the garden.

Historical References:

In 1954, the Presbyterian church stated:

... We call upon the Christian conscience to recognize that our stewardship of the earth and water involves both a land-use program that recognizes the interdependence of soil, water and man and the development of a responsible public policy which will resist the exploitation of land, water, and other natural resources, including forests for selfish purposes and maintain intelligent conservation for the sustenance of all living creatures through future generations. (Minutes, PCUSA, 1954, Part I, p. 198)

This stewardship commitment has been repeated and reaffirmed by the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and its predecessors, as follows:

1967 The Confession of 1967 stressed the justice of sharing resources and the interdependence of resources and living creatures.

1971 The 183rd General Assembly (1971) accepted the “Christian Responsibility for Environmental Renewal” statement that called for a new order of values based on an “eco-ethic” and a Statement on Environmental Renewal (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1971, Part I, pp. 578–83).

1975 A recommendation was made to the 187th General Assembly (1975) to affirm advocacy of the protection of wildlife areas and parklands (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1975, Part I, p. 59).

1980 The 192nd General Assembly (1980) voted to (1) develop educational resources on the adverse impact that careless technology has on the environment and health of the unborn; (2) instruct the Board of Investment Committee to review corporate responsibility regarding manufacture of dioxins (Social Justice Compilation, 1980 Statement to the Mission Board, Item 1, 6.2.4).

1981 The 193rd General Assembly (1981) pledged support of the United Nations Drinking Water and Sanitation Decade, 1981–1990, calling upon Presbyterians “to develop lifestyles that are consistent with the necessity to conserve water” (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1981, Part I, p. 254).

1983 The 195th General Assembly (1983) urged the session of each congregation in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to consider making a “Commitment to Peacemaking” that included making peace with the earth—involve the congregation in efforts to protect and restore the environment (Minutes, 1983, Part I, p. 438).

1984 The 196th General Assembly (1984) called upon Congress of the United States to reduce the emissions of sulfur dioxide and the oxides of nitrogen to a level that will protect the most sensitive environment and stated that human stewardship is not a dominion of mastery and called us to exercise respect for the integrity of natural systems and for the limits that nature places on economic growth and material consumption (Minutes, 1984, Part I, p. 349).

1987 The 199th General Assembly (1987) voted to urge the United States government to assure acceptable disposal sites for high-level nuclear waste. It also voted to urge each presbytery and local church to encourage and support alternatives to pesticides and support the victims of pesticide poisoning (Social Justice Compilation, 1987, Item 4.a., 6.2.6.).

1988 The Environmental Justice Office is created to study past environmental policies of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. and the Presbyterian Church in the United States to create a combined report of environmental concerns for Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). The Environmental Justice Office is a ministry of the General Assembly Council of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), lodged in the National Ministries Division, Social Justice program area, and is now actively involved in creation care and environmental justice issues.

1989 The 201st General Assembly (1989) calls for governments to strengthen regulations and enforcement regarding transportation of oil and hazardous substances, in response to the Exxon-Valdez tanker spill in 1989 (Minutes, 1989, Part I, p. 642).

1990 The 202nd General Assembly (1990) passes “Restoring Creation for Ecology and Justice” affirming “creation cries out in this time of ecological crises,” calling the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to respond to this cry and engage in an effort to make the 1990s the “turnaround decade,” providing the foundation for the work of the Environmental Justice Office. Also, the 202nd General Assembly (1990) calls attention to the problem of global warming and encourages the United States government to take steps toward incorporating environmental damage and depletion into “full-cost pricing” (Minutes, 1990, Part I, p. 646–70).

1992 The 204th General Assembly (1992) directs all future General Assemblies to print all official reports on recycled and recyclable paper and to direct all related bodies to use recycled and recyclable paper for all reports and publication (Minutes, 1992, Part I, p. 846).

1993 The 205th General Assembly (1993) reaffirms the “Call to Restore Creation,” receives the document “World Scientists’ Warning to Humanity” as a prophetic word to the church, urges President Clinton to follow new policies from the Earth Summit, and directs the Social Justice and Peacemaking unit to advocate for policies that will reduce carbon dioxide emissions (Minutes, 1993, Part I, pp. 896–97).

1994 The 206th General Assembly (1994), within the context of its “Resolution on the United States in Its Asia-Pacific Relations,” listed five basic principles by which past General Assemblies have been guided related to international affairs. One of the principles, and the resolution that follow it, relates specifically to the environment. “The General Assembly has advocated new understanding of the relationship among human life, institutions, and the total stewardship and care for the planet, which is the common heritage of all peoples ...” (Minutes, 1994, Part I, p. 310).

1996 The 208th General Assembly (1996) approves the paper “Hope for a Global Future: Toward Just and Sustainable Human Development” as policy for the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). Just and sustainable human development is the comprehensive enhancement of the quality of life for all, present and future; it necessarily involves the integration of economic, social, political, cultural, ecological, and spiritual dimensions of being (Minutes, 1996, Part I, pp. 524ff).

1999 The 211th General Assembly (1999) calls upon the United States to ratify the protocol negotiated in Kyoto and urges Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) congregations and institutions to pursue energy efficiency and conservation in their buildings and property (Minutes, 1999, Part I, pp. 669–70).

1999 The 211th General Assembly (1999) again calls upon the U.S. to ratify the Kyoto Protocol, urges the United States to go beyond Kyoto targets for carbon dioxide emission reductions, directs the Presbyterian Center in Louisville and all other properties of the General Assembly to minimize fossil fuel energy (along with urging local congregations to do the same), and directs the General Assembly to promote education regarding global warming and other environmental concerns (Minutes, 1999, Part I, pp. 668–70).

2001 The 213th General Assembly (2001) calls to issue and disseminate the “Call to Halt Mass Extinction.” The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) calls Presbyterians, other citizens, governments, and societal institutions to face the severity of this threat and to take steps to prevent mass extinction and preserve the biodiversity essential to the flourishing of life (Minutes, 2001, Part I, pp. 473–75).

2003 The 215th General Assembly (2003) calls on the United States government to join the world effort to reduce greenhouse gas emissions and to develop and enact a national emergency response, underwritten by law, with adequate financial support, and economic enforcement mechanism, to be fully functioning by 2005, with targeted reductions by that time (Minutes, 2003, Part I, p. 617).

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-12

Advice on Item 05-12—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 05-12 .

Rationale:

The overture from the Presbytery of Heartland asks the General Assembly to do two things: first, to reaffirm prior General Assemblies’ policy statements that reflect the PC(USA) determination that environmental protection is an essential part of the Christian faith; and, second, that the Book of Order be amended at G-3.0300c(3) by adding to the list of ways we are called to participate in God’s activity in the world a statement about our responsibility to protect the environment and be “responsible and faithful stewards of God’s creation.”

The intent of the overture is consistent with General Assembly policy. The rationale for Item 05-12 correctly lifts the theological foundations and history of General Assembly actions supporting our responsibility to protect the environment and be “responsible and faithful stewards of God’s creation.”

Item 05-12, in its first request, asks the assembly to take an action that is not in order, according to Robert’s Rules of Order (10th ed., §10, ¶10, p. 100)

Motions to “reaffirm” a position previously taken by adopting a motion or resolution are not in order. Such a motion serves no useful purpose because the original motion is still in effect; also, possible attempts to amend a motion to reaffirm would come into conflict with the rules for the motion to Amend Something Previously Adopted (35); and if such a motion to reaffirm failed, it would create an ambiguous situation.

Item 05-12, in its second request, simply is not necessary. The idea of responsible and faithful stewardship of God's creation is already woven thoroughly into Presbyterian theology and values. Our constitutional documents (e.g. G-2.0500a(3) and Brief Statement of Faith 10.3), as well as our church's policy statements, already support this view.

The church has been reticent to modify the first four chapters of the Form of Government in the Book of Order. They are foundational for our polity. They take the broad view, forming a base on which the rest of our polity rests. An addition to G-3.0300c would move toward turning this section from a brief foundational statement to a list of all-important social justice issues. To approve Item 05-12 would be to take one more step in changing the Constitution to a manual of operations.

GAC (CMD) COMMENT ON ITEM 05-12

Comment on Item 05-12—From the General Assembly Council (Congregational Ministries Division).

Items 05-12 and 05-13 call upon the General Assembly to reaffirm past commitments on the environment and to send to the presbyteries an amendment to the Book of Order that lists environmental protection as one of the ways the church is Christ's faithful evangelist.

These overtures rightly call on the church to live out its commitment as faithful stewards of God's creation.

The question before the assembly concerns the appropriateness of the addition of environmental concerns in this particular section of the Constitution.

Section G-3.0300c focuses on the church's role as evangelist, to call persons in their wholeness to the life God has for them. Therefore, the church is called to disciple and baptize, to demonstrate the love of Christ, and to participate in God's activity in the world through its own life.

Neither Item 05-12 nor Item 05-13 provide a compelling reason to include this vital concern for sustaining creation in the actions that are primarily focused on the evangelization of people.

*Item 05-13

[The assembly answered Item 05-13 by the action taken on Item 05-12. See pp. 38–39.]

On Amending G-3.0300c, Christ's Faithful Evangelist, to Add a Section on Caring for God's Creation—From the Presbytery of Mid-Kentucky.

The Presbytery of Mid-Kentucky overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to do the following:

1. Reaffirm the statements of the 183rd, 187th, 192nd, 193rd, 195th, 196th, 199th, 201st, 202nd, 204th, 205th, 206th, 208th, 210th, 211th, 213th, 215th General Assemblies (1971, 1975, 1980, 1981, 1983, 1984, 1987, 1989, 1990, 1992, 1993, 1994, 1996, 1998, 1999, 2001, 2003) reflecting the determination of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) that protection of the environment is an essential part of the Christian faith.

2. Direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the Book of Order to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall G-3.0300c(3) be amended by adding a new section, "(e)," and re-lettering section "(f)" as "(g)" to read as follows: [Text to deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

"e. protecting the environment as responsible and faithful stewards of God's creation,

"(e) (f) [Text remains unchanged.]"

Rationale

Chapter III of the Book of Order defines the church and its mission. This overture will expand our call as Christ's Faithful Evangelist to reflect G.3.0101 (God's Activity), "God created the heavens and the earth and made human beings in God's image, charging them to care for all that lives" The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) continues to interpret this charge to include all life and the environment that sustains it. Therefore, amending the Book of Order to incorporate caring for God's creation is appropriate.

Scripture proclaims, "... You are the Lord, you alone; you have made heaven, the heaven of heavens, with all their host, the earth and all that is on it, the seas and all that is in them. To all of them you give life, and the host of heaven worships you" (Neh. 9:6). Ours is a God concerned not only with humanity but all of creation, a God whose spirit is the breath of all life and whose glory is manifest in the creation we share.

Justice, peace and the environment are interrelated. Whenever we humans abuse the environment, whenever we engage in non-sustainable consumption of our earth's finite resources, we are not only endangering the future of life on our planet, but we are committing acts of violence and injustice against other life—both present and future. Protecting and restoring creation is central to our own survival.

Caring for the environment is another way to care for people. We care about people who are hungry and impoverished as well as people who are the victims of pollution and resource depletion; we care about people who share the planet with us today as well as future generations. When we think of loving and caring for our neighbor as Jesus taught us, let us realize that we all live upwind and upstream from someone else—both in time and space. Ecosystems and people systems are intricately interwoven and interconnected, forming the tapestry of life.

We in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) have a rich tradition of justice and reverence for life. Included in our mission is responsible and faithful stewardship of God's earth. We have been commanded to tend the garden.

Historical References:

In 1954, the Presbyterian church stated:

... We call upon the Christian conscience to recognize that our stewardship of the earth and water involves both a land-use program that recognizes the interdependence of soil, water and man and the development of a responsible public policy which will resist the exploitation of land, water, and other natural resources, including forests for selfish purposes and maintain intelligent conservation for the sustenance of all living creatures through future generations. (Minutes, PCUSA, 1954, Part I, p. 198)

This stewardship commitment has been repeated and reaffirmed by the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and its predecessors, as follows:

1967 The Confession of 1967 stressed the justice of sharing resources and the interdependence of resources and living creatures.

1971 The 183rd General Assembly (1971) accepted the "Christian Responsibility for Environmental Renewal" statement that called for a new order of values based on an "eco-ethic" and a Statement on Environmental Renewal (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1971, Part I, pp. 578–83).

1975 A recommendation was made to the 187th General Assembly (1975) to affirm advocacy of the protection of wildlife areas and parklands (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1975, Part I, p. 59).

1980 The 192nd General Assembly (1980) voted to (1) develop educational resources on the adverse impact that careless technology has on the environment and health of the unborn; (2) instruct the Board of Investment Committee to review corporate responsibility regarding manufacture of dioxins (Social Justice Compilation, 1980 Statement to the Mission Board, Item 1, 6.2.4).

1981 The 193rd General Assembly (1981) pledged support of the United Nations Drinking Water and Sanitation Decade, 1981–1990, calling upon Presbyterians "to develop lifestyles that are consistent with the necessity to conserve water" (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1981, Part I, p. 254).

1983 The 195th General Assembly (1983) urged the session of each congregation in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to consider making a "Commitment to Peacemaking" that included making peace with the earth—involve the congregation in efforts to protect and restore the environment (Minutes, 1983, Part I, p. 438).

1984 The 196th General Assembly (1984) called upon Congress of the United States to reduce the emissions of sulfur dioxide and the oxides of nitrogen to a level that will protect the most sensitive environment and stated that human stewardship is not a dominion of mastery and called us to exercise respect for the integrity of natural systems and for the limits that nature places on economic growth and material consumption (Minutes, 1984, Part I, p. 349).

1987 The 199th General Assembly (1987) voted to urge the United States government to assure acceptable disposal sites for high-level nuclear waste. It also voted to urge each presbytery and local church to encourage and support alternatives to pesticides and support the victims of pesticide poisoning (Social Justice Compilation, 1987, Item 4.a., 6.2.6.).

1988 The Environmental Justice Office is created to study past environmental policies of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A. and the Presbyterian Church in the United States to create a combined report of environmental concerns for Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). The Environmental Justice Office is a ministry of the General Assembly Council of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), lodged in the National Ministries Division, Social Justice program area, and is now actively involved in creation care and environmental justice issues.

1989 The 201st General Assembly (1989) calls for governments to strengthen regulations and enforcement regarding transportation of oil and hazardous substances, in response to the Exxon-Valdez tanker spill in 1989 (Minutes, 1989, Part I, p. 642).

1990 The 202nd General Assembly (1990) passes “Restoring Creation for Ecology and Justice” affirming “creation cries out in this time of ecological crises,” calling the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to respond to this cry and engage in an effort to make the 1990s the “turnaround decade,” providing the foundation for the work of the Environmental Justice Office. Also, the 202nd General Assembly (1990) calls attention to the problem of global warming and encourages the United States government to take steps toward incorporating environmental damage and depletion into “full-cost pricing” (Minutes, 1990, Part I, p. 646–70).

1992 The 204th General Assembly (1992) directs all future General Assemblies to print all official reports on recycled and recyclable paper and to direct all related bodies to use recycled and recyclable paper for all reports and publication (Minutes, 1992, Part I, p. 846).

1993 The 205th General Assembly (1993) reaffirms the “Call to Restore Creation,” receives the document “World Scientists’ Warning to Humanity” as a prophetic word to the church, urges President Clinton to follow new policies from the Earth Summit, and directs the Social Justice and Peacemaking unit to advocate for policies that will reduce carbon dioxide emissions (Minutes, 1993, Part I, pp. 896–97).

1994 The 206th General Assembly (1994), within the context of its “Resolution on the United States in Its Asia-Pacific Relations,” listed five basic principles by which past General Assemblies have been guided related to international affairs. One of the principles, and the resolution that follow it, relates specifically to the environment. “The General Assembly has advocated new understanding of the relationship among human life, institutions, and the total stewardship and care for the planet, which is the common heritage of all peoples ...” (Minutes, 1994, Part I, p. 310).

1996 The 208th General Assembly (1996) approves the paper “Hope for a Global Future: Toward Just and Sustainable Human Development” as policy for the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). Just and sustainable human development is the comprehensive enhancement of the quality of life for all, present and future; it necessarily involves the integration of economic, social, political, cultural, ecological, and spiritual dimensions of being (Minutes, 1996, Part I, pp. 524ff).

1999 The 211th General Assembly (1999) calls upon the United States to ratify the protocol negotiated in Kyoto and urges Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) congregations and institutions to pursue energy efficiency and conservation in their buildings and property (Minutes, 1999, Part I, pp. 669–70).

1999 The 211th General Assembly (1999) again calls upon the U.S. to ratify the Kyoto Protocol, urges the United States to go beyond Kyoto targets for carbon dioxide emission reductions, directs the Presbyterian Center in Louisville and all other properties of the General Assembly to minimize fossil fuel energy (along with urging local congregations to do the same), and directs the General Assembly to promote education regarding global warming and other environmental concerns (Minutes, 1999, Part I, pp. 668–70).

2001 The 213th General Assembly (2001) calls to issue and disseminate the “Call to Halt Mass Extinction.” The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) calls Presbyterians, other citizens, governments, and societal institutions to face the severity of this threat and to take steps to prevent mass extinction and preserve the biodiversity essential to the flourishing of life (Minutes, 2001, Part I, pp. 473–75).

2003 The 215th General Assembly (2003) calls on the United States government to join the world effort to reduce greenhouse gas emissions and to develop and enact a national emergency response, underwritten by law, with adequate financial support, and economic enforcement mechanism, to be fully functioning by 2005, with targeted reductions by that time (Minutes, 2003, Part I, p. 617).

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-13

Advice on Item 05-13—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to answer Item 05-13 with its response to Item 05-12.

GAC (CMD) COMMENT ON ITEM 05-13

Comment on Item 05-13—From the General Assembly Council (Congregational Ministries Division).

Items 05-12 and 05-13 call upon the General Assembly to reaffirm past commitments on the environment and to send to the presbyteries an amendment to the Book of Order that lists environmental protection as one of the ways the church is Christ's faithful evangelist.

These overtures rightly call on the church to live out its commitment as faithful stewards of God's creation.

The question before the assembly concerns the appropriateness of the addition of environmental concerns in this particular section of the Constitution.

Section G-3.0300c focuses on the church's role as evangelist, to call persons in their wholeness to the life God has for them. Therefore, the church is called to disciple and baptize, to demonstrate the love of Christ, and to participate in God's activity in the world through its own life.

Neither Item 05-12 nor Item 05-13 provide a compelling reason to include this vital concern for sustaining creation in the actions that are primarily focused on the evangelization of people.

On Amending D-10.0106 Regarding Administrative Leave—From the Presbytery of Eastern Virginia

The Presbytery of Eastern Virginia respectfully overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative vote:

Shall D-10.0106 be amended as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“When a written statement of an alleged offense of sexual abuse toward any person under the age of eighteen, or who it is alleged lacked the mental capacity to consent, has been received against a minister of the Word and Sacrament, the stated clerk receiving the allegation shall immediately communicate the allegation to the permanent judicial commission. The moderator of the permanent judicial commission shall within three days designate two members, who may be from the roster of former members of the permanent judicial commission, to determine whether the accused shall be placed on a paid administrative leave during the resolution of the matter. The cost of such shall be borne by the employing entity whenever possible or be shared by the presbytery as necessary. While administrative leave is in effect, ~~a the minister or other employee~~ may not perform any pastoral, administrative, educational, or supervisory duties, and may not officiate at any functions such as Baptism, funerals, or weddings.”

[Sections D-10.0106a and D-10.0106b remain unchanged.]

In response to item 05-14, the 217th General Assembly (2006) approved the following alternate resolution:

After review of the Minutes of the 216th General Assembly (2004), pp. 321–26 by the Advisory Committee on the Constitution, it appears that the phrase “or other employee” was an inadvertent inclusion in D-10.0106.

Therefore, the 217th General Assembly (2006) directs the Stated Clerk to make this change under the provisions of Standing Rule M.2.b.(3).

Rationale

This overture seeks to clarify the language of D-10.0106. The paragraph begins by discussing when a written statement has been received against a minister of the Word and Sacrament and ends by referring to a minister or other employee. There is no apparent reason for adding “or other employee” at this point or any explanation of whom the “other employee” is. There is concern that this could be interpreted to mean that an associate pastor could be included and also not be allowed to perform any of these duties while the pastor was on administrative leave. Others that could possibly be included in this interpretation of “other employee” are certified Christian educators, directors of Christian education, administrative assistants, or any other employee of the church. This paragraph should be limited to the minister against whom the accusation is alleged.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-14

Advice on Item 05-14—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) with the following comment:

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution believes that the phrase “or other employee” was an inadvertent inclusion in D-10.0106. After review of the Minutes of the 216th General Assembly (2004) pp. 321-326, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution believes that this phrase could be struck as an editorial change.

If the Assembly agrees that this is an editorial change, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution will direct the Stated Clerk to make this change under the provisions of Standing Rule M.2.b.(3).

However, if the General Assembly believes it preferable to deal with this matter by sending an amendment to the presbyteries, it should direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall the last sentence of the first paragraph of D-10.0106 be amended as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“While administrative leave is in effect, ~~a the minister or other employee~~ may not perform any pastoral, administrative, educational, or supervisory duties, and may not officiate at any functions such as Baptism, funerals, or weddings.”

On Amending D-1.0103 Regarding Mediation and Reconciliation—From the Presbytery of Mission.

The Presbytery of Mission overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following Book of Order amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall D-1.0103 be amended as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“The traditional biblical obligation to conciliate, mediate, and adjust differences without strife is not diminished by these Rules of Discipline. Although the Rules of Discipline describe the way in which judicial process within the church, when necessary, shall be conducted, it is not their intent or purpose to encourage judicial process of any kind or to make it more expensive or difficult. The biblical duty of church people to ‘come to terms quickly with your accuser while you are on the way to court ...’ (Matthew 5:25) is not abated or diminished. It remains the duty of every church member, prior to the initiation of any disciplinary action (except in alleged cases of sexual misconduct), to try (prayerfully and seriously) to bring about an adjustment or settlement of the quarrel, complaint, delinquency, or irregularity asserted, and to avoid formal proceedings under the Rules of Discipline ~~unless, after prayerful deliberation~~. After discussion, mediation, and/or reconciliation have been attempted, and after prayerful deliberation, formal charges may be brought if they are determined to be necessary to preserve the purity and purposes of the church.”

Rationale

Exercise of Church Discipline: The “exercise of church discipline is ... for building up the body of Christ, not for destroying it, for redeeming, not for punishing” (Book of Order, D-1.0102).

Duty of Church Members: “It remains the duty of every church member to try (prayerfully and seriously) to bring about an adjustment or settlement of the quarrel, complaint, delinquency, or irregularity asserted, and to avoid formal proceedings under the Rules of Discipline unless, after prayerful deliberation, they are determined to be necessary to preserve the purity and purposes of the church” (Book of Order, D-1.0103).

Scripture Calls for Reconciliation: Scripture calls on us to seek reconciliation of our differences rather than “going to court” (Matt. 5:25).

Means of Resolution: All means of resolution, including but not limited to discussion, debate, mediation and reconciliation should be attempted before disciplinary charges are considered.

Exception: It is recognized that victims of sexual misconduct are at a distinct disadvantage in mediation processes.

Results: The approval and subsequent adoption of the proposed amendment would be beneficial to the peace, unity, and purity of the church by emphasizing that attempts at reconciliation prior to initiation of disciplinary action would be identified as a duty of each church member.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-15

Advice on Item 05-15—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 05-15.

Rationale

Item 05-15 seeks to amend the Preamble to the Rules of Discipline (D-1.0301) to emphasize the “traditional obligation to conciliate, mediate, and adjust differences without strife. ...”

While we understand that many are frustrated by the perceived misuse of the judicial system, the proposed overture is deeply problematic. The church must be careful to insure that the proposed solutions do not create more serious problems than those they seek to resolve.

The proposed wording significantly shifts who has standing to file charges in a disciplinary matter. Currently, an investigating committee that is accountable to the governing body receives an accusation and determines whether charges will be filed. That determination will be based on whether there is probable cause to believe that an offense has been committed and whether it is likely that the offense can be proved. Only after such deliberation are charges filed. The investigating committee has the discretionary authority to initiate alternative forms of resolution including mediation and reconciliation, but only after it has been determined that charges will be filed.

The proposed amendment would require that an effort at mediation and reconciliation be made prior to bringing allegations of an offense. The proposed amendment implies that an individual, rather than an investigating committee, has standing to file charges, while the Rules of Discipline provide that such an individual can simply file an allegation. This proposal represents a significant change from current policy, which places the exclusive responsibility for filing charges with an investigating committee.

Even if the word “allegations” were substituted for the word “charges” in the proposed amendment it would still fundamentally change judicial process within the church. The governing body would be required to look first at the behavior of the individual who wishes to make an allegation rather than at the alleged offense of the accused. The failure of the person making the allegation to have “attempted discussion, mediation, and/or reconciliation” could inhibit the ability of the governing body to determine probable cause and subsequently guilt or innocence of the accused. Furthermore, there is no indication of how a person would establish that he or she has made an effort at mediation and conciliation.

Currently an allegation in a disciplinary matter may be received from a number of sources: (1) from a member or a non-member; (2) orally or in writing; (3) from one who alleges direct harm or from one who believes it is the community that has been harmed. It is not advisable to limit the ability of the governing body to receive and deal with either disciplinary or remedial cases by mandating that before the governing body can assume jurisdiction, the individual bringing a disciplinary allegation or remedial complaint must demonstrate efforts to bring about an adjustment or settlement of the quarrel, complaint, delinquency, or irregularity asserted

For additional rationale, please refer to the advice of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution on Item 05-20.

On Adding a New Section D-2.0104 Outlining a Process to Handle Frivolous Complaints—From the Presbytery of National Capital.

The Presbytery of National Capital overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative vote:

Shall a new section D-2.0104 be added, to read as follows:

“An investigating committee or permanent judicial commission, in order to ensure that the judicial process is not abused, must, in every case other than an allegation of sexual abuse, determine whether the complainant or accuser has complied with D-1.0103. If there is no evidence of purposeful compliance, and if there is evidence of bad faith or reckless disregard by the complainant or accuser, the investigating committee or permanent judicial commission can, at its discretion, declare the accusation or complaint to be frivolous, and such finding shall be publicly disclosed. If the investigating committee or permanent judicial commission declares the accusation or complaint to be frivolous, it can, at its discretion, preclude the accuser or complainant from access to judicial process within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), except for an allegation of sexual abuse, for a period of up to one year.”

Rationale

The Rules of Discipline are intended for “building up the body of Christ, not for destroying it, for redeeming, not for punishing” (D-1.0102). Use of judicial process to advance personal or political agendas, or to “punish” positions, statements, or actions that the accuser or complainant disagrees with, undermines and eviscerates the Rules of Discipline. In addition, use of the judicial process to advance frivolous complaints imposes unnecessary costs, both in terms of money and persons, upon the governing body processing the complaint. This new section to the Rules of Discipline would provide a means to ensure that the rules are not abused.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-16

Advice on Item 05-16—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 05-16.

Rationale

This overture proposes to add a new section D-2.0104 to the chapter that defines judicial process. It would mandate in every case other than an allegation of sexual abuse that an investigating committee or permanent judicial commission determine that the accuser has complied with the intent of D-1.0103 to seek to conciliate, mediate, and adjust differences prior to bringing an accusation.

Section G-9.0500 makes a clear distinction between the authority of a committee and of a commission. A committee, including an investigating committee, is not empowered to make decisions on behalf of the governing body. It is the responsibility of an investigating committee to determine whether there is probable cause to determine that an offense has been committed, and sufficient evidence to prove a charge. It is not the responsibility of an investigating committee to make determination regarding the offense on behalf of the governing body.

A session, which is a governing body, or a permanent judicial commission, on behalf of its governing body, is empowered to make decisions. However, in judicial process, neither a session nor a permanent judicial commission has a case before it until there has been a determination by the investigating committee that it will file charges. If charges are filed, the session or permanent judicial commission must determine at trial that the charges have been proved beyond a reasonable doubt.

The overture is not clear whether the intent is to apply the mandate of D-1.0103 to both disciplinary charges and remedial complaints. Chapter I of the Rules of Discipline states the principles of church discipline and covers both disciplinary and remedial cases. The language of the proposed amendment includes “... determine whether the complainant or accuser has complied with D-1.0103.” A complainant is a party to a remedial case; however there is no investigating committee in remedial cases, and the complaint is not properly before the session or permanent judicial commission until there has been provision for procedural safeguards and due process. The case is not before the session/permanent judicial commission until there has been a determination that the preliminary questions (D-6.0305) have all been answered in the affirmative. An accuser is not a party to a disciplinary case.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution also notes that the proposed amendment introduces a procedural matter into a chapter that is defining judicial process.

The proposed amendment provides that if either an investigating committee or a permanent judicial commission declares an accusation or complaint to be frivolous, upon such declaration, it can make public disclosure of that finding and, at its discretion, preclude the accuser or complainant from access to judicial process for one year. In the desire to emphasize D-1.0103, the amendment would violate D-1.0101, which states "... In all respects, all participants are to be accorded procedural safeguards and due process, and it is the intention of these rules so to provide." The person determined to have brought frivolous allegations/complaint would not have benefited from due process before being denied access for one year to judicial process. That would even preclude the right to access the judicial process to protest the declaration.

Please refer also to the rationale provided by the Advisory Committee on the Constitution on Item 05-20.

On Amending the Rules of Discipline Regarding Accountability of Governing Body Officers—From the Presbytery of Detroit.

The Presbytery of Detroit overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly to send the following amendments to the Rules of Discipline to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

1. Amend D-2.0202 to read as follows: [Text to be added is shown as italic.]

"A remedial case is one in which an irregularity or a delinquency of a lower governing body, the General Assembly Council, or an entity of the General Assembly may be corrected by a higher governing body. A remedial case may also be filed against the clerk or moderator of a governing body with the judicial body of that governing body for failing to or improperly carrying out a duty prescribed by the Book of Order."

2. Amend D-3.0101a to read as follows: [Text to be added is shown as italic.]

"a. The session of a church has original jurisdiction in disciplinary cases involving members of that church, and in remedial cases where the moderator or clerk of session is accused of failing to or improperly carrying out a duty prescribed by the Book of Order."

3. Amend D-3.0101b(1) to read as follows: [Text to be added is shown as italic.]

"b.(1) The presbytery has original jurisdiction in disciplinary cases involving minister members of that presbytery, and the moderator and stated clerk in remedial cases for failing to or improperly carrying out a duty prescribed by the Book of Order, and commissioned lay pastors serving in congregations in the presbytery. (G-11.0502f).

4. Amend D-3.0101 by adding new sections "c." and "d." and re-lettering the current "c." and "d." as "e." and "f." New sections "c." and "d." shall read as follows:

"c. A synod has original jurisdiction over its moderator and stated clerk in remedial cases for failing to or improperly carrying out a duty prescribed by the Book of Order.

"d. The General Assembly has original jurisdiction over its Moderator and Stated Clerk in remedial cases for failing to or improperly carrying out a duty prescribed by the Book of Order."

5. Amend D-6.0101 to read as follows: [Text to be added is shown as italic.]

“A remedial case is initiated by the filing of a complaint with the stated clerk of the governing body having jurisdiction. Where the case is against a moderator or clerk of a governing body, a remedial case is filed with the judicial entity of the same governing body.”

6. Amend D-6.0102 to read as follows: [Text to be added is shown as italic.]

“A complaint is a written statement alleging an irregularity in a particular decision or action, or alleging a delinquency, or alleging a moderator or stated clerk has failed to or improperly carried out a duty prescribed by the Book of Order. (D-2.0202) The filing of a complaint does not, by itself, stay enforcement of the decision or action.”

7. Amend D-6.6.0202 by adding a new section “c.” to read as follows:

“c. In the instance of a complaint against a moderator or clerk of a governing body, complaints shall be filed with the clerk of the permanent judicial commission of that governing body in the case of presbyteries, synods, or the General Assembly, or with the clerk or moderator of a session, whichever is not the subject of the complaint. A complaint of an irregularity shall be filed within twenty-one days of when the irregularity is discovered. A complaint of a delinquency shall be filed within twenty-one days after the moderator or clerk has failed or refused to respond to a written request to cure the delinquency. Those eligible to file such a complaint are:

“(1) A member of a church against the moderator or clerk of that church with the clerk or moderator of the session;

“(2) A member, commissioner, session, or member of a church of a presbytery with the clerk of the permanent judicial commission of the presbytery;

“(3) A member, commissioner, or presbytery of a synod with the clerk of the permanent judicial commission of the synod;

“(4) A synod or presbytery or a commissioner to a General Assembly with the clerk of the permanent judicial commission of the General Assembly.”

8. Amend D-6.0103 by adding the term “or Filing Deadlines” to the title, and by adding new text to the first paragraph so that it reads as follows: [Text to be added is shown as italic.]

“D-6.0103 Stay of Enforcement or Filing Deadlines”

“The action or decision of a governing body, of its permanent judicial commission, or of a respondent named in D-6.0202b may be suspended by a stay of enforcement. A stay of enforcement is a written instruction, obtained in the manner described in D-6.0103a, that orders the implementation of a decision or action be delayed until a complaint or appeal is finally determined. In a remedial complaint against a moderator or clerk for failing or improperly carrying out a duty prescribed in the Book of Order, the Moderator and Clerk of the appropriate judicial body may, after examining the complaint and determining that the criteria of D-6.0305 have been met, order that all deadlines and timelines be arrested until the full judicial body decides the case.”

9. Amend D-6.0103a by adding a new section “(4)” to read as follows:

“(4) From an action of a governing body where the moderator or clerk of that governing body is accused of failing to or improperly carrying out a duty prescribed by the Book of Order, where the matter involves an action by the governing body and a stay is necessary to prevent injustice or irrevocable harm, by the moderator and clerk of the judicial entity in the hearing in D-6.0305.”

10. Amend D-6.0301b to read as follows: [Text to be added is shown as italic.]

“b. The particular irregularity including the date, place, and circumstances thereof; or the particular delinquency including the dates of the written request to cure the delinquency and of the next meeting at which the respondent failed to do so. Where the complaint is against a moderator or clerk for failing to or improperly carrying out a duty prescribed by the Book of Order, the specific duty and its Book of Order citation, and the date of the violation or notice of failure to perform.”

11. Amend D-6.0303 as follows: [Text to be added is shown as italic.]

“The committee of counsel of the respondent shall file with the stated clerk of the higher governing body a concise answer within forty-five days after receipt of the complaint, and shall furnish a copy of the answer to the complainant. The answer shall admit those facts alleged in the complaint that are true, deny those allegations that are not true or are mistakenly stated, and present other facts that may explain the situation identified as an irregularity or delinquency. The answer may also raise any issues mentioned in D-6.0305 and may include a motion to dismiss the complaint. In the case of a complaint against a moderator or clerk for failing to or improperly carrying out a duty prescribed by the Book of Order, the respondent shall file an answer with the session or permanent judicial commission within fourteen days.”

12. Amend D-6.0304 as follows: [Text to be added is shown as italic.]

“When the complaint and answer have been filed with the stated clerk of the higher governing body, the stated clerk shall transmit them at once to the officers of the permanent judicial commission of the governing body and shall give notice to the parties that the case has been received. When a remedial complaint against a moderator or clerk of a governing body is received by the clerk (or in the case of a session, the moderator) of a judicial entity, the clerk shall within three days give notice to all parties and the session or permanent judicial commission.”

13. Amend the first paragraph of D-6.0305 as follows: [Text to be added is shown as italic.]

“Upon receiving the papers specified in D-6.0304, the moderator and the clerk of the permanent judicial commission of the body that will try the case, or in the case of a remedial complaint against a moderator or clerk, the session or permanent judicial commission shall promptly examine the papers to determine whether”

14. Amend D-6.0310 as follows: [Text to be added is shown as italic.]

“At any time after a case is received by a permanent judicial commission, the commission may provide by rule for the parties or their counsel, if any, to explore settlement possibilities; or, in a pretrial conference, to seek agreement on a statement of facts and disputed issues, to exchange documents and other evidence, and to take other action which might reasonably and impartially narrow the dispute and expedite its resolution. In every case where a remedial case has been filed against a moderator or clerk of a governing body, the permanent judicial commission or session shall, within two weeks of receiving the answer, hold a pretrial conference to explore settlement possibilities, to seek agreement on a statement of facts on disputed issues, to exchange documents and other evidence, and to take action that may reasonably and impartially narrow the dispute and expedite its resolution.”

15. Amend D-7.0101 as follows: [Text to be added is shown as italic.]

“The trial of a remedial case shall be conducted by a permanent judicial commission or, in the case of a complaint against a moderator or clerk of session, the session. In a case against a moderator or clerk for failing to or improperly carrying out a duty prescribed by the Book of Order, trial shall commence within twenty-eight days of the receipt of the complaint.”

Rationale

Assigning certain duties to individual officers. The polity of the church gives all authority to governing bodies. In some cases, authority and responsibility for certain acts are given to moderators and clerks because of the impracticality, impossibility, or impropriety of requiring the decision be made by a governing body in plenary session. In such cases, the governing body trusts that its officers will faithfully and competently carry out the duties assigned. The intent of this overture is to provide a procedure to ensure that moderators and clerks perform their duties in timely and proper ways.

Assignment of duties to specific officers. Clerks and moderators of governing bodies are given certain duties and authorities in the Book of Order to take action without specific authorization of the governing body.

Reliance on the proper exercise of these duties. In many cases, the duties given moderators and clerks are necessary for the proper conduct of governing body and judicial processes, and for the protection of rights. When the duties are not carried out promptly and properly, the intent of the Constitution can be frustrated, and those relying on the polity for justice or satisfaction can be left without recourse.

Consequences of the failure to carry out the duties. In many cases, timeliness is essential to the process. If a moderator or clerk fails to act promptly and properly, matters requiring immediate action may be rendered null or rights lost.

The need for an effective way to address the problem. When a body or an individual relies on officers to carry out their duties, there should be a quick, non-punitive, and effective way to ensure that the officers are carrying out their duties in a timely and correct way.

Ineffectiveness of the current system. There is now no effective recourse in cases where a moderator or clerk refuses or fails to do a duty assigned by the Book of Order, or does it improperly. Under current procedures, all that can be done is to file a disciplinary complaint, which is not effective when time is of the essence because of the cumbersome and lengthy procedures required to protect the rights of an accused. In cases of ordinary negligence, a disciplinary complaint is probably inappropriate. Moreover, the only remedies available in disciplinary cases are degrees of censure, which are designed to correct future behaviors rather than to rectify past acts.

The best location to handle the problem. The failure of a moderator or clerk is an issue of concern to the body served and should be handled at that level rather than by a different governing body. Under the current system, where a disciplinary case is the only option, if the moderator or clerk of a governing body is an elder, the investigation and trial would be conducted by the session of the church of membership, even though he or she may be the moderator or stated clerk of a presbytery, synod, or General Assembly. When the officer is a minister of Word and Sacrament, trial would be held by the presbytery of membership, regardless of the governing body served.

The intent of this overture. This overture is designed to offer a way to bring the failure of a moderator or clerk of a governing body to the judicial process of that same governing body for a decision and resolution. It will provide a church analogue to a civil writ of mandamus, which is a petition to require an official of government to perform his or her duties. The intent of this overture is not designed to punish.

The limits of this overture. This overture limits the scope of the jurisdiction to those duties of a moderator as moderator or a clerk as clerk. For example, it could not be used to force a minister of a church (who is the moderator of its session) to do things or stop doing things that are unrelated to duties assigned by the Book of Order to a pastor in the capacity as moderator of session.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-17

Advice on Item 05-17—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 05-17.

Rationale

The overture proposes amending the Rules of Discipline as follows:

1. Providing that a remedial case may be filed against the clerk or moderator of governing body for failing to or improperly carrying out a duty prescribed by the Book of Order;
2. Providing that the session, the presbytery, the synod, and the General Assembly each have original jurisdiction in remedial cases against their own moderator and stated clerk for failing to or improperly carrying out a duty prescribed by the Book of Order.
3. Prescribing who may file a remedial complaint against a moderator or a stated clerk of each of the various governing bodies; and
4. Adding various procedures to be followed in a remedial case against a moderator and a stated clerk.

The amendment proposed by the overture would result in a major shift in the Rules of Discipline and the proposed solutions are unnecessary to hold governing body officers accountable.

Remedial cases involve governing bodies, not individuals. They are filed with the next higher governing body above the governing body that has allegedly acted improperly, not with the permanent judicial commission of the governing body that is the subject of the case. Improper behavior by individuals is dealt with in disciplinary cases, not remedial cases. Actions by a moderator or a stated clerk that may be contrary to the Constitution can be addressed in a disciplinary action against those officers without amending the Rules of Discipline

The Book of Order already provides several ways of dealing with officers of governing bodies who do not properly perform their duties. Whenever a party to a judicial case believes that he or she has been wronged by a decision, either because of an improper interpretation by the permanent judicial commission or by some action of the stated clerk or the moderator, the party may appeal the decision to the next higher governing body.

Also a remedial action may be used to correct a perceived injustice in a judicial proceeding. The Permanent Judicial Commission of the General Assembly has held that a presbytery has standing to initiate a remedial case against a synod seeking a declaration that the conduct of the synod's stated clerk in the handling of another presbytery's complaint was a violation of the Constitution. (Presbytery of San Joaquin vs. Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of the Pacific and the Synod of the Pacific, Remedial Case 215-3, Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 265–69).

Additionally, a party who believes that a governing body has committed an irregularity because of the actions of its moderator or its stated clerk may seek administrative review by the next higher governing body (G-9.0408). The higher governing body, as a result of that administrative review, could order the lower governing body to take appropriate action to correct its behavior.

In response to an interim order of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission in Remedial Case 215-12 (Westminster PC v. OGA, et al, Minutes, 2003, Part I, pp. 283–86), in which it was stated that the office of the Moderator of the General Assembly is in some circumstances an “entity” of the General Assembly as that term is used in D-1.0202 and D-6.0202b, the 216th General Assembly (2004) approved the following authoritative interpretation:

“The word ‘entity’ in D-2.0202 and D-6.0202b denotes an organized body, such as a committee, board, council, division, etc. It does not denote an individual or an office held by an individual. Supervision of an officer’s official acts belongs to the electing governing body or any agency to which that electing body has referred it.” (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 202) [Emphasis added.]

Under Robert’s Rules of Order, an officer who does not properly perform his or her duties, particularly repeatedly or over a period of time, may be removed by the electing body (§61, esp. pp. 642–43).

To reiterate, a review of the Book of Order reveals that our polity provides ample opportunity and means for holding officers accountable. The proposed amendments are not necessary.

COGA COMMENT ON ITEM 05-17

Comment on Item 05-17—From the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

Item 05-17 seeks to amend the Rules of Discipline to make moderators and stated clerks subject to remedial complaints.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) supports the comment and advice of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution (ACC) to disapprove this overture. The moderator and stated clerk are officers of the body that elected them and are accountable to that body.

The COGA is a committee of fifteen persons, elected by the General Assembly from across the church, made up of elders and ministers who supervise the work of the Office of the General Assembly.

On Amending D-14.0600, Control of Materials During Pre-Trial Phase—From the Presbytery of National Capital.

The Presbytery of National Capital overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall a new section, “D-14.0600,” be added to the Rules of Discipline to read as follows:

“D-14.0600 6. Control of Materials During Pretrial Phase

“Documents, depositions, briefs, correspondence, memoranda, transcripts, and any other materials prepared or produced during the pretrial phase of a judicial proceeding may not be used for any purpose other than the judicial proceeding without the prior review and approval of the moderator and clerk of the permanent judicial commission.”

Rationale

During the pretrial phase of a complaint or appeal, a permanent judicial committee (PJC) may request or require various documents and other materials to be produced or prepared for its use in reaching a ruling and decision.

The PJC leadership may itself prepare various materials including memoranda, rulings, and supporting argument during the pretrial phase of a judicial proceeding.

Being a commission, a PJC may bring the full authority of its parent governing body to bear on parties and members of the PC(USA) to encourage or compel the production or preparation of such materials.

The purpose of the PJC in taking such action is to assist and enable it in fulfilling its constitutional responsibilities.

The parties or other affected persons have a reasonable expectation that these materials will be used by the PJC, and not for other purposes.

It would be an abuse of the judicial process for a party to cause a PJC to employ its authority for the production or preparation of such materials with the hidden intention of then using those materials for other purposes.

During the pretrial phase, the moderator and clerk of a PJC have an affirmative responsibility to protect the interests of all parties as well as of members and officers of the PC(USA) who may be involved in producing or preparing such materials.

The interest of the public to view such materials, while very important, is only one of a number of competing interests that should be weighed by a PJC in deciding what other uses, if any, might be appropriate and allowable under the circumstances.

The Rules of Discipline are currently silent on the question of whether other use of such materials requires prior review and approval by the PJC leadership.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-18

Advice on Item 05-18—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 05-18.

Rationale

The overture seeks to amend the Rules of Discipline by adding a section to D-14.0000, Evidence in Remedial or Disciplinary Cases, to control the use of materials prepared or produced during the pretrial phase of a judicial proceeding.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution makes the following observations concerning the proposed overture:

1. The overture would permit the moderator of the session or permanent judicial commission to read and review materials pertinent to a proceeding pending before the commission prior to the trial. This would conflict with D-7.0302 and D-11.0303:

No party to a remedial case or any other person shall circulate or cause to be circulated among the members of the permanent judicial commission any written, printed, or visual materials of any kind upon any matter pertaining to the case before the final disposition thereof. Notwithstanding this prohibition, the permanent judicial commission may request, or grant leave to final, additional materials. (Book of Order, D-7.0302)

No party to a disciplinary case or any other person shall circulate or cause to be circulated among the members of the session or permanent judicial commission any written, printed, or visual materials of any kind upon any matter pertaining to the case before the final disposition thereof. Notwithstanding this prohibition, the session or permanent judicial commission may request, or grant leave to file, additional materials. (Book of Order, D-11.0303)

2. The effect of the overture could be to prejudice the moderator and the clerk of the permanent judicial commission by placing them in a position of making determinative decisions that may effect the substance of the case without ratification by the entire session or permanent judicial commission. (See D-11.0402b(2).) Section D-5.0101 provides, in part, for two members of the permanent judicial commission to be designated to review any petition for review of the procedures of an investigating committee in a disciplinary case, and stipulates that those two members shall not take part in any subsequent trial. This provision acknowledges that preliminary determinations may prejudice members of the permanent judicial commission for decision on the merits. This overture could be inconsistent with that procedure.

3. The overture is unnecessary to control the conduct of the trial in either a remedial or a disciplinary case since the Rules of Discipline already provide in D-7.0303 and D-11.0304 that the permanent judicial commission in remedial cases and the session or permanent judicial commission in disciplinary cases “shall have full authority and power to control the conduct of the trial and of all parties, witnesses, counsel, and the public . . .”

a. Questions as to procedure or the admissibility of evidence arising in the course of a trial shall be decided by the moderator after the parties have had an opportunity to be heard. A party or a member of the session or permanent judicial commission may appeal from the decision of the moderator to the session or commission, which shall decide the question by majority vote. (Book of Order, D-11.0304a)

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution believes that the right of parties and the judicial process are better protected when procedural and evidentiary questions are subject to the determination of the entire session or permanent judicial commission during the trial.

*Item 05-19

[The assembly disapproved Item 05-19. See pp. 38, 40.]

On Amending D-10.0105, “Transfer Prohibited”—From the Presbytery of Susquehanna Valley.

The Presbytery of Susquehanna Valley overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendments to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall D-10.0105 be amended to read as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“A session shall not grant a certificate of transfer to a member, nor shall a presbytery either grant a certificate of transfer to a minister or give permission to labor outside the bounds, while an inquiry or charges are pending. The reasons for not granting transfer may be communicated by the clerk of session or the stated clerk of the presbytery to the appropriate persons.

“A minister member of presbytery shall not seek to move outside the presbytery to serve in any ministerial or ecclesiastical capacity while an inquiry or charges are pending by either transfer of membership to another presbytery or seeking permission to labor outside the bounds in another presbytery.”

Rationale

This amendment serves the purpose of closing a loophole potentially allowing minister members against whom disciplinary actions are pending to seek to “labor outside the bounds” of their presbytery of membership, and to clarify that minister members may not circulate their Personal Information Form (PIF) through vocational services of the PC(USA) while any inquiry or charges are pending.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-19

Advice on Item 05-19—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 05-19.

Rationale

This overture seeks to amend the Book of Order, Rules of Discipline, D-10.0105, to prohibit a presbytery from granting a minister permission to labor outside its bounds and to prohibit the minister from seeking a position outside the bounds of his/her presbytery of membership while an inquiry or charges are pending against the minister.

Section D-10.0105 prohibits a transfer of membership pending a disciplinary inquiry or investigation. Jurisdiction is retained by the presbytery of membership.

The proposed amendment does not affect jurisdiction; it would require the presbytery to limit ministry prior to probable cause being determined regarding allegations, charges proven, or censure imposed. If the General Assembly wishes to limit ministry under those circumstances, it may do so. To do so, however, would create a sense of punishment for those ministers who regularly labor outside the bounds of their presbyteries.

Furthermore, the committee believes that the amendment as proposed is unnecessary. No minister has the right to labor outside the bounds of his or her presbytery. A minister may do so only by permission of the presbytery in which he or she proposes to labor and of the presbytery of membership. Section D-10.0105, as it currently exists, would not prohibit a presbytery from denying a minister who is under investigation permission to labor outside the bounds of that presbytery.

Presbyteries should be encouraged to exercise the wise discretion they possess under the current Book of Order (G-11.0401).

*Item 05-20

[The assembly referred Item 05-20 to the Office of the General Assembly with comments. See pp. 38, 40.]

On Amending D-10.0102, Accusation of Another—From the Presbytery of Santa Fe.

The Presbytery of Santa Fe overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative vote:

Shall D-10.0102 be amended as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown in italics.]

“The written statement may be submitted by

“a. a person under jurisdiction of a governing body of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), who alleges having been personally harmed by an alleged offense, making an accusation against another;

“b. a member of a governing body receiving information from any source about a member under jurisdiction of that same governing body who may have committed an offense that the member receiving the information thinks that an offense may have occurred which should be investigated for the purpose of discipline; or

“c. a person under jurisdiction of a governing body of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) coming forward in self-accusation.”

Comments:

1. The 217th General Assembly (2006) requests that the Office of the General Assembly undertake a study of the inappropriate use of judicial process and report findings and recommendation to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

2. The General Assembly urges individuals and governing bodies to become familiar with D-10.0102 and, as appropriate, to exercise their right to submit an accusation alleging (1) that a member of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has violated the commandment against bearing false witness, and/or (2) the member, if an officer of the church, has broken his/her ordination vows (see G-14.0405b(4)–(9) and G-14.0207d–j) by filing accusations in bad faith.

Rationale

Under the current Book of Order, any Presbyterian wherever located may accuse any other Presbyterian of committing an offense as defined in D-2.0203b. If the accusation is in writing and submitted according to D-10.0101*, the accusation automatically requires the appointment of an investigating committee by the presbytery or session receiving the accusation and makes other requirements of them (D-10.0103 and following).

This procedure can be abused if any single Presbyterian chooses to accuse numerous other Presbyterians of offenses. This has happened in recent years, resulting in much unnecessary judicial action costing both the church and individuals time and money.

At present, no appropriate limits are in place to control those who can make accusations against individuals in disciplinary matters although such limits do exist in remedial cases that involve governing bodies.

The proposed overture seeks to correct this problem while protecting the right of any individual who has been personally harmed to seek church discipline. If the person who claims personal harm is Presbyterian, he or she has direct access under subsection “a.” If the person is not Presbyterian, any member of the proper governing body may act on that person’s behalf under subsection “b,” but is not automatically required to do so.

In addition, any member of the proper governing body continues to be able to submit a written statement from any source that an offence may have occurred without regard to whether any personal harm occurred.

This proposed overture arose out of necessity to protect our church’s disciplinary system from abuse while continuing to provide access to those seeking justice through our church.

Endnote

* Section D-10.0101, immediately preceding the section to be amended provides additional details about the written statement: “Procedure preliminary to a disciplinary case is initiated by submitting to the clerk of session or the stated clerk of the presbytery having jurisdiction over the member (D-3.0101) a written statement of an alleged offense, together with any supporting information. The statement shall give a clear narrative and allege facts that, if proven true, would likely result in disciplinary action. Such allegations shall be referred to an investigating committee. (D-10.0201)”

Concurrence to Item 05-20 from the Presbytery of San Francisco.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-20

Advice on Item 05-20—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 05-20.

Overview

There are four overtures before this assembly that in some way seek to limit those who may bring accusations in disciplinary matters, in order to discourage frivolous allegations of offense against members of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

Item 05-20 and Item 05-21 both introduce the concept of limiting those who can submit a written statement under D-10.0102a to those who allege having been personally harmed by an alleged offense. Both propose a change to D-10.0102b that requires that the individual who receives information make a judgment regarding whether the allegation should be investigated.

Item 05-15 and Item 05-16 also seek to limit access to judicial process but propose a different solution. They have been addressed in separate advice on those overtures.

The polity of the PC(USA) currently provides means to protect the denomination and its members from abuse of the system. Currently that protection exists through

1. the ability of an investigating committee to determine that charges will not be filed;
2. the ability of the investigating committee to choose to file allegations against an individual who inappropriately files allegations against another;
3. the ability of a session/permanent judicial commission that tries a disciplinary case to include in its opinion the statement that the allegations were frivolous. Investigating committees and sessions/permanent judicial commissions are strongly urged to avail themselves of these means as they seek to protect the integrity of our judicial system.

Background Information Regarding Judicial Process

The Rules of Discipline (RoD) assume that individual members within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) agree to be held accountable to each other and to the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). Members, elders, and deacons are members of a particular church, whose session has both the responsibility to minister to the members and the duty to determine whether an individual member has committed an offense. Similarly, ministers of the Word and Sacrament are members of a particular presbytery that has the responsibility to minister to them and the duty to determine whether a member has committed an offense. If an individual is determined, after due process, to be guilty of an offense, censure may be imposed with the goal of bringing the individual to repentance and restoration of right relationship with the church.

An offense is an action that is contrary to the Scripture or the Constitution of the denomination. The presumption is that the body of Christ is harmed by an offense, not just an individual who may have been harmed. The parties to disciplinary cases are two: the accused and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). The individual(s) who may have suffered harm is not a party to the case.

The RoD provide that those against whom accusations have been made are to be accorded procedural safeguards and due process. Those accused of an offense have the right to counsel and the right to a trial. The trial of an individual member is by the session of the church of membership. The trial of a minister of the Word and Sacrament is by the permanent judicial commission of the presbytery of membership.

When a governing body receives written allegations from a member of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), D-10.0103 requires that the written allegation be referred immediately to an investigating committee. When a governing body receives a written allegation from a non-member of the PC(USA), or an oral accusation, the 216th General Assembly (2004) issued an authoritative interpretation that the allegation should be forwarded to an investigating committee to determine probable cause (Minutes, 2004, Part I, p. 300, Item 04-07).

There is currently no provision for any individual to determine whether an allegation is credible or whether there is probable cause to believe an accused committed an offense. This is done by an investigating committee (I.C.), not by an individual. The I.C. is accountable to the governing body and is guided by the provisions of D-10.0200. If, after inquiry, the I.C. determines that there is probable cause to believe that the accused committed an offense, and that the offense can be reasonably proved, the I.C. files charges. At this point the accused has the right to counsel, to present a defense, and to remain silent.

The investigating committee is limited under the current RoD to three courses of action. It can (1) file charges against the accused on behalf of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.); (2) after determination of probable cause, initiate alternative forms of resolution; or (3) report to the governing body that no charges are to be filed.

Rationale for Advice Concerning Item 05-20

Discipline in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is exercised on behalf of the whole church rather than on behalf of the person or persons who have experienced harm. This overture proposes to amend D-10.0102a to introduce the concept of personal harm, rather than harm to the community, as the basis of the disciplinary process.

Determination of probable cause is currently determined by an investigating committee that is accountable to the governing body, and guided by the provisions of D-10.0202. This overture proposes to amend D-10.0102b by assigning responsibility to the person(s) within the governing body that receives information from any source to exercise judgment about whether the matter should proceed.

Item 05-21

[The assembly answered Item 05-21 by the action taken on Item 05-20. See pp. 38, 40.]

On Amending D-10.0102, Accusation of Another—From the Presbytery of the Redwoods.

[Note: This overture was originally developed by the Presbytery of Santa Fe. The presbytery amended the Santa Fe version by substituting the words “person under jurisdiction” for “member” in “b.” below.]

The Presbytery of the Redwoods overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative vote:

Shall D-10.0102 be amended as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italics.]

“The written statement may be submitted by

“a. a person under jurisdiction of a governing body of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), who alleges having been personally harmed by an alleged offense, making an accusation against another;

“b. a ~~member~~ person under jurisdiction of a governing body receiving information from any source about a member under jurisdiction of that same governing body who may have committed an offense that the member receiving the information thinks ~~that an offense may have occurred~~ which should be investigated for the purpose of discipline; or

“c. a person under jurisdiction of a governing body of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) coming forward in self-accusation.”

Rationale

Under the current Book of Order, any Presbyterian wherever located may accuse any other Presbyterian of committing an offense as defined in D-2.0203b. If the accusation is in writing and submitted according to D-10.0101*, the accusation automatically requires the appointment of an investigating committee by the presbytery or session receiving the accusation and makes other requirements of them (D-10.0103 and following).

This procedure can be abused if any single Presbyterian chooses to accuse numerous other Presbyterians of offenses. This has happened in recent years, resulting in much unnecessary judicial action costing both the church and individuals time and money.

At present, no appropriate limits are in place to control those who can make accusations against individuals in disciplinary matters although such limits do exist in remedial cases that involve governing bodies.

The proposed overture seeks to correct this problem while protecting the right of any individual who has been personally harmed to seek church discipline. If the person who claims personal harm is Presbyterian, he or she has direct access under subsection “a.” If the person is not Presbyterian, any member of the proper governing body may act on that person’s behalf under subsection “b,” but is not automatically required to do so.

In addition, any member of the proper governing body continues to be able to submit a written statement from any source that an offence may have occurred without regard to whether any personal harm occurred.

This proposed overture arose out of necessity to protect our church’s disciplinary system from abuse while continuing to provide access to those seeking justice through our church.

Endnote

* Section D-10.0101, immediately preceding the section to be amended provides additional details about the written statement: “Procedure preliminary to a disciplinary case is initiated by submitting to the clerk of session or the stated clerk of the presbytery having jurisdiction over the member (D-3.0101) a written statement of an alleged offense, together with any supporting information. The statement shall give a clear narrative and allege facts that, if proven true, would likely result in disciplinary action. Such allegations shall be referred to an investigating committee. (D-10.0201)

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-21

Advice on Item 05-21—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 05-21.

Rationale

Please refer to the rationale provided in the Advisory Committee on the Constitution’s comment on Item 05-20.

§Item 05-22

[The assembly referred Item 05-22 to the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly, and the Office of the General Assembly with recommendation. See pp. 38, 40.]

On Establishing a Committee or Task Force to Conduct a Feasibility Study for Creating a Non-Geographic Korean American Synod—From the Presbytery of Midwest Hanmi.

The Midwest Hanmi Presbytery respectfully overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct its moderator to appoint a committee (or a task force) to conduct a feasibility study for creating a non-geographic Korean American Synod and report the result to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

Additional Recommendations from the 217th General Assembly (2006):

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA), the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly, and the Office of the General Assembly (OGA) are directed to work with a group of leaders from the National Korean Presbyterian Council (NKPC) and the Coordinating Committee for Korean-American Presbyteries (CCKAP) to address these concerns and seek to develop proposals to be brought to the 218th General Assembly (2008) that would strengthen the witness of Korean language governing bodies and provide better means for their connection with other governing bodies in the wider mission of the church and specifically consider the following:

- 1. How arrangements for racial ethnic congregations or their existing governing bodies may or may not strengthen and empower the ecclesial unity of PC(USA) as a church denomination.
- 2. Evaluate whether structural changes within PC(USA) abet the historical separation of people by race, class, age, nationality, ethnicity and gender.
- 3. Assess the consequences of structural change to groups who view themselves as being on the periphery of the PC(USA).
- 4. Examine the policies, procedures, programs, opportunities, and resources for racial ethnic women to empower and support ordination into the positions of elder, deacon, or minister of Word and Sacrament, and their equal participation in the church as a whole.
- 5. Assess the progress of the PC(USA) goal to increase the diversity and number of racial ethnic churches that would include the approaches taken thus far and planned for the future to fulfill this mission. Clear distinctions should be made between multicultural congregations and those of a specific racial ethnic group in the results.
- 6. Reflect on new and innovative ways that the PC(USA) can empower and work in partnership with all racial ethnic congregations.

[Original Financial Implications: (2006): $12,400; (2007): $29,920; (2008): $15,680 (Per Capita OGA)] [Assembly Action: (2006): $0; (2007): $0; (2008): $0]

Rationale

The overseas mission of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has been most successful in Korea for more than 120 years, and Korean American Presbyterians are a vital and integral part of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

The number of Korean American Presbyterian congregations has grown from only a few to four hundred during the past thirty years, and the National Korean Presbyterian Council (NKPC) has a bold vision to further increase the number of congregations to five hundred by the year 2010.

The Korean American constituency focuses vigorously on evangelism, through which the churches continue to strive for growth in number and quality (in conjunction with the 208th General Assembly (1996) resolution that racial ethnic membership be increased 20 percent by the year 2010), and the Korean American constituency plays a pivotal role in church growth through new church development and redevelopment.

The Korean American constituency engages purposefully in enabling, educating, and strengthening the development and nurturing of clergy and lay leadership through resource materials and educational training opportunities to empower the emerging generations so that young people will be able to effectively serve the church with vision, creativity, and evangelistic enthusiasm for the spiritual renewal of both local churches and the denomination as able mission partners.

In response to the cultural uniqueness, difficulty of language, emerging needs, and potential growth of the Korean Presbyterian congregations, four Hanmi (Korean American) presbyteries were organized by the approval of the General Assembly within these Synods: Hanmi Presbytery in the Synod of Southern California and Hawaii (1984); Midwest Hanmi Presbytery in the Synod of Lincoln Trails (1994); Eastern Korean Presbytery in the Synod of Northeast (1997); and Atlantic Korean-American Presbytery in the Synod of Mid-Atlantic (1997).

The 209th General Assembly (1997) resolved to organize the Coordinating Committee for Korean-American Presbyteries for the purpose of coordinating, consulting, networking, sharing, and communicating the ministries and mission of the Korean American presbyteries.

The Korean American presbyteries are in need of mutual encouragement and learning of the process and management of the presbytery as a vital middle governing body in relation to the local congregations and the higher governing bodies.

The National Korean Presbyterian Council (NKPC) has recently launched a mission project called 3 Million (3M) campaign to support the four mission priorities of the General Assembly Council and to participate in the Mission Initiative Joining Hearts and Hands (MIJHH).

Korean American Presbyterian congregations are seeking better ways to participate in the life of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) by forming a synod-level governing body to strengthen mission strategy, leadership development, and church connection.

COGA COMMENT ON ITEM 05-22

Comment on Item 05-22—From the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

Overture 35 seeks to establish a committee or task force to consider a non-geographic Korean Synod.

The Standing Rules of the General Assembly (K.1.a.) require that commissions or special committees can only be undertaken if the work cannot be done by an existing corporation or entity under its assigned responsibilities.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) advises the assembly that the best response to Item 05-22 is to find ways and enhance the work of the National Korean Presbyterian Council (NKPC) and the Coordinating Council of Korean Language Presbyteries (CCKP) with particular attention to the concerns expressed for mutual encouragement for learning the process and management of presbyteries.

The issue for COGA is how to assist the four Hanmi presbyteries to relate effectively to one another and the whole church in mission and ministry. Implicit in this may be that the present respective synods are not perceived to be able to meet those needs. The COGA believes that those needs can be met without a abandonment of our polity's understanding of the importance of regional focus on regional mission.

The COGA and the Stated Clerk would be pleased to work informally with a group of leaders from NKPC and CCKP in addressing these concerns and seeking to discern if there are proposals that could be brought to the 218th General Assembly (2008) that would strengthen the witness of Korean language governing bodies and provide better means for their connection with other governing bodies in the wider mission of the church.

The COGA advises the assembly that the costs of establishing a special committee as proposed in Item 05-22 would be $57,550 over the period 2006–2008.

The COGA is a committee of fifteen persons, elected by the General Assembly from across the church, made up of elders and ministers who supervise the work of the Office of the General Assembly.

ACREC ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 05-22

Advice & Counsel on Item 05-22—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC).

Item 05-22 would establish a task force to conduct a feasibility study for creating a nongeographic Korean American Synod. This overture was sent by the Presbytery of Midwest Hanmi.

While not advocating for the approval of Item 05-22, the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC) believes Item 05-22 deserves serious consideration by the General Assembly. If the Assembly Committee on Church Polity approves Item 05-22, ACREC advises that the task force doing such feasibility study be requested to consider the following as it does its work:

1. Show how this rearrangement of the governing and mission structure of the PC(USA) will strengthen its ecclesial unity as a church denomination.
2. Evaluate whether this structural change abets the historical separation of people by race, class, and ethnicity in the PC(USA).
3. Appraise whether this change in the structure of Korean ministry in the PC(USA) helps or hinders the PC(USA) ministry to all generations of Korean Americans, first, second, and future generations.
4. Evaluate whether this structural change is tantamount to creating an overlap of the general mission structure of the General Assembly of the PC(USA).
5. Assess the consequences of this structural change to other groups who view themselves as being on the periphery of the PC(USA).
6. Evaluate the stewardship implications of this change in funding the mission of the church denomination.
7. Weigh the demographics of Korean Americans in relation to this proposal, discerning whether it is consistent with current trends.

ACWC ADVICE AND COUNSEL ON ITEM 05-22

Advice and Counsel on Item 05-22—From the Advocacy Committee on Women’s Concerns (ACWC).

Item 05-22 calls for a committee to conduct a feasibility study for creating a nongeographic Korean-American synod.

The Advocacy Committee for Women’s Concerns (ACWC) advises Item 05-22 be approved as amended by adding the following sentence to the recommendation:

“The feasibility study will demonstrate how a Korean-specific synod will comply with Book of Order, G-14.0201, and detail process for assuring the ordination of women to the office of ruling elder.”

Rationale

One of the ACWC’s two main responsibilities is monitoring and evaluating policies, procedures, programs, and resources regarding the way in which they impact the status and position of women in the church and around the world.

Section G-14.0201 of the Book of Order states “Every congregation shall elect men and women from among its active members, giving fair representation to persons of all ages and of all racial ethnic members and persons with disabilities who are members of that congregation, to the office of elder and to the office of deacon, or either of them”

Item 05-23

[The assembly disapproved Item 05-23. See pp. 38, 40.]

On Amending the Book of Order to Provide Flexibility in Presbytery and Synod Membership—From the Presbytery of Beaver-Butler.

The Presbytery of Beaver-Butler overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendments to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

1. Shall G-11.0101 be amended as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“Presbytery is a corporate expression of the church consisting of all the churches and ministers of the Word and Sacrament ~~within a certain district~~ who have chosen to affiliate based on geographic, theological, missional, or other considera- tions of importance to those congregations. When a presbytery meets, each church shall be represented by an elder^b commissioned by the session with the following additional provisions:”

2. Shall G-11.0103j be deleted and current G-11.0103k–aa be re-lettered as G-11.0103j–z. [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through.]

~~“j. to control the location of new churches and of churches desiring to move;~~

3. Shall a new section “G-11.0600” be added to read as follows:

“G-11.0600 Changes in Membership

“a. Congregations may choose membership in a particular presbytery based on geographic, theological, missional, or other considerations of importance to those congregations.

“b. A congregation may seek to change presbytery membership by a two-thirds vote at a properly called congregational meeting.

“c. The receiving presbytery will accept the congregation’s request for membership by a majority vote at a properly called presbytery meeting.

“d. The minister(s) of Word and Sacrament of the joining congregation become members of the receiving presbytery when it is determined by the committee on ministry of the receiving presbytery that their call is in order (G-14.0506-.0507).”

4. Shall G-12.0101 be amended to read as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“Synod is the unit of the church’s life ~~and mission~~ which consists of not fewer than three presbyteries ~~within a specific geographic region~~ who choose to affiliate based on geographic, theological, missional, or other considerations of importance to those presbyteries. When a synod meets it shall be composed of commissioners elected by the presbyteries. The synod shall determine, with the consent of a majority of its presbyteries, the basis of election and the ratio of commissioners to members represented in the presbyteries, as well as its method to fulfill the principles of participation and representation found in G-9.0104 and G-9.0105. The commissioners from each presbytery shall be divided equally between elders and ministers of the Word and Sacrament. Each person elected moderator shall be enrolled as a member of the synod until a successor is elected and installed, and then shall be enrolled as a corresponding member of the synod.”

5. Shall G-12.0102k be amended by striking the current text and inserting new text to read as follows:

~~“k. to organize new presbyteries, to divide, unite, or otherwise combine presbyteries or portions of presbyteries previously existing, and, with the concurrence of existing presbyteries, to create nongeographic presbyteries in order to meet the mission needs (G 11.0103a; G 12.0102a) of identified racial ethnic or immigrant congregations; subject to the approval of the General Assembly. Such presbyteries shall be formed in compliance with the requirements of G 7.0201 and G 11.0102 and be accountable to the synod within which they were created. To vote to receive, by majority vote, existing and new presbyteries that have petitioned for synod membership (G-12.0307).”~~

6. Shall a new section “G-12.0400” be added to read as follows:

“G-12.0400 Changes in Membership

“a. A presbytery may seek membership in a particular synod based on geographic, theological, missional, or other considerations of importance to that presbytery.

“b. A presbytery may seek to change synod membership by a two-thirds vote at a properly called presbytery meeting.

“c. The receiving synod will accept the presbytery request for membership by a majority vote at a properly called synod meeting.

“d. New presbyteries shall be formed when not fewer than twelve congregations petition a synod for the creation of a presbytery of which they will become member congregations. New presbyteries shall be created by a two-thirds vote of the synod at a properly called meeting.

7. Shall G-13.0103m be stricken and new text inserted so that it shall read as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

~~“m. to organize new synods and to divide, unite, or otherwise combine synods or portions of synods previously existing to provide for the creation of new synods. New synods shall be formed when not fewer than three presbyteries petition the General Assembly for the creation of a synod of which they will become member presbyteries. New synods shall be created by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly at a regularly called meeting.”~~

8. Shall G-13.0103n-x be amended so that it shall read as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

~~“n. to approve the organization, division, uniting, or combining of presbyteries or portions of presbyteries by synods;~~

~~“o. n.~~ to serve in judicial matters in accordance with the Rules of Discipline;

~~“p. to warn or bear witness against error in doctrine or immorality in practice in or outside the church;~~

~~“q. o.~~ to decide controversies brought before it and to give advice and instruction in cases submitted to it, in conformity with the Constitution;

~~“r. p.~~ to provide authoritative interpretation of the Book of Order which shall be binding on the governing bodies of the church when rendered in accord with G-13.0112 or through a decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission in a remedial or disciplinary case. The most recent interpretation of a provision of the Book of Order shall be binding;

~~“s. q.~~ to establish and maintain those ecumenical relationships that will enlarge the life and mission of the church;

~~“t. r.~~ to correspond with other churches;

~~“u. s.~~ to receive under its jurisdiction, with the consent of two thirds of the presbyteries, other ecclesiastical bodies whose life is consistent with the faith and order of this church;

~~“v. t. to authorize synods to exercise similar power in receiving ecclesiastical bodies suited to become constituents of those governing bodies and lying within their geographic bounds constituents of those governing bodies;~~

~~“w. u.~~ to unite with other churches in accordance with the procedures set forth in this Constitution. (G-15.0300)

~~“x. v.~~ to review the work of the Office of the General Assembly in consultation with the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.”

9. Shall G-8.0401 be amended by adding the following paragraphs to read as follows:

“a. Any presbytery that chooses to withdraw from the denomination shall forfeit all real property to synod.

“b. Any synod that chooses to withdraw from the denomination shall forfeit all real property to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)”

Rationale

Make the changes to the Form of Government that will honor the spirit of the Report of the Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church. These changes will accommodate the diverse belief systems, theological positions, and mission designs that currently exist within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and will encourage the kind of “flexible equilibrium” to which the task force calls the church (lines 807–808, Final Report of the Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church).

The 213th General Assembly (2001) directed the Moderators of the 213th, 212th, and the 211th General Assemblies (2001), (2000), and (199) to appoint a theological task force reflecting the theological and cultural diversity of the church to “lead the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) in spiritual discernment of our Christian identity, in and for the 21st century. . . . This discernment shall include but not be limited to issues of Christology, biblical authority and interpretation, ordination standards and power” (Minutes, 2001, Part I, p. 29). One significant outcome from the task force involves allowing presbyteries and synods a certain amount of latitude (what the report calls flexible equilibrium [lines 918–19]) in matters of polity.

“Our faith is in the God of Israel who raised Jesus Christ bodily from the dead. This is the one faith confessed by the people of God: ‘one Lord, one faith, one God and Father of all, who is above all and through all and in all’ (Eph. 4:5–6)” (Theological Task Force on the Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church final report, lines 51–53).

“It is by following Jesus Christ, as attested for us in Scripture, that the unity of our faith will be made visible today as it has in the past” (Ibid, lines 58–60).

Jesus Christ alone is head of the church. Jesus alone is the source of the church’s unity.

Section G-1.0100c affirms that: “Christ gives to his Church its faith and life, its unity and mission, its officers and ordinances.” The task force final report reminds us that our unity is rooted in Christ and that the church’s purity does not spring from “technical or legal means,” but from Jesus Christ. Attempting to keep the church unified and pure without providing freedom for Christ’s Spirit to move is not helpful.

Section G-1.0301(1)(a) affirms that: “... ‘God alone is Lord of the conscience, and hath left it free from the doctrines and commandments of men which are in anything contrary to his Word, or beside it, in matters of faith or worship.’” Flexibility in presbytery and synod membership provides options for theological and missional partnerships not possible under the rigid geographical criteria that worked well in other times.

Section G-3.0401d affirms that God is calling us “to a new openness to God’s continuing reformation of the Church ecumenical, that it might be a more effective instrument of mission in the world.” The task force points out that “there are many signs that, on a changing cultural landscape, old models are breaking down and new forms of denominationalism in the United States are developing at local, regional, and national levels” (lines 905–907). These new forms cannot emerge from strict adherence to existing structures; they must be permitted and nurtured by a denomination willing to seek flexibility and equilibrium.

The intended purpose of flexible equilibrium in presbytery and synod membership is to provide safe opportunity for congregations and judicatories to express shared, deeply held convictions. To seek flexibility regarding essential belief, as the task force does, without providing a corresponding freedom of association based on those very convictions is contradictory and ultimately self-defeating.

Under a more flexible system of presbytery and synod membership, the power of the upper judicatories is diminished (for example, in discipline and enforcement) and that of lower judicatories (congregations and presbyteries) increases.

A flexible plan of presbytery and synod membership provides an affirmation of the missional church’s understanding of non-hierarchal structures and ministries. It affirms the congregation as the primary agent of mission and ministry and the presbytery as secondary agent for the support, encouragement, and accountability of congregations and pastors. Any other judicatories are tertiary agents for the support, encouragement, and accountability of the presbytery.

Allowing congregations flexibility in their presbytery membership, and presbyteries in their synods membership, provides the basis for mission and ministry under a generous and broad orthodox creedal Reformed Christianity. Membership flexibility acknowledges the current era of diverse styles and forms while maintaining the historic unity of the church.

Competing factions within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) appeal to “Historic Presbyterianism.” Flexible equilibrium is, by contrast, future-oriented while at the same time providing an affirmation of “Presbyterianism” in its connectional-accountable sense. It acknowledges the need for one another while rejecting both institutional coercion and radical ecclesiastical autonomy.

A flexible plan for presbytery and synod membership allows congregations and judicatories to work for reformation and renewal in local congregations and in presbyteries only as they serve the local congregation. This flexibility allows the denomination to focus on positive change rather than defensive battles.

For these reasons, we urge the 217th General Assembly (2006) to approve this overture.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 05-23

Advice on Item 05-23—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 05-23.

Rationale

The actions contemplated in this overture represent a fundamental change in the church's understanding of Reformed theology and Presbyterian governance.

The overture proposes several changes in G-11.0000, G-12.0000, and G-13.0000 that would redefine membership in presbyteries and synods. Under the language of the overture, congregations would be allowed to seek affiliation with presbyteries on the basis of various criteria, including geographical, theological, and missional concerns, and "other considerations of importance to those congregations." Similarly, presbyteries would be permitted to choose synod affiliation based on the same criteria. In both G-11.0000 and G-12.0000, new sections are proposed that provide the method by which a congregation or presbytery might change their affiliations. Finally, two new sections are proposed for addition to G-8.0000 that require presbyteries or synods seeking to leave the Presbyterian Church (USA) to forfeit all real property to the next higher governing body.

This overture represents a dramatic departure from basic assumptions of the Constitution about the way the church is organized in three ways. First, the overture assumes that lower governing bodies should be able to choose their affiliation with higher governing bodies. By contrast, our polity has understood that the creation of lower governing bodies (sessions, presbyteries, and synods) is the responsibility of higher governing bodies (presbyteries, synods, and the General Assembly, respectively). By allowing lower governing bodies to select their places of membership, the overture fundamentally reverses the understanding of this relationship.

Second, this overture would permit congregations and presbyteries to select governing body affiliation on grounds of theological and missional concerns, as well as "other considerations of importance" to the list of criteria for the choice of affiliation. Under the terms of this overture, it would become possible for congregations and presbyteries to affiliate with presbyteries and synods with whom they find persons of similar mind on whatever is the controversial issue of the day. While the church has found value in the development of affinity groups and networks of like-minded individuals, they form an insufficient foundation on which to build a system of governance. Indeed, the foundations of our polity insist that the church "as it gathers for worship and orders its corporate life will display a rich variety of form, practice, language, program, nurture, and service ..." (G-4.0401).

Third, the overture contemplates that congregations could choose to affiliate with presbyteries well beyond the geographic region in which they are physically located. This is not a new idea; in recent years our polity has made provision for "non-geographic" presbyteries, all of which have been based on ties of common ethnicity (G-12.0102k).

However, the effect of this overture could be significantly to increase the number of congregations whose presbytery membership lies outside their geographical location. This will make it difficult for the presbytery to fulfill its mandate to "... be responsible for the mission and government of the church throughout its geographical district ..." (G-11.0103), to "develop strategy for the mission of the church in its area ..." (G-11.0103a), and to carry out such geographically defined tasks as "to control the location of new churches and ... churches desiring to move" (G-11.0103j).

At stake here is not merely a style of polity but a central ecclesiological question: is the church finally a voluntary association of the like-minded, or is it called into being by the sovereign God through the grace of Jesus Christ, who gathered to himself persons of vastly different persuasion, background, and lifestyle?

In addition to these larger theological and philosophical concerns, the overture, if approved, would create conflicts with specific aspects of existing polity in two ways.

First, transfers of members, ministers, congregations, and governing bodies have historically been done with the concurrence of both transferring and receiving governing bodies, as well as the individual or entity seeking to change membership. This overture would permit transfers to be accomplished by only two of the parties: the congregation or presbytery seeking the transfer, and the receiving governing body.

Second, the proposed new G-11.0600 would grant to the congregation the power to vote to change presbytery affiliation. Since change of presbytery affiliation is not a matter appropriate for consideration in congregational meetings, the proposed G-11.0600 would be in conflict with the list of appropriate congregational business in G-7.0304.

COGA COMMENT ON ITEM 05-23

Comment on Item 05-23—From the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

Item 05-23 seeks to amend the Book of Order to alter presbytery and synod membership.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) supports the rationale and advice of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution to disapprove this overture.

However, COGA affirms its willingness to participate in conversations throughout the church around the issues of mission and freedom of conscience raised by this item.

The COGA is a committee of fifteen persons, elected by the General Assembly from across the church, made up of elders and ministers who supervise the work of the Office of the General Assembly.

Request 06-1. ACC Request Regarding Interpretation of G-14.0801 On Commissioned Lay Pastors Serving in a Presbytery Other Than That Where They Were Commissioned—Stated Clerk/Executive Presbyter, Presbytery of Whitewater Valley.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) answer Item 05-24 (ACC Request 06-1) with the following interpretation:

The determinations as to whether a commissioned lay pastor may labor within the bounds of a presbytery lies within the sole discretion of the presbytery in which such ministry occurs.

Rationale

This request raises the question as to whether there is any constitutional bar to a presbytery commissioning a lay pastor who is a member of a congregation within the bounds of another presbytery to service within its bounds.

Authority to commission lay pastors is found in G-14.0801a:

The commissioned lay pastor (CLP) is an elder of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), who is granted a local commission by the presbytery to lead worship and preach the gospel, watch over the people, and provide for their nurture and service. This commission is valid only in one or more congregations, new church development, or other validated ministries of the presbytery designated by the presbytery.

Under this provision, a lay pastor must be commissioned to a particular ministry. Movement to a new ministry requires a new commissioning to that ministry.

Authority to commission lay pastors is linked to the fundamental authority of the presbytery to provide for and oversee mission within its geographic bounds. Section G-11.0103 provides in pertinent parts:

The presbytery is responsible for the mission and government of the church throughout its geographical district. It therefore has the responsibility and power

- a. to develop strategy for the mission of the church in its area consistent with G-3.0000;
- b. to coordinate the work of its member churches, guiding them and mobilizing their strength for the most effective witness to the broader community for which it has responsibility;
- c. to initiate mission through a variety of forms in light of the larger strategy of the synod and the General Assembly;
- k. to take special oversight of churches without pastors, including the authority to select, train, examine, and commission lay pastors and may authorize them to administer the Lord's Supper (G-14.0516);
- o. to establish the pastoral relationship and to dissolve it at the request of one or both of the parties, or when it finds that the church's mission under the Word imperatively demands it;
- p. to designate ministers to work as teachers, evangelists, administrators, chaplains, and in other forms of ministry recognized as appropriate by the presbytery. Such ministers may administer the Sacraments at times and places approved by a governing body, or in conformity to other conditions specified by a governing body. The applicable provisions of W-2.3000, W-2.4000, and W-3.3600 shall be followed; ...

Further, G-9.0103 provides in part: "The jurisdiction of each governing body is limited by the express provisions of the Constitution, with powers not mentioned being reserved to the presbyteries, and with the acts of each subject to review by the next higher governing body."

The Form of Government is silent as to whether a commissioned lay pastor must be a member of a congregation within the presbytery in which the CLP's ministry is performed.

In light of these applicable provisions, there is no basis in the Form of Government for finding a prohibition upon a presbytery commissioning a lay pastor who is a member of a congregation within another presbytery from serving within that presbytery. Each presbytery has the sole discretion to determine what standards will apply to determining whether to commission an elder as a lay pastor within the geographic bounds of that presbytery, whether that commission be to a congregation, a new church development, or other validated ministries of the presbytery. This discretion includes the authority to determine whether membership in a congregation with the presbytery is a prerequisite to such a commission. On the other hand, the presbytery in which an elder seeking commissioning to a particular ministry is a member of a congregation has no authority to commission the elder to such a ministry that occurs within the geographic bounds of another presbytery. Similarly, if a ministry occurs across the geographic bounds of two presbyteries, both presbyteries must approve the commissioning of the lay pastor to that ministry.

In making the determination as to whether to commission a lay pastor who is a member of congregation within the bounds of another, presbyteries should be cognizant of the provisions of D-3.0101b(1): "The presbytery has original jurisdiction in disciplinary cases involving minister members of that presbytery and commissioned lay pastors serving in congregations in the presbytery. (G-11.0502f)"

These provisions give the presbytery authority over the discipline of commissioned lay pastors serving congregations within its bounds. They do not give a presbytery authority over the discipline of commissioned lay pastors serving in other validated ministries within its bounds if that elder is not a member of a congregation within the presbytery. The expense of potential disciplinary action involving a commissioned lay pastor who is not a member of a congregation within the presbytery is a factor a presbytery may want to consider before deciding to approve such a commissioning.

Letter of Request as Received by the Advisory Committee on the Constitution

A situation has emerged for which I would like to seek clarification as Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Whitewater Valley.

G-14.0801 appears to have been written with the expectation that Commissioned Lay Pastors would serve only in the Presbytery where they are commissioned.

Given the nature of the church, it is not unusual for CLP's to be members of churches near the border of one or more other presbyteries—often presbyteries with many more opportunities for service.

Because CLP's maintain their membership in their congregation, the constitution lacks clear language for managing situations where a Commissioned Lay Pastor from one presbytery is called to serve a congregation in another presbytery. It is clear from the Rules of Discipline that the presbytery where the CLP is serving has original jurisdiction over the CLP, but nothing in the Form of Government provides for that accountability.

It may be that this is simply one of those situations where "if it is not prohibited, it is permitted" comes into play—as well as presbyteries having responsibility for all matters not specifically assigned other judicatories. But I believe a ruling by the ACC which can then be cited in the Annotated BofO would assist other presbyteries who confront this situation (and their number will grow as the number of CLP's continues to increase).

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Dr. W. Keith Geckeler, Co-Executive/Stated Clerk, Presbytery of Whitewater Valley.

Request 06-2. Interpretation of G-4.0403 & G-14.0201 Re. Policy of Making Staff Ineligible for Service as an Officer--- Stated Clerk/Executive Presbyter, Presbytery of Coastal Carolina.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) answer Item 05-25 (ACC Request 06-2) with the following authoritative interpretation:

Pursuant to G-7.0304a(1), a congregation may adopt a policy prohibiting election of the congregation's paid staff for nomination and election as an officer or trustee of that congregation.

Rationale

This request asks whether it is constitutionally permissible for a congregation to adopt as policy a provision that a person serving on the church's paid staff is ineligible for nomination and election as an officer in that church. The Advisory Committee on the Constitution recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) approve an authoritative interpretation confirming that such a policy may be adopted.

A session of a congregation may not adopt policies limiting eligibility for nomination or election to office. Such authority resides uniquely in the congregation. A session, however, does have the power to provide for "employment of nonordained staff, with concern for equal employment opportunity, fair employment practices, [and] personnel policies" Under this authority, a session, if concerned that the election of employees to office might create a conflict of interest or other concerns, could establish a personnel policy providing that employment will cease upon election to or installation in office.

Pursuant to G-7.0304a(1), congregations are permitted to consider in their meetings "matters related to the electing of elders, deacons, and trustees." This section is not limited to "the election of elders, deacons, and trustees," but more broadly allows action on "matters related to" such elections. Likewise, G-14.0201a ("... [a] particular church may provide for a period of ineligibility after one full term. ...") points to the authority of congregations to adopt policies regarding eligibility for election to office.

However, such powers are not unconstrained. Section G-5.0202 provides in relevant part: "... An active member is entitled to all the rights and privileges of the church, including the right to participate in the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, to present children for baptism, to take part in meetings of the congregation, and to vote and hold office. ..."

Further, G-4.0403 contains fundamental protections for participation in the governance of the church:

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) shall give full expression to the rich diversity within its membership and shall provide means which will assure a greater inclusiveness leading to wholeness in its emerging life. Persons of all racial ethnic groups, different ages, both sexes, various disabilities, diverse geographical areas, different theological positions consistent with the Reformed tradition, as well as different marital conditions (married, single, widowed, or divorced) shall be guaranteed full participation and access to representation in the decision making of the church. (G-9.0104a)

Care should be taken that any policy adopted by a congregation limiting those eligible for election to office have a sound basis in protecting legitimate concerns of the congregation, such as avoiding a conflict of interest and that the policy not, advertently or inadvertently, limit the diversity of representation among the officers of the congregation, contrary to G-4.0403.

Letter of Request as Received by the Advisory Committee on the Constitution

I write to address a polity inquiry to the Committee that pertains to a congregation's procedures and policies for electing its officers.

My specific question is as follows: Is it constitutionally permissible for a congregation to adopt as policy a provision that a person serving on the church's paid staff is ineligible for nomination and election as an officer in that church?

For your information, I am enclosing an email inquiry which I directed to our friends in the Department of Constitutional Services. This email summarizes my own initial thinking and research with regard to this issue. The Constitutional Services folk were responsive and helpful, and part of their response was the suggestion that I consider directing a polity inquiry to the Committee, a suggestion with which I concur.

I will be grateful to have your clarification of the possibilities of what is and is not possible under Book of Order guidance and requirements with regard to officers of the church serving as paid staff, and paid church staff serving as officers. Thank you very much for your consideration.

Sincerely yours,

John R. Goodman
Executive Presbyter and Stated Clerk
Presbytery of Coastal Carolina

Enclosure

I have a question for you and/or perhaps for the ConServ Forum (I think that's what Fred, Mark and Zane used to call themselves), regarding election of elders and possible restrictions.

Not long ago I was asked the question of whether a member who is a church employee can be elected an elder in the church. My response was that there is nothing in the constitution which would prohibit it.

I went on to say, though, that there could be restrictions within the congregation itself as to whether a person can be both an employee and a session member. On one hand, it could be a matter of personnel policies enacted by the session, that the session would not hire as a paid employee of the church a person serving on session; and again as a matter of personnel policy, if a staff person were elected an elder, that person's tenure as an employ would come to an end upon installation to office. I also noted that on the other hand, in my opinion the congregation could enact a congregational policy with regard to the same basic thing, to the effect that a person in the employment of that church would not be eligible for nomination and election as an elder of the church.

Two folk whose judgment I appreciate have taken issue especially with the second part of that, voicing the view that doing so would put restrictions on election of elders that go beyond what is provided for in the Constitution of the church. They've made the comparison that if a congregation can add that restriction, a congregation could add other restrictions unrelated to Christian faith, perhaps having to do with gender, with race, with theological perspective, or whatever. I still see employment in the church as qualitatively different from those other categories which are specifically identified in G-4.0403. It's clear that a person cannot be excluded from election to office for any of those categories listed in 4.0403 and a congregation would definitely be in violation of the constitution to establish such a policy. But it's not clear to me that a congregation would be going against the constitution to use employment in that church as a reason for excluding a person from eligibility to serve.

Looking at ABoO at 4.0403 and at G-14.0201, the closest I see to guidance is the last note under the latter which cites a 1978 UPC reference and says, "Session cannot impose eligibility requirements different than constitutional requirements." I wouldn't see that applying to the session establishing personnel policies, as such policies pertain to who can be employed rather than to who can be elected and installed to office. But I also don't see it applying directly to congregational action to establish policy that a church employee is not eligible to be nominated and elected as an elder. For one thing, the notation says "session" rather than congregation. For another, if the words "different than" are read as synonymous to "contrary to", clearly a congregation cannot establish policy that contravenes the constitution; but I'm unable to see where such a policy as I'm describing would contravene the constitution.

That's where I am and why. But in light of some trusted folk seeing it differently, I'd be grateful to have your wisdom and/or that of your colleagues. I have a hunch this isn't the first time the question has been raised. Many thanks!

Request 06-3. Interpretation of G-11.0502h Regarding Committee on Ministry's Authority to Approve Commissions for Ordination--Stated Clerk/Executive Presbyter, Presbytery of St. Augustine.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) answer Item 05-26 (ACC Request 06-3) with the following interpretation:

The responsibility to appoint an administrative commission to conduct an ordination may be delegated by the presbytery to a committee or an officer and each presbytery may provide by rule for the manner in which such appointment shall be made within its bounds.

Rationale

The Presbytery of St. Augustine has submitted the request, asking "whether the Committee on Ministry (COM) is permitted to approve commissions for ordination on behalf of the presbytery without having either to wait for a stated meeting or to call a special meeting of the presbytery." As a result of the 1996 amendment of G-14.0314a, the responsibility for examination of candidates now "ordinarily" rests with the presbytery of call and responsibility for ordination now "ordinarily" rests with the presbytery of care. When the presbytery of call notifies the presbytery of care that a candidate has been cleared for ordination and that notification comes after a meeting of the presbytery of care, must the presbytery of care wait for its next meeting to form an administrative commission to carry out the ordination or may the responsibility of forming that commission be delegated by the presbytery?

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advised the 204th General Assembly (1992), in response to a request to clarify the relationship between the calling process and the installation service, that the calling process is incomplete until the service of installation has taken place. The 204th General Assembly (1992) approved the advice of the Advisory Committee (Minutes, 1992, Part I, pp. 132, 306). Accordingly, under the provisions of G-11.0502h of the Book of Order, when the presbytery has exercised its authority to delegate approval of calls to the committee on ministry, the presbytery has delegated its authority to approve plans for installation and the power to appoint the necessary administrative commissions to carry out those plans.

The request raises sensitive and significant questions about the authority of a presbytery's committee on ministry to approve the appointment of an administrative commission to ordain a candidate for the ministry of Word and Sacrament. In particular the request focuses on the practice of many presbyteries requiring such commissions to be elected only at a stated or special meeting of the presbytery. This requirement can sometimes cause considerable frustration and inconvenience for the candidate, the calling church and presbytery, as well as for the presbytery of care. Ordination is a serious and significant moment for all of those parties. It is important that the persons and entities involved act responsibly and competently to reduce the difficulties.

Among the practices that would ease the situation for everyone are the following:

- There should be careful and complete communications between the presbytery of call and the presbytery of care's committee on preparation for ministry and the respective committees on ministry.
- Ordinarily it is incumbent upon the presbytery of call to fulfill the highly significant examination of the candidate (G-14.0314) and, having done so, to notify promptly the presbytery of care.
- The presbytery of care, upon receiving official notice of the candidate's successful completion of the ordination requirements (G-14.0402), shall proceed promptly to ordain the candidate. The ability to appoint an administrative commission quickly would facilitate that process.

There is nothing in the Book of Order that would prohibit the delegation of the appointment of an administrative commission to ordain. The authority to delegate the appointment of commissions for installation would support similar delegation authority in the case of ordinations. Since there is no need to specify the particular manner in which such delegation and appointment should be carried out, it is best to leave those details to be determined by each presbytery.

Letter of Request as Received by the Advisory Committee on the Constitution

A question has arisen here in the Presbytery of St. Augustine regarding whether the COM is permitted to approve commissions for ordination on behalf of the presbytery without having either to wait for a stated meeting or to call a special meeting of the presbytery.

In a note appended to G-11.0502h, the Annotated Edition of the Book of Order refers to an assembly decision (1993) regarding commissions for installations; the relevant part of the decision reads:

In 1992, the advisory committee advised the 204th General Assembly (1992), in response to a request to clarify the relationship between the calling process and the installation service, that the calling process is incomplete until the service of installation has taken place. The 204th General Assembly (1992) adopted the advice of the advisory committee (Minutes, 1992, Part I, pp.132,306). Accordingly, under the provisions of G-11.0502h of the Book of Order, when the presbytery has exercised its authority to delegate approval of calls to the committee on ministry, the presbytery has delegated its authority to approve plans for installation and the power to appoint the necessary administrative commissions to carry out those plans.

As is clear from the GA decision, this authority applies in the case of ministers already ordained and now seeking installation within a presbytery. The presumption apparently being made is that candidates for ministry will continue to be examined on the floor of the ordaining presbytery pursuant to any decision to ordain.

However, as a result of the 1996 amendment of G-14.0314a, responsibility for examination of candidates now "ordinarily" rests with the presbytery of call and responsibility for ordination now "ordinarily" rests with the presbytery of care. In the same year, G-14.0402a was amended to remove the words "his or her" in the first line and replace them with the article "the," making possible the interpretation that the requirements for examination detailed in G-14.0402a apply to the calling presbytery (although the section is nowhere clear that this is the intended interpretation). In practice this division of responsibility for the two “final chapters” in the transition between candidacy and ministry has meant either 1) that candidates now must stand two examinations, one for reception and installation in the calling presbytery and one for ordination in the presbytery of care, or more frequently 2) that the presbytery of care accepts notice of the successful completion of the examination by the calling presbytery in lieu of its own exam, and proceeds to establish a commission for ordination without further examination by presbytery (again, an interpretation consistent with but not explicit in the provisions of either G-14.0314a or G-14.0402a). In either case, the candidate must wait for a stated meeting of his/her presbytery of care before obtaining approval of a commission to ordain and proceeding to a service of ordination.

In a recent case in our presbytery, we received notice of the successful completion of examination by another presbytery of one of our candidates, but the notice arrived the day after our presbytery had met. The result of this unfortunate accident of timing is that the candidate must now wait three months before receiving what will be regarded as routine approval of a commission to ordain. This seems an unwarranted delay in this candidate’s ability to assume full pastoral responsibilities, a delay that would be avoided if our COM (which has the delegated authority to approve calls under G-11.0502h) could approve an ordination commission.

In light of these facts and routines of practice, and in light of the 1993 ruling regarding delegation of authority to the COM to approve commissions for installation, is the COM of the presbytery of care similarly empowered to approve commissions for ordination for candidates under the care of its presbytery, upon receipt of notice of the successful completion of the requirements of G-14.0402 as administered by the calling presbytery and if the presbytery of care has delegated authority for examining ministers and approving calls to its COM under the provisions of G-11.0502h?

It may be that this question has already been addressed by previous advisory opinions or decisions of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution; if so I would be happy to be directed to the appropriate advice or ruling.

With much appreciation for the work you and your staff do every day in the service of Jesus Christ and the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), I am Request 06-5. Interpretation Regarding Authority of Synod Permanent Judicial Commission Decisions—Stated Clerk, Synod of the Covenant.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) answer Item 05-27 (ACC Request 06-5) with the following interpretation:

Decisions of the permanent judicial commissions of synods and presbyteries are binding on the parties to the particular cases in which the decisions are rendered unless overturned on appeal. No synod or presbytery permanent judicial commission is able to make its decisions binding beyond the parties to the particular case by simply declaring it to be so.

At the same time, decisions of synod permanent judicial commissions are precedent setting for that synod, its presbyteries, members of the presbyteries, sessions, and members of the particular churches in the synod. Likewise, decisions of presbytery permanent judicial commissions are precedent setting for that presbytery, members of that presbytery, sessions, and members of the particular churches within that presbytery. That is to say, governing bodies and members in the same jurisdiction and a lower jurisdiction below the one rendering a decision should be aware that the permanent judicial commission will render similar decisions in cases on the same issues and with like fact situations. Wefer v. Synod of Pennsylvania (Minutes, UPC, 1957, Part I, pp. 188–93). Therefore, the conduct of such governing bodies and members should be governed accordingly in matters relating to ecclesiastical law.

Only the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission has the power to render decisions that are authoritative interpretations binding on the entire church, because the Book of Order so provides (G-13.0103r).

Rationale

The requester asks how binding or precedent setting is a decision of a synod permanent judicial commission (PJC) beyond the case for which it is written. Is it binding or precedent setting for future decisions by the PJC of that synod and/or its presbyteries? May a synod PJC in writing its decision say: “This decision is binding in this case and in all future cases in this synod and its presbyteries, unless and until revised or overturned by the Synod PJC, or the General Assembly PJC”? And is there a difference between a decision being “binding” and “precedent setting”?

An authoritative interpretation of the Book of Order by the General Assembly, which is “rendered in accord with G-13.0112 or through a decision of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission in a remedial or disciplinary case” (G-13.0103r) is binding on all of the governing bodies of the church. Permanent judicial commissions of synods and presbyteries, while they may interpret the Constitution, have no power to make authoritative interpretations that have the same binding effect as the decisions of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission.

Letter of Request as Received by the Advisory Committee on the Constitution

I have been asked some questions by the stated clerks of the Synod of the Covenant that I am unable to answer, and so I am writing to you for information.

I know that the Decision of a Synod Permanent Judicial Commission is binding in the case for which it is written, unless later overturned by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission, and that the Decision of a Synod Permanent Judicial Commission is not binding in any other Synod. But how binding or precedent setting is a Synod PJC Decision in the Synod in which it was issued? Is it binding or precedent setting for future Decisions by the PJC of that Synod and/or its Presbyteries. Or may a Synod PJC in writing its Decision say: “This Decision is binding in this case and in all future cases in this Synod and its Presbyteries, unless and until revised or overturned by the Synod PJC, or the General Assembly PJC”? And is there a difference between a Decision being “binding” and “precedent setting”?

Thank you for your attention to these questions, and to the answer you will give.

Sincerely,

George W. Baird

Request 06-7. Interpretation of the Word “May” in G-14.0513b—From the General Presbyter and Stated Clerk, Presbytery of the James.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) answer Item 05-28 (ACC Request 06-7) with the following response:

The request asks whether the wording of the last sentence in G-14.0513b, “a minister may not be called to be the next installed pastor, co-pastor, or associate pastor of a church served as interim pastor or co-pastor,” should be read as “shall not be the next installed pastor” [emphasis added].

Answer: That is the correct reading of the sentence.

Throughout the Book of Order the word “may” signifies practice that is permissible, but not required (see Preface). Thus if the sentence said, “a minister may be called to be the next installed pastor, co-pastor, or associate pastor of a church served as interim pastor or co-pastor,” the installation of the interim pastor or co-pastor as the next installed pastor, co-pastor, or associate pastor would be permitted but not required. However, the sentence says that someone who has served a church as an interim pastor or co-pastor may not serve that same church in an installed position. The clear meaning of the wording is that the practice is not permitted. In fact, it is forbidden. The addition of the word “not” following the word “may” turns permitted practice into prohibited practice.

That the practice is prohibited is made clear by a reading of the history of the 1987 amendment to G-14.0513b. Prior to that time the sentence said, “a minister may not be called to be the next installed pastor, co-pastor, or associate pastor of a church served as interim pastor or co-pastor, unless six months have elapsed since the end of the temporary relationship” [emphasis added]. The Book of Order was amended by striking that last phrase from the sentence for the specific purpose of prohibiting the practice of an interim becoming an installed pastor at the same church. At the time the overture to amend that provision was being considered by the General Assembly the Advisory Committee on the Constitution commented that “the six month provision has lent itself to deceptive practices by both pastors and churches” and has “permitted a literal adherence to the Book of Order but has denied its intent.” The Advisory Committee on the Constitution then recommended that the overture be adopted in order to prohibit the practice of an interim pastor obtaining an installed position.

Letter of Request as Received by the Advisory Committee on the Constitution

I wanted to inquire of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution concerning G-14.0513b and the wording, “A minister may not be called to be the next installed pastor, co-pastor, or associate pastor of a church served as interim pastor or interim co-pastor.”

My reading of this sentence is that it reads as “shall not” be eligible. However, an Elder in our presbytery has raised a question concerning the word “may” being used in this instance. Her reasoning is that if may is “permissive” in the Book of Order, then it would be permissible for someone to be called as the next installed pastor. While I don’t agree with her interpretation, I indicated I would get an official ruling from the ACC.

Please inform us if the reading of “may not be the next installed pastor” has been read as “shall not be the next installed pastor.”

I appreciate your response and trust this will not take too much of your time.

Sincerely yours,

H. Carson Rhyne, Jr.
General Presbyter and Stated Clerk
Presbytery of the James Request 06-13. Interpretation of D-6.0103 Re Stay of Enforcement—From the Manager of Judicial Process and Social Witness Policy, Office of the General Assembly.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) answer Item 05-29 (Request 06-13) with the following response:

The present wording of D-6.0103 provides no basis for a challenge. If the assembly wishes to provide for a challenge, D-6.0103 must be amended to make this provision.

Comment: That the recommendation be referred to the Office of the General Assembly for consultation with the Advisory Committee on the Constitution to develop appropriate response to this issue while taking the following information into consideration.

[Note: The following text is suggested language for D-6.0103.]

“D-6.0103 Stay of Enforcement

“A stay of enforcement is a written instruction from the permanent judicial commission having jurisdiction that orders the suspension of a decision or an action until a complaint or appeal is finally determined.

“a. No later than forty-five (45) days after the alleged irregular action of the governing body or the remedial decision of a PJC being appealed, a person having standing to file a complaint or appeal may simultaneously file either a complaint or an appeal and a request for a stay of enforcement with the stated clerk of the governing body having jurisdiction. The request may be made in the following manner:

“(1) A request signed by one third of the members recorded as present when the decision or action was made by the governing body; or

“(2) A request signed by one third of the members of the permanent judicial commission which decided the remedial case;

“(3) A request signed by the complainant or appellant requesting that at least three members of the permanent judicial commission having jurisdiction to hear the complaint or appeal sign the stay of enforcement.

“b. The complaint or appeal shall be transmitted along with the request for a stay of enforcement to the permanent judicial commission moderator and clerk for their determination of the preliminary issues in D-6.0305 or D-8.0301 and

“(1) whether or not the request made under D-6.0103a.1. is complete and timely; or

“(2) whether or not the request made under D-6.0103a.2. is complete and timely.

“c. The moderator and clerk shall report their findings to the permanent judicial commission and the parties.

“d. The PJC may enter a stay of enforcement within ten (10) days of the moderator and clerk's findings in the following manner:

“(1) By the moderator and the clerk in determining that the request made under D-6.0103a(1) or D-6.0103a(2) is complete and timely and the preliminary issues are met for the complaint or appeal.

“(2) By three members of the permanent judicial commission filing with the stated clerk of the governing body which has jurisdiction a statement that in his or her judgment irreparable harm will occur if the action or decision is not stayed. Each permanent judicial commission member must include a summary of the specific governing body action or decision being stayed.

Background

This request asks whether or not there is any mechanism that allows entities requesting a stay of enforcement to challenge the action or inaction of a Stated Clerk regarding the request for the stay. It also asks whether such a challenge is limited to a motion to be considered by the permanent judicial commission (PJC), or whether it may be a hearing.

Section D-6.0103 was amended in 2003 in response to a request for clarification about the responsibility of the stated clerk of a governing body to forward a request for stay of enforcement to the permanent judicial commission. The 215th General Assembly (2003), upon the advice of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution, approved the following authoritative interpretation of D-6.0103 as it existed prior to the 2003 amendment:

The Rules of Discipline impose no clear obligation upon the stated clerk of a governing body to forward a request for stay of enforcement to the permanent judicial commission of that governing body. Under the current language of D-6.0103a (2) and (3), a complainant may forward such a request herself or himself to the members of the appropriate permanent judicial commission. (Minutes, 2003, Part I, p. 229)

The ACC also advised the 215th General Assembly (2003) to send the proposed amendment to the presbyteries regarding D-6.0103 that was approved by the requisite number of presbyteries and is now the current language of the Book of Order.

Section D-6.0103a provides three different means for entering a stay.

Subparagraph (1) provides for entering a stay from action of a governing body through securing signatures of at least one third of the members of a governing body that took the action that is sought to be stayed. There is no provision in the language of the Book of Order for who should verify that the signatures are those of members present, or whether they must be voting members. There is no provision for assuring that those who signed requesting the stay wished to stay implementation of all matters contained in the remedial complaint, or had even seen the remedial complaint that must be delivered to the stated clerk with the signatures. There is no provision for who can certify that the stay has been entered, although the complaint and the signatures must be delivered to both the stated clerk of the governing body whose action the complainant seeks to stay, and the stated clerk of the governing body whose permanent judicial commission has jurisdiction.

Subparagraph (2) provides for entering a stay from a decision of a permanent judicial commission by securing the signatures of at least one third of the members of the permanent judicial commission who decided the case. In this case the request is directed to the permanent judicial commission through either the clerk of the permanent judicial commission or the clerk of the governing body of the commission.

Subparagraph (3) provides for entering a stay from an action either of a governing body or a decision of a permanent judicial commission by securing the signature of at least three members of the permanent judicial commission having jurisdiction to hear the complaint or appeal. In this case the request is transmitted to the permanent judicial commission by the stated clerk of that commission's governing body. The intent of the change recommended in 2003 by the ACC was to provide distance between the PJC that will hear the case, and the complainant. Transmission of a request for a stay directly to PJC members from the complainant raises concerns about ex parte contacts with members of the commission (i.e. contacts outside the presence of other parties to the judicial process in which improper attempts to influence the members of the PJC might occur). The ACC also noted at that time that placing this obligation on the governing body stated clerk would require that each clerk make appropriate arrangements to ensure that communications sent to them in their official capacity are properly managed when the clerk is unavailable for an extended period of time.

Item 05-29 (Request 06-13) recognizes that judicial process within the PC(USA) is in the hands of volunteers, and that most stated clerks serve their governing bodies on a part-time basis. A request made to a stated clerk under either subparagraph (2) or (3) may not be processed immediately, having an effect upon the ability to enter the stay within forty-five days.

Item 05-29 (Request 06-13) also recognizes that while D-6.0103d provides for filing an objection to a stay that has been entered, there is no provision for objecting to the failure to enter a stay.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution does not believe that the Book of Order provides a right to a stay of enforcement. Those seeking the stay must take responsibility to seek the stay well in advance of the forty-five day deadline in order to allow for the volunteer nature of judicial process within the church.

Letter of Request as Received by the Advisory Committee on the Constitution

Request for Interpretation of D-6.0103 Stay of Enforcement

D-6.0103d provides that the respondent governing body in a remedial case in which a stay of enforcement has been entered may object to the stay of enforcement whereupon members of the PJC having jurisdiction to hear the remedial case shall hold a hearing on all of the issues relating to the stay of enforcement.

D-6.0103a delineates the process by which a stay of enforcement may be entered.

Due to the recent changes in D-6.0103a, actions taken by or actions failed to be taken by the Stated Clerk of a governing body having jurisdiction over the remedial case may result in a failure to enter the stay of enforcement by the 45 day deadline. An unintended consequence of the changes D-6.0103a has been to place more decision making power into the hands of the Stated Clerk that will affect the remedial case in substance.

Is there a mechanism in D-6.0103 that allows entities requesting a Stay of Enforcement to challenge any action taken by or actions failed to be taken by the Stated Clerk?

Is this challenge limited to a motion to be considered by the PJC or may it be a hearing? If the challenge may be a hearing, D-6.0103 will need to be amended to give the requesting complainant standing to challenge the failure to enter a stay of enforcement. If the challenge may be in the form of a motion, D-6.0103 may not need to be amended, but merely interpreted by General Assembly through an authoritative interpretation.

Request 06-14. Baptized Members' Roll vs. Baptized Member—Manager, OGA Records, Office of the General Assembly.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) approve the following response:

The request asks for clarification of the meaning of the terms “baptized member” and “baptized member roll” in G-5.0201 and G-10.0302a(1), respectively. It further cites two hypothetical examples and asks for clarification on how they should be handled. The first concerns a family who transfers from a United Methodist congregation in which the couple and their children have been baptized. The inquiry pertains to the ecclesiastical status of the children, who have not yet made a public profession of faith. The second asks about the ecclesiastical status of persons who have been long-term active participants in a Presbyterian congregation but have never joined the church, having chosen instead to retain formal affiliation with a congregation of a Lutheran church.

The request raises two issues requiring comment.

1. Ecclesiastical Status of Children of Active Members Baptized in Other Denominations:

The ACC advises that the baptized children of persons enrolled as active members should be enrolled as baptized members under the provisions of G-10.0302a(1), regardless of what Christian denomination administered the Sacrament.

The definition of “baptized member” offered in G-5.0201 reads:

“A baptized member of a particular church is a person who has received the Sacrament of Baptism and who has been enrolled as a baptized member by the session but who has not made a profession of faith in Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior. ...”

The language of G-5.0201 does not limit the place of baptism. A child baptized in another Christian congregation may be received and enrolled by a session of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) as a baptized member, provided that child has not yet made a public profession of faith.

The definition of the “baptized member roll in G-10.0302a(1) reads:

“... The baptized members' roll shall list the names of those persons baptized in the particular church who have not made a profession of faith in Jesus Christ as Lord and Savior, and children of active members or of ministers of the Word and Sacrament related to the particular church, when such children have been baptized elsewhere.”

The phrase, “baptized in the particular church” may be seen by some as limiting the content of the baptized member roll to those persons who have received baptism in the particular Presbyterian church for which the roll is kept. This reading receives some support from the fact that, throughout the Book of Order, the phrase “particular church” describes particular congregations within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution believes that such a reading is unnecessarily narrow. Three arguments support a broader, more inclusive understanding of the baptized member roll.

- Section G-10.0302a(1) already explicitly includes in the baptized member roll “children of active members ... when such children have been baptized elsewhere.”
- The purpose of G-5.0201 is to define the category “baptized member”; the purpose of G-10.0302a(1) is to describe the roll where persons so defined are enumerated. The controlling reference in determining who is a baptized member is G-5.0201, which does not limit the church in which the baptism took place. The reference in G-10.0302a(1) should be understood in light of G-5.0201.
- The term “particular church,” while used primarily to describe a Presbyterian congregation, is also used to describe particular congregations of other denominations (G-4.0103, G-16.0101 and G-16.0301). Thus the definition of the baptized member roll in G-10.0302a(1) may be understood to include persons baptized in other Christian congregations, rather than being confined to persons baptized in the particular Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) congregation acting to enroll the person.

2. Reporting Non-Member Adherents

Persons who have not sought membership in a Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) congregation cannot be enrolled as members thereof. For the purposes of the church's rolls, they are "non-members"—and as such not entitled to vote or hold office—no matter how much they participate in the church's life.

The issue raised here is pastoral rather than constitutional. It is certainly the case in many churches that there are persons who are active participants but not members. If such persons desire to vote in congregational meetings and hold congregational office, they should be counseled concerning membership and encouraged to join.

The General Assembly Session Annual Statistical Report (SASR) currently provides no means of enumerating non-member participants, despite the fact that they are, broadly speaking, "adherents." The Advisory Committee on the Constitution (ACC) believes that adding a category for "non-member adherents" to the statistical report required of a session clerk is tantamount to adding a new roll to those currently described in G-10.0302a, an action that would require constitutional amendment. However, if the assembly wishes to create a more informal means of registering such participants, it could direct the Stated Clerk's office to amend the SASR to provide an optional category for "non-member adherents" or "other participants" as a way of enumerating such persons.

Letter of Request as Received by the Advisory Committee on the Constitution

Just wanted to follow up on the Baptized Member Roll issue. Seems this time of year I get calls on both sides of the fence.

Part of the problem I face is those folks who tend to fall between the cracks. In the BOO [Book of Order] we talk about the issue of Baptized Members Roll (G-10.0302) vs Baptized Members (G-5.0201).

Baptized Members Roll (G-10.0302) currently only refer to those children who were baptized in the presence of the church, children baptized elsewhere of active members, and baptized children of ministers.

Baptized Members (G-5.0201), aka 'non-members (G-5.0300)', talks about those folks who have been baptized elsewhere, maybe in a Presbyterian church, maybe not, and have not made a profession of faith. These folks are also considered members of the extended family of membership in the church. They have most rights and privileges but they can not hold office or vote in a congregational meeting.

Why the dilemma? Based on conversations with ConServ several years ago, the working definition that was arrived at for Baptized Members Roll included those folks who had been baptized Presbyterian or not Presbyterian but had not made a profession of faith. Mostly the children of the church, but it could also include adults. Of course this definition is kind of a mix between the two listed above.

The BOO is clear that it is only children and no adults. Hence the problem. It was explained to me that the Baptized Member Roll was meant to be inclusive.

Now, why is this an issue for me. The General Assembly Statistical Form asks churches to list the various rolls that they maintain. The one that always creates the biggest issue, and by far the one most mis-maintain at the church level, is the Baptized Member Roll. I get calls from all sides because someone should or should not be on this roll.

Here are a couple of different examples:

1. You have a Methodist family that moves into the church. Consists of a husband and wife, and two baptized children baptized in the Methodist church. Kids are aged 2 and 4. The family decided to become active members of the Presbyterian Church. The church enrolls the parents as active members. What do you do with the kids? They were not baptized Presbyterian but they are baptized children of active members.

2. John and Jane Doe have been worshiping in your church for the past 15 years. They are very active, participate fully in the life of the church, they volunteer for everything, and they serve on committees. But here is the twist, they belonged to the Lutheran church for years. Were both baptized Lutheran. They have not gone to a Lutheran church in 20 years. Lot's of folks have tried to make them active members, but their parents would roll over in their grave if they knew that they converted. The folks are considered ‘non-members,’ but are they really non-members? They are baptized persons of the church, thus why not on the Baptized Member Roll.

Currently, the stats form adds Active, Inactive, and Baptized members together to calculate ‘Total Adherents.’ Total adherents is supposed to represent the larger church family membership. Depending on which definition one uses for Baptized Members, you get a much different answer for total adherents.

It would be helpful if the BOO was more clear on this matter. Defining it in two different places as two different things is not the best route.

Thanks for all your help.

On July 12, 2003, the Executive Committee of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission issued a Second Amended Preliminary Order directing the parties to submit briefs in anticipation of a hearing on the jurisdictional questions in this case, as outlined in that order.

The General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission, acting as the full body, hereby overrules the Second Amended Preliminary Order and concludes that this case should be dismissed for lack of jurisdiction.

The Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of Southern California and Hawaii (SPJC) assumed original jurisdiction over a number of cases coming out of the Hanmi Presbytery concerning the Korean Independent Presbyterian Church. In this case the SPJC ruled that a review of the work of an investigating committee had been conducted, pursuant to Complainant's petition for review under D-10.0303a. Under D-10.0303e, once the review process has been completed and no charges are filed, "the matter is concluded." In light of this provision, no further appeal is available in this case.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that this matter be dismissed.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, in this matter only, that because the Second Amended Preliminary Order led the parties to believe that briefing and a hearing on the jurisdictional questions would be held before the full Commission, the Commission hereby gives the parties leave to challenge this order of dismissal and to request a jurisdictional hearing should either party so desire.

The following members of the commission were not present and took no part in this order: John Dudley, Fred Denson, June Lorenzo, Bruce Gore, and Christopher Yim. Leon Fanniel was recused in this matter.

Dated the 12th day of October, 2003.

This disciplinary case came before this Commission on an appeal filed by the Complainant/Appellant, Session of Serone Church, formerly Korean Independent Presbyterian Church, against a decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of Southern California and Hawaii dated November 22, 2003.

The General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission approved the findings of the Executive Committee that the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission has jurisdiction, that the complainant has standing to file the appeal, that the appeal papers were properly and timely filed, and that the appeal states one of more of the grounds for appeal set forth in D-13.0106.

By letter dated April 21, 2004, the Complainant/Appellant requested that the appeal be withdrawn on the basis that the member had been restored to membership and office. The Commission subsequently received written verification of the action of the session. The counsel for the Respondent/Appellee objected to the dismissal of the appeal. However, this Commission has determined that there is no further judicial relief that can be granted to Carl James Sohn. The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission decision notes that the Synod Permanent Judicial Commission found that the process followed by the Session of Serone Church was fatally flawed and that Hanmi Presbytery failed to properly fulfill its role. It is unfortunate that the church members in this and related cases had to appeal to the Synod and, ultimately, to the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission to achieve justice and correction of the irregularities of the Session and the Presbytery found by the Synod in its decision.

IT IS ORDERED, that the appeal be dismissed.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of Southern California and Hawaii report this decision to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Stated Clerk of the Hanmi Presbytery report this decision to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Clerk of Session of Serone Church report this decision to the Session at its first meeting after receipt, that the Session enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

The Commission subsequently received written verification of the action of the session. The counsel for the Respondent/Appellee objected to the dismissal of the appeal. However, this Commission has determined that there is no further judicial relief that can be granted to Jae Eun Sohn. The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission decision notes that the Synod Permanent Judicial Commission found that the process followed by the Session of Serone Church was fatally flawed and that Hanmi Presbytery failed to properly fulfill its role. It is unfortunate that the church members in this and related cases had to appeal to the Synod and, ultimately, to the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commissions to achieve justice and correction of the irregularities of the Session and the Presbytery found by the Synod in its decision.

IT IS ORDERED, that the appeal be dismissed.

(1) History

This remedial case came before this Commission on an appeal filed by the Complainants/Appellants against decisions of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of Southern California and Hawaii (SPJC) dated November 22, 2003.

The Session of Serone Church (formerly Korean Independent Presbyterian Church), Respondent/Appellee, purported to exercise church discipline against Complainants/Appellants as members and officers of the church in removing them from membership. Complainants/Appellants filed a remedial complaint challenging as irregular these actions by the Session. Complainants/Appellants also filed an appeal from the disciplinary action of the Session.

The SPJC assumed original jurisdiction of both matters after Hanmi Presbytery failed to act. In its decisions of November 22, 2003, the SPJC concluded that the “Session . . . did not follow the required procedure for exercising church discipline of a member.” The SPJC specifically found that the “record clearly indicates that the steps described in Chapters 10 and 11 of the Rules of Discipline were not followed.” Therefore, the SPJC ordered the reinstatement of Complainants/Appellants to the roll of active members with all the rights, privileges, and responsibilities of membership, and further ordered that its decision be reported to, and the full decision entered upon the minutes of, Hanmi Presbytery.

The SPJC also dismissed the remedial complaint filed by Complainants/Appellants as moot, reasoning that “[t]his decision has acknowledged irregularity in the proceedings and reversed the [Session’s] decision” so that “no further process is required.”

The Session appealed the SPJC’s reversal in the disciplinary cases. The Session has now, however, complied with the SPJC’s decision and reinstated Complainants/Appellants to full membership and office. Having received written verification of these official actions by the Session, this Commission has permitted the withdrawal of the Session’s appeals and dismissed those disciplinary matters. This Commission finds that Complainants/Appellants have standing to file the appeal, that the appeal papers were properly and timely filed, and that the appeal states one or more grounds for appeal set forth in D-8.0105. However, because the Session has corrected the irregularities challenged in the remedial complaint by restoring Complainants/Appellants to membership and office, this Commission further finds that this matter is moot, and it therefore lacks jurisdiction. (D-8.0301)

(2) Order

This Commission orders that the appeal in this remedial case be dismissed as moot.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of Southern California and Hawaii report this decision to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Stated Clerk of the Hanmi Presbytery report this decision to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Clerk of Session of Serone Church report this decision to the Session at its first meeting after receipt, that the Session enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

(1) History

This disciplinary case came before this Commission on an appeal filed by the Complainant/Appellant, Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) by the Presbytery of Cincinnati, against a decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of the Covenant dated April 30, 2004.

A. Stephen Van Kuiken was found guilty of conducting Christian marriage ceremonies for same sex couples by the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Presbytery of Cincinnati on April 21, 2003, and was censured with a rebuke. Van Kuiken appealed the determination of guilt and censure to the Permanent Judicial Commission of Synod of the Covenant (SPJC). The SPJC heard the appeal on April 29, 2004, and reversed the determinations of guilt on April 30, 2004.

The General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission finds that the Commission has jurisdiction, that the Appellant has standing to file the appeal, that the appeal papers were properly and timely filed, and that the appeal states one or more of the grounds for appeal set forth in D-13.0106.

The Commission has now been officially informed that the Respondent/Appellee has renounced the jurisdiction of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) under G-6.0501. The receipt of a renunciation removes the jurisdiction of the Commission to conduct any further proceedings.

(2) Order

IT IS ORDERED, that the appeal be dismissed.

(b) Use of Confidential Documents by a Committee on Preparation for Ministry: Where a Committee on Preparation for Ministry communicated to a candidate reports received concerning the candidate’s difficulty in establishing and maintaining close relationships, of getting into conflict, of blaming others without taking responsibility, and of not being able to work through conflictual relationships towards reconciliation in various settings, it satisfied the requirement to disclose the substance of concerns contained in confidential documents set forth in Hope, et al. v. Presbytery of San Francisco, Minutes, 2004.

(c) Scope of Review: A presbytery's failure to follow its own stated policy does not rise to the level of a constitutional error, because this Commission rules on violations of requirements of the Book of Order rather than those of internal presbytery policy.

(d) Writing of Decision: A permanent judicial commission must meet in person for consideration and adoption of a final decision. (D-7.0402c, D-8.0404c, D-11.0403c, D-13.0404c)

(e) Ex parte Communications: "Procedural safeguards" and "due process" prohibit ex parte communication by members of a permanent judicial commission with parties or their counsel concerning trial process or decisions. (D-1.0101)

(2) Arrival Statement

This remedial case comes to the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission (GAPJC) on appeal from a decision by the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of the Pacific (SPJC) dated February 26, 2004, removing a candidate for the ministry of the Word and Sacrament from the presbytery's roll of candidates. This Commission finds that it has jurisdiction, that the Appellants have standing to appeal, that the appeal was properly and timely filed, and that the appeal states one or more grounds for appeal under D-8.0105.

(3) Appearances

Lynne Reade represented the Appellants. Stephen L. Taber appeared as counsel for the Appellee.

(4) History

This case came before the GAPJC on an appeal filed by the Complainants/Appellants, Glenda Hope, Lynne Reade, Jerrold Jayne, David M. Lew, Cynthia Joe, David Soohoo, Mildred E. Kilgore, Katherine Reyes, Jeanne Choy Tate, Evangeline L. Hermanson, Robert F. Hermanson, and Paul Watermulder, from a decision of the SPJC dated February 26, 2004.

In this case the Appellants, various minister members and elder commissioners to a meeting of the Presbytery of San Francisco (Presbytery), challenged the regularity of the Presbytery's decision under G-14.0312 to remove a candidate for the ministry of the Word and Sacrament from its roll of candidates. The Presbytery's decision was based in part on reliance on confidential information received by the Presbytery and its Committee on Preparation for Ministry (CPM) but not disclosed to the candidate. The Presbytery's CPM had recommended to Presbytery that the candidate in question be removed from its rolls, and the Presbytery voted to do so at its meeting on November 12, 2002.

The SPJC granted a stay of enforcement of the Presbytery's decision to remove the candidate from its rolls. The Acting Moderator and Clerk of the SPJC issued a preliminary ruling on March 11, 2003, dismissing the complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief could be granted. They concluded, among other things, that the "secrecy complained of is a reasonable part of the process of inquiry."

Prior to a May 2, 2003, hearing before the full SPJC on the Appellants' challenge to this ruling, the parties entered into a Stipulation of Facts setting forth the facts in the complaint assumed to be true for purposes of determining whether it stated a claim. Daniel J. McKittrick v. Session of West End Presbyterian Church of Albany, New York, Minutes, 2003, p. 273. At the hearing the SPJC also permitted testimony from witnesses "on the limited question of how the provisions of the Book of Order should be applied generally in matters involving the process of preparation of candidates for ministry."

Following the hearing, the full SPJC dismissed the complaint. It ruled that the stipulated facts, "[t]aken separately or in total," failed to show "that the process afforded to [the candidate] was unfair in any material regard" and that the Presbytery had acted within its discretion and not committed any irregularity.

On October 12, 2003, the GAPJC heard an appeal by Appellants from this dismissal. The GAPJC concluded that the SPJC had improperly ruled on disputed issues of fact without a full trial. The GAPJC further held that the substance of the concerns about a candidate raised by confidential documents should be communicated in a timely manner to the candidate in a fashion that permits the candidate to respond. The GAPJC ordered "that the decision of the [SPJC] is reversed, except that the stay of enforcement remains in effect pending the final resolution of this matter, and this case is remanded to that [PJC] with directions to conduct a trial on the merits or to pursue any other pretrial mediation options that it deems appropriate."

On February 6–7, 2004, the SPJC conducted a trial on the merits of the case and upheld the Presbytery’s decision to remove the candidate from covenant relationship with the Presbytery of San Francisco. This appeal arises from that Decision.

(5) Specifications of Error

The Appellants grouped the Specifications of Error under four headings:

(a) ERRORS IN CONSTITUTIONAL INTERPRETATION

Specification of Error Number 1: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred in not deciding the specific issues raised in the complaint, but instead constructed its own interpretation and version of the issues presented in the complaint.

This specification of error is sustained.

D-7.0402a requires that “the permanent judicial commission shall vote on each irregularity or delinquency assigned in the complaint . . .” A permanent judicial commission may certainly summarize or group specifications of error in its written decision. But in redrafting the four irregularities alleged by Appellants, the SPJC omitted one of them, which concerned an alleged bias on the part of the moderator of the CPM. Thus, the SPJC did not vote on this issue.

Specification of Error Number 2: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred in finding that the Appellee and its Committee on Preparation for Ministry followed the instructions of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission “to communicate in a timely fashion” to the candidate the substance of the concerns in confidential documents in a manner “sufficiently detailed to permit the candidate to respond to or rebut any concerns or to undertake any corrective action or further education or training.”

This specification of error is not sustained.

The evidence in the trial transcript discloses that the candidate received from the CPM on several occasions (December 4, 2001, December 20, 2001, March 20, 2002) sufficiently detailed information regarding the concerns contained in the confidential documents in question which would allow the candidate to respond to or rebut those concerns. This Commission reviewed the confidential documents in question and concluded from the record that the substance of the concerns contained in them was adequately communicated to the candidate. For example, in the meeting on March 20, 2002, a member of the CPM, stated, “you have exhibited patterns of difficulty in establishing and maintaining close relationships, of getting into conflict, of blaming others without taking personal responsibility, of not being able to work through conflictual relationships towards reconciliation.” In addition, the CPM listed various settings in which these patterns had been exhibited, including congregations, Presbytery, seminary, and personal life.

Specification of Error Number 3: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred in failing to find that Appellee and its Committee on Preparation for Ministry did not follow the mandates of G-14.0306a(2) with respect to the candidate under its care by its failure to find that Appellee and its Committee on Preparation for Ministry did not provide any guidance to the candidate about training or education in conflict resolution, as directed by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission.

This specification of error is not sustained.

G-14.0306a(2) calls upon the presbytery “to give guidance in regard to courses of study, familiarity with the Bible and with the confessions, practical training and plans for education, including the choice of institutions, field education, and the inquirer’s or candidate’s financial need. The presbytery shall also seek to give guidance and instruction to the inquirer or candidate in the faith and polity of the church.” The Book of Order does not specify that presbytery must provide guidance and training in conflict resolution, nor did this Commission in its prior decision require the Presbytery to offer such guidance. Moreover, the trial testimony and written communication between the candidate and CPM evidenced a history of guidance and care for this candidate.

Specification of Error Number 4: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred in showing confusion about its own role in judicial review through its reluctance to substitute its judgment for that of the presbytery.

This specification of error is not sustained.

The Appellants allege that the SPJC erred by applying an incorrect standard of review which holds that “[t]he responsibility of making a judgment about the wisdom of a person remaining on the roll of candidates belongs to the candidate’s presbytery.” Bedford-Central Presbyterian Church v. Presbytery of New York City, Minutes, 1987, p.119. This Commission finds that this standard was applicable, as well as the standard found in Rankin v. National Capital Union Presbytery, UPC Minutes, 1981, p. 113: “The presbytery, therefore, must be vested with sufficient authority to carry out these many constitutional obligations. This determination is a judgment for which higher judicatories should substitute their judgment only for the most extraordinary reasons.” Not finding those extraordinary reasons, the SPJC correctly did not overturn the Presbytery’s judgment.

Specification of Error Number 5: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred by not recognizing the importance of constitutionally-required procedures.

This specification of error is not sustained.

This specification of error is not sustained because, being so broad in nature, it encompasses virtually all other specifications relating to procedural errors. The specific procedural errors in this trial are considered elsewhere in this decision.

Specification of Error Number 6: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred in deciding motions submitted to it prior to trial without giving the parties an opportunity for oral argument on these motions. (D-7.0401c)

This specification of error is not sustained.

The record does not indicate that the Appellants had an opportunity for oral argument on certain pretrial motions. D-7.0401c states that “the permanent judicial commission shall determine all preliminary objections, and any other objections affecting the order or regularity of the proceedings.” While oral argument is to be preferred, a permanent judicial commission retains discretion to determine whether to allow it.

Specification of Error Number 7: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred in failing to prepare a written decision while in session as required by D-7.0402c.

This specification of error is sustained.

D-7.0402c states that “A written decision shall be prepared while in session . . .” The SPJC concluded the trial on February 7, 2004, but did not reconvene in a face-to-face meeting to complete the writing of its decision. A permanent judicial commission must meet in person for consideration and adoption of a final decision. A fundamental reason for this requirement rests upon the Reformed understanding of the activity of the Holy Spirit in the midst of the covenant community which is the Body of Christ. (I Cor. 12:12-13; Book of Confessions, 5.124-141)

Specification of Error Number 8: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred in failing to include in its decision that the stay of enforcement was still in effect until the complaint or appeal is finally determined by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission, or until the expiration of the time allowed for appeal, to clarify that the candidate remains under care of the Appellee.

This specification of error is not sustained.

It is not necessary for a decision of a permanent judicial commission to note the continuation of a stay of enforcement should one already be in place. D-6.0103c makes clear that a stay of enforcement “shall be effective until the time for filing a complaint or notice of appeal shall have expired or, if timely filed, until the decision of the permanent judicial commission having jurisdiction over the case . . .” It would be helpful, however, to include such a statement in a decision for clarity.

Specification of Error Number 9: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred in failing to ensure that proper notice of the Decision by personal service or certified delivery under D-7.0402c was given.

This specification of error is sustained.

Although Appellants have waived this error, this Commission notes that personal service or certified delivery is a requirement of the Book of Order.

(b) REFUSING A PARTY REASONABLE OPPORTUNITY TO BE HEARD

Specification of Error Number 10: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred in “refusing a party a reasonable opportunity to be heard or to obtain or present evidence” (D-8.0105b) and in “receiving improper, or declining to receive proper evidence or testimony” (D-8.0105c) by not allowing adequate cross-examination of a hostile witness, and by not permitting a witness to testify on relevant facts.

This specification of error is not sustained.

The examination of two witnesses was restricted as a result of a pretrial motion. This Commission finds that such restriction was proper in that the Appellants' counsel sought to examine the two witnesses concerning the background and details surrounding a confidential document. Such examination would have violated the decision of this Commission in Hope, et al. v. Presbytery of San Francisco, Minutes, 2004, p. ___, that only the "substance of concerns" contained in confidential documents was to be revealed.

(c) INJUSTICE IN THE PROCESS OR DECISION

Specification of Error Number 11: The Presbytery and its Committee on Preparation for Ministry erred by assuming that the reports received about the candidate were true and as a result the Committee on Preparation for Ministry process was unfair.

This specification of error is not sustained.

Appellants' specification of error focuses on the CPM process rather than the SPJC's process or decision. The Bedford-Central decision cited in Specification of Error Number 4 states that the responsibility of making a judgment about a candidate remaining on the roll of candidates belongs to the candidate's presbytery. Ordinarily, this Commission does not reach below the level of the SPJC to review matters regarding factual assumptions allegedly made by a presbytery.

Furthermore, the grounds of appeal under D-8.0105 apply only to the next lower governing body, the SPJC in this case. This Specification of Error regarding the CPM is not a proper ground for appeal.

Specification of Error Number 12: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred by failing to direct presbytery to follow the direction of the prior Hope case about how confidential documents are to be used and guidance to be given.

This specification of error is not sustained.

This specification of error is not sustained for the reasons discussed in this Decision under Specifications of Error Numbers 2 and 3.

Specification of Error Number 13: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred by focusing on whether the candidate could serve as a minister of the Word and Sacrament rather than on whether the candidate should have been removed from care.

This specification of error is not sustained.

The Appellee had decided to remove the candidate from its rolls based on its prior judgment that the candidate was not ordainable in the near future. The Book of Order does not require that a candidate be kept on the roll if deemed unordainable. Thus the Appellants' assertion contained in this specification of error is a distinction without a difference.

Specification of Error Number 14: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred in not challenging the validity of the Presbytery's reliance upon an unlicensed research psychologist on CPM without verifying the truth or falsity of the reports which formed the basis of his diagnosis and prognosis, especially when that evaluation improperly influenced the Committee on Preparation for Ministry.

This specification of error is not sustained.

This Commission notes that the psychologist in question was a member of the CPM task force, who was asked to interpret the evaluative tests administered by an independent licensed psychologist, and he did so. Any concern or evidence regarding the qualifications of the CPM member goes to the weight of the evidence, and the weight to be given that evidence lies within the discretion of the trier of fact, in this case the SPJC.

Specification of Error Number 15: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred in giving insufficient weight to positive, uncontested, relevant and material evidence.

This specification of error is not sustained.

Much in the record indicates that this candidate has many gifts and fine qualities. The weight to be given information related to a candidate lies within the purview of the presbytery. As this Commission has previously ruled, "The responsibility of making a judgment about the wisdom of a person remaining on the roll of candidates belongs to the candidate's presbytery" Bedford-Central Presbyterian Church v. Presbytery of New York City, Minutes, 1987, p.119. In addition, the SPJC should not substitute its judgment for that of the Presbytery. "Judgments of a lower commission on factual issues are favored with a presumption of correctness and are not to be disturbed unless plainly or palpably wrong, without supporting evidence, or manifestly unjust." Hardwick v. Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of North Carolina, Minutes, 1983, p. 45.

(d) OTHER IRREGULARITIES IN THE PROCEEDINGS

Specification of Error Number 16: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred in failing to take into account the failure of the Presbytery and its Committee on Preparation to follow its own policies and procedures, specifically by failing to keep the candidate's session timely and fully informed.

This specification of error is not sustained.

Appellee's policy makes clear the way in which the session is a partner in the covenant relationship. The record does not show that the candidate's session received timely written communication required by the Appellee's policy and procedures. There was face-to-face communication. The uncontested testimony at trial states that the candidate's elder advocate was present with the candidate at the December 20, 2001, meeting of the CPM task force. Two elder advocates and a pastor who was moderator of the candidate's session were present at the March 20, 2002, meeting of the CPM task force.

Nevertheless, the Appellee's failure in this case to follow its own stated policy does not rise to the level of a constitutional error, because this Commission rules on violations of the requirements of the Book of Order rather than those of internal Presbytery policy.

Specification of Error Number 17: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred in engaging in private discussions with counsel for Appellee without effective notice to or inclusion of the counsel for Appellants in such a discussion, not disclosing the content and conclusions of the private discussions until too late to respond, and using a new numbering system for documents that was not disclosed until the day before trial.

This specification of error is sustained.

The Rules of Discipline refer only to pretrial conferences in which all parties are present. (D-6.0310) Fundamental "procedural safeguards" and "due process" prohibit ex parte communication by members of a permanent judicial commission with parties or their counsel related to trial process or decisions. (D-1.0101) In this case the SPJC inappropriately held a telephone call solely with Appellee's counsel and over his objection to discuss pagination of the record and pretrial briefs. While this was in error, the Commission concludes that it did not influence the outcome of the case.

Specification of Error Number 18: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred in changing the allegations of the complaint rather than dealing with its issues, and failing to vote separately on each allegation of the complaint.

This specification of error is sustained.

This specification of error is answered in our response to Specification of Error Number 1.

Specification of Error Number 19: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred with respect to the content of the complaint, which was about improper removal from covenant relationship.

This specification of error is not sustained.

This specification of error is answered in our response to Specification of Error Number 13.

Specification of Error Number 20: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred in allowing the trial on one day to be of unreasonable duration and not allowing sufficient time for trial.

This specification of error is not sustained.

The permanent judicial commission has full authority and power to control the conduct of a trial. (D-7.0303) However, to hold a marathon session of more than thirteen hours with minimal breaks is improper in that it borders on being neither reasonable nor fair. Nevertheless, Appellant has not claimed that this caused any prejudice.

Specification of Error Number 21: The Synod Permanent Judicial Commission erred by failing to understand the basic elements of conducting a trial under the provisions of Chapters VII and XIV of the Rules of Discipline:

- a. Not knowing that witnesses must be sworn under oath (D-14.0302),
- b. Not knowing that the Rules of Discipline require opening statements (D-7.0401e),
- c. Not knowing that a moderator's rulings may be challenged (D-7.0303a) and
- d. Not knowing that opposing counsel is supposed to cross-examine a witness before commissioners ask their questions. (D-14.0302)

This specification of error is not sustained.

The SPJC exhibited substantial disregard for the plain words of the Book of Order. When challenged during the course of the trial, the SPJC corrected the first three items. The fourth item continued to be a problem throughout the trial. Nevertheless, this Commission does not find these deficiencies to be prejudicial to the outcome of the trial.

(6) Decision

This case presents two major issues: 1) the Presbytery's discretionary power and authority in determining who shall be its candidates for the ministry of the Word and Sacrament, and 2) the conduct of this trial by the Synod of the Pacific Permanent Judicial Commission.

The numerous procedural errors of the SPJC reveal a pattern of serious inattention to the Rules of Discipline (D-7.0000), which are designed to ensure due process protection to parties. The accumulation of these errors, however, does not rise to the level of the very high standard needed to supersede the right of the presbytery to determine who its candidates shall be.

This Commission is concerned about the overall manner in which the trial was conducted. See Baker v. Presbytery of Middle Tennessee, Minutes, 1995, p. 130. In order to improve the quality of future proceedings conducted by the Synod of the Pacific Permanent Judicial Commission and to enhance its adherence to the requirements of the Rules of Discipline, this Commission has requested the Office of the General Assembly to provide a training session for the SPJC, with all members in attendance.

Both parties acknowledged the fine character, accomplishments, and extensive gifts shared generously by this candidate with the church. Nothing in this decision shall preclude the candidate from applying for preparation for ministry at some time in the future.

(7) Order

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of the Pacific to approve the removal of the candidate from the roll of candidates of the Presbytery of San Francisco is affirmed.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that in light of the many serious errors in the conduct of this trial, the Synod of the Pacific Permanent Judicial Commission shall receive training and guidance no later than February 28, 2005, in the proper conduct of trials and hearings from the Office of the General Assembly along with available members of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission; a report of this training shall be made to this Commission as well as to the Synod.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of the Pacific report this decision to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of San Francisco report this decision to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

Gwen Cook was not present and took no part in the deliberations or decision of the Commission on this case. Jesse Butler was not present for the decision in this case.

(8) Dissent by June Lorenzo and Mildred Morales

We respectfully dissent from the portion of the majority opinion which affirms the SPJC decision. At the heart of the instant case is whether the judgment of the SPJC was “plainly or palpably wrong, without supporting evidence or manifestly unjust,” (Anderson v. Presbytery of Scioto Valley, Minutes, 1998, p. 134) so as to warrant a substitution of the SPJC’s judgment. The trial record is replete with errors, many of which on their own could be considered harmless. However, in toto, the conduct of the trial was sufficiently egregious that the findings of the SPJC should not be sustained.

While a permanent judicial commission has the authority to control the conduct of a trial (D-7.0303), errors such as failure to vote in each irregularity, failure to prepare a written decision while in session, engaging in ex parte communications with counsel, and failure to observe constitutionally required procedures in the conduct of a trial are sufficiently prejudicial to warrant reversal. Taken together with the one-day marathon session of more than 13 hours, the conduct of the trial clearly rises to the level of “manifestly unjust.”

Given the level of disregard or ignorance by the SPJC of trial procedures clearly outlined in the Book of Order, the instant case should not be remanded to the SPJC for a new trial until the SPJC is properly trained or duly replaced. In the meantime, the only just action is to order the Presbytery to reinstate the candidate to the Presbytery roll in order that the candidacy might be fairly considered, allow the candidate to transfer candidacy to another presbytery, or continue to seek the guidance of the Holy Spirit for a creative and just resolution.

Dated this 8th day of August, 2004.

h. Remedial Case 217-02

A. Kirk Johnston, Laurie Johnston, and Session of First United Presbyterian Church, Paola, Kansas, Complainants, Appellees,)
v.)	DECISION AND ORDER
Heartland Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), Respondent, Appellant.)	Remedial Case 217-2

(1) Headnotes

(a) Presbytery Budget Authority (G-11.0304, G-11.0103a-c): A presbytery’s constitutional responsibilities to develop a mission budget consistent with the priorities of the whole church do not permit it to make a congregation’s payment of per capita apportionment and fulfillment of a mission pledge conditions of eligibility for requesting financial assistance from presbytery.

(b) Presbytery’s Discretion: It is within the discretion of a presbytery to consider a congregation’s financial participation in the life of the larger church as one of the many relevant factors in acting upon a congregation’s request for assistance. But a congregation’s failure to pay per capita apportionment or to fulfill a mission pledge ordinarily cannot become determinative or dispositive in a presbytery’s refusal to grant assistance to that congregation.

(c) Unity in Christ (G-1.0100c): Our unity in Christ and the relational nature of our governance require dialogue between and among governing bodies, thus giving life to the mutuality and reciprocity between sessions and presbyteries in furthering the great ends of the church.

(d) Presbytery’s Duty of Pastoral Care (G-11.0103g): A presbytery’s duty to “provide pastoral care for the churches” includes a duty to engage them in conversation about their efforts to participate fully in the mission of the larger church.

(e) Higher Governing Body’s “Right of Review and Control” (G-4.0301f, G-4.0302): A higher governing body’s “right of review and control over a lower one” must not be understood in hierarchical terms, but in light of the shared responsibility and power at the heart of Presbyterian order.

(f) Per Capita Apportionments (G-9.0404d): Payment of per capita apportionments is a high moral obligation, the fulfillment of which visibly demonstrates the covenantal ties that bind us as the one church of Jesus Christ.

(g) Presbytery's Duty to Consider Property Requests (G-11.0103y): A presbytery violates its duty "to consider and act upon requests from congregations to take the actions regarding real property as described in G-8.0000" when it makes payment of per capita apportionments and fulfillment of a mission pledge conditions of eligibility to request a loan guarantee.

(2) Arrival Statement

This remedial case comes before this Commission on appeal by Heartland Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) (Appellant) from a decision by the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of Mid America (SPJC) dated April 3, 2004.

(3) Jurisdiction Statement

The Permanent Judicial Commission finds that it has jurisdiction, that Appellant has standing to appeal, that the appeal was properly and timely filed, and that the appeal states one or more of the grounds for appeal (D-8.0105).

(4) Appearances

Jeffrey Clayton and Ed Rucker represented the Appellant. Robert Howard represented Appellees A. Kirk Johnston, Laurie Johnston, and Session of First United Presbyterian Church, Paola, Kansas.

(5) History

On June 17, 2003, Heartland Presbytery (Presbytery) adopted the following policy:

The Presbytery Council moves that no congregation be considered eligible to request assistance from the presbytery in the form of mission support, shared grants or loan guarantees unless that congregation has demonstrated its full participation in the fiscal and ecclesiastical life of the presbytery, including the payment of per capita, the making and meeting of a mission pledge, being current on Board of Pensions dues, the filling [sic] of annual statistical reports, and the annual reporting of the pastor's terms of call.

The motion passed 102 Yes and 76 No.

On July 12, 2003, this Commission in Minihan v. Scioto Valley Presbytery (Minutes, 2004, pp. 350–54) ruled that a presbytery could not compel or punish a session for not remitting per capita apportionments. In the Presbytery Council (Council) meeting on August 18, 2003, a motion to recommend that Presbytery rescind the policy was defeated. During the September 13, 2003, Presbytery meeting, a motion to rescind the policy was offered. The vote was 92 Yes and 58 No. However, it was ruled defeated due to the necessity for a two-thirds vote based on a procedural requirement of more notice.

At the next Council meeting on October 20, 2003, a motion to rescind the policy was indefinitely postponed. Council did not place the question of rescinding the policy on the docket for the next Presbytery meeting.

Appellees filed complaints on September 5 and 13, 2003, alleging that the policy was irregular in that it unconstitutionally infringed a session's right to determine and distribute benevolences and attempted to compel payment by churches of per capita apportionments and fulfillment of mission pledges. They further claimed that failure to meet the requirements of the policy constituted "punishment" of a session. Appellees asked that the SPJC order Presbytery to rescind the policy and related actions.

The SPJC tried the matter on April 2, 2003. In its decision dated April 3, 2003, the SPJC vacated and set aside the policy of Presbytery regarding eligibility for mission support, shared grants or loan guarantees.

The SPJC found that the policy of Presbytery unconstitutionally infringed the rights of session to distribute its benevolences and offerings (G-10.0102h, i) and cited this Commission's decisions in Session, Central Presbyterian Church v. Presbytery of Long Island (Minutes, 1992, p. 179) and Minihan.

The SPJC found that the policy had the effect of punishing a session for failure to pay per capita apportionments or to fulfill a mission pledge, again relying on the precedents of Central and Minihan. The SPJC noted that, while the policy did not require the payment of per capita apportionments or the fulfillment of a mission pledge, "it attempts to require indirectly what cannot be required directly."

The SPJC reiterated the Minihan language of the “high moral obligation” of full participation in the covenantal relationship of the church as quoted below:

To participate partially or not at all and yet claim to be within the covenant community represents a grievous misunderstanding of our reciprocal covenantal obligations under the singular Lordship of Jesus (The Second Helvetic Confession, C-5.124-141). . . . [W]ithholding per capita as a means of protest or dissent evidences a serious breach of trust and love with which our Lord Jesus intends the covenant community to function together.

Presbytery appealed the SPJC decision to this Commission on May 6, 2004, contending that the SPJC erred in its interpretation of the Constitution (D-8.0105g) by interfering with the right of a presbytery to determine its budget and budgetary policies under G-11.0304 and G-11.0102a-c, improperly abridging the historic principles of church government and the right of a higher governing body to govern the lower, and incorrectly expanding the reach of the decisions in Central and Minihan.

(6) Specifications of Error

Specification of Error #1: The decision undermines and interferes with the right of presbytery to determine its budget and policies with regard to its own budget, grant application procedures, and criteria for budget administration, as established in the Constitution, G-11.0304; G-11.0103a-c.

This specification of error is not sustained.

The central issue underlying this specification of error is the suggested conflict between the responsibility and power of the presbytery, on the one hand, to determine and establish its budget (G-11.0103a-c; G-11.0304) and the responsibility and power of session, on the other, to determine the distribution of the benevolences of the congregation (G-10.0102i). In keeping with the principle that every part of the Constitution is to be read in a manner that gives it full force and effect,¹ the provisions containing these purportedly conflicting obligations must be construed in a manner which is harmonious so that each maintains its full effectiveness.

According to Presbytery, the SPJC’s ruling that its policy is unconstitutional interferes with Presbytery’s right and duty to establish a mission budget. Presbytery concedes that Minihan held that a presbytery’s “reserved powers” in G-9.0103 did not give it power to compel a session to pay its per capita apportionments and were, therefore, not sufficient to override the express power granted to sessions in G-10.0102i to determine the distribution of a congregation’s benevolences. It nevertheless argues that the decision in Minihan does not compel disapproval of Presbytery’s policy because G-11.0304 gives a presbytery express power to determine its budget, just as G-10.0102i gives a session the express power to determine its budget. In sum, Presbytery contends that each governing body has budgetary responsibility and that its policy does not interfere with a session’s right to choose not to pay per capita apportionments.

Presbytery’s argument that the SPJC decision interferes with its “right” to determine its budget goes too far. Presbytery’s duties do require it to develop a budget consistent with the comprehensive strategy of synod and General Assembly (G-11.0304, G-11.0103a-c). Its ability to pursue mission initiatives consistent with that strategy depends largely on the financial support of its constituent churches. Nevertheless, Presbytery’s constitutional responsibilities cannot be construed to permit it to make funding decisions that would contravene the Book of Order.

There is nothing in the SPJC’s decision that prevents Presbytery from fulfilling its duty to have a general mission budget. Therefore, this Commission concludes that the SPJC decision does not undermine or interfere with the right of Presbytery to determine its budget and policies. However, the key question remains whether Presbytery’s declaration that a church is ineligible to request financial assistance, if it has not fully paid its per capita apportionment and a mission pledge violates other provisions of the Book of Order. This is addressed below in specification of error #2.

Specification of Error #2: The decision erroneously equates exercising discretion in allocating mission support with “punishing a session.”

This specification of error is not sustained.

According to Presbytery, its policy represents a pastoral exercise of its discretion to allocate limited mission dollars by announcing in advance that a congregation’s full participation in the fiscal and ecclesiastical life of the church is relevant in the awarding of grants, mission support and loan guarantees. Presbytery also argues that its policy cannot be construed as “punishment” because congregations have no vested constitutional “right” to receive grants, mission support, or loan guarantees in the first instance.

In this case, Presbytery is understandably wrestling with the tensions created by the following factors: (1) a presbytery's constitutional responsibility to remit full per capita apportionments to synod and General Assembly for all its churches, whether or not those congregations pay full per capita apportionments to it, (2) a presbytery's inability under the Book of Order to mandate a session's payment of per capita apportionments, (3) the limited dollars available for mission, and (4) the acknowledged high moral obligation of all congregations to participate fully in the life of the larger church by sharing the costs of the larger church's mission and operations.²

The Commission appreciates Presbytery's effort to give substance to the connectionalism that distinguishes our system of polity from episcopal and congregational forms of church government. Indeed, all of the Commission's decisions on per capita apportionments, and all parties to this case, acknowledge that payment of per capita apportionments is a high moral obligation, the fulfillment of which visibly demonstrates the covenantal ties that bind us as the one church of Jesus Christ. In light of this acknowledged moral obligation, a congregation's effort to pay its full per capita apportionment and to fulfill a mission pledge is clearly relevant as one factor among many others that a presbytery may consider in exercising its stewardship responsibility to allocate limited resources in acting upon a congregation's request for assistance. This Commission does not wish to remove discretion or capacity of the presbyteries to fulfill their constitutional duties, but to assure them that such responsibilities can be effected without infringing on the powers of sessions.

This Commission does not view the SPJC's decision as equating the exercise of discretion with punishment. But, as the SPJC correctly held, a presbytery's exercise of discretion cannot be turned into an indirect mandate. In short, a congregation's failure to pay full per capita apportionments or to fulfill a mission pledge ordinarily cannot become determinative or dispositive of a presbytery's refusal to grant that congregation financial assistance. Therefore, a congregation's failure to pay per capita apportionments or to fulfill a mission pledge cannot be made a condition of eligibility to request a presbytery's financial assistance.

Presbytery's policy does not open the door to Presbytery consideration of the ways in which a congregation has demonstrated its efforts to further the great ends of the whole church. Instead, its policy closes the door to positive dialogue between governing bodies who are partners in mission. Presbytery's policy precludes a congregation's application for Presbytery's financial assistance, without any opportunity for inquiry into the reasons underlying the congregation's nonpayment. The policy on its face represents a misuse of discretion. However, as noted above, it is within the right and discretion of a presbytery to consider a congregation's financial participation in the life of the larger church as one of the many relevant factors as it crafts policies and exercises pastoral care.

The policy improperly turns payment of per capita apportionments or the fulfillment of a mission pledge into a mandate. It also violates a presbytery's duty under G-11.0103g to "provide pastoral care for the churches" and its duty under G-11.0103y "to consider and act upon requests from congregations to take the actions regarding real property as described in G-8.0000." A presbytery's duty to "provide pastoral care to churches" includes a duty to engage them in conversation about their efforts to participate fully in the mission of the larger church. Where there is no opportunity for conversation about the reasons for nonpayment or inaction, there is no opportunity for the presbytery to fulfill its pastoral obligation to counsel with churches.

Unfortunately, Presbytery's declaration of a congregation's ineligibility to request assistance reflects a decision to disengage rather than engage with certain of its congregations regarding the mission of the whole church. Such a declaration of ineligibility improperly paints with a broad brush where a genuine exercise of discretion is needed to give life to the mutual-ity and reciprocity between sessions and presbyteries in furthering the great ends of the Church. Presbytery's failure to consider the requests of applicants made ineligible by its policy is a misuse of its discretion and therefore improper.

Specification of Error #3: The decision improperly abridges the historic principles of church government and the right of a higher governing body to govern the lower, as established in the Constitution, G-1.0400; G-4.0301f; G-4.0301i; G-9.0103; G-11.0103; and elsewhere.

This specification of error is not sustained.

Presbytery argues that the SPJC decision effectively insulates a session from any oversight or consequences when it exercises its budgetary freedom under G-10.0102i to refuse to pay per capita apportionments. According to Presbytery, the decision thus effectively endorses congregationalism, in contravention of the historic authority of higher governing bodies in our polity.

² Presbytery's policy addresses more than per capita apportionments. However, because Presbytery argued from Minihan, which deals solely with per capita apportionment, the language in this section reflects that limitation.

A presbytery's right of oversight cannot be construed to give presbytery a right that our polity withholds—namely, a right to mandate a session's full payment of per capita apportionments as a condition of its eligibility to seek presbytery's assistance. Furthermore, a presbytery's right of oversight does not permit it to avoid its duty to counsel with churches, to share in mission, or participate in ecclesiastical duties as required by the Book of Order.

Specification of Error #4: The decision applies an overly broad interpretation of this Commission's decisions in Central and Minihan.

This specification of error is not sustained.

Presbytery argues that its policy differs from the policy proscribed in Minihan because Presbytery's "is a policy about how presbytery will go about responding to requests for financial assistance of various kinds." Moreover, unlike the policy in Central, Presbytery's policy does not refer to unpaid per capita apportionments as "an outstanding obligation," but merely as one factor in discerning a congregation's overall fiscal and ecclesiastical participation.

As noted above, the Commission concludes that these attempted distinctions do not accurately describe Presbytery's policy as it relates to per capita apportionments. The policy makes full payment of per capita apportionments an absolute precondition of eligibility to seek presbytery assistance and not simply one criterion to be weighed along with other factors in the exercise of Presbytery's discretion. As in Minihan and Central, this policy effectively transforms payment of per capita apportionments and fulfillment of a mission pledge into a presbytery mandate.

(7) Decision

Although the parties have framed the questions in this case as competing "rights" of governance, this case rests upon the nature of governance in our polity, and even more fundamentally upon the nature of our organic unity. Because all fall short of the glory of God (Romans 3:23) while at the same time being guided by the Holy Spirit, no one governing body is properly an entity unto itself. G-1.0400 does not characterize the task of governance as power and authority to carry out edicts, but in terms of arriving at "the collected wisdom and united voice of the whole Church." While the Book of Order refers to a higher governing body's "right of review and control over a lower one" (G-4.0301f), these concepts must not be understood in hierarchical terms, but in light of the shared responsibility and power at the heart of Presbyterian order (G-4.0302).

Through His high priestly prayer in John 17, Christ calls His Church to unity. The Report of the Special Commission of 1925 (Swearingen) (Minutes, 1927, p. 59) states:

The Presbyterian Church is not a unity in the sense that it consists of an undivided oneness without distinguishable parts; neither is it a group of smaller bodies with common history and tradition which find it advantageous to work together in close harmony for the accomplishment of purposes common to all of them. Our Church is an organism. Its unity is not a unity of articulation, part touching part, like the bones of a skeleton, but the unity of life, the parts united by vital bonds, thus constituting a living whole and that whole imparting impulse and strength and order to the several parts, as the body to its members.

This understanding of our organic unity finds expression throughout our Book of Order.³ Mutuality expresses the unity of the church. In this fashion, we are bound together in covenantal relationships that assume and require the blessings and difficulties of dialogue based on trust and love (G-7.0103). The nature of our union requires that each governing body treat the other pastorally, as having high moral obligations to and for each other. In this way, without the congregations, the presbytery is a hollow shell; without the presbytery, the vision of the churches is limited.

Our unity in Christ and the relational nature of our polity require dialogue between and among governing bodies. Thus, wherever per capita apportionments or mission pledges are being withheld, there is a reasonable question regarding the well-being of a particular congregation. At a minimum, a presbytery should deal pastorally with that congregation. Further, with this knowledge of the spiritual health of a congregation in its specific context, a presbytery may open a dialogue with a session. Since dialogue requires participation by both parties, if a session determines not to fulfill its high moral obligation to remit per capita apportionment or a mission pledge, it should engage in conversation with its presbytery as to its reasons for doing so.

The presbytery's witness, concern, and responsibility are not solely to one congregation, but to each congregation in light of the whole. The congregation's responsibility is not to itself, but to itself in light of its call to "fulfill its responsibilities as ³ See G-1.0100c ("Christ gives to his Church . . . its unity"); G-2.0300 ("The confessions express the faith of the one, holy, catholic, and apostolic Church"); G-4.0202 ("There is one Church."); G-4.0301a ("The particular churches of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) . . . constitute one church"); G-15.0101 ("The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) seeks to manifest . . . the unity of the church of Jesus Christ").

(d) The Presbytery hold the membership of Second Church, Tulsa, for up to two (2) years and transfer them to congregations of their choice (G-11.0103i),

(e) A service of celebration for the ministry and mission of Second Church, Tulsa, be conducted.

The AC and Trustees, in accordance with action directed by EOP, entered into a contract for the sale of Second's property on March 17, 2004. On the same date, March 17, 2004, Second filed a complaint against EOP with the Synod of the Sun and requested a Stay of Enforcement. A Stay of Enforcement was granted by SPJC on March 26, 2004, and was terminated after a hearing on April 16, 2004. Thereafter Second requested a Stay of Enforcement from the GAPJC which was granted May 5, 2004. The Stay was vacated on May 15, 2004, for lack of jurisdiction. On May 28, 2004, Second's property was conveyed to the buyer.

On May 5, 2004, the Moderator and Clerk of the SPJC dismissed the Complaint filed by Second against EOP because the Complaint did not state a claim upon which relief could be granted. On June 18, 2004, the SPJC ruled to uphold the decision of the Moderator and Clerk to dismiss the Complaint.

On August 6, 2004, a Notice of Appeal and Request for Stay of Enforcement was filed with the GAPJC. A Stay of Enforcement was granted on August 8, 2004. The Stay was modified after oral argument on EOP's Motion to Dismiss and Objections to Stay of Enforcement on October 15, 2004. The Motion to Dismiss was denied and the case was set for hearing.

(5) *Specifications of Error*⁴

Specification of Error Number 1: (error in irregularity in the proceedings, D-8.0105a)

(a) The SPJC erred in that at the April 16, 2004 hearing, SPJC ruled on the merits of the Complaint after giving "specific instructions to the committee of counsel for both the Complainant and Respondent that all testimony must be restricted only to issues relating to the Stay of Enforcement."

This specification of error is not sustained.

Although the SPJC ruled only on the Stay of Enforcement, it was appropriate to hear limited oral argument on the merits, because the standard for a stay requires a permanent judicial commission to determine whether probable grounds for error have been stated (D-6.0103a(3)(c)).

(b) The SPJC erred in that EOP's stated clerk did not follow D-6.0307a, requiring that a list in writing of all papers and other materials pertaining to the case be submitted to Second.

This specification of error is sustained.

Although this specification of error is sustained, this Commission finds that there was no harm since no trial was held.

(c) The SPJC erred since SPJC did not follow D-7.0402c which requires that "a copy of the written decision shall immediately be delivered to the parties to the case by personal service."

This specification of error is not sustained.

The Book of Order provision which addresses challenges on preliminary question determinations does not require delivery of the decision to the parties by personal service or by certified mail (D-6.0306c). D-7.0402c refers to remedial trials. No trial was held.

Specification of Error Number 2: (error in refusing a party reasonable opportunity to be heard or to obtain evidence or present evidence, D-8.0105b) The respondent's brief dated June 12, 2004, was mailed on June 14, 2004, and received by Second on June 17, 2004, the day prior to the scheduled hearing on June 18, 2004. "In this document, the respondent had requested that the hearing move immediately to trial if the finding of the full PJC of the Synod of the Sun should conclude that the complaint did state a claim upon which relief could be granted. ... The committee of counsel for the complainant certainly had no reasonable opportunity to contact witnesses or to prepare evidence for an immediate trial."

This specification of error is not sustained.

⁴ These specifications of error are those enumerated in the Notice of Appeal dated August 6, 2004, rather than those found in Second's brief (D-8.0304). Further, several of these specifications of error in the Notice of Appeal do not address the decision of the SPJC.

The SPJC did not err since SPJC did not rule on the request by the EOP to proceed directly to trial.

Specification of Error Number 3: (error in receiving improper or declining to receive proper evidence or testimony, D-8.0105c)

(a) The SPJC erred by receiving misleading evidence and testimony from the committee of counsel of EOP about Second.

This specification of error is not sustained.

There is no record of the SPJC hearing on the challenge to the Moderator and Clerk's jurisdictional findings, and one is not required by the Book of Order (D-6.0306). Therefore, there is no record that would permit this Commission to sustain the error. The Commission notes, however, that whenever a lower permanent judicial commission conducts a hearing concerning a potential final disposition that might be the subject of a further appeal, it would be a wise practice for a permanent judicial commission to create such a record.

(b) The SPJC erred by ruling on April 16, 2004, that the empowerment to dissolve Second was maintained by the Presbytery, when such empowerment had been given by the Presbytery to the Administrative Commission.

This specification of error is not sustained.

The SPJC correctly ruled that Presbytery retained power to dissolve Second. That power remained with Presbytery, notwithstanding the motion granting that power to the AC, because "the decision of an administrative commission shall be the action of the appointing governing body ..." (G-9.0505a).

(c) The SPJC allowed an inaccurate label to be attributed to a document presented as exhibit "G".

This specification of error is not sustained.

This is not a ground for appeal, and relates to the merits of the case.

(d) The Council altered the wording of a motion which is not allowed by the Presbytery's Manual of Operation.

This specification of error is not sustained.

This Commission has held that failure of a governing body to follow its own stated policy does not rise to the level of a constitutional error. This Commission rules on violations of the requirements of the Book of Order rather than those of internal governing body policy. "Hope, et al., v. Presbytery of San Francisco, Minutes, 2004, p.363."

Specification of Error Number 4: (error in hastening to a decision before the evidence or testimony is fully received, D-8.0105d) When asked by a member of the SPJC if the committee of counsel for Second was prepared to proceed to trial on the same day as the hearing, it was clearly stated that witnesses could not be obtained on such a short notice.

This specification of error is not sustained.

This specification of error is not an action of the SPJC. One member's comment does not constitute an action of the SPJC. Further, no trial ensued.

Specification of Error Number 5: (error in injustice in the process or decision, D-8.0105f) The SPJC erred in not allowing a full and complete opportunity to present witnesses and to discuss specific and relevant aspects for the defense of the church. Such opportunity was preempted by the decision of the SPJC to dismiss the case prior to a requested trial.

This specification of error is not sustained.

This case was dismissed on jurisdictional grounds. There is no "right" to a trial if all the jurisdictional questions are not answered in the affirmative (D-6.0306c).

Specification of Error Number 6: (error in constitutional interpretation, D-8.0105g) The action of EOP to empower an administrative commission to dissolve the church was irregular according to a 1995 authoritative interpretation of the General Assembly.

This specification of error is not sustained.

Second refers to the 1995 Authoritative Interpretation by the 207th General Assembly regarding Powers and Responsibilities of Presbytery That Should Not Be Delegated (Section 21.127 and 21.128, 3, i). Delegation to an administrative commission is merely assigning a task to another part of its own body, with full power to act as the body. In addition, the use of the phrase “should not” in the Authoritative Interpretation is not prohibitive. Therefore, the action of EOP was not irregular.

(6) Decision and Order

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of the Sun is affirmed.

FURTHER, in light of the long and faithful ministry of Second Presbyterian Church, Tulsa, Presbytery is encouraged to implement its decision to hold a Service of Celebration for mission and ministry of the church, as appropriate.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of the Sun report this decision to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Eastern Oklahoma Presbytery report this decision to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

(7) Absences and Non-participants

William Carlough, a member of the Commission, was present for argument of the appeal, but took no part in the decision.

(1) Headnotes

(a) Appeal Only from Final Decision (D-8.0101): Process at the beginning of a remedial case requires the determination of preliminary questions specified in D-6.0305. Answering any of these questions in the negative requires dismissal of the case under D-6.0306c. Dismissal of a case by a permanent judicial commission is a final decision, which renders the case ripe for appeal. An appeal is not in order when all criteria listed in D-6.0305 are answered in the affirmative. D-8.0101 permits appeal only when a final decision has been rendered.

(b) Renunciation of Jurisdiction (G-6.0501): Renunciation of jurisdiction (G-6.0501) requires a written statement, delivered to the clerk of the governing body that states in clear and certain terms the act of renunciation of jurisdiction.

(c) Resignation of Elder from Membership (G-10.0302b(3)): The request for termination of membership of an elder or a deacon is governed by G-10.0302b(3).

(d) Procedure on Challenge to Preliminary Questions (D-8.0302): The permanent judicial commission has discretion under D-8.0302b not to conduct a hearing on a challenge to the findings of the moderator and clerk on preliminary questions. However, when such a challenge is made, D-8.0302a requires that the parties be provided an opportunity to present evidence and argument on the findings in question.

(2) History

On December 18, 2003, the Session (Session) of the Miami Shores Presbyterian Church (MSPC) took action concerning the Miami Country Day School owned by the church. Jeffrey K. Raines (Appellant), a member of MSPC and an elder not currently serving on session, disagreed with this decision. On December 19, 2003, he and his wife sent a letter to the interim pastor asking to be removed from its membership and stating that they wished to receive no further communication from the church, citing a disagreement with the decision concerning the Day School and other actions of the Session and MSPC. On the same day, Appellant talked with the Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Tropical Florida and sent her a letter stating that he would be filing a remedial complaint against Session with the Presbytery of Tropical Florida (Presbytery). The Notice of Appeal indicates that Appellant forwarded a detailed complaint to the Stated Clerk on December 20, 2003, and submitted a formal complaint on January 7, 2004.

Appellant petitioned the Presbytery Permanent Judicial Commission (PPJC) for a stay of enforcement to prevent the Session from implementing its decision regarding the Miami Country Day School. On January 14, 2004, the (PPJC) issued the requested stay.

On January 15, 2004, Session acted to accept the Appellant's resignation from membership. The minutes of this meeting label it "Joint Session/Deaconate Meeting Minutes." Session then filed a challenge to Appellant's standing to bring a complaint, stating that he was no longer a member of MSPC. On May 5, 2004, the Moderator and Clerk of the PPJC ruled that Appellant did have standing. Session challenged that ruling.

On May 10, 2004, Appellant, upon advice from his lawyer, sent a letter to Session rescinding his resignation. He cited G-10.0302b(3) as the reason, stating that the Session had not followed its mandate to counsel diligently with him prior to removing him from its membership roll. On May 20, 2004, Session unanimously passed a resolution denying his request for reinstatement as a member. Appellant did not receive notice of that resolution until September 2, 2004.

On May 26, 2004, the PPJC conducted a hearing on the challenge to Appellant's standing. Session argued that Appellant had no standing to file as he was no longer a member of the church. The PPJC disagreed and ruled that he had standing when he filed the complaint; therefore, the case could continue. Session filed an appeal with the Synod of South Atlantic Permanent Judicial Commission (SPJC) concerning the decision on Appellant's standing.

On August 13, 2004, the Moderator and Clerk of the SPJC ruled that the appeal was premature because the PPJC had not conducted a trial, and therefore the SPJC did not have jurisdiction. Session challenged this decision.⁵

On September 30, 2004, the full SPJC dismissed the appeal in the complaint, ruling that Appellant had renounced jurisdiction with his letter of resignation of December 19, 2003, and he therefore had no standing to file a complaint.

On October 11, 2004, Appellant filed an appeal of the SPJC's decision to dismiss with this Commission, asking that this decision be rendered null and void and that the case be allowed to go forward to a trial on the merits under the jurisdiction of the Presbytery.

(3) Specifications of ErrorSpecification of Error #1 (error in constitutional interpretation, D-8.0105g)

"The Synod PJC agreed to hear and render a decision in a mid-judicial process appeal. There is no provision for such an appeal within our system of justice described in the Book of Order."

This specification of error is sustained.

An appeal from a pre-hearing determination by a permanent judicial commission on the preliminary questions is appropriate when any point listed in D-6.0305 has been answered in the negative, which would require dismissal of the case under D-6.0306c. Because a decision in this regard terminates further proceedings, it is final in nature and renders the case "ripe" for appeal. An appeal is not in order when all criteria listed in D-6.0305 are answered in the affirmative. Rather, the merits of the case are to be tried until a final decision is rendered. Thereafter, an appeal may be filed on the decision, either on the merits or the preliminary questions. D-8.0101 permits appeal only when a final decision has been rendered by a lower governing body.

⁵ On September 13, 2004, Appellant filed another remedial complaint with the Presbytery of Tropical Florida, citing irregularities of Session concerning Appellant's church membership resignation. This matter is before the PPJC, pending the outcome of this case.

In support of this specification, Appellant has chronicled the history of the proceedings and has particularly noted that the PPJC conducted a hearing and determined that Appellant had standing. Appellant further notes that the moderator and clerk of the SPJC found that “inasmuch as the case has not been heard and acted upon, an appeal is not appropriately before the Synod Permanent Judicial Commission. In short, since the case has not been tried, it is not ready for an appeal.”

In arguing against this specification, Appellee makes reference to D-8.0101: “An appeal of a remedial case is the transfer to the next higher governing body of a case in which a decision has been rendered in a lower governing body, for the purpose of obtaining a review of the proceedings and decision to correct, modify, set aside, or reverse the decision.” Appellee notes that it appealed the PPJC’s decision on the standing issue and points out that, while the Book of Order is silent on the issue of a pretrial appeal concerning standing, there is nothing that precludes a ruling pretrial. According to the Appellee, the only requirement is that there has been a “decision” which the higher governing body may review.

In the instant matter, the findings on the preliminary questions by the PPJC do not constitute a final decision since all questions were answered in the affirmative. Therefore, the SPJC erred by entertaining the appeal on the preliminary question of standing rather than affirming the determination of the SPJC moderator and clerk. The matter was improperly before the SPJC because the case had not been tried, the decision lacked finality, and thus was not ready for appeal.

Specification of Error #2 (error in constitutional interpretation, D-8.0105g)

“In the decision, the Synod PJC [erroneously] stated that Jeffrey K. Raines ‘renounced jurisdiction, and in accordance with G-6.0501 is no longer a member of that congregation.’”

This specification of error is sustained.

This Commission disagrees with the SPJC determination that because Appellant “submitted a letter of resignation, he has renounced jurisdiction.” Appellant’s letter of December 18, 2003, does not meet the requirements of G-6.0501. These requirements include a written statement that specifies that the person “renounces jurisdiction of the church,” as well as delivery of that statement to the clerk of the governing body. Appellant’s letter makes no mention of renouncing jurisdiction of the church. Since renunciation involves divestment of rights and privileges within the church, as well as the giving up of membership and office, the writing must expressly state in clear and certain terms the act of renunciation of jurisdiction in order for the renunciation to be effective under G-6.0501. Therefore, this Commission rejects Appellee’s argument that the letter was a renunciation that became effective upon receipt.

At oral argument before this Commission, Appellee argued that G-6.0501 rather than G-10.0302b(3) governs the resignation of an elder from membership in a congregation. The only categories of membership of a particular church are baptized members, active members, inactive members and affiliate members. (G-5.0200) An elder is an active member who has been elected by members of the congregation, ordained by the Session to fulfill a particular function, and differs from other members in function only. (G-6.0102) The request for termination of membership of an active member, including elders and deacons, is governed by G-10.0302b(3).⁶

Specification of Error #3 (refusing a party reasonable opportunity to be heard or to obtain or present evidence, D-8.0105b)

“The Synod PJC refused (i.e., did not allow) Jeffrey K. Raines any opportunity to be heard or to obtain or present evidence. In fact, neither Jeffrey K. Raines, his counsel ([the] Rev. Dr. Albert Bush), or representatives of the Presbytery of Tropical Florida knew when or if the Synod PJC would consider the matter.”

This specification of error is sustained.

Under D-8.0302, when the findings of the moderator and clerk on the preliminary questions are challenged by either party, a permanent judicial commission is required to provide the parties with the opportunity to present evidence and argument on the findings in question. In the present matter, Appellee submitted its challenge to the findings of the SPJC modera-

⁶ This case largely concerns the status of the membership of Appellant. The record currently before us suggests that Session took action to terminate the membership of Appellant and his wife on January 15, 2004 at a meeting attested by minutes which are clearly labeled as “Joint Session/Diaconate Meeting Minutes.” The Book of Order requires that a joint meeting of the Session and Board of Deacons be held at least annually. “No binding decisions may be reached in such joint meeting, but the session and the board may act separately on matters committed to their care.” (G-6.0405) The record does not indicate that any action was taken by Session to adjourn for its business, constitute itself as a separate body, or in any way separate itself as a governing body from the Board of Deacons. Rather, the minutes show that the Deacons were involved throughout the duration of the meeting, and no separate votes are displayed. Therefore, a question exists, therefore, as to whether there was a proper action taken in the first place to remove Appellant and his wife from membership in MSPC. This matter is left for determination by the PPJC.

(c) Requirement of separate written criteria for validation of ministries (G-11.0403): G-11.0403 requires a presbytery to develop separate written criteria for the validation of ministries within its bounds, which criteria must be based on the nature of ordained office found in G-6.0100 and G-6.0200, as well as the standards of G-11.0403a-e. A presbytery does not comply with this provision by simply incorporating by reference the standards of G-11.0403a-e as its written criteria.

(d) Presumption of correctness of factual findings on appeal: The findings of a lower judicial body have a presumption of correctness and are not to be disturbed unless they are plainly wrong, without supporting evidence, or manifestly unjust.

(e) Limitations on exercise of freedom of conscience (G-6.0108): G-6.0108 recognizes the right of the corporate community to place limits upon the exercise of freedom of conscience by its officers. The Constitution is that self-limitation which the people themselves place upon their own rights in order that they may be able to live and work together in love and unity.

(f) Relevance of materials used in evaluating validation of ministry: When evaluating a ministry for possible validation pursuant to G-11.0411, a presbytery is not precluded from reviewing relevant materials from prior years for the purpose of setting context for present statements or actions or for the purpose of showing a pattern that has continuity with present statements or actions.

(g) Presbytery discretion in making “thorough review” (G-11.0411): While the Committee on Ministry of a presbytery is required to make a “thorough review” of a proposed ministerial function pursuant to G-11.0411, the question of what, and how much, to review lies within the sound discretion of the Committee on Ministry. Unless there is manifest injustice in the process, a higher judicial body should not substitute its judgment as to the exercise of that discretion.

(h) Burden of proof on minister seeking validation (G-11.0411): In seeking validation of a proposed ministry pursuant to G-11.0411, the burden is on the minister to demonstrate that the proposed ministry is “consonant with the mission of the presbytery,” but in the process, the minister is to be accorded “fundamental fairness.”

(2) Arrival Statement

This remedial case comes to the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission (GAPJC) on appeal by the Presbytery of Western North Carolina (Presbytery) and cross-appeal by the Rev. Parker Williamson (Williamson) from a decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of the Mid-Atlantic (SPJC) dated September 29, 2004. This Commission finds that it has jurisdiction, that the Appellant and Cross-Appellant have standing to appeal, that the appeals were properly and timely filed, and that the appeals state one or more grounds for appeal under D-8.0105.

(4) History

In early 2003, Presbytery implemented procedures intended to review and clarify the process by which ministries beyond the jurisdiction of the church would be evaluated for purposes of validation pursuant to Book of Order G-11.0403a-e. The effort was prompted by the requirement of G-11.0403 “that presbytery shall be guided by written criteria developed for validation of ministries within its bounds.”

Presbytery did not develop written criteria in addition to the standards set forth in the Book of Order (G-11.0403a-e). After lengthy discussion of the need for “written criteria,” Presbytery decided to incorporate by reference G-11.0403a-e as its written criteria, along with process statements and timelines. In October 2002, it also adopted a new policy for “determining and evaluating validated ministries,” which included the creation of a Validated Ministries Task Force (VMTF). VMTF was assigned responsibility to review annually written applications by ministers wishing to maintain their status as active members of Presbytery while serving in ministries within its bounds.

Presbytery’s policy also provided:

If, during the review, the VMTF sees a concern, then VMTF will invite either the minister, a member of the employing organization, or both, to respond to the concerns in person or in writing.

In addition, the policy required an in-person meeting between an applicant and VMTF once every three years. Presbytery also established a three-stage process for review and approval of validated ministries. As part of the process, VMTF would review the written application, and if necessary, meet with the applicant, after which it would provide advice and a recommendation to Presbytery's Committee on Ministry (COM) as to whether validation should be renewed. Along with its written recommendation, VMTF would provide an oral report to COM outlining the rationale for its recommendation. On those occasions when VMTF recommended non-validation, it would notify the minister of the decision. COM was given discretion as to whether it would meet with the minister and the minister's employer to discuss the application further and receive additional information that either might wish to provide. Once COM had gathered sufficient information, it would vote whether or not to accept the recommendation of VMTF, and then bring the question to the full Presbytery for final action.

Presbytery implemented this policy in early 2003. One of the first ministries reviewed under the revised procedure was that of the Rev. Steven Strickler (Strickler), a continuing member of Presbytery whose ministry as an employee of the Presbyterian Lay Committee (PLC) had previously been validated. Following discussions involving both Strickler and Williamson, his supervisor, VMTF recommended to COM that Strickler's ministry again be validated. COM in turn recommended renewal of validation to Presbytery. It did, however, add the proviso that should Strickler speak in churches concerning the issue of per capita apportionment, he also discuss the effects on the Church of withholding or redirecting per capita apportionment. Presbytery accepted the recommendation to validate Strickler's ministry at its stated meeting in April 2003.

A similar process commenced two months later when Williamson submitted an application for renewal of validation of his ministry with PLC. Some members of VMTF expressed concern regarding whether Williamson's position with PLC fulfilled all of the criteria under G-11.0403a-e. Following its discretionary policy in such cases, VMTF invited Williamson to meet with VMTF to discuss and describe his ministry. Williamson met with VMTF on November 3, 2003, bringing with him the chairperson of PLC, Ms. Peggy Hedden. Together they presented materials intended to justify renewal of the validation of Williamson's ministry as chief executive officer and editor of PLC's primary publication, The Layman.

The record indicates that the meeting between Williamson and VMTF was nearing closure when Ms. Hedden produced a document entitled "A Declaration of Conscience," a position paper of PLC that included within it a description of "irreconcilable disunion" within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), hereinafter, (PCUSA) over the person and work of Jesus Christ, the authority of God's Word written, and the call to a holy life. The paper further urged PCUSA churches to consider withholding or redirecting per capita apportionment payments as well as unrestricted mission giving. Although the record is unclear as to precisely what happened at that juncture, VMTF adjourned its November meeting without making a decision on Williamson's validation, and decided instead to take the matter up at its December 2003 meeting.

VMTF met again on December 3, 2003, and, after lengthy discussion, voted four to one to advise COM to recommend against validation of Williamson's ministry. Williamson was advised of this action by e-mail the following day, five days before the next scheduled meeting of COM when VMTF's recommendation would be presented. When Williamson inquired as to the specific reasons for the decision, he was told his ministry did not meet the standard of G-11.0403d: "The ministry shall be carried on in accountability for its character and conduct to the presbytery and to organizations, agencies, and institutions." Although Williamson asked for greater detail, he was provided little, but he was invited to attend the upcoming COM meeting. Williamson stated he was not able to attend because of prior commitments, but he did send a letter dated December 5, 2003, to the chair of COM urging COM to exercise caution as it deliberated the matter.

The COM met on December 9, 2003. It received the recommendation of VMTF and after protracted consideration of the matter in executive session, COM voted ten to four to recommend that Presbytery not renew the validation of Williamson's ministry. The record does not indicate when Williamson was notified of this decision, but it was no later than December 22, 2003, because on that date Williamson addressed a letter to the Coordinating Council of Presbytery with several proposals as to how consideration of the matter at Presbytery meeting should proceed.

COM met again on January 13, 2004, and appointed a sub-committee to prepare and present explanatory materials to Presbytery outlining the reasons underlying its recommendation. It also prepared a document entitled "Background Information," which further detailed the reasons for COM's action. Presbytery included this document with a packet of information mailed on January 14, 2004, to commissioners of Presbytery. The packet also included materials provided by Williamson setting forth reasons why, in his opinion, the validation should be renewed. As a member of Presbytery, Williamson subsequently received a copy of the entire packet by mail.

At the January 31, 2004 stated meeting of Presbytery, the sub-committee of COM gave a 20-minute presentation on the matter. This presentation included a set of power point slides which raised matters not communicated to Williamson in advance of the meeting, and included material published in The Layman going back over ten years. Presbytery granted representatives of PLC 20 minutes to make their presentation. Williamson was afforded five minutes to address Presbytery directly. A lengthy floor discussion and debate followed, during which a large number of visitors, who had been granted the status of corresponding members with voice but without vote, took an active part. Presbytery ultimately voted by secret ballot not to renew the validation, with 150 in favor and 106 opposed. By an amendment to the original recommendation, Williamson was moved to the status of member-at-large pursuant to G-11.0406b.

On March 4, 2004, Williamson filed a complaint with the Synod of Mid-Atlantic alleging a number of irregularities committed by Presbytery, along with its COM and VMTF. Williamson requested, among other things, that the action of Presbytery not to renew validation of Williamson's ministry be set aside. The SPJC heard the case in a two-day trial held on September 27 and 28, 2004. In its opinion, the SPJC concluded that Williamson's due process⁷ rights were violated by Presbytery, in that he was not notified in a timely, clear, and concise manner of the specific reasons for the action to not validate his ministry. The SPJC found that due process and fundamental fairness were to be afforded to a person in Williamson's position. The SPJC concluded, however, that actions taken by Presbytery did not trigger procedural safeguards provided under the Rules of Discipline because there had been no "serious allegation of an offense" in its actions.

The SPJC ordered that the action of Presbytery invalidating Williamson's ministry be set aside and that the Presbytery take no further action with regard to reviewing the status of Williamson's ministry for one year from the date of its decision. The SPJC also ordered Presbytery and Williamson to "jointly formulate a plan to implement a Presbytery-wide process of reconciliation concerning this issue."

On October 22, 2004, Presbytery appealed the decision of the SPJC specifically challenging the requirements to take no action on the validation question for one year and to participate in a reconciliation process. Presbytery requested a stay of enforcement as to both orders. Williamson filed his own cross-appeal of the SPJC decision, challenging the SPJC's decision as incomplete, and alleging six points of irregularity. He also objected to the Stay of Enforcement. The GAPJC vacated the stay of the reconciliation plan, and modified the order that Presbytery take no action for one year, ordering instead that the Presbytery take no action as to Williamson's validation until the matter might be heard on the merits before the GAPJC.

(5) Specifications of Error

The first two specifications of error set forth below are brought by Presbytery. The remaining specifications (3 - 7) are brought by Williamson.

Specification of Error #1 (Appeal). That portion of SPJC's decision which orders that the Presbytery take no further action with regard to reviewing the status of the validation of Williamson's ministry for a period of one year from the date of its decision is unnecessary, harmful and erroneously prohibits Presbytery from engaging in its constitutional responsibility to review each year Williamson's service in a vocation beyond the jurisdiction of the Church.

This specification of error is sustained.

The parties have agreed that the issue presented in this specification of error is moot in view of the decision in this Commission's Modified Stay of Enforcement. In sustaining this specification of error, this Commission reaffirms that holding.

G-11.0411 specifies that a presbytery's decision to permit an active member to engage in a validated ministry beyond the jurisdiction of the church "shall be subject to review and renewal annually." Because the provision does not mention when, within the year, this review is to be conducted, a presbytery has the discretion to make this determination under the reserved powers clause of G-9.0103.

The record indicates that Presbytery has a system of annual review which in Williamson's case, extends from January 31 of one year to January 31 of the next year. SPJC's order directs Presbytery to undertake no further review of the status of the validation of this ministry for one year from the date of the SPJC decision. This means that Presbytery could not engage in the validation review process until September 29, 2005. Since this is approximately eight months later than the annual review date set by Presbytery, SPJC's order effectively prevents Presbytery from fulfilling its constitutional mandate under G-11.0411 as well as under G-11.0502a. As noted in the Modified Stay of Enforcement in this matter, "No court in our denomination has the authority to amend the Constitution or to invalidate any part of it." "Londonderry, et al. v. Presbytery of Northern New England, Minutes, 2001, 12.1028."

Specification of Error #2 (Appeal). The SPJC did not have the judicial authority to order the formulation of a Presbytery-wide process of reconciliation.

This specification of error is not sustained.

⁷ As noted below in the discussion of Specification of Error number 7, this Commission agrees that a person in Williamson's position should be accorded "fundamental fairness," but not necessarily the "due process" rights appropriate to a disciplinary proceeding.

Presbytery, citing D-5.0202, argues that SPJC's authority was limited to findings of procedural integrity and ordering Presbytery to correct them. Presbytery further argues that, in ordering a presbytery-wide process of reconciliation, SPJC was going beyond its constitutional bounds in "holding out itself as the ongoing arbiter of such a plan on issues of implementation, interpretation and enforcement." Relying on Chapter I of the Rules of Discipline and The Book of Confessions, Williamson argues that the SPJC order was an appropriate exercise of judicial discretion.

D-7.0402b, regarding decisions in matters before a permanent judicial commission, states in part:

If the complaint is sustained either in whole or in part, the commission shall either order such action as is appropriate or direct the lower governing body to conduct further proceedings in the matter. (Emphasis added.)

SPJC clearly had authority to order a plan for a process of reconciliation. Further, in light of the encouragement for reconciliation, which underlies the Rules of Discipline as expressed in Chapter I, and undeniable evidence in the record of tension between the parties throughout the proceedings at issue, this Commission finds that it was appropriate for SPJC to order a plan for a process of reconciliation.

This Commission is mindful of the challenges presented in formulating a reconciliation plan in this case. While this body will not dictate the terms of such a reconciliation plan, any such plan should take into consideration the limits contained in our Constitution as well as the need for the grace of God where conflicted situations exist. Williamson, as a minister member of Presbytery, engages in ministerial work under the authority of the Presbytery. In like manner, Presbytery has a duty and responsibility to honor the covenant to be bound in the body of Christ with its members.

A plan for reconciliation should be designed by Presbytery, in consultation with Williamson. As plans are discussed and formulated, this Commission reminds Presbytery of resources to be found in the "Directory for Worship" of the Book of Order (W-4.8000) and the Book of Common Worship.

Specification of Error #3 (Cross-Appeal). The SPJC erred in constitutional interpretation in finding that the Presbytery's Policy for Review of Validated Ministries was fully in compliance with G-11.0403.

This specification of error is sustained.

Under G-11.0403, a presbytery has the responsibility for determining "the ministers of the Word and Sacrament who shall be its continuing members." In making this determination, G-11.0403 requires the presbytery to be guided by written criteria developed by it for validation of ministries within its bounds. This provision further requires that the criteria be "based upon the description of ordained office found in G-6.0100 and G-6.0200 and the following standards..." (emphasis added). Five standards (a through e) are listed at the end of the provision. The meaning of G-11.0403 is plain on its face and therefore is to be applied and implemented as written. The development and use of written criteria is mandatory, as evidenced by the use of the word "shall" in the applicable part of the provision. Presbytery has not complied with this requirement because it did not develop or utilize written criteria in addition to the five standards for validation of ministries. Therefore, this specification of error is sustained.

Presbytery's Policy for Validating Ministries indicates that VMTF "shall recommend" to COM that a ministry be validated or a validation renewed if VMTF "sees satisfactory evidence that the criteria for validated ministry is [sic] being met." The Policy does not identify specific criteria but instead states that the criteria to be used "shall be the pertinent references in the Book of Order (G-11.0403, etc)." This statement is not sufficient to meet the Book of Order mandate for a presbytery to develop written criteria. The SPJC decision stated, "The written policy was well conceived, and conscientiously implemented." Nevertheless, because Presbytery did not develop separate written criteria, it necessarily follows that it could not have been guided by such written criteria when it made its determination regarding the validation of the ministry at issue.

In addition to the specific language of G-11.0403, fundamental principles of construction lead to the same understanding. G-11.0403 contains a provision regarding written criteria, and this, coupled with the use of the word "shall," means that the provision must be given effect. Moreover, the presence of the conjunction "and" means that written criteria are to be based on descriptions found in G-6.0100 and G-6.0200 as well as on the standards listed in G-11.0403a-e.

Finally, the legislative history leading to the most recent amendment to G-11.0403 provides additional justification for the requirement for "written criteria." The following amendment to G-11.0403 was approved in 1997:

A presbytery shall determine the ministers of the Word and Sacrament who shall be its continuing members. In making this determination the presbytery shall be guided by ~~all the following criteria~~ written criteria developed by the presbytery for validation of ministries within its bounds. These criteria shall be based upon the description of the nature of ordained office found in G-6.0100 and G-6.0200 and the following standards: (Note: italicized words added by amendment; strike-through words deleted by amendment.)

This amendment changed the designation of the items specified in G-11.0403 a through e from “criteria” to “standards.” Presbytery’s failure to develop written criteria apart from the standards designated in a through e is inconsistent with the legislative intent that undergirds this provision.

Presbytery has argued that there is no constitutional requirement that the written criteria be original work product or specifically tailored to each applicant’s requested ministry. This argument is not persuasive in view of the legislative history discussed herein. The clear intent of the General Assembly and presbyteries in adopting the amendment was to have presbyteries develop written criteria in addition to the constitutional standards listed in G-11.0403a-e. If the intent were for the criteria to be the same as the standards, the amendment would have so stated. This Commission further notes that there is no requirement for a presbytery to develop written criteria specifically tailored to each applicant’s requested ministry. Generic or global written criteria are sufficient to meet the requirement of this provision. The Commission notes that the “shall” language does not prohibit a presbytery from adopting written criteria that include these standards.

The development and use of written criteria are important because such criteria, together with the constitutional standards, help reduce arbitrary determinations regarding validation of ministries. They also provide applicants with reasonable notice as to what is specifically required for validation so that they have ample opportunity to comply prior to submission of their applications. In reaching this decision, the Commission recognizes a tension with G-11.0403 and lack of clarity created by two related provisions, G-11.0406b and G-11.0411, having to do with the use of the word “criteria.” Notwithstanding this tension, this Commission does not view the approach taken by the Presbytery as satisfying the requirement to develop separate written criteria.

Specification of Error #4 (Cross-Appeal). The SPJC erred in constitutional interpretation in opining that Presbytery did not err in taking action adverse to Williamson because of the Presbyterian Lay Committee’s Declaration of Conscience.

This specification of error is not sustained.

With regard to this specification, the SPJC decision contains the following relevant findings:

- (a) no retaliatory action was taken by Presbytery against Williamson;
- (b) the actions taken by Presbytery were not based on any opinions he may have expressed or any respectful dissent he may have offered;
- (c) the COM found that the editorial policy espoused by The Layman was not consonant with Presbytery’s mission;
- (d) The Layman is an institution wholly unrelated to the PCUSA and not subject to its discipline;
- (e) COM, based on the finding in 3 above, recommended that the position of Editor and CEO of The Layman could not be a validated ministry of the Presbytery; and
- (f) Presbytery’s action was not retaliatory and was not punishment, but instead was an administrative determination.

These factual findings were made after SPJC heard testimony from several witnesses regarding the proceedings of the VMTF, COM and Presbytery, as well as after reviewing a significant amount of documentary evidence including the “Declaration of Conscience.” The findings have a presumption of correctness, and are not to be disturbed unless they are plainly wrong, without supporting evidence or manifestly unjust. “Rankin v. National Capital Union Presbytery, UPC Minutes, 1981, p.113.”; “Bevensee v. Presbytery of New Brunswick, Minutes, 1998, 12.0136.” Thus, even if this Commission were to disagree with some or all of the findings, we would nonetheless be duty-bound to accept them unless at least one of the aforementioned three standards has been met. Based on a review of the entire record, this Commission has determined that there is sufficient evidence to support each of the findings. This Commission has also determined that none of the above findings is plainly wrong or manifestly unjust. Therefore, the specification of error cannot be sustained.

Williamson’s arguments center on the “Declaration of Conscience.” He contends that it was the primary basis for the recommendation by VMTF and COM not to validate Williamson’s ministry, and that it was improperly considered by Presbytery, VMTF and COM. This Commission notes that the document was voluntarily offered to VMTF by a representative of PLC. It thus became a part of the records of VMTF and COM. It was therefore proper for Presbytery to give it consideration along with other items in reaching its decision.

Williamson has also argued that his support and endorsement of the “Declaration of Conscience” is constitutionally protected speech. This argument is not persuasive in view of the finding by the SPJC that Presbytery’s action was not based on any opinions Williamson “may have expressed or on any respectful dissent he may have offered.” As previously stated, this Commission has no reason to disturb this finding. Notwithstanding Williamson’s contention that this finding is contrary to the “overwhelming evidence” in the record, the evidence referenced by Williamson is not sufficient to overcome the presumption of correctness given to determinations on factual issues by lower governing bodies.

Moreover, G-6.0108 recognizes the right of the corporate community to place limits upon the exercise of freedom of conscience by its officers. The Constitution is that self-limitation which the people themselves place upon their own rights in order that they may be able to live and work together in love and unity. Because Williamson may exercise his freedom of conscience only within the bounds prescribed by the covenant community, Presbytery could properly consider the Declaration of Conscience as one of many factors in reaching its decision.

Specification of Error No. 5 (Cross-Appeal). The SPJC erred in constitutional interpretation in finding that Presbytery did not err in considering statements and activities which had occurred and were known during previous years in which Williamson’s ministry was validated.

This specification of error is not sustained.

Williamson argues that Presbytery made its decision not to validate based in part on activities, publications, and statements of Williamson and The Layman from prior years. He maintains that this history was presumably part of the material evaluated by Presbytery during those years, and that validation had nevertheless been approved. Williamson argues that it violates principles of fundamental fairness to base a refusal to validate now in part on material that had not been a basis for refusal in the past.

The Presbytery responds that the Constitution places no constraints on dates of events that “might be considered relevant to presbytery members in making their decision.” It notes that “it might be relevant to review [Williamson’s] writings and public statements over a period of years to determine the context for statements made in a contemporary publication or public statement.” During her testimony, one of the COM presenters admitted she based the presentation made to Presbytery on “a series of articles in the Presbyterian Layman some time ago.”

The record confirms that Presbytery relied on material that was in some cases over ten years old. This, however, was not in itself a violation of the principle of fundamental fairness. This Commission holds that a presbytery is not precluded from reviewing relevant materials from prior years for the purpose of setting context for present statements or actions, or for the purpose of showing a pattern that has continuity with present statements or actions. The SPJC’s finding that Williamson had not been accorded fundamental fairness was not based on Presbytery’s use of old material, but on the manner in which the material was used, particularly during the presentation by COM to Presbytery. That finding was accepted by Presbytery and is not before this Commission.

Specification of Error No. 6 (Cross-Appeal). The SPJC’s decision erred in holding that the COM made a thorough review of Williamson’s ministry when it failed to read and consider the papers and documents Williamson provided to support his application.

This specification of error is not sustained.

Williamson argues that neither VMTF nor COM conducted a “thorough review” of the material submitted by Williamson in support of validation of his ministry, in violation of G-11.0411. Williamson further argues that principles of “fundamental fairness,” as set forth in “Gaba v. Presbytery of Eastern Virginia, Minutes, 2003, p 269.” (hereinafter referred to as Gaba), require a thorough review of all the material submitted by a minister seeking renewal of validation of ministry.

G-11.0411 provides in pertinent part, “The committee on ministry of the presbytery shall make a thorough review of the proposed ministerial function and report its recommendations to the presbytery.” The record indicates that some, possibly repetitive, material provided by Williamson, was not read by VMTF and COM before they reached their decisions. The record also indicates that at least one letter sent by registered mail was somehow lost or misplaced, and thus not delivered to VMTF in a timely manner.

While COM is required to make a thorough review of the proposed ministry, and while the loss of a letter delivered by registered mail raises questions about the care with which the process was undertaken in this case, the question of what, and how much, to review lies within the sound discretion of the COM. Unless there is a manifest injustice in the process, this Commission will not substitute its judgment as to the exercise of that discretion. “Hope et al v. Presbytery of San Francisco, Minutes, 2004, 217-1.”

Specification of Error #7 (Cross Appeal). The SPJC erred by refusing to consider the specification of error raised by Williamson that Presbytery erred by considering and acting upon charges and statements against Williamson that were not supported by substantial, competent evidence sufficient to deprive Williamson of his validated ministry status.

This specification of error is not sustained.

This specification of error concerns the relative burdens of proof in an administrative setting such as the one at issue here. According to our Constitution, there is no entitlement to a validation of ministry in service beyond the jurisdiction of the church. A minister must first request permission of the presbytery (G-11.0402, G-11.0411). In this setting then, the burden is placed on the minister seeking validation to demonstrate that his or her ministry is “consonant with the mission of the presbytery.” (G-11.0411) Further, this Commission has held that, in administrative proceedings, a presbytery should accord the affected parties fundamental fairness, that is, “the opportunity to be heard and a consideration of their respective positions without prejudice.” “Lewis v. Presbytery of New York, Minutes, 1995, p. 11.066.” Thus, COM and Presbytery were not bound by a “preponderance of the evidence” standard, as Williamson argues in his brief, but were bound by a duty to accord fundamental fairness.

In its decision, the SPJC found that, although the action at issue was by COM and not an administrative commission, the analogy to Gaba was clear and it therefore applied. In Gaba, the Commission upheld an SPJC ruling that an administrative commission’s specific allegations against a minister “implied a disciplinary action,” thereby making procedural safeguards in G-9.0505b applicable. This Commission does not agree that G-9.0505b applies in this case; no specific allegations were made against Williamson as was the case in Gaba. However this Commission does agree with the SPJC that the proceedings of the Presbytery, its COM, and its VMTF were subject to the requirements of fundamental fairness as defined in Lewis. The SPJC found that the Presbytery erred in failing to provide Williamson with “fundamental fairness.” Presbytery did not appeal this.

In making the above findings regarding fundamental fairness, the SPJC did in substance consider this specification of error.

(6) Order

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of Mid-Atlantic ordering that the Presbytery take no further action on validation of Williamson’s ministry for one year be reversed.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Synod decision on formulating a reconciliation plan be modified to read as follows: “The Presbytery of Western North Carolina formulate a plan to implement a Presbytery-wide process of reconciliation concerning its relationship with Parker T. Williamson, and that it consult with Parker T. Williamson in the formulation.”

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Presbytery develop, by January 31, 2006, separate written criteria for validation of ministries within its bounds as specified in G-11.0403.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of the Mid-Atlantic report this decision to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Western North Carolina report this decision to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

(7) Concurring Opinion by Commissioners Catherine Borchert, Jesse Butler, William Carlough, Ernest Cutting, Fane Downs, Jane Fahey, Leon Fanniel, June Lorenzo, Wendy Warner, Christopher Yim:

We concur fully with the majority opinion. We offer the following to state further our understanding of the limitations upon the exercise of freedom of conscience by an officer within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)

Williamson bases much of his argument on the issue of freedom of conscience and what he states is freedom of speech.

One of the most historic and widely quoted statements of the PCUSA is “That God alone is Lord of the conscience, and hath left it free from the doctrines and commandments of men which are in anything contrary to his Word, or beside it, in matters of faith or worship.” (G-1.0301a) This phrase from the Westminster Confession of 1647 states a basic foundation of Presbyterianism. If only God is to be our conscience, if there is freedom of belief, the nature of that freedom is crucial. The 195th GA (1983) said, “The right of private judgment... is a right for freedom of obedience to Christ...” “Historic Principles, Conscience and Church Government, UPC Minutes, 1983, p 141ff.”

G-6.0108 recognizes the right of the corporate community to place limits upon the exercise of freedom of conscience by its officers. In discussing the roles, rights, and responsibilities of officers, this provision states that for officers who have voluntarily accepted this call, “freedom of conscience with respect to the interpretation of Scripture is to be maintained.” Even within this arena, this freedom is to be maintained only “[s]o far as may be possible without serious departure from these standards, without infringing on the rights and views of others, and without obstructing the constitutional governance of the church...”

G-6.0108b is even more blunt:

It is to be recognized, however, that in becoming a candidate or officer of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) one chooses to exercise freedom of conscience within certain bounds. His or her conscience is captive to the Word of God as interpreted in the standards of the church so long as he or she continues to seek or hold office in that body. The decision as to whether a person has departed from essentials of Reformed faith and polity is made initially by the individual concerned but ultimately becomes the responsibility of the governing body in which he or she serves.

Conflict and concern over the validation of the ministry of ministers who are called to service not under the jurisdiction of the church is not a new phenomenon. In 1953 the 165th General Assembly adopted a lengthy report concerning the way in which the right of presbyteries to determine who are to be their members might relate to the rights of ministers to “serve in work, not directly related to the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.” Noting that “[t]he polity of the Presbyterian Church is basically that of covenant..., the report defines the nature of that covenant as follows:

The Constitution is that self-limitation which the people themselves place upon their own rights in order that they may be able to live and work together in love and unity... The limitation which any person places upon his rights when he becomes a member of the Presbyterian Church is the Constitution of that Church. It is the free consent thus to covenant with each other that makes us a Presbyterian Church on the basis of the Constitution. Freedom in our tradition is a positive value when coupled with responsibility... Every Presbyterian minister should remember that by his ordination he has voluntarily limited his freedom . . .” Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, Minutes, 1953, pp.115–116, 123.”

Therefore, as members of the church and as officers, freedom of conscience is absolute in belief, and answering only to God, through the discernment of the covenant community. Because Williamson may exercise his freedom of conscience only within the bounds prescribed by the covenant community, Presbytery could properly consider the Declaration of Conscience as one of many factors in reaching its decision.

(8) Concurrence in Part and Dissent in Part by Commissioner June Lorenzo:

I concur in the majority decision, with the exception of its decision to sustain specification of error # 3. While I agree that G-11.0403 requires presbyteries to develop written criteria, I do not agree that a presbytery decision to adopt by reference the requirements of G-11.0403 as its written criteria constitutes a constitutional violation. I believe that both a clear reading of G-11.0403 and related provisions, as well as the legislative history, reveal a less stringent requirement in the Constitution. I also have concerns about the potential effect of such a rigid interpretation on many presbyteries.

Under G-11.0403, a presbytery is charged with the responsibility for determining “the ministers of the Word and Sacrament who shall be its continuing members.” This section provides in pertinent part:

A presbytery shall determine the ministers of the Word and Sacrament who shall be its continuing members. In making this determination the presbytery shall be guided by written criteria developed by the presbytery for validation of ministries within its bounds. These criteria shall be based upon the description of ordained office found in G.-6.0100 and G-6.0200 and the following standards: (Emphasis added.)

The key language in this paragraph is “based upon.” The “shall” language emphasized by the majority is not solely focused on producing written and additional criteria, but rather requires three equally important things: (1) to determine ministers of Word and Sacrament who shall be its continuing members, (2) to be guided by written criteria developed by the Presbytery, and (3) that the criteria be based upon the description of ordained office and standards outlined in G-11.0403 a-e.

Moreover, two related provisions in G-11.0406b and G-11.0411 contain language that does not mandate separate and additional written criteria either:

[G-11.0406b]: A member-at-large is a minister of the Word and Sacrament who has previously been admitted to the presbytery or another presbytery as an active member, and who now, without, intentional abandonment of the exercise of ministry that complies with all the criteria in G-11.0403. ... A member-at-large shall comply with as many of the criteria in G-11.0403 as possible. (Emphasis added)

[G-11.0411]: The committee on ministry of the presbytery shall make a thorough review of the proposed ministerial function and report its recommendations to the presbytery. The committee shall determine and report whether the service complies with all of the criteria enumerated in G-11.0403, without exception. (Emphases added.)

In the 1997 amendments to G-11.0403, which are discussed in the majority opinion, the word “criteria” was changed to “standards.” However, the language in the related provisions quoted above was left unchanged, which suggests that the bottom line in making a determination as to validation is the set of criteria contained in G-11.0403 a-e. Indeed, it is conceivable that had the case surrounded interpretation of these provisions, the result would have been different.

General Assembly Minutes for the 1997 amendment to G-11.0403 state that these amendments “would ask each presbytery to develop criteria for validation of ministry to define more clearly for itself and its minister members which specialized ministries are necessary for the ordering of the church’s life.”(Emphasis added.) “General Assembly, Minutes, 1997, 31.0241.” It is notable that the amendment was not accompanied by a mandate for presbyteries to produce such written criteria by a certain date. The legislative history does not clearly indicate a mandate for “additional criteria,” as the majority assert, but an encouragement for presbyteries to entertain a serious process for determining which specialized ministries are necessary for the ordering of the church’s life. The General Assembly, in amending G-11.0403, actually broadened the criteria for consideration to include a “description of the nature of ordained office found in G-6.0100 and G-6.0200.”

Williamson’s original formulation of this specification would have had this Commission determine that a presbytery’s decision to adopt by reference the standards contained in G-11.0403a-e would be “inherently deficient.” Such a standard would impose unreasonably rigid requirements on presbyteries. In this case, the record demonstrates that Presbytery made a serious effort to write criteria separate from those found in G-11.0403a-e, and thus its decision to incorporate by reference these standards, or criteria, was not a refusal to comply with the Constitution. To hold that a presbytery’s decision not to write separate criteria is “inherently deficient” and an automatic violation of the Constitution, lacks support, especially in view of the inconsistency that exists between the provisions discussed earlier. This could also subject a number of presbyteries to similar cases.

For these reasons I would not sustain this specification of error, but would continue to urge presbyteries to heed the GA recommendation to undergo a process of examining what criteria would assist in making a determination on whether to validate ministries.

)	Remedial Case 217-8
Session of Cordova Presbyterian Church, Lakeland,)

-----)

(1) Arrival Statement

This remedial case comes before this Commission on an appeal filed by Dana Jackson (Jackson), a member of Cordova Presbyterian Church, Lakeland, Tennessee, from a decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of Living Waters dated October 25, 2004.

(2) History

On or about January 3, 2003, Dana Jackson filed an accusation of misconduct against an elder of Cordova Presbyterian Church with the session of that church (Session), alleging, among other things, that the elder had convened an illegal session meeting. It appears that the moderator of Session referred the matter to the Presbytery of Memphis (Presbytery) on or about January 17, 2003, for investigation. On August 27, 2003, Jackson received an undated memo from an investigating committee appointed by Session, stating that an investigating committee had been appointed on July 15, 2003, and had decided not to file charges against the accused.

Jackson then sent a letter dated October 27, 2003, to the Stated Clerk of the Presbytery, attempting to initiate a remedial complaint against Session for alleged irregularities in its handling of the accusation of misconduct. In a letter dated July 19, 2004, however, Jackson characterized her earlier letter of October 27, 2003, as a complaint regarding the Presbytery's failure to act.

Because of the lack of any response from Presbytery, on April 30, 2004, Jackson requested that the Synod of Living Waters Permanent Judicial Commission (SPJC) take jurisdiction of the case. On October 25, 2004, the Moderator of the SPJC sent a letter to Jackson advising that the full SPJC had considered the complaint and determined that it did not have jurisdiction in the matter. On December 3, 2004, Jackson filed a notice of appeal from that decision with this Commission.

(3) Findings on Preliminary Questions

Jackson's letter of October 27, 2003, attempting to initiate a remedial complaint against the Session, was untimely filed because it was filed more than 90 days after the date of the allegedly irregular Session action—namely, the decision of the Session investigating committee not to file charges. Although the memorandum of the Session investigating committee to the Session clerk documenting its decision is undated, the date of that decision is, at the latest, July 28, 2003, the date of the postmark on the mailing of that decision to Jackson. The October 27, 2003, letter "complaint" falls outside the 90-day period permitted under D-6.0202b. Because of this untimeliness, the Presbytery had no jurisdiction to act on Jackson's October 27, 2003, remedial complaint, and the SPJC properly concluded that it lacked jurisdiction. This Commission likewise lacks jurisdiction.

With respect to the disciplinary case initiated by Jackson's accusation, Jackson failed to exhaust a remedy available under the Book of Order, namely the filing of a petition for review under D-10.0303. This Commission has no jurisdiction to consider any matters arising out of this disciplinary proceeding.

This Commission expresses its concern, however, about the failure of diligence on the part of Session and Presbytery in timely investigating and communicating regarding the allegations of misconduct in this case. It appears from the record in this case that Jackson, the person filing the accusation, was never contacted by an investigating committee appointed by either Session or Presbytery.

(4) Order

IT IS ORDERED that the appeal in this matter be dismissed for lack of jurisdiction.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that, pursuant to the provisions of G-9.0408, the Synod consider whether a special administrative review of the Presbytery of Memphis regarding the Presbytery's handling of the accusations of misconduct and delinquency filed by Jackson and of Jackson's letter complaint of October 27, 2003, is necessary.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Clerk of Session of Cordova Presbyterian Church, Lakeland, Tennessee, the Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Memphis, and the Stated Clerk of the Synod of Living Waters each read this Order of Dismissal at their first meeting following receipt of this Order; that the Session, Presbytery, and Synod enter the full Order of Dismissal upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the Order of Dismissal be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly. (D-8.0404f, D-13.0404f)

(5) Absences

The following members were not present and took no part in this Order of Dismissal: John Dudley, Mildred Morales, and Janet Wilson.

(1) Arrival Statement

These cases came before the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission on complaints against The Board of Pensions of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) (Board) filed by the Synod of the Northeast, Presbytery of Southeastern Illinois, Presbytery of Northern New England, Session of First Presbyterian Church of Hoopeston, Illinois, and Session of Presbyterian Church of Paris, Illinois (hereinafter collectively Complainants). Each of the five remedial complaints challenged the Board’s alleged failure to implement a directive of the 216th General Assembly (2004) (216th GA) concerning the calculation of medical dues coverage for clergy couples installed by a congregation to share one installed position. The Board answered each complaint and requested dismissal, arguing that three of the preliminary questions under D-6.0305 could not be answered in the affirmative. The Board argued specifically that this Commission lacked jurisdiction, that the complaints were not timely filed, and that the complaints failed to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. (D-6.0305a, c, d)

(2) History

The 216th General Assembly (2004) received overtures from the Presbyteries of Southeastern Illinois and Northern New England, with concurrences by the Presbyteries of the Palisades and Western Kentucky, titled “On Directing the Board of Pensions to Revise their Rules For the Calculation of Salary for Churches with a Clergy Couple Installed to One Position.” The 216th General Assembly approved this overture before its adjournment on July 3, 2004.

The Board of Pensions was formed by the Articles of Agreement (Article 11.3) of the Plan of Reunion of the United Presbyterian Church in the United States of America and the Presbyterian Church of the United States in 1983, based on a “joint plan of merger” of the two predecessor bodies. The Board is incorporated in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania as a “church plan,” “construed and administered in accordance with the laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.” The Benefits Plan was adopted by the 198th General Assembly (198th GA) in 1986. A number of resolutions were adopted by that same Assembly, including the specific rules for the new Plan, and a requirement that “participation in the Plan shall be made mandatory for all pastors installed in churches.” Minutes, 1986, p.700. The full plan of the Board in Article V requires each minister installed to a position in a congregation to be enrolled for full participation in the Benefits Plan, which is further interpreted by Administrative Rule #106.

The 214th General Assembly (2002) (214th GA) voted to move to biennial rather than annual General Assemblies, and the Board amended its rules and organization in order to be responsive to changing needs without waiting for two years to implement needed decisions. Its Bylaws were amended March 1, 2003, with an effective date of August 1, 2004. On January 1, 2004, a newly “amended and restated” plan document became effective, which said in part that dues for part-time pastors would be based on the full-time equivalent salary (Article II.1(u) of the Plan). Minutes of a meeting of the Board on March 5-6, 2004, stated that the issue of member couples was to be considered among other concerns, continuing to be clear that the “primary concern” is the “financial health of the plan.”

In a letter dated April 20, 2004, the Board asked the Advisory Committee on the Constitution (ACC) to interpret G-14.0506 “with respect to a Clergy Couple Serving a ‘Shared’ Installed Position,” that is, to advise whether these couples are two people sharing one call or two people in two part-time calls. The Board made this request after the 120-day deadline for seeking interpretations of the Constitution prior to the 216th GA (G-18.0301a).

At the 216th General Assembly (216th GA), Overture 14-09 was approved, directing the Board to revise the rules for the calculation of medical dues for clergy couples sharing one position. Although official notification of the action of the 216th GA was not received until early September 2004, the Board, at its July 16-17, 2004, meeting, voted to renew their request to the ACC for interpretation of whether clergy couples could “share” a position. In the meantime, in letters dated August 13, 2004, the Board wrote to the church treasurers of congregations being served by a “clergy couple filling the position previously filled by a single pastor.” These letters advised that there were various plans in place to find a solution to the problem, that the Board was requesting an interpretation of the ACC, that “fundamental principles of the Medical Plan’s coverage rules and funding structure” would be reviewed in October 2004, that an interim plan would be considered for a January 1, 2005, implementation, and that churches should expect to be billed as usual in the meantime.

On October 1, 2004, as in previous months, churches received invoices from the Board, billing them at the higher part-time rate. On October 23, 2004, Synod of the Northeast voted to initiate a remedial complaint against the Board, received by the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly on November 8, 2004. Similar complaints were filed by the Presbytery of South-eastern Illinois, received November 2, 2004; First Presbyterian Church of Hoopeston, Illinois, received November 15, 2004; the Presbytery of Northern New England, received November 15, 2004; and the Presbyterian Church of Paris, Illinois, received December 3, 2004.

(3) Order for Consolidation

On January 31, 2005, this Commission granted the Board’s motion to consolidate the complaints for all pretrial and trial proceedings.

(4) Jurisdiction Statement

This Commission found in its Order dated April 4, 2005, that it had jurisdiction, the Complainants had standing to file, the Complaints were timely filed, and that the Complaints stated a claim upon which relief can be granted under D-6.0305.

(5) Order for Trial

On April 4, 2005, the Commission ordered that a trial would be held on August 5, 2005, on the issue of whether a clergy couple can share one position.

(6) Order for Continuance

By its Order dated April 4, 2005, this Commission determined that this Commission has jurisdiction to consider the merits of the case on the sole question of whether a clergy couple can share one position and set the date for trial on August 5, 2005.

The parties engaged in negotiations leading to a settlement of the issues involved, subject to approval of the Board of Directors of Respondent at its meeting on July 16, 2005, and applied to the Commission for a Stay of Briefing Schedule and Trial Proceedings.

On June 28, 2005, the Moderator and Clerk of the Commission ordered a continuance of the briefing schedule and date of trial from August 5, 2005, to an indefinite date pending the outcome of settlement negotiations between the parties.

The Moderator and Clerk further ordered that in the event the Board of Directors of Respondent approved the Stipulation of Settlement on July 16, 2005, the parties were to immediately inform the Commission and provide the Commission with a signed copy of the Settlement Agreement and action of the Board of Directors. In the event that the Board of Directors did not approve the proposed Settlement Agreement at its meeting on July 16, 2005, and the parties were unable to enter into a Stipulation of Settlement that meets the satisfaction of all parties prior to August 31, 2005, the parties were ordered to inform this Commission no later than August 31, 2005.

(7) Absences and Non-participants

The following members of the commission were not present or were recused from participation in this matter: Jesse Butler and Fred Denson.

(8) Order for Dismissal

Following negotiations between the parties to this case, the parties executed a Stipulation of Settlement resolving this matter on dates between June 8, 2005, and June 24, 2005. The Board of Directors of Respondent approved the Stipulation of Settlement on July 16, 2005. Accordingly, the Complaints in this matter stand withdrawn, and the matter is dismissed.

Dated the 7th day of August, 2005.

(a) Seeking review of disciplinary cases through remedial means: The procedures used or the outcome in a disciplinary case are not to be laterally attacked through a remedial case.

(b) Seeking disciplinary ends through remedial means: The remedial process may not be used to achieve disciplinary ends. Ronald L. Wier v. Session, Second Presbyterian Church of Fort Lauderdale, FL, Minutes, 1999, p.831.

(c) Safeguarding fair process: All involved in disciplinary processes must adhere rigorously to the requirements of the Book of Order to ensure that all participants are accorded procedural safeguards and due process.

(d) Addressing procedural irregularities by an investigating committee: The proper avenue for addressing procedural irregularities by an investigating committee in a disciplinary proceeding is a petition for review (D-10.0204).

(e) Preservation of a case record: Requests for relief which would require the altering of the record of a case or the expunging of the record are contrary to the Book of Order requirements found in D-11.0600, and are therefore beyond the authority of a permanent judicial commission.

(2) Arrival Statement

This remedial case comes to the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission (GAPJC) on appeal filed by Complainant/Appellant, Jack C. Volkers (Appellant), from a decision by the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of Lincoln Trails (SPJC) dated January 29, 2005. This Commission finds that it has jurisdiction, that Appellant has standing to appeal, that the appeal was properly and timely filed, and that the appeal states one or more grounds for appeal under D-8.0105.

(3) Appearances

Jack C. Volkers represented himself. Judy L. Woods appeared as counsel for the Presbytery of Wabash Valley.

(4) History

During July/August, 2002, an investigating committee was formed by the Presbytery of Wabash Valley (PWV) in response to several letters alleging misconduct on the part of Appellant. Disciplinary charges were filed against Appellant on September 27, 2002, and amended on October 7, 2002. Following pre-trial conferences on October 22, 2002 and December 1, 2002, PWV proposed a settlement on December 12, 2002, which was not accepted by Appellant. On January 18, 2003 the charges were dismissed in order to file amended charges.

On August 11, 2003, amended charges were filed against Appellant. There followed a pre-trial hearing on September 27, 2003, and a pre-trial conference on November 1, 2003. Additional charges were filed against Appellant on December 24, 2003.

Appellant filed a remedial complaint with the Synod of Lincoln Trails (SPJC) against PWV on December 27, 2003, alleging that the first disciplinary case was wrongfully initiated.

The Permanent Judicial Commission of PWV (PPJC) held a trial on the second disciplinary case on September 10-11, 2004. Appellant was found not guilty on all charges.

The above-mentioned December 27, 2003 complaint filed with SPJC was a remedial case questioning the legality of the process used by PWV in the first disciplinary case. The preliminary order from the Executive Committee of the SPJC dismissed the case. Appellant challenged that ruling, but did not submit a brief. Appellant submitted a supplemental complaint dated November 24, 2004. The SPJC reconsidered the challenge, and after a hearing on January 29, 2005, issued an order dismissing the case, relying on the precedent that a remedial complaint cannot be used to attack a disciplinary case, and holding that the requests for relief were beyond the authority of a permanent judicial commission.

The present appeal, filed by Appellant on March 9, 2005, challenging the decision of the SPJC on January 29, 2005, was heard by the GAPJC on August 5, 2005.

(5) Specifications of Error

Specification of Error Number 1: The Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of Lincoln Trails erred in determining that this case be dismissed “on the basis that the conduct or outcome of a disciplinary case cannot be attacked in a remedial case.”

This specification of error is not sustained.

This Commission is not persuaded that the circumstances of this case are sufficient to distinguish it from the principle established by Robert Cook v. Presbytery of East Tennessee, Minutes, 1999, p.838; San Mateo Presbyterian Church v. Presbytery of San Francisco, Minutes, 1997, p.141; Robert Cook v. Presbytery of East Tennessee, Minutes, 1997, p.142; and Douglas J. Essinger-Hileman v. Presbytery of Redstone, Minutes, 2001, 12.1106. These cases held that the procedures used or the outcome in a disciplinary case are not to be laterally attacked through a remedial case.

The Commission has before it a limited record from the disciplinary case against Appellant. That limited record, however, reveals significant irregularities in the process. The cumulative effect of the numerous procedural errors impacted the integrity of the process.

Appellant was found not guilty in the disciplinary case. Notwithstanding his acquittal, Appellant has already initiated several disciplinary cases against persons involved in prosecuting and deciding the disciplinary case.

The remedial case before this Commission should also be dismissed because it improperly seeks to achieve disciplinary ends through a remedial complaint. In Ronald L. Wier v. Session, Second Presbyterian Church of Fort Lauderdale, FL, Minutes, 1999, p.831, this Commission explained why this undermines the safeguards established in the Book of Order.

At stake is the preservation of the principles of due process and fundamental fairness accorded individuals by our Constitution. There is a distinction to be maintained between remedial and disciplinary actions: judicial process through disciplinary action affords individuals specific rights of due process ... and requires standards of proof that are more stringent than remedial action. Pursuing what are effectively disciplinary ends through remedial action subverts the intent of our polity to safeguard these rights.

This Commission urges that all involved in disciplinary processes adhere rigorously to the requirements of the Book of Order so that “all participants are accorded procedural safeguards and due process.” D-1.0101.

Specification of Error Number 2: The Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of Lincoln Trails erred in determining that the proper remedy for addressing procedural irregularities in a disciplinary proceeding is through a petition for review under D-10.0204.

This specification of error is not sustained.

D-10.0204 provides the proper remedy for addressing procedural irregularities by an investigating committee in a disciplinary proceeding.

There is confusion in the record regarding Appellant’s letter of February 12, 2003, which Appellant names as a “petition for review” in his Notice of Appeal, though said letter does not ask for review; moreover, the letter was not treated as such by the PPJC.

The PPJC considered Appellant’s second “motion to dismiss” as a “petition for review,” but dismissed it as untimely since the investigation had concluded.

Specification of Error Number 3: The Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of Lincoln Trails erred in determining that Appellant’s claims for relief (including sealing the record of the case, disposing of the record, altering the record, making public apology, and announcing the determination of the disciplinary case) were beyond the authority of a permanent judicial commission.

This specification of error is sustained in part and not sustained in part.

Requests for relief which would require the altering of the record of a case or the expunging of the record are contrary to the Book of Order requirements found in D-11.0600, and are therefore beyond the authority of a permanent judicial commission.

The request for presbytery announcements of the outcome of the disciplinary case is within the authority of a permanent judicial commission. However, this has already been accomplished by virtue of compliance with D-11.0701, which requires that such announcement be made at the “next presbytery meeting,” and that the stated clerk “enter the full decision upon the minutes of the presbytery.”

Specification of Error Number 4: The Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of Lincoln Trails erred in determining that there is no remedy by use of a remedial proceeding to correct a wrongful initiation of a disciplinary proceeding by a presbytery.

This specification of error is not sustained.

See discussion under specification of error #1.

Specification of Error Number 5: The Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of Lincoln Trails erred in refusing to conduct an evidentiary trial on the allegations of Appellant in his remedial complaint against said Presbytery.

This specification of error is not sustained.

See discussion under specification of error #1.

(6) Decision and Order

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of Lincoln Trails is affirmed.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that in light of the many serious errors in the conduct of the investigation and hearings in the disciplinary cases against Appellant, the Presbytery of Wabash Valley Permanent Judicial Commission and the General Presbyter and Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Wabash Valley shall receive training and guidance no later than February 28, 2006, in the proper conduct of investigations, trials and hearings by the Office of the General Assembly along with available former members of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission; a report of this training shall be made to this Commission as well as to the Synod.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of Lincoln Trails report this decision to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Wabash Valley report this decision to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

DECISION AND ORDER

Remedial Case 217-11

(1) Headnotes

(a) Failure to state a claim: In determining whether a complaint states a claim upon which relief can be granted, a permanent judicial commission must assume the truth of facts alleged in the complaint. (Hope v. Presbytery of San Francisco, 2004, Minutes, p.363)

(b) Session authority and responsibility: The Book of Order gives a session authority and responsibility for the mission and government of its church including responsibility for church financial matters and for the constitution of its committees. (G-9.0403, G-9.0501a, G-10.0102 h, i, m, G-10.0401)

(c) Session authority over endowment fund matters: There is no provision in the Book of Order that restricts a session's actions on endowment fund matters; nor is there a provision that addresses the required composition of an endowment committee.

(2) Arrival Statement

This remedial case comes before this Commission on an appeal filed by Complainant Florence G. Kuipers (Appellant), a member of the Elkton Presbyterian Church, Elkton, VA, from a decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of the Mid-Atlantic (SPJC), dated March 3, 2005.

This Commission finds that the Commission has jurisdiction, Appellant has standing to file the appeal, the appeal papers are properly and timely filed, and the appeal states one or more grounds for appeal set forth in D-8.0105.

(3) Appearances

Florence G. Kuipers represented herself. Anne M. Ross appeared on behalf of the Session.

(4) History

On October 10, 1999, the Session of Elkton Presbyterian Church (Session) authorized a Finance and Stewardship Committee to develop a policy on endowment funds. On September 12, 2000, Appellant filed a complaint with the Permanent Judicial Commission of Shenandoah Presbytery (PPJC), alleging an irregularity in the Session's adoption of a resolution (Resolution) which established that endowment fund. At the September 21, 2000, meeting of Session, Appellant alleges, that she was "pressured" by Session members to resign from the Session. She did so and withdrew her complaint on September 22, 2000, after being informed that resignation precluded her ability to file a complaint. On August 10, 2003, after the Session amended the Resolution on July 14, 2003, Appellant filed a "Request to Act on a Delinquency" against the Session. The Session received her request on September 9, 2003, considered her complaint on November 11, 2003, and decided not to change its earlier decision on the matter. Thereafter, Appellant filed a complaint with the PPJC on November 30, 2003. Appellant alleged a "delinquency" in the adoption of Article 2 of the Endowment Fund Resolution, which named the Chairman of the Finance Committee as Chairman of the Endowment Committee.

The PPJC met in session on April 3, 2004, and on April 8, 2004, issued an order dismissing the appeal on two grounds: (1) the complaint was not timely filed, and (2) the complaint failed to state a claim upon which relief could be granted. The PPJC held that the Session acted within the scope of its authority in enacting the Resolution and that it would not "substitute its opinion as to the preferable forms of structures for the Endowment for that of the Session when it has been properly exercised."

Appellant appealed that decision to the SPJC on May 17, 2004. On November 4, 2004, the Moderator and Clerk of the SPJC ruled on the preliminary questions, as required in D-8.0301. The SPJC found that, while it had jurisdiction, Appellant had standing and the appeal papers were timely filed, the appeal did not state one or more grounds for appeal as set forth in D-8.0105. Appellant, on December 30, 2004, challenged this finding. At a hearing on March 3, 2005, the SPJC voted to sustain the decision of the Moderator and Clerk.

The present appeal, filed by Appellant on April 12, 2005, challenging the decision of the SPJC, was heard by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission (GAPJC) on August 5, 2005.

(5) Specifications of Error

This Commission's decision in this appeal turns on the preliminary question of whether the complaint states a claim upon which relief can be granted, as required by D-6.0305. The PPJC dismissed the case after conducting a hearing pursuant to a challenge by the Appellant. On appeal, the SPJC affirmed this determination. This Commission affirms the SPJC dismissal.¹

In determining whether a complaint states a claim upon which relief can be granted, the Commission has assumed the truth of facts alleged in the complaint (Hope v. Presbytery of San Francisco, Minutes 2004, p.363). This case centers on Session's actions regarding the establishment and oversight of an endowment fund and Appellant's dissatisfaction with these actions. The Book of Order gives a session authority and responsibility for the mission and government of its church including responsibility for church financial matters (G-10.0102 h, i, m and G-10.0401), and for the constitution of its committees (G-9.0403, G-9.0501a). There is no provision in the Book of Order that restricts a session's actions on endowment fund matters; nor is there a provision that addresses the required composition of an endowment committee. Thus, assuming that all of the allegations contained in the complaint are true, there is no relief that can be granted.

This Commission notes that after hearing arguments and evidence including testimony, the PPJC dismissed the case. A permanent judicial commission may not substitute its judgment for that of a lower governing body unless the decision being reviewed is contrary to an express provision of the Book of Order, arbitrary, unreasonable or clearly erroneous. (Simmons, et al. v. Presbytery of Suwannee, Minutes 1985, 11.067) The Commission has reviewed the Findings and Order of the PPJC and finds no reason to set them aside.

This Commission understands Appellant's concerns about financial checks and balances and internal financial controls. However, this Commission finds that the Session's actions met the requirements of G-10.0400 regarding church finances. If Appellant believes that the checks and balances provided in the Book of Order are inadequate, the recourse is to seek an amendment to the Book of Order.

The specifications of error before this Commission address broader substantive issues on the merits regarding session governance of financial matters rather than the threshold issue of whether the complaint states a claim upon which relief can be granted. For this reason, this Commission does not sustain any of the specifications of error.

Specification of Error Number 1: The SPJC erred in failing to find that the Endowment Fund Resolution was illegal because it was never brought before the congregation for review.

This specification of error is not sustained.

Specification of Error Number 2: The SPJC erred in failing to find that the Session committed an irregularity in adopting the Endowment Fund Resolution because the two reports submitted to the Session did not represent "Committee" recommendations.

This specification of error is not sustained.

Specification of Error Number 3: The SPJC erred in failing to find that the Session committed an obstruction of justice in "pressuring" her to resign from Session and withdraw her complaint.

This specification of error is not sustained.

This Commission notes that, as an active member of a congregation, Appellant did have standing to file a complaint even though she was no longer an active member of Session.

Specification of Error Number 4: The SPJC erred in failing to find that the Session committed an irregularity in adopting Article 2 of the Endowment Fund Resolution which failed to separate the powers and duties of the Endowment Committee from those of the Finance Committee.

This specification of error is not sustained.

Appellant has relied heavily on information and materials that she considers authoritative regarding the establishment of endowment funds. This Commission notes that such materials are advisory in nature only and do not have the authority of the Constitution.

¹ This Commission notes that the findings of the SPJC Moderator and Clerk on the preliminary questions indicate that they found in the negative as to D-8.0203d, i.e., "the appeal states one or more of the grounds for appeal set forth in D-8.0105." Appellant's appeal to the SPJC did, in fact, state two grounds for appeal as indicated in the determination by the Moderator and Clerk. This Commission does not view this as reversible error in view of the SPJC determination that Appellant failed to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. Moreover, Appellant has not presented this as a specification of error.

Specification of Error Number 5: The SPJC erred in failing to find that the Session committed an obstruction of justice in failing to appear at the PPJC hearing.

This specification of error is not sustained.

Specification of Error Number 6: The SPJC erred in finding that sessions have the constitutional power to “constitute committees that will work under them.”

This specification of error is not sustained

Specification of Error Number 7: The SPJC erred in concluding that committee members have equal voice and vote.

This specification of error is not sustained

(6) Decision and Order

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of the Mid-Atlantic is affirmed.

IT IS THEREFORE FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of the Mid-Atlantic report this decision to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Shenandoah Valley report this decision to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Clerk of Session of Elkton Presbyterian Church of Eklton, Virginia, report this Decision and Order to the Session at its next meeting, that the Session enter the full Decision and Order upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the Decision and Order be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly (D-8.0404f).

DECISION AND ORDER

Remedial Case 217-12

(1) Headnotes

(a) Property of a dissolving congregation: A dissolving congregation has the right to dispose of church property only as the presbytery directs. G-8.0401 grants the presbytery exclusive rights and responsibilities for dealing with the property of a dissolved church.

(b) Effective date of dissolution: The act of dissolution of a church is complete at the effective date stated in a presbytery resolution.

(c) Property held in trust: The principle that all property held by or for a particular church is held in trust for the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) applies to congregations and presbyteries, no matter which entity holds title to church property. (G-8.0201)

(d) Congregational meetings on property matters: Congregational meetings on property matters are not required for every matter having to do with property issues, but are limited to those matters enumerated in Chapters VII and VIII. (G-7.0304, G-8.0500)

(e) Lack of authority of a dissent or minority report: In a judicial decision, neither a dissent nor a minority report has binding authority.

(f) Presbytery business with non-members: Presbyteries and congregations are free to transact business with non-members and may take actions and pass resolutions that address their dealings with non-members. (G-15.0105)

(g) Standard of review: Factual determinations made by a trier of fact have a presumption of correctness and are not to be disturbed on appeal unless they are plainly wrong, without supporting evidence or manifestly unjust (Hardwick v. Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of North Carolina, Minutes, 1983, p.45).

(2) Arrival Statement

This remedial case comes to the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission (GAPJC) on appeal by the Chesterbrook Taiwanese Presbyterian Church (CTPC) from a decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of the Mid-Atlantic (SPJC) dated April 19, 2005. This Commission finds that it has jurisdiction, that the Appellant has standing to appeal, that the appeal was properly and timely filed, and that the appeal states one or more grounds for appeal under D-8.0105.

(3) Appearances

The following persons appeared on behalf of Appellant, Chesterbrook Taiwanese Presbyterian Church: Max Ko, Ying H. Shih, and Y.T. Hung . The Reverend David Shih, Moderator, and Chung Yao Kuo, Clerk of Session, of Chesterbrook Taiwanese Presbyterian Church were also present. Appellee, Presbytery of National Capital Presbytery, was represented by the following persons: Lynn Stanton-Hoyle, Gerald Hopkins, and James G.E. Williams. Richard McFail, Stated Clerk of the Presbytery, was also present.

(4) History

Chesterbrook Presbyterian Church (CPC) was a congregation of National Capital Presbytery (Presbytery), located in Falls Church, Fairfax County, Virginia on about 9 acres. The site is divided into three parcels: Parcel A of 3.4 acres, which contained the church building with parking and access to the street; Parcel B of .6 acres, which was a narrow strip of land on the northern boundary of the property, designed to provide access to the land at the rear; and Parcel C of 5 acres, a land-locked area at the rear of Parcel A. As early as 1974, Fairfax County records showed Parcel B as providing potential access to Parcel C.

As a diminishing and aging congregation, CPC began moving toward dissolution as a congregation. An “Exploratory Task Force” met on March 13, 2000, with the pastor and two elders of the Taiwanese Presbyterian Church of Northern Virginia (TPCNVA) to discuss the possibility of the latter using the building and land of the former, as TPCNVA had been meeting in a school building and had no facility of its own.

By September, 2000, Presbytery, through its Church Development Committee, began to discuss closure with CPC, and on September 17, the congregation of CPC voted to close with a tentative date of January 31, 2001. Throughout the remainder of 2000, committees of Presbytery worked with CPC, focusing on pastoral care and transition issues which would follow dissolution.

On October 8, 2000, TPCNVA’s Session met. In a letter dated October 9, 2000, from Elder Y. T. Hung, Clerk of Session of TPCNVA, to William Carter, the representative of CPC, Mr. Hung stated, “The Congregation and the Session express their deepest appreciation for the love and generosity of the Chesterbrook Presbyterian Church....[A]s a gift receiver, we think any additional request would be beyond the God’s grace to TPC. Therefore, TPC will go along with whatever the decision made by the CPC and with whatever CPC sees feasible.” Mr. Hung also suggested the need for language and exhibits to be precise concerning potential building of an assisted living facility on Parcel C and the impact of this proposed building on future plans for church expansion.

A congregational meeting of CPC was held on November 12, 2000 to approve the dissolution of the church, effective January 31, 2001, with the following resolution:

We accept the Session’s plan to deed the real property to National Capital Presbytery, Incorporated, with the provision that the building and grounds be given, at no cost, to the Taiwanese Presbyterian Church of Northern Virginia Congregation and to give Lewinsville Presbyterian Church the opportunity to determine whether or not an assisted living facility for low and moderate income persons can be constructed on the back portion of the Church property and to also explore the possibility of developing a home for the Family Respite Center.

On November 26, 2000, at a congregational meeting, TPCNVA voted to accept CPC’s plan, and to change the church name to “Chesterbrook Taiwanese Presbyterian Church.”

At the stated meeting of Presbytery on January 23, 2001, the Presbytery approved the dissolution resolution for CPC (effective January 31, 2001) and the name change for TPCNVA. The January 23, 2001 resolution included the following:

8. On February 1, 2001, the CTPC is authorized to use "Parcel A" and "Parcel B" property as their new church home with all responsibilities thereof. The Taiwanese Church, chartered in 1992 and a rapidly growing congregation, will move from its current worship site at Oakton Elementary School to "Parcel A." This move will allow them to continue to grow their ministry by now having their own church building. The Taiwanese Church shall maintain and make improvements to the property as necessary. Also, the Taiwanese Church shall be National Capital Presbytery, Inc.'s local representative for oversight of "Parcel C," with such representation to end upon any development of Parcel "C" anticipated in paragraph 12.

12. The Session of Lewinsville Presbyterian Church is requested to form a task force for exploring the use of undeveloped "Parcel C" as an Affordable Assisted Living Facility or a similar facility. Every effort shall be made to incorporate the Family Respite Center (currently located on "Parcel A") into the Affordable Assisted Living Facility. It is recognized that access to "Parcel C" will be by way of "Parcel B" or other access over a portion of "Parcel A." This task force shall report its build/no build decision to Presbytery's Business Advisory Committee no later than July 31, 2002, which is 18 months from dissolution of Chesterbrook Presbyterian Church. By mutual agreement, this time may be extended if needed.

The January 23, 2001 resolution also provided that the Presbytery address contractual issues with two not-for-profit tenant organizations using church facilities, and proceed with all legal arrangements for dealing with Parcel C, including a long-term lease of the property and access rights. CTPC moved to the property on February 1, 2001. Later in 2001, CPC transferred the title to all the church property (Parcels A, B, and C) to Presbytery.

The feasibility study for the assisted living facility on Parcel C began, and the deadline for completing the study was extended to March 1, 2004. During the period 2001-2004, many activities related to planning, zoning, and other government approvals for the assisted living facility were in progress. CTPC became concerned that the use of Parcel C and the location of the access road would impair its capacity to expand the building as the congregation grew. On February 17, 2004, Presbytery leadership sent a letter to all those of interest, acknowledging CTPC's concerns and stating a willingness to work together to solve the issues. Several discussions and communications to that end ensued.

On March 9, 2004, Presbytery Council met, considered motions concerning the disposition of the issues, but postponed action until a later date. Later that month, Presbytery voted to accept the project proposal for the assisted living facility, now named Chesterbrook Residences, Inc. (CRI). On April 20, 2004, a meeting was held with representatives of CTPC, Presbytery, CRI, and Lewinsville Church, which resulted in a first draft of a proposed resolution to address these concerns. This resolution was to be presented at Presbytery's stated meeting in May, 2004. At some point, CTPC ceased to participate in the discussions.

On May 10, 2004, a revised "Working Draft" of the resolution was sent by e-mail to CTPC representatives and the others participating in the drafting. The following day, Presbytery Council met to consider the draft. Though invited, representatives of CTPC did not attend.

Presbytery held its stated meeting on May 25, 2004 and the Council's recommended resolution was presented. Following a failed motion to postpone, Presbytery passed the resolution after considerable discussion. The May 25, 2004 resolution began as follows:

National Capital Presbytery recognizes that language in the Chesterbrook Presbyterian Church Dissolution Resolution which it approved on January 23, 2001, has led to confusion, distress and conflict. The presbytery, therefore, apologizes to its members and particularly to the members and leadership of CTPC, Lewinsville Presbyterian Church, Immanuel Presbyterian Church and Chesterbrook Residences, Inc (CRI). The Presbytery seeks grace and forgiveness as it moves forward.

In order to resolve differences which have arisen, underscore its commitment to the vitality and success of Chesterbrook Taiwanese Presbyterian Church and the proposed Chesterbrook Affordable Assisted Living Facility, and more clearly define its intentions, National Capital Presbytery hereby resolves, agrees, and acknowledges that:

(a) The Presbytery retains title to Parcels A, B, and C . . . and all the rights and responsibilities of a presbytery under the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (USA);

(b) With regard to Parcels A and B, National Capital Presbytery grants to Chesterbrook Taiwanese Presbyterian Church all of the rights and responsibilities of a particular church under the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (USA) [ex. G-8.0201, ff; G-10.0102, ff)

(i) with the understanding that an access road on Parcel B to Parcel C will occupy a portion of Parcel A in perpetuity and subject to an easement granted across Parcel A;

(ii) with the understanding that CTPC cedes its interest in Parcel B and agrees that the Presbytery shall retain all rights and responsibilities to Parcel B . . .

On July 6, 2004, CTPC filed a complaint with the SPJC concerning the actions of Presbytery on May 25, 2004. A stay of enforcement was requested by CTPC, but was not granted. Following a trial, SPJC issued a decision on April 29, 2005, which upheld the May 25, 2004 resolution, and ordered that congregational meetings should be held “in all future matters of this sort having to do with property issues . . .” An appeal was filed by CTPC with the GAPJC on June 2, 2005. A hearing on appeal was held February 10, 2006 by the GAPJC.

(5) Specifications of Error

CTPC’s specifications of error have been reworded or combined for purposes of clarity.

(a) Part I: Property of Dissolving Congregation

One specification of error suggests the question: “May a dissolving congregation direct disposition of church property?”

Specification of Error Number 3: SPJC erred in denying a particular church’s right of the disposition of its own property before it was formally dissolved by the Presbytery.

This specification of error is not sustained.

Specification of error number 3 refers to the “right” of a church to dispose of church property before being dissolved by Presbytery. CTPC contends that, because of the wishes expressed by CPC prior to its dissolution, CTPC had a greater interest in the church property from February 1, 2001 forward than Presbytery was willing to acknowledge.

The Book of Order is clear that a dissolving church, such as CPC, has the right to dispose of church property only as the presbytery directs. G-8.0401 grants Presbytery exclusive rights and responsibilities for dealing with the property of a dissolved church. SPJC correctly held that a dissolving congregation cannot dispose of church property by gift, contract or other means. Thus, CTPC could not acquire from CPC that which CPC had no right to transfer.

CTPC argued that the dissolution of CPC was not complete until the January 23, 2001 resolution was passed by Presbytery and a formal celebration occurred. However, G-8.0401 does not apply only after “formal dissolution” as CTPC defines it, i.e., after a final worship service. The process leading to the dissolution of a congregation, even in cases where the congregation seeks to be dissolved, takes substantial time, particularly when dealing with real property. The act of dissolution is complete at the effective date stated in a presbytery resolution, which in this case was January 31, 2001.

Moreover, even if CPC had not been formally dissolved before January 23, 2001, it could not have sold, leased, or otherwise encumbered church property without the written approval of Presbytery (G-8.0501). A presbytery has exclusive power to determine the use and disposition of church property in a case where the property ceases to be used for a particular church, as was the case with CPC (G-8.0301).

These three provisions of the Book of Order (G-8.0301, G-8.0401, G-8.0501) are consistent with the premise in G-8.0201 that “[a]ll property held by or for a particular church, a presbytery, a synod, the General Assembly, or the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) . . . is held in trust . . . for the use and benefit of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).” This principle applies to congregations and presbyteries, no matter which entity holds title to church property, and applies whether the property is being used for a particular church program, for investment or otherwise.

(b) Part II: Effect of CPC Resolution and January 23, 2001 Presbytery Resolution

Two specifications of error suggest the question: “What ‘rights’ did CTPC receive under the November 12, 2000 CPC resolution or the January 23, 2001 presbytery resolution?”

Specification of Error Number 4: SPJC erred in disregarding CTPC’s contractual right and the promise of Presbytery.

This specification of error is not sustained.

Specification of Error Number 5: SPJC erred in neglecting the common understanding of the Chesterbrook Dissolution Resolution of January 23, 2001, which resulted in denying CTPC’s right to the property.

This specification of error is not sustained.

The January 23, 2001 resolution granted “authorized use” to CTPC and required it to assume “all the responsibilities thereof.” This authorized use was limited by the “development of ‘Parcel C’ anticipated in paragraph 12.” That paragraph expressly “recognized that access to ‘Parcel C’ will be by way of ‘Parcel B’ or other access over a portion of ‘Parcel A’.” The difference in understanding between CTPC and Presbytery about the extent of CTPC’s rights in Parcels A and B under this language (including its right to object to the location of an easement) did not emerge until 2004 when Fairfax County officials determined that access to the assisted living facility would cross both Parcels A and B. In light of the language of paragraph 12 of the 2001 resolution, the SPJC correctly held that CTPC’s right to use Parcels A and B was subject to the placement of an easement over either Parcel A or B for purposes of access to Parcel C.

(c) Part III: Effect of 2004 Presbytery Resolution

Specification of error number 2 suggests the question: “Was the CTPC divested or deprived of property rights by the May 25, 2004 resolution of Presbytery?”

Specification of Error Number 2: SPJC erred in allowing a presbytery to use a resolution to dispose of a particular church’s property right that has been well settled without consent of the particular church.

This specification of error is not sustained.

After February 1, 2001, CTPC was authorized to use the church property. No right previously given to CTPC was taken away from it by the May 25, 2004 resolution. Rather, the May 25, 2004 resolution gave CTPC full rights and responsibilities for the church property under Chapter VIII of the Book of Order.

(d) Part IV: Necessity for Congregational Meeting

Specifications of error numbers 1, 7, and 8 suggest the question: “Was a meeting of the CTPC congregation required to give consent to the placing of easements in May 2004?”

Specification of Error Number 1: SPJC erred in making a decision which contradicted its own finding.

This specification of error is not sustained.

Specification of Error Number 7: SPJC agreed with CTPC’s position that the May 25, 2004 resolution required approval of the CTPC congregation. As Presbytery filed no appeal, the SPJC’s finding is final and CTPC’s plea should be granted.

This specification of error is not sustained.

Specification of Error Number 8: SPJC erred in failing to correct and prevent the irregularities and delinquencies of Presbytery, as required by D-2.0101.

This specification of error is not sustained.

In specification of error number 1, CTPC contends that SPJC correctly recognized that there should have been a meeting of CTPC congregation “to approve and accept” the May 25, 2004 resolution. CTPC further argues that SPJC then erred when it did not grant relief to it based on the fact that no such meeting occurred, even while suggesting that such meetings “should” occur “in all future matters of this sort having to do with property issues and congregations.”

Before May 25, 2004, CTPC had only been “authorized to use” Parcels A and B, modified by the possible future easements provided for in paragraph 12 of the resolution of January 23, 2001. That authority was not diminished by the relocation of the proposed access road easement at the direction of the Fairfax County officials. Yet SPJC’s recognition of the wisdom of holding a congregational meeting to discuss the effect of the new easement was reasonable in light of the pattern of miscommunication and misunderstanding shown in this case.

However, a requirement for such a meeting in “all future matters of this sort having to do with property issues and congregations of the Presbytery” goes too far. Congregational meetings are not required for every matter having to do with property issues. The Book of Order requires congregational meetings in the limited situations enumerated in Chapters VII and VIII. G-7.0304 states, “Business to be transacted at meetings of the congregation shall include . . . [m]atters related to buying, mortgaging, or selling real property (G-8.0500) . . .”

No business other than those items listed in G-7.0304a may be transacted at a congregational meeting. (G-7.0304b.) G-8.0501 notes that many property related transactions also require the written permission of presbytery:

A particular church shall not sell, mortgage, or otherwise encumber any of its real property and it shall not acquire real property subject to an encumbrance or condition without the written permission of the presbytery transmitted through the session of the particular church.⁸

SPJC's more expansive recommendation for congregational meetings is one that congregations and presbyteries may follow, but are not required to follow. Increasing the opportunities for communication and consensus, whether by congregational meetings, informational meetings, or correspondence, is desirable, even if not constitutionally mandated.

(e) Part V: Procedural Errors

Specifications of error numbers 6, 9 and 10 allege procedural errors by the SPJC.

Specification of Error Number 6: SPJC erred in using materials that were part of the process of reconciliation against the party who participated in the process.

This specification of error is not sustained.

This specification of error largely relies on a "Minority Report" in the SPJC decision, which concluded that the content of the May 25, 2004 resolution was "implicitly accepted by CTPC's participation and approval in drafts of the resolution as early as April 2004." CTPC, using a civil court standard, argues that SPJC made improper use of "materials" that were part of an offer of compromise. This civil court standard is not applicable in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)'s judicial process.

It should be noted that the designation "Minority Report" in the SPJC decision is not in common use in the ecclesiastical process of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), and should normally have been written as a dissent. Neither a dissent nor a minority report has binding authority.

Moreover, in answer to this specification, the record in this case does not demonstrate that CTPC approved or accepted the resolution before it was presented to Presbytery for debate and vote on May 25, 2004.

Specification of Error Number 9: SPJC erred in ruling that Presbytery's violation of its own Manual "does not rise to the level of constitutional error."

This specification of error is not sustained.

SPJC correctly determined that Presbytery's failure to include a copy of the May 25, 2004 resolution in the mailing that preceded the stated May 2004 Presbytery meeting did not rise to the level of constitutional error. (Hope, et al, v. Presbytery of San Francisco, Minutes, 2006, p.105)

Moreover, Presbytery's manual states: "Docket and Packet: The packet containing materials to be voted on will be mailed prior to each regular meeting." The manual does not state that all materials to be voted on will be mailed in advance.

Specification of Error Number 10: SPJC erred in allowing a non-member of Presbytery who is not subject to the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to be a party to the Presbytery Resolution.

This specification of error is not sustained.

Presbyteries and congregations are free to transact business with non-members and may take actions and pass resolutions that address their dealings with non-members. G-15.0105 states:

The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) will initiate and respond to approaches for conversation and common action with movements, organizations, and agencies of the business, educational, cultural, and civic communities that give promise of assistance toward accomplishing the mission of the Church in the world.

(f) Part VI: Factual Errors

Specification of Error Number 11: SPJC erred in disregarding the evidence admitted, and the undisputed facts and circumstances, which resulted in a denial of justice.

⁸ Written presbytery approval is also required if a congregation proposes to "lease its real property used for purposes of worship, or lease for more than five years any of its other real property . . ." (G-8.0502)

This specification of error is not sustained.

CTPC alleges that certain evidence was disregarded by SPJC, resulting in a denial of justice. That certain facts were not mentioned in SPJC’s decision does not mean they were not considered by SPJC. Moreover, factual determinations made by SPJC, as a trier of fact, have a presumption of correctness and are not to be disturbed on appeal unless they are plainly wrong, without supporting evidence or manifestly unjust (Hardwick v. Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of North Carolina, Minutes, 1983, p.45). CTPC has not met the burden articulated in Hardwick.

According to CTPC, the evidence shows that Presbytery acted contrary to the expressed intent of the parties with respect to the January 23, 2001 resolution and that Presbytery representatives were less than forthcoming with CTPC. The SPJC, as the trier of fact, did not find improper motives or dishonesty, but a profound breakdown in communication between CTPC and the Presbytery. CTPC’s quest for accountability and integrity reflects its commitment to our polity and deep respect for Presbytery. In seeking forgiveness, reconciliation and closure, Presbytery demonstrated its sensitivity to the means and manner by which it exercised its authority and power.

Church discipline is a power to be used for “building up the body of Christ, not for destroying it, for redeeming, not for punishing. It should be exercised as a dispensation of mercy and not of wrath so that the great ends of the Church may be achieved, that all children of God may be presented faultless in the day of Christ.” (D-1.0102) Although the ruling of SPJC is now affirmed, it is this Commission’s hope that this process has helped remove discord and division between CTPC and Presbytery.

(6) Order

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of the Mid-Atlantic be affirmed, with the clarification that the Constitution requires a congregational meeting on property matters only as specified in G-7.0304, G-8.0501, and G-8.0502.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of the Mid-Atlantic report this Decision and Order to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full Decision and Order upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the Decision and Order be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the National Capital Presbytery report this Decision and Order to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full Decision and Order upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the Decision and Order be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Clerk of Session of Chesterbrook Taiwanese Presbyterian Church report this Decision and Order to the Session at its next meeting, that the Session enter the full Decision and Order upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the Decision and Order be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

Session of First Presbyterian Church, Tecumseh, Michigan,)	Remedial Case 217-13 Respondent/Appellant. -----)

(1) Headnotes

(a) Inactive member’s request for restoration to the active roll: At a minimum, a session must convene to consider an inactive member’s request for restoration to the active roll.

(b) Timeliness of filing a remedial complaint: A complaint filed within ninety days of the Session's response to an inactive member's request for restoration to the active roll is timely filed within the provisions of D-6.0202a.

(c) Session's discretion in determining active members: In determining active membership, a session has broad discretion, but its exercise of that discretion is limited by G-5.0202, G-10.0102b and s, and G-10.0302a(2)(a).

(d) Standard of review: A permanent judicial commission shall not substitute its judgment for that of a session absent a showing that the session did not act "reasonably, responsibly, and deliberately within the Constitution of the church." (Simmons v. Presbytery of Suwannee, Minutes, 1985, p.114.)

(2) Arrival Statement

This remedial case comes to the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission (GAPJC) on appeal filed by Respondent/Appellant Session of First Presbyterian Church of Tecumseh, Michigan, (Session) from a decision by the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of the Covenant (SPJC) dated July 14, 2005. This Commission finds that it has jurisdiction, that Session has standing to appeal, that the appeal was properly and timely filed, and that the appeal states one or more grounds for appeal under D-8.0105.

(3) Appearances

John R. Frye, Complainant/Appellee (Frye), was represented by Edward H. Koster; Session was represented by Gregory Grover and William Wise.

(4) History

On March 28, 2002, Session took action to place John and Marcia Frye on the roll of inactive church members. The Fries were notified of this decision by letter from Session on April 17, 2002.

On March 31, 2004, Frye requested by letter to Session that it reverse the allegedly improper action taken in April, 2002, and restore the Fries to active membership.

Frye received an unsigned letter dated April 13, 2004, purportedly from Session, stating that his request fell under the provisions of D-2.0202, and therefore it was not timely.

At its meeting on April 22, 2004, Session removed the Fries from the membership roll.

On June 22, 2004, Frye filed a remedial complaint with the Presbytery of Maumee Valley, complaining that in its letter of April 13, 2004, the Session failed to reinstate Frye to the active roll.

On September 4, 2004, four members of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Presbytery of Maumee Valley (PPJC) ruled that Frye had no standing to file the complaint because he was no longer a member of the church against which the complaint was directed. No other findings were made. On October 21, 2004, counsel for Frye requested a full PPJC hearing. Following a hearing on March 15, 2005, the PPJC ruled that it had jurisdiction; that Frye did have standing; that the complaint stated a claim on which relief could be granted; but that the complaint was not timely filed, because all aspects of the complaint related only to the Session action of March 28, 2002.

On April 6, 2005, Frye appealed the PPJC decision to the SPJC. Following a hearing on July 14, 2005, SPJC sustained in part the PPJC decision, concluding that the complaint was timely filed only with regard to Session's April 13, 2004 response or failure to respond to Frye's request to be restored to the active roll.

Session filed the present appeal and a request for stay of enforcement on August 26, 2005. The request for stay was granted. The GAPJC heard the appeal on February 10, 2005.

(5) Specification of Error

Specification of Error: The Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of the Covenant erred in finding that the complaint was timely filed.

The specification of error is not sustained.

The complaint was timely filed with respect to the Session’s response or failure to respond to Frye’s letter of March 31, 2004. According to the present record, Session failed to meet to consider Frye’s request to be restored to active membership. Instead, in an unsigned letter purportedly from Session dated April 13, 2004, Frye’s request was summarily rejected as untimely. On June 22, 2004, Frye filed a complaint with the PPJC alleging a delinquency in the issuance of the April 13, 2004, letter. This complaint was initiated within ninety days of Frye’s receipt of the unsigned letter, and therefore within the ninety-day time limit prescribed in D-6.0202a. On remand, the PPJC should address whether Session’s process for considering Frye’s request to be restored to the active roll was appropriate.

On remand it will also be the PPJC’s task to determine what, if any, relief is appropriate. The Book of Order grants a session “the responsibility and power to receive members”

(G-10.0102b), to keep rolls (G-10.0102s), and to determine whether a person is “active in the church’s work and worship” (G-10.0302a(2)(a)). A session’s exercise of its discretion in matters concerning membership is broad, and a permanent judicial commission shall not substitute its judgment for that of a session absent a showing that the session did not act “reasonably, responsibly, and deliberately within the Constitution of the church.” (Simmons v. Presbytery of Suwannee, Minutes 1985, p.114). Constitutional bounds include the limitations that the “conditions of active membership are to be “consistent with the order and confessions of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)” (G-5.0202) and that “membership shall not be denied to any person because of race, economic or social circumstances, or any other reason not related to profession of faith” (G-10.0102b).

(6) Decision and Order

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Presbytery of Maumee Valley convene and conduct a trial limited to an examination of the Session’s process in responding or failing to respond to Frye’s request of March 31, 2004, to be restored to the active roll of the First Presbyterian Church of Tecumseh, Michigan.

The Presbytery Permanent Judicial Commission shall convene the trial within ninety days of this decision.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of the Covenant report this decision to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full Decision and Order upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the Decision and Order be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Maumee Valley report this Decision and Order to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full Decision and Order upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the Decision and Order be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Clerk of Session of First Presbyterian Church, Tecumseh, Michigan report this Decision and Order to the Session at its first meeting after receipt, that the Session enter the full Decision and Order upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing the entry of the Decision and Order be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

This remedial case came before this Commission on a Complaint of original jurisdiction filed by the Complainant, The Session of the Concord Liberty Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), against The Office of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.); The Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity and Purity of the Church to the 217th General Assembly (2006), a Committee of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.); and Clifton Kirkpatrick, Stated Clerk of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), dated November 18, 2005, and filed with the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) on November 21, 2005. Respondents filed an Answer to the Complaint and a Motion to Dismiss the Statement of Complaint on December 16, 2005.

The Executive Committee of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the General Assembly issued a Preliminary Order and Order for Dismissal on December 19, 2005. There has been no request by the Complainant to petition the full Permanent Judicial Commission for a hearing on the Order for Dismissal on jurisdictional grounds.

The General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission finds that the Commission has jurisdiction, that the Complainant has standing to file the Complaint, and that the Complaint was properly and timely filed. The Commission finds, however, that the Complaint fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. The report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity and Purity is only a recommendation to the 217th General Assembly (2006), and has no force or effect without further consideration and action by the General Assembly. Therefore, the recommendations proposed in that report, which the Complaint challenges as “irregularities,” do not constitute “actions” that are subject to remedial attack at this time. See D-2.0202a.

The Permanent Judicial Commission dismisses the Complaint in the above-captioned matter on the grounds that the Complaint fails to state a claim upon which relief can be granted.

Dated the 12th day of February, 2006.

B. Governing Bodies Statements of Compliance with General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission Decisions

Standing Rule M.2.b.(4) requires that when a decision of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission contains an order directed to another governing body, the Stated Clerk report to the General Assembly a statement of the governing body’s compliance. Below is a report of the statements of compliance received by the Stated Clerk from the governing bodies for cases decided by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission during the years 2004–2006.

1. 216-4A, 216-4B, 216-4C, 216-4D, Carl James Sohn v. Hanmi Presbytery

The following orders were entered by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission:

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that this matter be dismissed.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, in this matter only, that because the Second Amended Preliminary Order led the parties to believe that briefing and a hearing on the jurisdictional questions would be held before the full Commission, the Commission hereby gives the parties leave to challenge this order of dismissal and to request a jurisdictional hearing should either party so desire.

Case dismissed—no compliance required.

2. 216-10, Session of Serone Church, Formerly Known as Korean Independent Presbyterian Church, v. Carl James Sohn

The following orders were entered by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission:

IT IS ORDERED, that the appeal be dismissed.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of Southern California and Hawaii report this decision to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Stated Clerk of the Hanmi Presbytery report this decision to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Clerk of Session of Serone Church report this decision to the Session at its first meeting after receipt, that the Session enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

This decision was reported at the Synod of Southern California and Hawaii stated meeting on October 28, 2004, and Presbytery of Hanmi called meeting on July 27, 2004. The Synod of Southern California and Hawaii has assumed original jurisdiction over Serone Church and an administrative commission is in place until December 31, 2007; therefore, all correspondence has been made to and through that administrative commission.

3. 216-11, Session of Serone Church, Formerly Known as Korean Independent Presbyterian Church v. Jae Eun Sohn

The following orders were entered by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission:

IT IS ORDERED, that the appeal be dismissed.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of Southern California and Hawaii report this decision to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Stated Clerk of the Hanmi Presbytery report this decision to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Clerk of Session of Serone Church report this decision to the Session at its first meeting after receipt, that the Session enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

This decision was reported at the Synod of Southern California and Hawaii stated meeting on October 28, 2004, and Presbytery of Hanmi called meeting on July 27, 2004.

4. 216-12, Session of Serone Church, Formerly Known as Korean Independent Presbyterian Church v. Shin Sil Park

The following orders were entered by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission:

IT IS ORDERED, that the appeal be dismissed.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of Southern California and Hawaii report this decision to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Stated Clerk of the Hanmi Presbytery report this decision to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Clerk of Session of Serone Church report this decision to the Session at its first meeting after receipt, that the Session enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

This decision was reported at the Synod of Southern California and Hawaii stated meeting on October 28, 2004, and Presbytery of Hanmi called meeting on July 27, 2004.

5. 216-14, Carl James Sohn and Hang Mo Koo v. Session of Serone Church (Formerly Known as Korean Independent Presbyterian Church)

The following orders were entered by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission:

This Commission orders that the appeal in this remedial case be dismissed as moot.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of Southern California and Hawaii report this decision to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Stated Clerk of the Hanmi Presbytery report this decision to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Clerk of Session of Serone Church report this decision to the Session at its first meeting after receipt, that the Session enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

This decision was reported at the Synod of Southern California and Hawaii stated meeting on October 28, 2004 and the Presbytery of Hanmi called meeting on July 27, 2004.

6. 216-16, Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), by the Presbytery of Cincinnati, v. A. Stephen Van Kuiken

The following orders were entered by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission:

IT IS ORDERED, that the appeal be dismissed.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of the Covenant report this decision to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Cincinnati report this decision to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

The decision was reported at the Presbytery of Cincinnati meeting on July 13, 2004.

7. 217-1 (Formerly 216-13), Glenda Hope, Lynne Reade, Jerrold Jayne, David M. Lew, Cynthia Joe, David Soohoo, Mildred E. Kilgore, Katherine Reyes, Jeanne Choy Tate, Evangeline L. Hermanson, Robert F. Hermanson, and Paul Watermulder, v. Presbytery of San Francisco

The following orders were entered by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission:

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of the Pacific to approve the removal of the candidate from the roll of candidates of the Presbytery of San Francisco is affirmed.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that in light of the many serious errors in the conduct of this trial, the Synod of the Pacific Permanent Judicial Commission shall receive training and guidance no later than February 28, 2005, in the proper conduct of trials and hearings from the Office of the General Assembly along with available members of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission; a report of this training shall be made to this Commission as well as to the Synod.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of the Pacific report this decision to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of San Francisco report this decision to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

The decision was reported at the Synod of the Pacific meeting on October 7, 2004, and the Presbytery of San Francisco meeting on November 11, 2004. The manager of judicial process and social witness in the Department of Constitutional Services, Office of the General Assembly, provided training to the Synod of the Pacific Permanent Judicial Commission on January 21 & 22, 2005, and March 25 & 25, 2006.

8. 217-2, A. Kirk Johnston, Laurie Johnston, and Session of First United Presbyterian Church, Paola, Kansas, v. Heartland Presbytery

The following orders were entered by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission:

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED, that the decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of Mid America is hereby affirmed.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Clerk of Session of First United Presbyterian Church of Paola, Kansas, report this Decision and Order to the Session at its first meeting, that the Session enter the full Decision and Order upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the Decision and Order be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly (D-8.0404f).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Stated Clerk of Heartland Presbytery report this Decision and Order to the Presbytery at its first meeting, that the Presbytery enter the full Decision and Order upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the Decision and Order be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly (D-8.0404f).

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED, that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of Mid America report this Decision and Order to the Synod at its first meeting, that the Synod enter the full Decision and Order upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the Decision and Order be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly (D-8.0404f).

The decision was reported at the Synod of Mid-America meeting on February 25, 2006, the Heartland Presbytery meeting on November 16, 2004, and the First Presbyterian Church Session meeting on November 15, 2004.

9. 217-3, The Presbytery of Baltimore v. the Synod of the Mid-Atlantic

The following order was entered by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission:

05 ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON CHURCH POLITY

The Complaint of the Presbytery of Baltimore will be dismissed upon receipt of a copy of the official minutes of the Synod of the Mid-Atlantic showing that the complained of action has been rescinded.

The Synod of the Mid-Atlantic has advised the Presbytery of Baltimore that at its stated meeting, July 14–16, 2004, it rescinded the action stated above, which is the subject of the complaint of the Presbytery of Baltimore.

10. 217-4, Christopher Pae v. Hanmi Presbytery

The following order was entered by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission:

IT IS ORDERED, that the Petition is denied.

Case dismissed. No compliance required.

11. 217-5, Second Presbyterian Church of Tulsa, Oklahoma v. Eastern Oklahoma Presbytery

The following decision was entered by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission:

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of the Sun is affirmed.

FURTHER, in light of the long and faithful ministry of Second Presbyterian Church, Tulsa, Presbytery is encouraged to implement its decision to hold a Service of Celebration for mission and ministry of the church, as appropriate.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of the Sun report this decision to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Eastern Oklahoma Presbytery report this decision to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

This decision was reported at the Synod of the Sun meeting April 30, 2005, and the Eastern Oklahoma Presbytery stated meeting on June 3, 2005.

12. 217-6, Jeffrey K. Raines v. the Session of Miami Shores Presbyterian Church

The following decision was entered by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission:

IT IS ORDERED that the decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of South Atlantic is reversed, and this case is remanded to the Presbytery of Tropical Florida Permanent Judicial Commission for trial.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Clerk of Session of Miami Shores Presbyterian Church, Miami Shores, Florida, the Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Tropical Florida, and the Stated Clerk of the Synod of the South Atlantic, each read this Order of Dismissal at their first meeting following receipt of this Order; that the Session, Presbytery, and Synod enter the full Order of Dismissal upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the Order of Dismissal be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly. (D-8.0404f, D-13.0404f)

This decision was reported at the Synod of the South Atlantic meeting on September 7, 2005, the Presbytery of Tropical Florida meeting on February 12, 2005, and the Miami Shores Presbyterian Church Session meeting on February 19, 2005.

13. 217-7, Parker T. Williamson v. the Presbytery of Western North Carolina

The following decision was entered by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of Mid-Atlantic ordering that the Presbytery take no further action on validation of Williamson's ministry for one year be reversed.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Synod decision on formulating a reconciliation plan be modified to read as follows: "The Presbytery of Western North Carolina formulate a plan to implement a Presbytery-wide process of reconciliation concerning its relationship with Parker T. Williamson, and that it consult with Parker T. Williamson in the formulation."

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that Presbytery develop, by January 31, 2006, separate written criteria for validation of ministries within its bounds as specified in G-11.0403.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of the Mid-Atlantic report this decision to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Western North Carolina report this decision to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

This decision was reported at the Synod of Mid-Atlantic meeting on Oct. 27, 2005, and the Presbytery of Western North Carolina meeting on April 26, 2005. The Presbytery of Western North Carolina approved a written policy for validated ministries on July 26, 2005.

14. 217-8, Dana Jackson v. Session of Cordova Presbyterian Church, Lakeland Tennessee, and Presbytery of Memphis

The following decision was entered by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission:

IT IS ORDERED that the appeal in this matter be dismissed for lack of jurisdiction.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that, pursuant to the provisions of G-9.0408, the Synod consider whether a special administrative review of the Presbytery of Memphis regarding the Presbytery's handling of the accusations of misconduct and delinquency filed by Jackson and of Jackson's letter complaint of October 27, 2003, is necessary.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Clerk of Session of Cordova Presbyterian Church, Lakeland, Tennessee, the Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Memphis, and the Stated Clerk of the Synod of Living Waters each read this Order of Dismissal at their first meeting following receipt of this Order; that the Session, Presbytery, and Synod enter the full Order of Dismissal upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the Order of Dismissal be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly. (D-8.0404f, D-13.0404f)

This decision was reported at the Synod of Living Waters meeting on January 30, 2006, the Presbytery of Mid-South (Memphis) meeting on May 10, 2005, and the Cordova Presbyterian Church Session meeting on March 28, 2005. The Office of the General Assembly was notified on March 6, 2006, that the Synod of Living Waters reviewed the information in this matter and found no reason to warrant or consider a special administrative review.

15. 217-9, Synod of the Northeast, Presbytery of Southeastern Illinois, Presbytery of Northern New England, Session of First Presbyterian Church of Hoopston, Illinois, and Session of Presbyterian Church of Paris, Illinois v. The Board of Pensions of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)

The following decision was entered by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission:

Following negotiations between the parties to this case, the parties executed a Stipulation of Settlement resolving this matter on dates between June 8, 2005, and June 24, 2005. The Board of Directors of Respondent approved the Stipulation of Settlement on July 16, 2005. Accordingly, the Complaints in this matter stand withdrawn, and the matter is dismissed.

Case dismissed. No compliance required.

16. 217-10, Jack C. Volkens v. Presbytery of Wabash Valley

The following decision was entered by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission:

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of Lincoln Trails is affirmed.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that in light of the many serious errors in the conduct of the investigation and hearings in the disciplinary cases against Appellant, the Presbytery of Wabash Valley Permanent Judicial Commission and the General Presbyter and Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Wabash Valley shall receive training and guidance no later than February 28, 2006, in the proper conduct of investigations, trials and hearings by the Office of the General Assembly along with available former members of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission; a report of this training shall be made to this Commission as well as to the Synod.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of Lincoln Trails report this decision to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Wabash Valley report this decision to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

This decision was reported at the Synod of Lincoln Trails meeting on October 14, 2005, and the Presbytery of Wabash Valley meeting on September 24, 2005. The manager of judicial process in the Department of Constitutional Services, Office of the General Assembly, provided training to Wabash Valley Presbytery staff and permanent judicial commission on November 15–16, 2005.

17. 217-11, Florence G. Kuipers v. Session of the Elkton Presbyterian Church

The following decision was entered by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission:

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the decision of the Permanent Judicial Commission of the Synod of the Mid-Atlantic is affirmed.

05 ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON CHURCH POLITY

IT IS THEREFORE FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Synod of the Mid-Atlantic report this decision to the Synod at its first meeting after receipt, that the Synod enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Stated Clerk of the Presbytery of Shenandoah Valley report this decision to the Presbytery at its first meeting after receipt, that the Presbytery enter the full decision upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the decision be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the Clerk of Session of Elkton Presbyterian Church of Elkton, Virginia, report this Decision and Order to the Session at its next meeting, that the Session enter the full Decision and Order upon its minutes, and that an excerpt from those minutes showing entry of the Decision and Order be sent to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly (D-8.0404f).

This decision was reported at the Synod of the Mid-Atlantic meeting on Oct. 27, 2005, the Shenandoah Valley Presbytery meeting on October 25, 2005, and the Elkton Presbyterian Church session meeting on September 13, 2005.

Item 06-01

[The assembly approved Item 06-01, Recommendations 1.–3. See p. 28.]

1. The Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) strongly encourage

a. every member of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to witness to the church’s visible oneness, to avoid division into separate denominations that obscure our community in Christ, and to live in harmony with other members of this denomination, so that we may with one voice together glorify God in Jesus Christ, by the power of the Holy Spirit; and

b. all sessions, congregations, presbyteries, and synods to renew and strengthen their covenanted partnership with one another and with the General Assembly.

Rationale

The task force believes that the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is called to hold together in one body. We do not deny that differences in the church are deep and important. Even in our small task force, we are far apart on some issues despite intense engagement together in discernment over nearly four years. At the same time, both in our own fellowship and in the church whose diversity we were chosen to represent, we have discovered more agreement than disagreement. Core convictions about the gospel draw Presbyterians together. The task force found it possible to state these core convictions in one voice. Our gratitude and joy for the privilege of confessing the faith together convince us that the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) must not let its differences pull it apart. Each of us on the task force still thinks that some positions others among us hold are incorrect, even damaging to the church and the clarity of its message. Yet we have come to respect the integrity with which theological views different from our own are held, and we have seen that many others in the church have the same capacity to perceive the biblical basis and Christian credibility of other perspectives.

Therefore, the task force has concluded that, despite disagreements, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) should make every effort to prevent schism. What protections are there against bitter division? The task force, diverse in its makeup, has gained some practical wisdom about what it required for unity while important differences remain. Our pattern of life together, our experiences of the results of sustained study and regular worship, and our review of history and the principles of polity have convinced us that there are Presbyterian traditions and habits, some of which have been underutilized, that may enable the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) not only to avoid a division, but to grow closer in Christ as its members struggle together to live out the gospel. The following recommendations, which are means to this end, commend the use of the resources we have discovered to the whole church.

2. The Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) urge governing bodies, congregations, and other groups of Presbyterians to follow the example of the task force and other groups that, in the face of difficult issues, have engaged in processes of intensive discernment through worship, community building, study, and collaborative work.

Rationale

The task force was directed to devise “an instrument and a process” by which means the church can discern and discuss matters that unite and divide it. By the grace of God and with the Spirit’s help, the task force grew into a Christian community. We also discovered that we were not unique, that numerous groups in the church were also seeking mutual understanding, using the disciplines of study, sharing of joys and sorrows, and prayer that paved the way. We commend to the church the methods that the task force and others have used to pave the way to discernment: deep reflection on Scripture; serious study of basic theological doctrines; intensive review of the history of the church, the currents of conviction that created and resolved conflicts, and the practical wisdom it has gained from its experience over time; regular prayer and worship; use of texts written from a variety of perspectives as an introduction to the discussion of potentially divisive issues; and work together toward important goals. Taken together, these disciplines form part of the “instrument and process” the task force commends to the church.

To assist other groups that want to use methods the task force employed, discussion resources that helped us shape our thinking are on our Web site: www.pcusa.org/peaceunitypurity/. In addition to educational resources produced by the task force, a complete bibliography of materials we have read is available (www.pcusa.org/peaceunitypurity/, look under Resources). Before June 2006, we will publish curricular materials that help church leaders, members, and groups make use of the educational resources we have prepared or used ourselves.

The intent of this recommendation, however, is to invite the whole church to participate in a season of discernment, not to mandate any particular format or approach. The task force resources may be helpful starting points. We urge others to share the plans and materials they have used, and we encourage all who decide to pursue mutual understanding to bring all the imagination and creativity they can muster to the process.

3. The Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) commend for study the Theological Reflection that heads the task force report (see lines 35–260).

Rationale

The task force was directed to lead the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) in “spiritual discernment of our Christian identity in and for the 21st century.” We began our discernment process by studying core doctrines of the Christian faith. Toward the end of our time together, as we began to draft this report, we summarized what we have come together to believe about who we are called to be as Presbyterian Christians facing an uncertain, challenging future. That summary, the Theological Reflection that begins this report, affirms biblical faith, foundational Christian and Reformed teachings, and helpful ways that contemporary believers express the faith in a world hungering for meaning and truth.

The Theological Reflection is not, however, intended to be an official doctrinal statement of the church, much less a new confession of faith. It is the work of one group whose members were chosen, as we have said, not because we are experts but because we are typical of the range of backgrounds and views of church leaders and members. The fact that the task force, in all its diversity, has been able to agree on so much will, we hope, be an encouragement to the church. What we hold in common is far greater than those things that divide us. Many readers of the Theological Reflection will want to restate portions of it or add to it. We encourage them to do so. We urge that the Theological Reflection be studied, not as a finished or perfect product, but as a starting point for other groups that seek the experience, which we have found so valuable, of grappling with basic theological issues in the company of those who bring different perspectives. Listening to how our presumed opponents understand God, Jesus Christ, the work of the Spirit, the mission of the church, and other centrally important features of the faith has done more to deepen our discernment and mutual understanding than any other activity. Such theological searching, we believe, should be an early step in any process of discernment meant to foster purity, unity, and peace.

[The assembly approved Item 06-01, Recommendation 4., with amendment. See p. 28.]

4. The Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) direct the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, and urge those who plan and moderate meetings of other governing bodies, to explore the use of alternative forms of discernment ~~and~~ [preliminary to] decision-making ~~[as a complement to parliamentary procedure]~~, especially in dealing with potentially divisive issues.

Rationale

The other element of “an instrument and process” the task force commends to the church is the wide variety of processes of discernment and communal decision-making the task force used in its deliberations. These processes are alternatives to the mode of debate, in which opposing sides emphasize the strength of their own position and the weaknesses of the other. In discernment, members of the body work together to generate and weigh options. Advocacy is complemented by inquiry. This can lead to cohesion in the body as well as discernment of the will of Christ. These methods can be used under Robert’s Rules of Order [the primary framework for decision-making in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)] in modes such as “committee of the whole” before proceeding to a vote. The alternative approaches that were most effective for the task force as it sought insight, understanding, and cohesion in Christ are described in detail in “Discernment and Decision-Making,” one of the discussion resources that can be found on our Web site (www.pcusa.org/peaceunitypurity/), in video resources the task force produced, and in additional resources posted on our Web site.

The task force, having gained so much from these approaches and methods, strongly commends them to the church. Such methods are easily integrated into the proceedings of small groups like the task force. They also can be used by larger decision-making groups. In the resources noted above, examples are provided of how all deliberative bodies, including large assemblies, can integrate some of these alternative means of discernment into their life and work.

[The assembly approved Item 06-01, Recommendations 5.–7. with amendment and with comment. See pp. 28–29.]

5. The Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) approve the following authoritative interpretation of section G-6.0108 of the Book of Order:

a. The Book of Confessions and the Form of Government of the Book of Order set forth the scriptural and constitutional standards for ordination and installation.

b. These standards are determined by the whole church, after the careful study of Scripture and theology, solely by the constitutional process of approval by the General Assembly with the approval of the presbyteries. These standards may be interpreted by the General Assembly and its Permanent Judicial Commission.

c. Ordaining and installing bodies, acting as corporate expressions of the church, have the responsibility to determine their membership by applying these standards to those elected to office. These determinations include:

(1) Whether a candidate being examined for ordination and/or installation as elder, deacon, or minister of Word and Sacrament has departed from scriptural and constitutional standards for fitness for office,

(2) Whether any departure constitutes a failure to adhere to the essentials of Reformed faith and polity under G-6.0108 of the Book of Order, thus barring the candidate from ordination and/or installation.

d. Whether the examination and ordination and installation decision comply with the Constitution of the PC(USA), and whether the ordaining/installing body has conducted its examination reasonably, responsibly, prayerfully, and deliberately in deciding to ordain a candidate for church office is subject to review by higher governing bodies.

e. All parties should endeavor to outdo one another in honoring one another's decisions, according the presumption of wisdom to ordaining/installing bodies in examining candidates and to the General Assembly, with presbyteries' approval, in setting standards.

Rationale

The most intractable conflicts in the Presbyterian church often result in disputes over ordination. Therefore, the task force recommends this authoritative interpretation, which clarifies ordination procedures by emphasizing principles that are, we believe, closer to Presbyterian tradition than some of our current practices.

If adopted, this authoritative interpretation would restore a greater degree of both rigor and flexibility in ordination decisions. The authoritative interpretation would accomplish this by clarifying provisions of G-6.0108 that stem from long-established principles of Presbyterian polity:

1. Standards for ordination are determined by the whole church by constitutional process. Acting on their own, local governing bodies cannot set their own standards or set aside the church's standards.

2. Ordaining and installing bodies are empowered and duty-bound to apply the church's standards and to determine the fitness for office of those elected to office. This responsibility includes determining, on a case-by-case basis, whether officers-elect adhere to essential and necessary articles of doctrine, discipline, and government.

3. Ordaining/installing bodies and higher governing bodies are partners in the ordination process. Higher governing bodies oversee the decisions of lower ones. Ordaining and installing bodies determine fitness for office. Partnership requires mutual respect of each other's decisions.

Why is an authoritative interpretation needed?

The function of an authoritative interpretation is to clarify potentially ambiguous words or phrases in the Book of Order. (See line 1243.)

Section G-6.0108 was added to the Book of Order in 1983. It requires that all candidates for office adhere to the essentials of Reformed faith and polity (G-6.0108a, sentence one) as expressed in The Book of Confessions and the Form of Government. Ordaining bodies may not dispense with the church's standards or promulgate their own. Section G-6.0108 also requires the application of the standards with integrity. It ensures freedom of conscience in interpretation of Scripture within certain bounds, requires ordaining/installing bodies to determine whether there is a "serious departure" from standards (G-6.0108a, sentence two), and makes an important distinction between "standards" and "essentials."

Standards are aspirational in character. No one lives up to them perfectly (for this reason, G-6.0108 permits "departures" from standards that are not deemed essential). Essentials, by the terms of G-6.0108b (third sentence), are those matters of faith and polity that the officer-elect's governing body discerns are indispensable for ordained service. Essential doctrines are those that are required for a person's beliefs to fall within the bounds of Reformed understandings of Christian faith.

Essentials of polity are those that are required for a person's ordained service to fall within the bounds of Reformed understandings of church governance. Essential practices are those that are required for a person's life to fall within the bounds of Reformed understandings of Christian discipleship.

In recent years, the relationship between G-6.0108 and other Book of Order sections on ordination has become unclear. Some ordaining/installing bodies have maintained that the Constitution gives them the right to overlook or dispense with certain churchwide standards. Others have considered adopting their own version or distillation of essential standards, to be applied to all officers-elect. Some interpreters have insisted that some provisions of the Constitution, such as those that govern sexual behavior, supersede the right of ordaining and installing bodies to determine fitness for ordination in all cases.

This authoritative interpretation addresses all these points of confusion, by reaffirming the wisdom in G-6.0108, as it holds together key historical and theological principles—the need for the establishment of standards by the whole church and the duty of ordaining and installing bodies to apply those standards in determining fitness for office and compliance with essentials. If the authoritative interpretation clarifies current confusions about ordination and installation, it will, we believe, contribute to the peace, unity, and purity of the church.

What is new or different about the proposed authoritative interpretation?

No elements of the proposed authoritative interpretation are new. In fact, both G-6.0108 and this interpretation represent a reemphasis of traditional principles that, as we demonstrated in the previous section, have been held in constructive balance and tension in the past.

- The power of the whole church to set standards is affirmed. This power was first conferred in 1729, when the General Synod adopted the Westminster standards as the confessional basis for all ministers. The principle established then and confirmed in this authoritative interpretation do not permit the kind of “local option” arrangements that some have proposed, in which each ordaining and installing body sets its own standards. Such a procedure would be new, and it would be un-Presbyterian.

- The authoritative interpretation also emphasizes the traditional respective responsibilities of various persons and bodies. Officers-elect have the duty to conform to essentials of faith and polity and the right to freedom of conscience within bounds. Ordaining and installing bodies have the duty to apply standards and the right to discern which are essential for ordained service. These two principles were also established in 1729, when ministers were given the opportunity to dissent from articles of the Westminster standards (“declare a scruple” was the language of the time) and ordaining bodies were given the right to determine whether the “scrupled” article was an essential tenet.

- The authoritative interpretation emphasizes as well the power of higher governing bodies to review ordination and installation decisions if they are challenged, determining whether examinations were lawfully and fairly conducted and whether the matter of essentials was adequately grappled with. This, too, is a tradition of Presbyterian polity, dating from the adoption of a constitution and the establishment of the General Assembly in 1789.

By emphasizing traditional principles, the authoritative interpretation might, however, introduce at least two changes in current practices of ordination.

- Though current practices vary from session to session and presbytery to presbytery, it is often reported that examinations lack rigor by not fully investigating the scope of each officer-elect's beliefs, practices, gifts, willingness to uphold the governance of the church, and scruples. The authoritative interpretation lifts up the obligation of the ordaining or installing body to gain the broadest visions of each officer-elect's faith, manner of life, and promise as it applies standards and makes determinations about essentials.

- The authoritative interpretation also lifts up a feature of G-6.0108 that is grounded in history but has fallen out of current practice. Section G-6.0108 puts “faith and polity”—belief and behavior—on an equal footing, as they were in 1729, when scruples were permitted in matters of “doctrine, discipline and government.” Over time, an imbalance has developed, with flexibility afforded in matters of doctrine and strict compliance required on all points of conduct and polity. By implication, this confers greater authority on the Form of Government than on the confessions and the Scripture they interpret. The proposed authoritative interpretation restores the balance, grounded firmly in the Reformed theological insight that faith and action are inextricably related. Faith is not only mental assent but also a pattern of life lived in the presence of God. The test and fruit of faith are change of heart and amendment of life. Therefore, officers-elect must comply with essentials of polity and practice as well as faith. Ordaining and installing bodies may exercise judgment in the application of standards of both belief and practice that are deemed by those bodies to be nonessential.

In a word, the proposed authoritative interpretation introduces no innovations, but it does seek to retrieve and clarify long-established Presbyterian principles of decision-making in matters of ordination to and installation in church offices.

How would the authoritative interpretation address current critical issues in the church?

The authoritative interpretation we have proposed is intended to clarify constitutional principles and decision-making procedures in any church controversy that affects ordination standards, as so many Presbyterian disputes have done in the past. It is not designed to settle a particular issue but to clarify the common framework within which all ordination decisions are made. The problem on which it focuses is a perennial one. Because Presbyterian standards for office are ideals, including the highest ideal—perfect obedience to Scripture—all candidates for office will depart from them in some ways, in both belief and practice. There never have been or will be perfect officers-elect. Thus every ordaining/installing body, in every case, must decide what departures can be tolerated and which are so serious that essential matters of faith and practice are compromised. The interpretation proposed here makes clear that standards may not be compromised merely because they are unpopular in a particular locale. At the same time, ordaining/installing bodies, which have the most direct connection and responsibility for people seeking to enter their membership, have the responsibility for making judgments about whether these actual, fallible human beings have the self-awareness, commitment, and capacity to exercise faithful ministry.

At the present moment, however, many will ask how the proposed interpretation may affect several issues that have been the focus of recent conflicts about ordination, including the use of theological standards in the ordination process, the application of G-6.0106b, the respective powers of governing bodies, and the status of authoritative interpretations.

- Theological standards: The proposed authoritative interpretation emphasizes what the Constitution already requires: the examination of officers-elect according to the standards of Scripture, the confessions, and the Form of Government. Ordaining/installing bodies may not ignore any existing churchwide standards or adopt additional standards to be imposed on all candidates. The proposed authoritative interpretation further emphasizes the duty of ordaining/installing bodies to determine whether the officer-elect accepts the essentials of faith and polity. If the candidate cannot accept the essentials of Reformed faith and polity as determined by the examining body, the ordination cannot proceed.

- G-6.0106b: It is not the intention of this proposed authoritative interpretation of G-6.0108 to change existing ordination standards, including the standards of G-6.0106b, which was added to the Constitution in 1997, and authoritative interpretations addressing its concerns.¹ The task force was not asked to adjudicate the issues named in its mandate, including the questions about sexuality and ordination that are the focus of G-6.0106b. Rather, the task force was instructed to propose ways for the church to live faithfully while dealing with those issues. The task force recognizes that the debate over G-6.0106b may continue for many years. The authoritative interpretation the task force proposes is designed to help the church maintain peace, unity, and faithfulness to scriptural and theological principles while that debate continues.

The proposed interpretation requires ordaining and installing bodies to examine carefully both the doctrinal views and the manner of life of those elected to office. If an ordaining or installing body determines that an officer-elect has departed from G-6.0106b, a manner-of-life standard, the ordaining/installing body must then determine whether this departure violates essentials of faith or polity. If so, the candidate may not be ordained. If the departure is judged not to violate the essentials of Reformed faith and polity, after the ordaining/installing body has weighed the departure in the full context of a candidate's statement of faith and manner of life, then there is no barrier to ordination (though there also is no requirement that the person be ordained). As at present, the ordaining/installing body would make the decision, with the help of the Spirit, about whether to ordain and/or install and based on all the evidence before it.

- Review of decisions: The interpretation reaffirms long-standing principles of review of lower governing bodies by higher ones. Decisions about who meets standards of fitness and whether those elected to office are in compliance with essentials of faith and polity belong to the ordaining/installing body, but whether the ordaining body has adequately exercised its duties, including whether it has adequately grappled with the question of what constitutes essentials for ordination, is subject to review. Prior judicial commission rulings have specified that examination of candidates must be reasonable, responsible, and deliberate and that it must be thorough enough to ensure compliance with essentials. This interpretation conforms to the letter as well as spirit of those earlier judgments.

- The status of authoritative interpretations: The proposed authoritative interpretation would clarify an issue that has caused considerable confusion: how authoritative interpretations of ordination standards function. The Constitution gives the General Assembly and its Permanent Judicial Commission the power to issue authoritative interpretations of constitutional provisions and stipulates that such interpretations are binding on lower governing bodies (Book of Order, G-13.0112 and G-13.0103r). Ordination standards are constitutional provisions, and thus are subject to authoritative interpretation. At the same time, the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission has established that higher governing bodies may not prevent lower bodies from carrying out their constitutionally mandated responsibilities. The conjunction of these two principles means that, if an ordination standard has been authoritatively interpreted, (1) ordaining/installing bodies must interpret the standard as the General Assembly and its Permanent Judicial Commission have authoritatively directed, and (2) ordaining/installing bodies have the power to determine whether any officer-elect's departure from the interpreted standard compromises essentials of Reformed faith and polity and thus should constitute a barrier to ordination. In short, an authoritative interpretation binds how an ordaining/installing body interprets a standard, but it does not override that body's power to judge which matters are essential and whether any departure from nonessentials is sufficiently serious that a candidate will not be ordained or installed.

We believe the practical effects of the implementation of the proposed authoritative interpretation can be positive. Confirming the standard-setting role of the whole church will contribute to the church's unity and purity. Affirming the right of ordaining/installing bodies to make judgments about standards and fitness for office will, we believe, ultimately contribute to the church's peace. These measures will not be effective, however, unless subsection (5) of the proposed authoritative interpretation is taken with utmost seriousness: All parties must outdo one another in honoring the decisions of other bodies, presuming that other governing bodies have employed their best wisdom and sincerely sought the Spirit's guidance in all their deliberations. The proposed authoritative interpretation is not a license either to disregard standards or to override judgments of the fitness of persons elected to office.

Admittedly, this measure will stimulate some vigorous debates and possibly dissension in sessions and presbyteries about critical issues. Groups that meet together regularly have, however, many more opportunities to engage conflicts constructively than do large national bodies like the General Assembly whose membership changes from meeting to meeting and often finds itself under sustained pressure from opposing interest groups. And what about purity? Some will object that the approach we propose will lead to variations in the actual judgments made by ordaining bodies and will permit persons to be ordained who do not meet the church's standards. There is already considerable variation in the judgments of ordaining and installing bodies; and no candidate perfectly conforms to the church's standards. We predict that the authoritative interpretation, by bringing renewed emphasis to the process of examination and application of standards, will in fact lead to more careful and balanced decisions about fitness for ordination, thereby promoting the purity of the church and the quality of its leadership.

Finally, it is essential to note that the proposed authoritative interpretation is meant to serve these purposes—peace, unity, and purity—no matter what standards are in place in the future. Some current standards, particularly G-6.0106b, are controversial. If that provision were to be removed, or others were to be added, the authoritative interpretation, with its emphasis on the right of ordaining/installing bodies to apply the standards in a given case, would continue to ensure that an ordaining body could not be forced to ordain a person whose faith or manner of life it deems to constitute a departure from essentials of Reformed faith and practice established in The Book of Confessions and the Form of Government in the Book of Order.

We submit that the authoritative interpretation proposed here answers many pressing needs of the church and will continue to do so in years to come. At the same time, we acknowledge that there are no perfect solutions to the challenge of living with a common confession of faith and deep difference about particular issues. Some will be disappointed that we have not adjudicated the controversial issues of the moment, making recommendations on behalf of one side or another. We have understood our mandate to be broader and farther reaching: to seek ways for the church to live the gospel joyfully and productively amid inevitable disagreement. We believe that the recommendations we have put forward, including this authoritative interpretation, will facilitate that.

6. If the 217th General Assembly (2006) approves Recommendation 5, the Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church strongly encourages

a. the 217th General Assembly (2006) to approve no additional authoritative interpretations, to remove no existing authoritative interpretations, and to send to the presbyteries no proposed constitutional amendments that would have the effect of changing denominational policy on any of the major issues in the task force's report, including Christology, biblical interpretation, essential tenets, and sexuality and ordination.

b. all church members to acknowledge their traditional biblical obligation, as set forth in Matthew 18:15–17, Matthew 5:23–25, and in the Rules of Discipline in the Book of Order, “to conciliate, mediate, and adjust differences without strife” prayerfully and deliberately (D-1.0103) and to institute administrative or judicial proceedings only when other efforts fail to preserve the purposes and purity of the church.

Rationale

In order to assess whether the ways forward we have proposed are effective in promoting peace, unity, and purity, it seems advisable to all members of the task force, whatever their personal positions on issues, that the task force's recommendations be considered and weighed in a spirit of discernment, and that they also be given an opportunity to work.

Although the task force has affirmed commonly held convictions of Presbyterians on the issues the General Assembly named in the task force's mandate, it has not taken positions on disputed issues whose resolution might necessitate constitutional change. Nor has it debated various measures that have been or may be sent to the General Assembly at which this report will be received. We believe it would create confusion and further conflict to attempt to make major constitutional changes to section G-6.0106 or on other controversial issues before the church has reacquainted itself with the time-tested principles of the proposed authoritative interpretation. In the same period, additional measures are required to create a climate for discernment. Whenever possible, personal engagement, mediation, and conciliation should be used before either administrative or judicial action is considered.

7. The Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church recommends to the 217th General Assembly (2006) that this report answer the following: Overture 01-33, Commissioners' Resolutions 00-28, 01-23, and Item 02-10.

Rationale

These items referred to the task force by previous General Assemblies are answered by this report.

Comment: The success of this proposal is dependent upon all governing bodies taking all standards of the church seriously and applying them rigorously in the examination process. All governing bodies are encouraged to develop resources to ensure that this happens.

Endnote

1. "G-6.0106 Gifts and Requirements

"a. To those called to exercise special functions in the church—deacons, elders, and ministers of Word and Sacrament—God gives suitable gifts for their various duties. In addition to possessing the necessary gifts and abilities, natural and acquired, those who undertake particular ministries should be persons of strong faith, dedicated discipleship, and love of Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord. Their manner of life should be a demonstration of the Christian gospel in the church and in the world. They must have the approval of God's people and the concurring judgment of a governing body of the church.

"b. Those who are called to office in the church are to lead a life in obedience to Scripture and in conformity to the historic confessional standards of the church. Among these standards is the requirement to live either in fidelity within the covenant of marriage between a man and a woman (W-4.9001), or chastity in singleness. Persons refusing to repent of any self-acknowledged practice which the confessions call sin shall not be ordained and/or installed as deacons, elders, or ministers of the Word and Sacrament."

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 06-01

Advice on Item 06-01—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution (ACC).

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) with respect to Item 06-01 with the following comments:

Recommendation 5 of the Report of the Task Force on Peace, Unity and Purity (Item 06-08) asks the General Assembly to approve an authoritative interpretation of G-6.0108 as it pertains to the responsibilities of governing bodies with respect to the ordination or installation of ministers of Word and Sacrament, elders, and deacons. The recommended authoritative interpretation is clear and within the power of the General Assembly to approve if it chooses.

A. Current Constitutional Standards Regarding Ordination

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution (ACC) believes that clarity as to the current constitutional standards regarding ordination is important to understanding and assessing the proposed authoritative interpretation.

Presbyterians, in the midst of our most serious conflicts, have found themselves being reformed according to the Word of God (Book of Order, G-2.0200). One example is found in the Adopting Act of 1729, which anchored the ordination standards in the essentials of the Reformed faith and allowed candidates to declare differing opinions on matters not deemed "essential and necessary." Another example is the deep division in the 1920s in the fundamentalist/modernist controversy that led to the report of the Special Commission of 1925. The report said in 1926, "The Church at large should illustrate as well as demonstrate, the power of the Gospel to bind up wounds and to soften animosities; and such, we are convinced, was the purpose of incorporating in the Presbyterian Constitution, the obligation for [Presbyterians] to maintain a patient, considerate and [caring] attitude toward each other" (Minutes, PCUSA, 1926, Part I, p. 78). If we desire to resolve our present conflict, we must use the many and varied gifts God has provided. For several years, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution (ACC) has sought to make the following salient points:

1. There are three sources of constitutional authority for the PC(USA):
 - a. The language of the Constitution itself (and amendments made to it),
 - b. General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission decisions interpreting the Constitution,
 - c. Deliberate General Assembly interpretations together are referred to as “authoritative interpretations” made pursuant to G-13.0103r.
2. The most recent interpretation of a provision of the Book of Order shall be binding.
3. The process of constitutional amendment is carefully defined in the Book of Order (Chapter XVIII).
4. The constitutional structure of the church is not modeled on the United States federal system with the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission as a supreme court that has final authority in constitutional matters because the General Assembly itself also has power to provide authoritative interpretations of the Constitution in accordance with G-13.0103r.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution has in the past advised that the standards of the church on ordination cannot be changed by a General Assembly authoritative interpretation alone.¹

In 1978, the former UPCUSA adopted a policy statement that came to be called “definitive guidance.” The next year, 1979, the former PCUS adopted a similar statement. Both sought to prohibit the ordination of “self affirming practicing homosexual persons.” The General Assembly of the church determined in a Permanent Judicial Commission (PJC) decision (Union Presbyterian Church of Blasdell v. The Presbytery of Western New York, Minutes, 1985, Part I, p. 118 et seq.) that those earlier statements carried the authority of the present Constitution. Thus, the earlier “definitive guidance” became an “authoritative interpretation.”

In 1996, the General Assembly proposed, and in 1997 the presbyteries adopted, an amendment to the Form of Government found at G-6.0106b. The provisions of G-6.0106b have been interpreted by the General Assembly PJC on several occasions.

In Wier v. Second Presbyterian Church (Minutes, 1999, Part I, p. 831) [Weir I], the General Assembly PJC held that G-6.0106b does not authorize the nullification of an ordination that has been completed, even if the ordination might have been contrary to G-6.0106b’s provisions.

In Benton, et al v. Presbytery of Hudson River (Minutes, 2000, Part I, p. 586), the General Assembly PJC limited the application of G-6.0106b, finding: “The Appellants argue that since G-6.0106b is a foundational standard derived from the Confessions, it should be applied to standards for worship as well. This is unpersuasive. The plain language of G-6.0106b speaks only to ordination. The adoption of G-6.0106b did nothing to change the constitutional interpretation concerning worship practices set out in the 1991 Authoritative Interpretation” (Ibid, 587).

In Londonderry, et al v. Presbytery of Northern New England (Minutes, 2001, Part I, p. 577), the General Assembly PJC held that a higher governing body had an obligation to exercise pastoral oversight when an ordaining body (a session) adopted the position that “we vow to continue welcoming persons living singly or in committed relationships, regardless of sexual orientation, into the life, membership and leadership of this congregation on an equal basis, including eligibility for election and ordination as a ruling elder or deacon” (Ibid, pp. 577–78). In reaching this conclusion, the PJC noted: “G-6.0106b presents the qualifications established by the corporate judgment of the whole church for ordination to service as minister of the Word and Sacrament, elder, and deacon. The Historic Principles of Church Order are explicit as to the right of the church to make and to enforce these standards” (Ibid, p. 579).

In Wier v. Second Presbyterian Church of Ft. Lauderdale (Minutes, 2002, Part I, p. 339) [Weir II], the General Assembly PJC held that an allegation that the accused was a “practicing homosexual” was an insufficient allegation of an irregularity against the respondent, and that the complaint must allege that the person purportedly disqualified from ordination or installation must have self-acknowledged the proscribed sin. The PJC further explained: “Self-acknowledgment may come in many forms. In whatever form it may take, self-acknowledgment must be plain, palpable, and obvious, and details of this must be alleged in the complaint” (Ibid, p. 341). Finally, the PJC went on to hold that “[s]ince the standard for self-acknowledgment is that it be plain, palpable, and obvious, the ordaining and installing governing body is in the best position to make any such determination based on its knowledge of the life and character of the candidate” (Ibid).

In Presbytery of San Joaquin v. Presbytery of the Redwoods (Minutes, 2003, Part I, p. 277), the General Assembly PJC held that “sexual orientation alone would be no more sufficient or reasonable grounds for further questioning than would singleness, obesity or any other categorization. In other words, stereotypical profiling is not a reasonable or valid ground for singling out a candidate for additional questioning. Therefore, if a person does not self-acknowledge a practice that the confessions call sin, then a governing body has a positive obligation to make further inquiry only if it has direct and specific knowledge that said person is in violation of the ordination and installation standards of the Constitution” (Ibid, p. 280).

In McKittrick v. Session, West End Presbyterian Church of Albany, New York (Minutes, 2003, Part I, p. 272), the General Assembly PJC held that where an “elder had admitted during his examination that he was a gay man in a fifteen-year relationship, and that this information had previously been shared with his pastors and the nominating committee of the church” (Ibid, p. 272), a remedial case could seek a declaration that the installation was irregular. Further, the PJC held that a remedial case could challenge the procedures followed by the installing body, as opposed to the conduct of the individual installed. Finally, the PJC noted that “when, as in this case, an installation occurs immediately following the examination process, there may be no practical opportunity for a protesting or dissenting party to seek a stay of enforcement of the decision to install. The Presbyterian custom of conducting business ‘decently and in order’ should not be converted into a race in which the swift prevail. We undermine our system of mutual accountability when the proceedings such as ordination or installation are rushed with the consequence (whether intended or otherwise) that certain remedies become unavailable. Therefore, we encourage governing bodies to permit sufficient time between the examination and installation or ordination of a candidate so that there can be no intimation that any governing body intended to shield its action from scrutiny” (Ibid, 274).

In summary, cases before the General Assembly PJC have established at least the following authoritative interpretations of G-6.0106b:

1. Governing bodies are not free to declare that they will disobey the constitutional standards for ordination and installation established by the whole church, and when faced with such a declaration higher governing bodies must exercise oversight, whether pastoral or administrative over the disobedient governing body.

2. Book of Order, G-6.0106b, applies to ordination and installation, and does not otherwise set constitutional limitations for governing bodies.

3. Book of Order, G-6.0106b, requires that the conduct complained of be self-acknowledged for it to constitute a basis for challenging a governing body’s decision to ordain or install, as opposed to its process for making such a decision. Self-acknowledged means that by words or actions, the person seeking ordination or installation has made it plain, palpable, and obvious that he or she is engaged in conduct “the confessions call sin.” Alleged sexual sin (lack of chastity in singleness or fidelity in marriage) is subject to the same high standard of self-acknowledgment as any sinful behavior in precluding ordination or installation.

4. With respect to a challenge based on an alleged lack of chastity or fidelity, sexual orientation alone is not sufficient ground to require a governing body to make further inquiry into a person’s fitness for office.

5. A challenge made to the process by which a governing body makes a decision to ordain or install is subject to review, and presumably to correction of the process by which such decisions are made.

The recommendations of the task force offer answers to two other significant questions raised by G-6.0106b that the General Assembly PJC has not addressed:

- how an ordaining or installing body should determine which practices the confessions call sin; and
- what is the standard of review by higher governing bodies over such determinations.

B. G-6.0108 and Freedom of Conscience within Certain Bounds

Section G-6.0108 reflects an important principle of Presbyterian polity—the balance between the individual right of conscience recognized in the Westminster Confession and the necessity of uniformity within our denomination in those things our community has found to be essential. While the principle originated at the time of the Adopting Act in 1729 based on certain ministers’ objections to portions of the Westminster Confession relating to the relationship between the church and civil government, over the history of the denomination the view of what is essential and nonessential broadened to other issues. The discussions of the history of this issue in the 1926 Report of the Special Commission of 1925 (Minutes, PCUSA, 1926, Part I, pp. 62–87), the 1972 Report on Doctrinal Loyalty (Minutes, PCUS, 1972, Part I, pp. 195–200), and in the 1983 Report of the Special Committee on Historic Principles, Conscience, and Church Government (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1983, Part I, pp. 141ff) are valuable background in the consideration of the current recommendation.

The Report of the Special Committee on Historic Principles, Conscience, and Church Government (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1983, pp. 141ff), sets forth well the basis for this principle:

Reasonable people may differ about many matters. The church should encourage diverse points of view. Diversity may be a sign of health of the church. Uniformity may be the result of the tyranny of those in control, the failure to acknowledge differences, or the fear of ostracism.

Those beliefs and practices about which the church tolerates or encourages diversity are nonessential. The distinction between essential and nonessential articles entered our church with the Adopting Act of 1729. Nonessential issues are not unimportant but are those subjects about which diversity is understood to be desirable or acceptable. A nonessential issue is judged by a governing body of the church to be one about which agreement or compliance is not required. The General Assembly makes, for example, a particular pronouncement about an issue in the world. The issue is important and the debate of the General Assembly is intense and weighty because the consequences are important. But agreement with the position of the General Assembly is not required. People may even be encouraged by the Assembly to continue to voice contrary viewpoints.

Essential matters are those regarding which the church does require uniformity of either belief or practice. There are some issues which are so clearly understood to be essential that the church does not vote on them until a challenge is made. For example, the doctrine of the two natures of Christ was assumed to be essential until the question was raised about its essential character. Then the church is required to make a decision through its carefully defined procedures. Essential or necessary matters of faith and practice are determined by the appropriate governing body only in response to a challenge in a particular instance.

The consequent decision by an individual to withdraw is a last resort after the dissenter has exercised all the options mentioned earlier in the discussion of Principle Two. The person needs to be willing to participate in honest debate and be open to the possibility of being persuaded by the view of the majority. When the governing body has acted and has determined that the issue is essential and that compliance is therefore required, then the conscience of a dissenter may be abused if that person remains within the denomination. The freedom to withdraw from a voluntary association preserves the right of private judgment.

The individual does not make the decision about the essential character of a particular decision of a governing body. The governing body, itself, arrives at such a determination after being careful to allow sufficient time for thoughtful debate and the full consideration of differing points of view. The action of the governing body may be to determine that the issue in question is not essential. In that case, the individual is still free to speak and act from a conflicting point of view. If, however, the governing body determines that the particular question is essential and that compliance is necessary, then the individual holding a minority opinion must exercise judgment about the possible violation of conscience.

Mutual forbearance is to be exercised by individuals within the church toward one another. Forbearance is willingness to accept other people in the church who do not share our own ideas. To exercise forbearance is to accept diversity with gratitude for those who differ and willingness to remain in conversation with people whose perspective may disturb us.

Ultimately, the tolerance of the exercise of individual conscience within the bounds determined by the appropriate governing body is intended to build up the church:

It follows, therefore, that whenever a question arises as to where these limits are, the issue must be decided by the organization and not by the individual member of it. As applied within the Presbyterian Church, this means that such issues will be determined either generally, by amendment of the Constitution, or particularly, by Presbyterial authority, subject to the constitutional right of appeal.

Toleration does not involve any lowering of the Standards. It does not weaken the testimony of the Church as to its assured convictions. It does not imply that support is offered to what may be regarded as a brother's error. But it does mean that in the spirit of Christ, patience is exercised by the body of the Church toward those deemed to be at fault in some of their beliefs, remembering our own proneness to err, in order that by the manifestation of such graces, and by prayer, together with fidelity in our own witnessing, all finally, may be brought to see eye to eye in a fuller apprehension of the truth, and led into a convincing compliance with the Master's new commandment that His disciples should love one another. 1926 Report of the Special Commission of 1925 (Minutes, PCUSA, 1926, Part I, pp. 79–80); see also 1972 Report on Doctrinal Loyalty (Minutes, PCUS, 1972, Part I, pp. 195–200).

C. The Proposed Authoritative Interpretation

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution offers the following observations concerning the authoritative interpretation of G-6.0108 proposed, and in particular on the intersection between that authoritative interpretation and the application of G-6.0106b:

1. Recommendation 5.a.: This paragraph restates a well-established principle of our polity. It provides the context for the remaining paragraphs of the proposed authoritative interpretation, but standing alone is indisputable.

2. Recommendation 5.b.: The paragraph first amplifies the first paragraph by restating the principle that ordination and installation standards are determined by the whole church solely by the constitutional process of approval by the General Assembly with the concurrence of the presbyteries.² In this respect, the recommendation echoes the words of the Special Commission of 1925 in its 1926 report: "It would be intolerable if the General Assembly, whose powers are limited by the Constitution, could, even when sitting as a judicial court, amend by indirection, the organic law of the Church, which contains within itself provisions for effecting orderly change." (Minutes, PC(USA), 1926, Part I, p. 83). This is a sound and important principle of our polity.

The second sentence of paragraph 5b reiterates a principle frequently identified by the Advisory Committee on the Constitution—that interpretation of the provisions of the Constitution can occur through either a decision of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission on the facts of a particular case before it or by a General Assembly through the process for adoption of an authoritative interpretation found in G-13.0103r. Taken with the first sentence, this paragraph reaffirms that neither a permanent judicial commission nor a General Assembly adopting an authoritative interpretation can change the standards for ordination or installation. All either can do is interpret the standards that are part of the Constitution. While this principle borders on the axiomatic, its restatement may lend weight to arguments that the authoritative interpretation of the Constitution in place prior to the adoption of G-6.0106b should be eliminated because that authoritative interpretation added to rather than interpreted the then existing constitutional standards. Whether such a position is adopted depends on whether the argument prevails that the definitive guidance that became authoritative interpretation in 1993 actually legislated new constitutional standards rather than interpreted existing ones. That determination is not called for by this proposed authoritative interpretation, and thus would have to be determined separately by this or a future assembly, or by the General Assembly PJC in a judicial case.

3. Recommendation 5.c.: The first sentence of this paragraph restates another longstanding principle of Presbyterian polity, namely that while the whole church determines the constitutional standards for ordination and installation, application of those standards in the first instance lies with the body that knows and examines the candidate (e.g., the presbytery or session).

Subpart 1 of Recommendation 5.c. is descriptive of the determination sessions and presbyteries must first make after examining a candidate for office as required by Chapter 14 of the Form of Government. If a candidate has not departed from scriptural and constitutional standards for fitness for office, the ordaining or installing body need go no further in its inquiry. In this regard, at least insofar as application of G-6.0106b to this examination process is concerned, the duty to examine extends only to self-acknowledged (e.g., plain, palpable, and obvious) conduct “the confessions call sin.” The proposed authoritative interpretation does not change this limitation on the examination process.

Subpart 2 of Recommendation 5.c. addresses the unresolved issue of how ordaining and installing bodies address the fitness of a particular candidate who self-acknowledges particular conduct that the confession call sin but refuses to repent of that conduct. This subsection treats such a situation as raising an issue of faith and polity by applying the “essentials” standard of G-6.0108 to the determination of whether such self-acknowledgement disqualifies the candidate from ordination or installation. Neither the General Assembly PJC nor previous assemblies have addressed the particular question of whether or not G-6.0106b’s broad prohibition on ordination or installation of a person engaged in a self-acknowledged conduct the confessions call sin is limited by G-6.0108’s authorization of ordaining or installing bodies to determine whether a candidate’s departure constitutes a failure to adhere to the essentials of Reformed faith and polity.

This portion of the recommendation is consistent, however, with the usual breadth of discretion given ordaining or installing bodies in General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission (GAPJC) decisions addressing the role of such bodies outside the constraints of G-6.0106b in Simmons, et al. v. Presbytery of Suwannee (Remedial Case No. 197-4), and Rankin v. National Capital Union Presbytery (Remedial Case 193-10, UPCUSA). As the Rankin decision pointed out:

Whereas, formerly, the candidates’ examination sought to determine if the candidate could subscribe to the system of doctrine and the propositional statements that were a part of the Westminster Confession and Catechisms; now the focus of the examination is on the candidate’s ability to use a number of confessional formulations to learn from, be guided by, and lead the people of God. Formerly the Constitution prescribed empirical standards, as set out in the vows, the Westminster Confession, and the Larger and Shorter Catechisms, by which the candidate’s theology was judged. Now the Constitution places the primary focus of the candidate’s examination not on his or her conformity with theological prescriptions but rather on the candidate’s willingness and commitment to be instructed by the Confessions of our Church and continually guided by them in leading the people of God. The necessary implication of this current focus is that the presbytery has been assigned greater responsibility in determining the sufficiency of the candidate’s commitment to be instructed by the Confessions of our Church and his or her willingness to use them in leading and guiding the people of God. The presbytery, therefore, must be vested with sufficient authority to carry out these many constitutional obligations. This determination is a judgment for which higher judicatories should substitute their judgment only for the most extraordinary reasons. As noted in the report of the Special Commission of 1925: “The Presbytery is the only body whose members see the candidate and hear him officially. It is the body qualified and constitutionally appointed to judge, at first hand, concerning his spirit and bearing, and his general attitude toward the service of Christ.” (Minutes of the General Assembly, 1927, p. 65)

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution believes that the assembly has the authority to interpret the interplay of these sections. Specifically, the assembly has the authority to interpret whether G-6.0106b is likewise limited by an ordaining or installing body’s authority to decide whether a particular deviation from confessional standards is a deviation from that which is essential to our faith and polity.

In this regard, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution reminds the assembly that while the focus of the interpretation and application of G-6.0106b has largely been on the ordination or installation of those who are or are believed to be in gay or lesbian sexual relationships, the language of G-6.0106b, which governing bodies must apply in their examinations, is much broader, proscribing the ordination or installation of any person who self-acknowledges engaging in any “practice which the confessions call sin” and refuses to repent of that practice. This portion of the proposed authoritative interpretation offers a means, consistent with historic polity, for principled distinctions to be made by governing bodies in determining which practice the confessions call sin, in particular circumstances, disqualify a person from ordination or installation.

4. Recommendation 5.d.: This paragraph reaffirms the historic and constitutional principle of the review of lower governing bodies by higher governing bodies. It focuses the review on the questions of whether the lower governing body conducted its examination and determined that any departure does or does not constitute a failure to adhere to the essentials of Reformed faith and polity on the standard of whether the lower governing body acted “reasonably, responsibly, prayerfully, and deliberately.” These are not specific phrases from either the constitutional description of the review of lower governing bodies by higher governing bodies or from GAPJC decisions. However, the manner in which such review would occur under this paragraph is consistent with the standards set forth by the GAPJC in Simmons, et al. v. Presbytery of Suwannee (Remedial Case No. 197-4), and Rankin v. National Capital Union Presbytery (Remedial Case 193-10, UPCUSA).

5. Recommendation 5e: This paragraph, consistent with its predecessors, reaffirms the primary role of the General Assembly (with the concurrence of the presbyteries) in setting the constitutional standards for ordination and installation, and then in interpreting those standards. Likewise, it acknowledges the historically recognized, unique role of sessions and presbyteries in making decisions to (or not to) ordain or install the candidates they have examined. In this context, to “outdo one another in honoring one another’s decisions” for ordaining or installing bodies means to treat the standards of the Constitution with the deepest respect, and to engage in a probing and rigorous process in determining whether particular views as to what the confessions call sin are consistent with what is essential to our faith and polity. Likewise, in the exercise of oversight over ordination or installation decisions, higher governing bodies or judicial commissions would “outdo one another in honoring one another’s decisions” by focusing review on whether the ordaining or installing body engaged in a probing and rigorous process, and not on whether it agreed with the lower governing bodies determination as to what is essential to our faith and polity. This statement is consistent with historic principles regarding the interrelationship of higher and lower governing bodies, and provides useful clarity in describing how those bodies interact for our polity to work.

Endnotes for ACC Advice

1. In 2001, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution advised: “The position of the church on ordination cannot be changed by a General Assembly authoritative interpretation alone” (Minutes, 2001, Part I, p. 656). With hindsight, and in the context of the task force recommendations, it is clear that this statement was not as precise as it should have been. The word “position” in the context of the 2001 advice referred to the constitutional standards for ordination. Debate over the task force proposal has shown that “position” can also have a broader, less precise meaning, and could be understood to refer to the manner in which the church interprets the Book of Order, and as opposed to the standards therein.

2. The Advisory Committee on the Constitution understands the phrase “after the careful study of Scripture and theology” as descriptive of the process that should surround any amendment of our constitutional documents, rather than as suggesting that an amendment enacted by the presbyteries could be invalidated because it was not somehow adopted “after the careful study of Scripture and theology.”

ACSWP ADVICE AND COUNSEL ON ITEM 06-01

Advice and Counsel on Item 06-01—From the Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy.

The Advisory Committee on Social Witness Policy (ACSWP) advises approval of Item 06-01, “A Season of Discernment: The Final Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church,” with the following comment:

The PC(USA) remains divided on issues of Christology, biblical interpretation, essential tenets, and sexuality and ordination. Nevertheless, the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church (TTFPUP) grew into an authentic Christian community by the grace of God and with the Spirit’s help. The hope inherent in their experience offers a living vision of peace, unity, and purity for the whole church that is both faithful and possible.

While acknowledging the suffering and frustration that permeate the church, and while recognizing that a “season of discernment” is only a beginning, not an end, the report calls us to engage one another diligently, honestly, and lovingly, as Christ first loved us.

The essence of the issue before the church is how best to hear and heed the voice of the Spirit. The TTFPUP appeals for at least two more years for the Holy Spirit to work through a “season of discernment” based in a new but historically based authoritative interpretation. Traditionally, we Presbyterians believe the Holy Spirit moves through the process of prayerful debate and voting. In this sense, the whole period since 1978 has been a time of discernment. Others would delay the vote on the Peace, Unity and Purity report itself to allow more influence for the Spirit. The ACSWP supports the TTFPUP’s request that the assembly propose no changes to the Form of Government while the impact of the proposed authoritative interpretation is assessed, but underlines the time-limited nature of this agreement.

This advice and counsel cannot avoid a brief analysis of the Christian ethical issues involved in continuing to deny ordination to a group of otherwise qualified persons claiming God’s call to ministry. Amos’ plumb-line still works, always raising uncomfortable questions of justice for excluded persons. Believing in the welcoming Gospel of Christ, there is always a greater moral burden on those who would exclude others from exercise and experience of the joys and griefs of ordained ministry. The Bible is clear that without justice there can be no peace.

“Justice delayed is justice denied,” seems to be at the core of the arguments presented in the twenty-two overtures requesting and concurring that the assembly ask the presbyteries to delete “Amendment B” from the Book of Order. Their differing rationales reflect the heartfelt debate in their individual presbyteries, many of which have been in dialogue on this matter for many years. What the TTFPUP is presenting, however, is a different approach that would return discernment and decision-making on individual candidates to the presbyteries where it arguably rested until 1978. Thus, in prayer for forgiveness as well as hope for new work of the Holy Spirit, the committee supports the new approach of the TTFPUP.

The task force’s report lifts up the Christian conscience through a reconception of the use of “scruples” on matters of “doctrine, discipline and government.” These words, taken from the early unifying practice of the denomination in the Adopting Act of 1729, are moved from a response to a single document (the Westminster Confession of Faith) to a considered response to the whole Constitution of the church, both The Book of Confessions and the Book of Order. This requires discernment by both the individual candidate and the ordaining body. This encourages a deepening of our practice.

The ACSWP believes the report of the TTFPUP is well-grounded in Scripture. It retrieves historical Presbyterian principles and it affirms the confessional traditions of the church. It addresses far more concerns than simply G-6.0106b. The ACSWP is grateful for the courageous witness embodied by the task force in its work and commends that model to the church as an instrument and a process by which the whole church can discern a positive path into the future to which God calls us.

ACREC ADVICE & COUNSEL ON ITEM 06-01

Advice & Counsel on Item 06-01—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC).

Item 06-01 is the Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church.

The Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC) respectfully endorses and commends to the 217th General Assembly (2006), for its prayerful consideration and approval, “A Season of Discernment,” the final report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church (TTF). To that end, ACREC notes the following foundational factors:

The TTF’s report is consistent with long-standing public commitments of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). Guided by both the Holy Spirit and Scriptures, the PC(USA) has affirmed, as matters of theology and polity, that the church, which consists of all baptized believers, shall reflect and demonstrate inclusive welcome, rich diversity, fair representation, and full participation for the whole people of God.

While we might rightly rejoice in great strides taken in recent decades (especially regarding the inclusion of women and people of color), the sins of the past still haunt us and limit our commitments in both the church and society. Sadly, we still perpetuate unjust myth, stereotype, prejudice, and oppression regarding women and people of color. And the same is true with regard to the treatment of gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgendered people. Thankfully, however, the TTF’s report urges all church members and groups to listen prayerfully and carefully to each other, believing that it is entirely possible for the Holy Spirit and Scriptures to reveal new insights and learnings that enrich and expand our commitments to inclusion and diversity. Though some differences may still remain in our biblical, theological, and polity understandings, alone and together we do find shared hope in the One who gives us hope—Christ Jesus.

The ongoing internal divisions and conflicts of the PC(USA) continue to be especially harmful to all those people who are marginalized by both the church and society. Priority commitments needed to address their marginality are diverted to less than productive causes and ends. When God-given gifts of time, energy, money, and other resources are expended in internecine activities, then all marginalized people are further offended and wounded. Consequently and in particular, racial ethnic people, women, and other marginalized groups of people experience no gains in mission or ministries from an embattled church.

The CREC firmly believes that “Christ becomes for us the One who holds all things together” (Col. 1:17b, paraphrased). Doctrine doesn’t do it. Polity doesn’t do it. Christ Jesus alone gives us our oneness as the people of God, who can live together in peace, unity, and purity.

A divided church is a scandal to both church and world, for the heart and vitality of mission and ministry are deeply diminished. The ACREC believes that the TTF's report provides Spirit-guided and promising ways for the church to move from a time of disgrace to a state of grace, when our unity in Christ can lead to the beloved Christian community. Only then will the whole people of God experience inclusive welcome, rich diversity, fair representation, and full participation. Only then will the PC(USA) really reflect and demonstrate its biblical belief that "Christ becomes for us the One who holds all things together."

On Being Called to Covenant Community: Rightly Interpreting G-6.0108—From the Presbytery of Riverside.

The Presbytery of Riverside overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to approve the following as an authoritative interpretation of G-6.0108 in the Book of Order:

1. The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is a covenant community (The Book of Confessions, 5.124–141). Section G-6.0108 maintains that, for the sake of the integrity of our common life as a covenant community, it is of great consequence that our leaders "adhere to the essentials of the Reformed faith and polity." The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has long sought to maintain a healthy balance between requiring adherence to essentials of faith and polity, while permitting our officers' liberty of conscience regarding nonessential matters.

2. Section G-6.0108 states that ordaining bodies are responsible for determining whether or not candidates or officers serving in their bodies adhere to the essentials of the Reformed faith and polity. In making this determination, there is a clear distinction between how departures from the essentials of the Reformed faith are discerned and how departures from the essentials of Reformed polity are discerned.

3. Historically, regarding matters of faith, it has been left up to each presbytery and session to determine what it considers to be a departure from the essentials of the Reformed faith. While the General Assembly and the presbyteries, through the constitutional process, could make a definitive list of the essentials of the Reformed faith, the church has chosen to leave the responsibility of discerning essentials of the faith, and departures from them, to the ordaining bodies. Ordaining bodies are guided by the The Book of Confessions in this discernment process.

4. The essentials of Reformed polity, however, have been established nationally by the faithful discernment of the guidance of the Holy Spirit by the majority, and they are expressed in the Book of Order. The Form of Government and the essentials of Reformed polity expressed therein are designed to maintain order and provide the framework in and through which the unity of the covenant community may be expressed. The essentials of Reformed polity consist of the positive obligations and the definitive prohibitions within the Book of Order. Ordaining bodies do not determine the essentials of Reformed polity. Rather, ordaining bodies are responsible for examining candidates and officers in order to discern whether or not they adhere to the essentials of Reformed polity expressed in the Book of Order.

5. Further, the General Assembly, through its Permanent Judicial Commission in the Londonderry decision (Minutes, 2001, Part I, p. 577, paragraph 12.1028) has determined that every part of the Constitution must be read with force, since the church is a covenantal community (The Book of Confessions, 5.124–141). In other words, no ordaining body is permitted to selectively disregard or demote an essential of Reformed polity, for this would break the bonds of the covenant community. This is foundational to the peace, unity, and purity of the church.

6. Thus, regardless of whether or not an individual or a lower governing body agrees with the constitutional standards of the church, the covenantal nature of the church requires that in practice they defer to the discernment of the majority (G-1.0400; G-4.0301e). Protesting and laboring to effect change in the decision of the majority are proper, while defiance and subversion are not, no matter how inartfully the majority's position might be stated. Further, to void intentionally any part of the Constitution of meaning, through reading it in non-plain face language, or by ignoring it, as if the individual interpreter is a constitution unto him or herself, is to stand in schism. The church is a covenant community.

Rationale

The meaning of G-6.0108 is a matter of great consequence for the promotion of the peace, unity, and purity of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

The proposed authoritative interpretation of G-6.0108 in this overture seeks to restore clarity to the meaning of this section of our Constitution. The meaning of G-6.0108 has recently been called into question by a recommendation from the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church. The task force has proposed a new authoritative interpretation of G-6.0108 that would change the way our ordination standards function. The proposed authoritative interpretation in this overture, “On Being Called to Covenant Community,” offers an interpretation of G-6.0108 that is consistent with its originally intended meaning and with subsequent interpretations by the higher courts of the church.

It is important to note at the outset that the authoritative interpretation proposed in this overture does not necessarily advocate for any particular position regarding how the essentials of the Reformed faith or the essentials of Reformed polity ought to be determined. Rather, this authoritative interpretation only describes what is presently the case in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). In other words, it explains this section of our Book of Order in the context of the whole Constitution, which is the purpose of an authoritative interpretation.

Central to the way in which our ordination standards currently operate are two important realities: (1) the essentials of the Reformed faith have not been spelled out in the Constitution (e.g. there is nothing in The Book of Confessions that indicates which beliefs are essential), even though that may be a prudent thing to do. Therefore, when G-6.0108 gives presbyteries the responsibility for determining whether or not candidates or officers adhere to the essentials of the Reformed faith, it implicitly requires the ordaining body to determine what are and what are not essentials of the Reformed faith.

(2) On the other hand, the essentials of Reformed polity have been spelled out by the whole church, and they are expressed in the Book of Order. Indeed, the whole church has gone to great lengths to make its intentions clear by specifying that there are different degrees of required compliance to provisions of the Book of Order. The preface to the Book of Order, which was added by the whole church through the constitutional process, states it this way:

In this Book of Order

- (1) “SHALL” and “IS TO BE/ARE TO BE” signify practice that is mandated,
- (2) “SHOULD” signifies practice that is strongly recommended,
- (3) “IS APPROPRIATE” signifies practice that is commended as suitable,
- (4) “MAY” signifies practice that is permissible but not required.

In other words, the whole church makes clear that certain provisions of the Constitution are essential, i.e. they are mandated. Such mandates represent the collective wisdom of the covenant community, and G-6.0108 clearly states that our officers must exercise liberty of conscience within the bounds of those essentials (G-6.0108a). Individuals or certain governing bodies may disagree with mandated provisions of the Constitution, but this does not, of course, give them the freedom to introduce disorder into the church by severing the covenantal bonds of the community and selectively choosing to demote a mandate to a matter of local option.

Yet the authoritative interpretation of G-6.0108 that is proposed by the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church would allow ordaining bodies to do just that. The task force helps to clarify the issue by singling out the controversy over G-6.0106b. The constitutional ordination standard expressed in G-6.0106b has been the center of controversy over sexual practice outside of marriage, including the sexual practices of the gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgendered community.

On the one hand, the whole church, through the constitutional process and by using the above specific language, has determined that it is an essential of Reformed polity that our officers live in fidelity in marriage between a man and a woman, or in chastity in singleness (G-6.0106b). And so the whole church in the Constitution maintains that a violation of this standard is a violation of an essential of Reformed polity.

On the other hand, the task force notes that, if its own authoritative interpretation were to pass, ordaining bodies would be permitted to overlook open violations of G-6.0106b: “If an ordaining or installing body determines that an officer-elect has departed from G-6.0106b, a manner-of-life standard, the ordaining/installing body must then determine whether this departure violates essentials of faith or polity. ... If the departure is judged not to violate the essentials ... then there is no barrier to ordination” (A Season of Discernment: The Final Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church, 2005, PC(USA), pp. 40–41, Lines 1222–1229). Thus, the task force declares the intention of their proposed authoritative interpretation: The determination of essentials of polity would be taken out of the hands of the whole covenant community and given to increasingly independent ordaining bodies. Permission would be given to an ordaining body to fragment the church by pursuing its own preferred course apart from the covenant community.

In other words, the authoritative interpretation proposed by the task force would allow an ordaining body to selectively overturn the corporate judgment of the church (G-1.0302), by determining for itself what are and are not essentials of Reformed polity (see especially section C.2 of the authoritative interpretation proposed by the task force, Ibid., p. 36, Lines 1063–1065).

If the PC(USA)'s ordination standards are to be changed, we do have good, Presbyterian ways of changing these standards, i.e. by using the constitutional process. Yet passing the authoritative interpretation proposed by the task force would undercut the constitutional basis of the church in at least two ways. First, it would introduce a fundamental change in the way our constitutional standards operate without being approved through the constitutional process. Second, it would give each ordaining body the right to determine arbitrarily which portions of the Constitution it will uphold. Yet the Londonderry decision of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission put it well: "The only appropriate avenue to change or remove a provision of the Constitution is through the process for amendment provided within the Constitution itself."

Finally, we should mention two ways in which the authoritative interpretation proposed in this overture will help the church live into the best aspects of the theological task force report. First, the task force has proposed that our denomination go through a period of careful discernment. Therefore, it would be imprudent to presume a conclusion to the discernment process before it has even begun. The authoritative interpretation in this overture would introduce no change, but would add clarity, the very things necessary for a stable environment in which to engage in the honest and candid debate and discernment that the task force earnestly recommends.

Second and lastly, the Theological Reflection section of the task force report confidently affirms the authority of Holy Scripture and the Lordship of Jesus Christ. We share these affirmations wholeheartedly and want our lives to reflect those affirmations. For decades the church has been asking the following related question: "Can we uphold the authority of Scripture, faithfully living under the Lordship of Jesus Christ, and at the same time adopt ordination standards that condone sexual activity outside of marriage between a man and a woman?" And, as a covenant community, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has answered this question, three times in the last decade, through the constitutional process, by saying that we cannot. In short, the authoritative interpretation proposed in this overture reflects what the church believes is the best way to live faithfully within the key theological affirmations made by the task force.

Therefore, we humbly request that the General Assembly not approve the authoritative interpretation proposed by the task force. In its place, we ask the assembly to approve the authoritative interpretation in this overture, which restores clarity to G-6.0108 and promotes the peace, unity, and purity of the church.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 06-02

Advice on Item 06-02—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) with the following comment.

Items 06-02 and 06-04 ask the assembly to approve an authoritative interpretation of G-6.0108 that distinguishes between the essentials of the Reformed faith and the essentials of Reformed polity. The intention, as expressed in the rationale of each of these overtures, is to allow governing bodies to determine whether a candidate has departed from the essentials of the Reformed faith in deciding whether to ordain or install, but to define all of the provisions of the Book of Order as defining the essentials of Reformed polity, and thus to create a rule that an ordaining or installing body has no discretion in determining whether a departure from Reformed polity is a departure from that which is essential. In this respect, these overtures are similar to Items 06-05 and 06-12¹, which seek to draw a distinction between belief and practice in the exercise of governing body discretion in determining what is essential. In the view of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution, these overtures also suffer from the same failure to appreciate the link between belief (or faith) and practice (or polity) created by the language of G-6.0106b.

Specifically, G-6.0106b by its language creates a tie between belief and conduct that cannot be parsed by the amended language this overture suggests:

Those who are called to office in the church are to lead a life in obedience to Scripture and in conformity to the historic confessional standards of the church. Among these standards is the requirement to live either in fidelity within the covenant of marriage between a man and a woman (W-4.9001), or chastity in singleness. Persons refusing to repent of any self-acknowledged practice which the confessions call sin shall not be ordained and/or installed as deacons, elders, or ministers of the Word and Sacrament.

By using the phrase “practice which the confessions call sin” rather than delineating practices that bar ordination, G-6.0106b creates an intersection between belief and practice, or faith and polity. A person can only repent of conduct he or she genuinely believes to be sinful. If a person does not believe conduct to be sinful, he or she may abstain from that conduct out of concern for the well-being of the community (e.g., 1 Corinthians 8), but he or she cannot be said to repent of that conduct. The authoritative interpretation offered by the task force would allow an ordaining or installing governing body, when faced with a particular practice that is described as sinful at some place in the confessions, that the candidate does not believe to be sinful, to ordain or install the candidate on the basis that the candidate’s belief that the practice was not sinful does not depart from the essentials of the Reformed faith or polity.²

1. For an analysis of Item 06-02’s paragraph “f.,” see ACC advice at fourth paragraph of Item 06-12 (schism = renunciation).

2. To the extent that the proponents of these overtures assert that the language of the preceding sentence in G-6.0106b controls, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution notes that the word “chastity” is not specifically defined in the Constitution. Presumably it was chosen deliberately in place of the narrower word “celibacy” (which would preclude dating or other exchanges of affection by single persons). If the overture proponents wish under G-6.0106b to prevent ordination or installation of single persons engaged in particular practices, the clearest course is to propose an authoritative interpretation defining with particularity which practices on the part of single persons do not constitute chastity.

On Amending G-6.0108b, “Freedom of Conscience—Within Certain Bounds” to Safeguard the Amendment Process—From the Presbytery of Pittsburgh.

The Presbytery of Pittsburgh overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative vote:

Shall G-6.0108b (“Freedom of Conscience Within Certain Bounds”) be amended as follows: [Text to be added is shown as italic.]

“b. It is to be recognized, however, that in becoming a candidate or officer of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) one chooses to exercise freedom of conscience within certain bounds. His or her conscience is captive to the Word of God as interpreted in the standards of the church so long as he or she continues to seek or hold office in that body. The decision as to whether a person has departed from essentials of Reformed faith and polity is made initially by the individual concerned but ultimately becomes the responsibility of the governing body in which he or she serves. A specific standard for officers of the church (deacons, elders, or ministers) that the Form of Government of the Book of Order singles out from amongst other confessional standards, explicitly labels a requirement, or associates with mandatory practice by the use of “shall” language or its equivalent shall be deemed by ordaining and installing bodies to be an essential of Reformed faith and polity for officers of the church.”

Rationale

The purpose of this proposed amendment to the Form of Government of the Book of Order is to protect the system of checks and balances in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) that reinforces the connectional unity of the individual churches comprising the PC(USA). At stake is the amendment process itself, whereby a majority vote by the presbyteries can amend the Form of Government to establish a binding standard or practice for all officers and governing bodies of the PC(USA).

The Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church has proposed in its final report an authoritative interpretation (A.I.) of G-6.0108b (Recommendation 5, pp. 35–43) that would eliminate the right of a majority of the presbyteries to establish binding standards through the amendment process. The task force’s A.I. would give to other governing bodies the right to determine which explicit provisions of the Form of Government are binding: first to local ordaining and installing bodies and ultimately to the General Assembly and the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission.

In its rationale, the task force specifically singles out the sexuality standard in G-6.0106b as a standard that could be deemed nonessential, and thus nonbinding (pp. 40–41). It does so in spite of the fact that G-6.0106b (a) was passed specifically to create a mandatory or binding (i.e., essential) polity standard for the ordination and installation of officers of the church, (b) singles out from amongst “the historic confessional standards of the church . . . the requirement to live either in fidelity within the covenant of marriage between a man and a woman (W-4.9001), or chastity in singleness,” and (c) declares emphatically, using the language for mandatory practices prescribed in the preface of the Book of Order, that persons engaged in contrary practices and “refusing to repent . . . shall not be ordained and/or installed as deacons, elders, or ministers” [emphases added]. In effect, the task force’s A.I. would convert this constitutionally mandated, explicit provision of the Book of Order into an optional, merely recommended provision.

The task force’s A.I. misinterprets G-6.0108b. The third and final sentence of G-6.0108b does not say that the local governing body in which a candidate or officer serves decides what the essentials of Reformed faith and polity are. It says that the governing body decides whether the candidate or officer “has departed from essentials of Reformed faith and polity.” There is a difference. “Essentials” are those matters of faith and polity that the Constitution itself indicates are indispensable for ordained service, which the governing body is bound and obligated to apply when the candidate or officer is unwilling to recognize that his or her beliefs or behavior are in violation. No governing body has the right to demote explicitly mandated constitutional prohibitions involving ordination and installation to merely recommended prohibitions.

The General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission understood this in its 2001 Londonderry decision. It ruled, with reference to the sexuality standard in G-6.0106b, that “there are no constitutional grounds for a governing body to fail to comply with an express provision of the Constitution” (Minutes, 2001, Part I, pp. 580–81, paragraph 12.1069). Governing bodies must “comply with the express corporate judgment of the Church in an explicit constitutional provision”; failure to do so “exceeds the constitutional bounds of freedom of conscience” (Ibid, citing G-6.0108a; paragraphs 12.1065–.1066).

The task force’s A.I. would effectively mean, for example, that a local ordaining or installing body could deem as nonessential and thus nonbinding any of the mandated practices for officers in the Book of Order, including the first of the Constitutional Questions in G-14.0405b about officers needing to express trust in Christ as one’s Savior and to acknowledge him as Lord of all. According to the task force’s A.I., the standard could be ruled as essential, and thus binding, on officers nationally but only if the General Assembly or General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission explicitly ruled it to be essential. The mere fact that mandatory “shall” language in the Book of Order is used (“ . . . shall then ask the candidate to answer. . . . The candidate, having answered the questions in the affirmative, shall kneel. . . .”) will no longer be sufficient to ensure a nationally mandated practice. A majority of the presbyteries, through the amendment process, will no longer decide what the binding polity requirements are, no matter how clear the wording of the amendment as regards its binding character. Only the General Assembly or the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission will have that authority. This will make the government in the PC(USA) much less representative on a national level, destroy an important check-and-balance on decisions rendered by the General Assembly or the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission, and undermine the authority of the Constitution.

That the General Assembly decisions on sexuality issues in recent years have not fairly represented the views of Presbyterians nationwide is evident from votes on sexuality in 2001–2002. In 2001, the General Assembly voted for an amendment to delete the sexuality standard in G-6.0106b by a landslide 60.4 percent vote. However, when the amendment was sent to the presbyteries for ratification an even greater landslide in the opposite direction, 72.7 percent of the presbyteries, rejected the proposed amendment. When nearly two-thirds of the voting delegates to the General Assembly votes for something that nearly three-quarters of the presbyteries later reject, something has gone wrong at the national General Assembly level.

While the task force’s A.I. has not yet been approved, it is important to make explicit in G-6.0108b what has always been implicit and to do so before any authoritative interpretation is passed at the General Assembly level that would overturn the plain sense of the text of the Constitution with a mere majority vote of General Assembly delegates. Once an authoritative interpretation goes into force, it would take an additional two to three years to turn back a misinterpretation—two years until the next General Assembly vote and an additional year to ratify any proposed amendment. By that time, inertia and new precedent will make it very difficult to restore the Constitution to its rightful place within a connectional church. The PC(USA) will benefit from stabilizing the historic practice of the church through constitutional amendment. It will thereby protect itself from shifting fads that masquerade as “authoritative interpretations” of the Constitution but are in fact new readings against the plain sense of the Constitution’s own wording. The presbyteries should not so quickly give up their right to determine, through majority national vote, binding national standards for ordination to the General Assembly.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 06-03

Advice on Item 06-03—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 06-03.

Rationale

Item 06-03 seeks to amend G-6.0108b to add an additional sentence that would make certain “specific” standards of the Book of Order essentials of the Reformed faith and polity for officers of the church. The rationale for the overture states that its purpose is to preclude the authoritative interpretation of G-6.0108b offered by Recommendation 5. of the Report of the Theological Task Force on the Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution does not believe that the proposed amendment to G-6.0108b offered by Item 06-03 accomplishes the intent stated in the rationale. The premise of this overture is that the task force recommendation treats G-6.0106b as nonessential. This premise is incorrect.

The impact of the proposed overture cannot be understood apart from the actual language of G-6.0106b:

Those who are called to office in the church are to lead a life in obedience to Scripture and in conformity to the historic confessional standards of the church. Among these standards is the requirement to live either in fidelity within the covenant of marriage between a man and a woman (W-4.9001), or chastity in singleness. Persons refusing to repent of any self-acknowledged practice which the confessions call sin shall not be ordained and/or installed as deacons, elders, or ministers of the Word and Sacrament.

The overture assumes that this provision contains an unambiguous standard that the task force report seeks to circumvent. However, as the Advisory Committee on the Constitution has advised with respect to other overtures, by using the mandatory term “shall” to refer to the phrase “practice which the confessions call sin” rather than delineating practices that bar ordination, G-6.0106b creates an intersection between belief and practice. A person can only repent of conduct he or she genuinely believes to be sinful. If a person does not believe conduct to be sinful, he or she may abstain from that conduct out of concern for the wellbeing of the community (e.g., 1 Corinthians 8), but he or she cannot be said to repent of that conduct. The authoritative interpretation offered by the task force would allow an ordaining or installing governing body, when faced with a particular practice that is described as sinful at some place in the confessions, that the candidate does not believe to be sinful, to ordain or install the candidate on the basis that the candidate’s belief that the practice was not sinful does not depart from the essentials of the Reformed faith. This interpretation is not an attack on the mandatory nature of the “shall not” in G-6.0106b, but a recognition of the variety of belief as to which practices “the confessions call sin.”

Accordingly, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution does not believe that the amendments to G-6.0108b accomplish the intent described in the overture’s rationale. The amendment does not affect the variety of belief as to which practices the confessions call sin, and thus would not prevent an ordaining or installing body from deciding that a candidate could be ordained and/or installed even if that person did not believe that some conduct the confessions call sin was not sinful, and therefore unrepentantly engaged in that conduct, as long as the governing body found that belief not to be a departure from the essentials of the Reformed faith.

To the extent the assembly desires to accomplish the intent set forth in the rationale of these overtures, it should propose amendment to G-6.0106b replacing the language “practices the confessions call sin” with a list of the practices that would preclude ordination or installation, or approve an authoritative interpretation defining as specifically as possible the practices that the confessions call sin, either by delineating each practice the assembly believes G-6.0106b refers to or by stating that G-6.0106b refers literally to any practice in any way described as sinful by any portion of The Book of Confessions.

On Being Called to Covenant Community: Rightly Interpreting G-6.0108—From the Presbytery of Stockton.

The Presbytery of Stockton overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to approve the following as an authoritative interpretation of G-6.0108 in the Book of Order:

1. The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is a covenant community (The Book of Confessions, 5.124-141). Section G-6.0108 maintains that, for the sake of the integrity of our common life as a covenant community, it is of great consequence that our leaders adhere to the essentials of the Reformed faith and polity. The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has long sought to maintain a healthy balance between requiring adherence to essentials of faith and polity, while permitting our officers liberty of conscience regarding nonessential matters.

2. Section G-6.0108 states that ordaining bodies are responsible for determining whether or not candidates or officers serving in their bodies adhere to the essentials of the Reformed faith and polity. In making this determination, there is a clear distinction between how departures from the essentials of the Reformed faith are discerned and how departures from the essentials of Reformed polity are discerned.

3. Historically, regarding matters of faith, it has been left up to each presbytery and session to determine what it considers to be a departure from the essentials of the Reformed faith. While the General Assembly and the presbyteries, through the constitutional process, could make a definitive list of the essentials of the Reformed faith, the church has chosen to leave the responsibility of discerning essentials of the faith, and departures from them, to the ordaining bodies. Ordaining bodies are guided by The Book of Confessions in this discernment process.

4. The essentials of Reformed polity, however, have been established nationally by the faithful discernment of the guidance of the Holy Spirit by the majority, and they are expressed in the Book of Order. The Form of Government and the essentials of Reformed polity expressed therein are designed to maintain order and provide the framework in and through which the unity of the covenant community may be expressed. The essentials of Reformed polity consist of the positive obligations and the definitive prohibitions within the Book of Order. Ordaining bodies do not determine the essentials of Reformed polity. Rather, ordaining bodies are responsible for examining candidates and officers in order to discern whether or not they adhere to the essentials of Reformed polity expressed in the Book of Order.

5. Further, the 217th General Assembly (2006), through its Permanent Judicial Commission in the Londonderry decision (Minutes, 2001, Part I, p. 577, paragraph 12.1028) has determined that every part of the Constitution must be read with force, since the church is a covenantal community (The Book of Confessions, 5.124-141). In other words, no ordaining body is permitted to selectively disregard or demote an essential of Reformed polity, for this would break the bonds and breach the constructive trust of the covenant community. This is foundational to the peace, unity, and purity of the church.

6. Thus, regardless of whether or not an individual or a lower governing body agrees with the constitutional standards of the church, the covenantal nature of the church requires that in practice they defer to the discernment of the majority (G-1.0400; G-4.0301e). Protesting and laboring to effect change in the decision of the majority are proper, while defiance and subversion are not, no matter how inartfully the majority's position might be stated. Further, to void intentionally any part of the Constitution of meaning, through reading it in non-plain face language, or by ignoring it, as if the individual interpreter is a constitution unto him or herself, is to disregard the bonds of our life together as the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). The church is a covenant community.

Rationale

The meaning of G-6.0108 is a matter of great consequence for the promotion of the peace, unity, and purity of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

The proposed authoritative interpretation of G-6.0108 in this overture seeks to restore clarity to the meaning of this section of our Constitution. The meaning of G-6.0108 has recently been called into question by a recommendation from the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church. The task force has proposed a new authoritative interpretation of G-6.0108 that would change the way our ordination standards function. The proposed authoritative interpretation in this overture, "On Being Called to Covenant Community," offers an interpretation of G-6.0108 that is consistent with its originally intended meaning and with subsequent interpretations by the higher courts of the church.

It is important to note at the outset that the authoritative interpretation proposed in this overture does not necessarily advocate for any particular position regarding how the essentials of the Reformed faith or the essentials of Reformed polity ought to be determined. Rather, this authoritative interpretation only describes what is presently the case in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.). In other words, it explains this section of our Book of Order in the context of the whole Constitution, which is the purpose of an authoritative interpretation.

Central to the way in which our ordination standards currently operate are two important realities: (1) the essentials of the Reformed faith have not been spelled out in the Constitution (e.g. there is nothing in The Book of Confessions that indicates which beliefs are essential), even though that may be a prudent thing to do. Therefore, when G-6.0108 gives presbyteries the responsibility for determining whether or not candidates or officers adhere to the essentials of the Reformed faith, it implicitly requires the ordaining body to determine what are and what are not essentials of the Reformed faith.

(2) On the other hand, the essentials of Reformed polity have been spelled out by the whole church, and they are expressed in the Book of Order. Indeed, the whole church has gone to great lengths to make its intentions clear by specifying that there are different degrees of required compliance to provisions of the Book of Order. The preface to the Book of Order, which was added by the whole church through the constitutional process, states it this way:

In this Book of Order

- (1) "SHALL" and "IS TO BE/ARE TO BE" signify practice that is mandated,
- (2) "SHOULD" signifies practice that is strongly recommended,
- (3) "IS APPROPRIATE" signifies practice that is commended as suitable,
- (4) "MAY" signifies practice that is permissible but not required.

In other words, the whole church makes clear that certain provisions of the Constitution are essential, i.e. they are mandated. Such mandates represent the collective wisdom of the covenant community, and G-6.0108 clearly states that our officers must exercise liberty of conscience within the bounds of those essentials (G-6.0108a). Individuals or certain governing bodies may disagree with mandated provisions of the Constitution, but this does not, of course, give them the freedom to introduce disorder into the church by severing the covenantal bonds of the community and selectively choosing to demote a mandate to a matter of local option.

Yet the authoritative interpretation of G-6.0108 that is proposed by the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church would allow ordaining bodies to do just that. The task force helps to clarify the issue by singling out the controversy over G-6.0106b. The constitutional ordination standard expressed in G-6.0106b has been the center of controversy over sexual practice outside of marriage, including the sexual practices of the gay, lesbian, bisexual, and transgendered community.

On the one hand, the whole church, through the constitutional process and by using the above specific language, has determined that it is an essential of Reformed polity that our officers live in fidelity in marriage between a man and a woman, or in chastity in singleness (G-6.0106b). And so the whole church in the Constitution maintains that a violation of this standard is a violation of an essential of Reformed polity.

On the other hand, the task force notes that, if its own authoritative interpretation were to pass, ordaining bodies would be permitted to overlook open violations of G-6.0106b: "If an ordaining or installing body determines that an officer-elect has departed from G-6.0106b, a manner-of-life standard, the ordaining/installing body must then determine whether this departure violates essentials of faith or polity. ... If the departure is judged not to violate the essentials ... then there is no barrier to ordination" (A Season of Discernment: The Final Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church, 2005, PC(USA), pp. 40–41, Lines 1222–1229). Thus, the task force declares the intention of their proposed authoritative interpretation: The determination of essentials of polity would be taken out of the hands of the whole covenant community and given to increasingly independent ordaining bodies. Permission would be given to an ordaining body to fragment the church by pursuing its own preferred course apart from the covenant community.

In other words, the authoritative interpretation proposed by the task force would allow an ordaining body to selectively overturn the corporate judgment of the church (G-1.0302), by determining for itself what are and are not essentials of Reformed polity (see especially section C.2 of the authoritative interpretation proposed by the task force, Ibid., p. 36, Lines 1063–1065).

If the PC(USA)'s ordination standards are to be changed, we do have good, Presbyterian ways of changing these standards, i.e. by using the constitutional process. Yet passing the authoritative interpretation proposed by the task force would undercut the constitutional basis of the church in at least two ways. First, it would introduce a fundamental change in the way our constitutional standards operate without being approved through the constitutional process. Second, it would give each ordaining body the right to determine arbitrarily which portions of the Constitution it will uphold. Yet the Londonderry decision of the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission put it well: "The only appropriate avenue to change or remove a provision of the Constitution is through the process for amendment provided within the Constitution itself."

Finally, we should mention two ways in which the authoritative interpretation proposed in this overture will help the church live into the best aspects of the theological task force report. First, the task force has proposed that our denomination go through a period of careful discernment. Therefore, it would be imprudent to presume a conclusion to the discernment process before it has even begun. The authoritative interpretation in this overture would introduce no change, but would add clarity, the very things necessary for a stable environment in which to engage in the honest and candid debate and discernment that the task force earnestly recommends.

Second and lastly, the Theological Reflection section of the task force report confidently affirms the authority of Holy Scripture and the Lordship of Jesus Christ. We share these affirmations wholeheartedly and want our lives to reflect those affirmations. For decades the church has been asking the following related question: “Can we uphold the authority of Scripture, faithfully living under the Lordship of Jesus Christ, and at the same time adopt ordination standards that condone sexual activity outside of marriage between a man and a woman?” And, as a covenant community, the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has answered this question, three times in the last decade, through the constitutional process, by saying that we cannot. In short, the authoritative interpretation proposed in this overture reflects what the church believes is the best way to live faithfully within the key theological affirmations made by the task force.

Therefore, we humbly request that the General Assembly not approve the authoritative interpretation proposed by the task force. In its place, we ask the assembly to approve the authoritative interpretation in this overture, which restores clarity to G-6.0108 and promotes the peace, unity, and purity of the church.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 06-04

Advice on Item 06-04—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to answer Item 06-04 with its response to Item 06-02.

Rationale

Please refer to the comment provided in the Advisory Committee on the Constitution’s on Item 06-02.

Item 06-05

[The assembly answered Item 06-05, Recommendations 1.–2., by the action taken on Item 06-01. See pp. 28–29.]

On Amending Recommendations 4 and 5 of the Theological Task Force Report—From the Presbytery of Mississippi.

The Presbytery of Mississippi overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to do the following:

1. Receive the report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity and Purity with thanks.
2. Approve Recommendations 1 through 3, 6, and 7 without amendment.

Rationale

It is obvious to anyone who has interacted with the written and audiovisual resources produced by the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity (hereafter TTFOPUP) that this group of Presbyterians has taken their job very seriously. It is encouraging to see Presbyterians who have such different theological and hermeneutical points of view nevertheless coming together to affirm their common faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, and their common allegiance to the Holy Scriptures. Simply by meeting together over such an extended period of time, the TTFOPUP gives the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) much hope for the future. It is possible for us to learn to live together.

[The assembly disapproved Item 06-05, Recommendation 3. See pp. 28–29.]

3. Amend Recommendation 4. as follows: [Text to be deleted is show with a strike-through.]

“The Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) ~~direct the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly, and~~ urge those who plan and moderate meetings of other governing bodies, to explore the use of alternative forms of discernment ~~and decision-making~~ as a complement to parliamentary procedure, especially in dealing with potentially divisive issues.”

Rationale

In learning to live together, it is not necessary or proper for the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) to jettison the time-honored procedures of Roberts' Rules of Order, as the TTFOPUP's fourth recommendation suggests. The Book of Order is quite clear that "Meetings of governing bodies, commissions, and committees shall be conducted in accordance with the most recent edition of Robert's Rules of Order, except in those cases where this Constitution provides otherwise" (G-9.0302). Marianne Wolfe explains the reason for abiding by this constitutional mandate in "Parliamentary Procedures in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.):"

Recent moves to adopt consensus decision-making are antithetical to this principle [of majority rule] and also to the basic rights of the individual as listed above and should never be used except in the most routine of parliamentary transactions. At its worst, consensus decision-making is manipulative and overpowering to the rights of the minority because it compels the minority to "break the unity of the body" in order to disagree. Most church members will choose to suppress their disagreement rather than risk this, and, if forced into this dilemma very often, will begin to harbor resentment toward the body. This latter is far more destructive to unity than open disagreement and the freedom of the right to disagree (pp. 4-5).

The amendment preserves the TTFOPUP's hearty endorsement of alternative forms of discernment, while not suggesting that the General Assembly must follow its example.

[The assembly answered Item 06-05, Recommendations 4.-7., by the action taken on Item 06-01. See pp. 28-29.]

4. Amend Recommendation 5.c. as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italics.]

"c. Subject to the requirements of the Book of Order, Øordaining and installing bodies, acting as corporate expressions of the church, have the responsibility to determine their membership by applying these standards to those elected to office. These determinations include:"

Rationale

It is most encouraging that the TTFOPUP has held up the presbyteries as the essential and fundamental units of government in our denomination. Presbyteries indeed antedate the General Assembly, and presbyteries have fundamental rights, especially where it comes to examining and accepting their own members. The Book of Order is quite clear when it says that presbyteries have the responsibility and power "to ordain, receive, dismiss, install, remove, and discipline ministers ..." (G-11.0103n).

But the TTFOPUP has failed to mention that the Constitution also places limits on sessions' and presbyteries' powers of ordination. There are many places in the Book of Order where certain requirements are placed on who "shall" or "shall not" be ordained. Section G-6.0105 states, "Both men and women shall be eligible to hold church offices. ..." Section G-14.0201 says, "Every congregation shall elect men and women from among its active members...." These paragraphs limit the freedom of sessions to exclude either men or women from the office of ruling elder.

Similarly, presbyteries are not allowed to ordain candidates for the office of minister of the Word and Sacrament unless those men and women are properly qualified. Section G-14.0310b says, "The candidate's presbytery shall require a candidate to fulfill the following requirements to be certified as to be ready for examination for ordination, pending a call." The Book of Order goes on to limit the presbyteries in their ability to ordain candidates who do not possess college transcripts, seminary educations, or satisfactory grades on the Ordination Examinations. These necessary qualifications can only be set aside with supermajority votes of presbytery (G-14.0313).

The requirement that presbyteries observe constitutional limits on their powers of ordination was upheld by the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Committee (GAPJC) in Londonderry v. the Presbytery of Northern New England. The PJC said, "... there are no constitutional grounds for a governing body to fail to comply with an express provision of the Constitution. ... Assertions of inconsistency, confusion, or ambiguity may justify the right to protest. They do not create a right to disregard any part of the Constitution" (Minutes, 2001, Part I, pp. 580-81, Paragraph 12.1069).

The suggested amendment restores the balance between governing bodies' freedom to ordain and those governing bodies' obligation to exercise their powers according to the limitations expressed in the Book of Order. If the presbyteries indeed desired to remove some or all of the limitations placed on their powers of ordination, the appropriate way to do that would be through the amendment process of the Book of Order.

5. Amend Recommendation 5.c.(2) as follows: [Text to be added is shown as italic.]

“(2) Whether any departure of belief constitutes a failure to adhere to the essentials of Reformed faith and polity under G-6.0108 of the Book of Order, thus barring the candidate from ordination and/or installation.”

6. Amend Recommendation 5.c. by adding a new section “5.c.(3)” to read as follows:

“(3) Whether any conduct bars the candidate from ordination and/or installation. Such disqualifying conduct would include any failure on the part of a candidate to be governed by the church’s polity and abide by its discipline.”

Rationale

The TTFOPUP has rightly pointed to the historic tension in Presbyterian polity between the need for adherence to necessary beliefs and practices on the one hand and the freedom of conscience for all members of presbytery on the other. It is true that our Presbyterian family has always been marked by diversity, and that since the Adopting Act of 1729 we have always allowed some differences of opinion to exist.

The TTFOPUP is also right to point out that G-6.0108 is of fundamental importance to the question of who should be ordained. It is true that individual candidates for ordination have always had the freedom to declare their disagreement with the confessions or with the Book of Order. It is also true that presbyteries have wide latitude in determining which scruples declared by candidates are acceptable and which scruples would make candidates ineligible for ordination.

However, the TTFOPUP report does not make clear the distinction between a candidate’s beliefs and his or her conduct. For while it is undoubtedly the case that “God alone is Lord of the conscience” (The Book of Confessions, 6.109), it is also the case that an officer of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) “chooses to exercise freedom of conscience within certain bounds” (Book of Order, G-6.0108b). That is why the constitutional questions propounded to ordinands include: “Will you be governed by our church’s polity, and will you abide by its discipline?” Diversity of opinion is a precious freedom, but the unity of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is impossible without its officers’ obedience to constitutional standards.

This understanding of Presbyterian polity was recognized by the UPC in 1975 in Maxwell v. Presbytery of Pittsburgh. The case involved a minister who refused to participate in the ordination of women as elders. The PJC said, “Neither a synod nor the General Assembly has any power to allow a presbytery to grant an exception to an explicit constitutional provision.” In other words, the minister was free to believe what he wished, but his practice had to be governed by the Constitution.

The suggested amendments thus recognize the necessary distinction between a candidate’s freedom of conscience and his obligation to govern his conduct according to the Constitution of the church.

7. Amend Recommendation 5.d. as follows: [Text to be deleted is shown with a strike-through; text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“d. Whether the ordaining/installing body has conducted its examination reasonably, responsibly, prayerfully, and deliberately in deciding to ordain a candidate for church office, and whether the result reached accords with biblical standards and the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), is are subject to review by higher governing bodies.”

Rationale

The problem with Recommendation 5.d. as presented by the TTFOPUP is that it is exclusively subjective. It would be possible for a presbytery to be reasonable, responsible, prayerful, and deliberate even while ordaining someone who was nevertheless ineligible for office according to the standards of the Constitution. Objective measures, such as whether the examination was conducted “constitutionally,” or “biblically,” are nowhere to be found in Recommendation 5.d. of the report. A higher governing body could thus find itself prevented from overturning an unconstitutional ordination, as long as the examination was carried out with all due decorum.

The suggested amendment would explicitly allow appropriate objective measures to be used by higher governing bodies to ensure that the Constitution is faithfully followed by all governing bodies of the church.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 06-05

Advice on Item 06-05—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) with the following comment.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution does not believe that the proposed amendments to Recommendation 5. of the Report of the Theological Task Force on the Peace, Unity and Purity of the Church contained in Items 06-05 and 06-06 accomplish the intent stated in their rationale. To the extent that the assembly desires to accomplish the intent set forth in the rationale of these overtures, it should approve an authoritative interpretation defining as specifically as possible the practices that the confessions call sin, either by delineating each practice the assembly believes G-6.0106b refers to or by stating that G-6.0106b refers literally to any practice in any way described as sinful by any portion of The Book of Confessions.

These proposed amendments in each overture assert a distinction between belief and practice in the application of G-6.0108. Therefore, the overture proposes to limit the task force recommendation by language it suggests will draw a distinction between departures in belief and departures in practice by a candidate for ordination or installation. The rationale of Item 06-05 is correct in pointing out that the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission drew such a distinction in Maxwell v. Presbytery of Pittsburgh (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1975, Part I, p. 254). The Maxwell case, however, concerned an ordination candidate's willingness to participate in duties of the office to which he was being ordained. As the Advisory Committee on the Constitution suggested in its advice concerning the task force report, in the context in which the authoritative interpretation proposed by task force would apply, the distinction between belief and conduct the overture seeks to draw does not exist.

Specifically, G-6.0106b by its language creates a tie between belief and conduct that cannot be parsed by the amended language this overture suggests:

Those who are called to office in the church are to lead a life in obedience to Scripture and in conformity to the historic confessional standards of the church. Among these standards is the requirement to live either in fidelity within the covenant of marriage between a man and a woman (W-4.9001), or chastity in singleness. Persons refusing to repent of any self-acknowledged practice which the confessions call sin shall not be ordained and/or installed as deacons, elders, or ministers of the Word and Sacrament.

By using the phrase “practice which the confessions call sin” rather than delineating practices that bar ordination, G-6.0106b creates an intersection between belief and practice. A person can only repent of conduct he or she genuinely believes to be sinful. If a person does not believe conduct to be sinful, he or she may abstain from that conduct out of concern for the well-being of the community (e.g., 1 Corinthians 8), but he or she cannot be said to repent of that conduct. The authoritative interpretation offered by the task force would allow an ordaining or installing governing body, when faced with a particular practice that is described as sinful at some place in the confessions,¹ that the candidate does not believe to be sinful, to ordain or install the candidate on the basis that the candidate's belief that the practice was not sinful does not depart from the essentials of the Reformed faith.

Because of this intersection between belief and practice in G-6.0106b, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution does not believe that the amendments to Recommendation 5. of the task force report accomplish the intent described in the rationale. Specifically, the first three amendments to Recommendation 5. contained in the overture, in the view of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution, would not prevent an ordaining or installing body from deciding that a candidate could be ordained and/or installed even if that person did not believe that some conduct the confessions call sin was not sinful, and therefore unrepentantly engaged in that conduct, as long as the governing body found that belief not to be a departure from the essentials of the Reformed faith.

The fourth amendment proposed by Item 06-05 adding the phrase “whether the result reached accords with biblical standards and the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)” in paragraph 5.d.'s description of the standards by which higher governing bodies review ordination and installation decisions would appear to expand the higher governing body's review of a lower governing body's decision that a candidate's beliefs did not constitute a departure from the essentials of the Reformed faith by, in effect, allowing the higher governing to substitute its judgment for that of a lower governing body, contrary to the standards set forth in Simmons, et al. v. Presbytery of Suwannee (Remedial Case No. 197-4), and Rankin v. National Capital Union Presbytery (Remedial Case 193-10, UPCUSA).

Item 06-06

[The assembly answered Item 06-06 by the action taken on Item 06-01. See pp. 28–29.]

On Amending Recommendation 5 of the Final Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church—From the Presbytery of Philadelphia.

The Presbytery of Philadelphia overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to receive the Final Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church with thanks and to make the following amendments to Recommendation 5. (which can be found on pp. 35–36 of the printed report): [Text to be added or inserted is shown as italic.]

“5. The Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) approve the following authoritative interpretation of section G-6.0108 of the Book of Order:

“a. [Text remains unchanged.]

“b. [Text remains unchanged.]

“c. Ordaining and installing bodies, acting as corporate expressions of the church, have the responsibility to determine their membership by applying these standards to those elected to office. These determinations include:

“(1) [Text remains unchanged.]

“(2) Whether any departure violates a direct provision of the Book of Order, thus barring the candidate from ordination and/or installation.

“(3) Whether, if no direct provision applies, the departure constitutes a failure to adhere to the essentials of Reformed faith and polity under G-6.0108 of the Book of Order, thus barring the candidate from ordination and/or installation.

“d. Whether the ordaining/installing body has conducted its examination reasonably, responsibly, prayerfully, and deliberately in deciding to ordain a candidate for church office is subject to review by higher governing bodies. It shall not be deemed reasonable or responsible for an ordaining/installing body to fail to maintain any standard stipulated in the Book of Order.

“e. [Text remains unchanged.]”

Rationale

The preface to the Book of Order defines certain words used in the Book of Order in the following way:

In this Book of Order

- (1) SHALL and IS TO BE/ARE TO BE signify practice that is mandated,
- (2) SHOULD signifies practice that is strongly recommended,
- (3) IS APPROPRIATE signifies practice that is commended as suitable,
- (4) MAY signifies practice that is permissible but not required.

The Authoritative Interpretation in Recommendation 5 would allow sessions and presbyteries to decide whether mandated sections of the Book of Order (those that include the words “shall” or “is to be/are to be”) are essential or not. This would produce the absurd result of allowing sessions and presbyteries to decide that there are nonessential requirements in the Book of Order when examining a candidate for office.

The rationale for the authoritative interpretation claims that the authoritative interpretation interprets section G-6.0108 but would directly affect other sections of the Constitution. Sections G-14.0207 and G-14.0405b list the constitutional questions for the ordination and installation of officers. While the questions concerning The Book of Confession (G-14.0207c and G-14.0405b(3)) ask the candidate to receive and adopt the essential tenets of the Reformed faith, the questions concerning polity and governance of the church (G-14.0207e and G-14.0405b(5)) make no mention of essential portions of the Book of Order but rather require an affirmative answer to the question, “Will you be governed by our church’s polity, and will you abide by its discipline?”

In the remedial case of Maxwell v. Presbytery of Pittsburgh (1975), the General Assembly Permanent Judicial Commission decided that a candidate for the office of minister of Word and Sacrament could not be ordained because he would not ordain women as elders. Part of the reason the Permanent Judicial Commission made this decision is expressed in the following sentence. “A candidate who chooses not to subscribe to the polity of this church may be a more useful servant of our Lord in some other fellowship whose polity is in harmony with the candidate’s conscience.”

This authoritative interpretation has the potential of opening a “Pandora’s Box” of differing opinions on what is essential and nonessential in the Book of Order. While we have placed much of our focus on section G-6.0106b of the Form of Government, any part of the Book of Order could be considered nonessential. The result could be an unbearable load of remedial cases brought before permanent judicial commissions. A further result could be the balkanization of the Presbyterian Church, (U.S.A.) as a candidate approved by one presbytery could be rejected as a member of another presbytery.

This authoritative interpretation could break the connectional nature of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and the unity of the church.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 06-06

Advice on Item 06-06—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to answer Item 06-06 with its response to Item 06-05.

Rationale

Please refer to the comment provided in the Advisory Committee on the Constitution’s advice on Item 06-05.

Item 06-07

[The assembly approved Item 06-07 with comment. See pp. 28–29.]

On Making Resources Available to Aid in the Implementation of the Report of the Theological Task Force—From the Presbytery of Albany.

The Presbytery of Albany overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to instruct the Office of the General Assembly and the Office of Theology and Worship to prepare and make available to sessions and presbyteries resources to aid in the implementation of each recommendation of the report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church.

Comment 1—All governing bodies are encouraged to disseminate these materials as called for in the comment to Item 06-01.

Comment 2—In the preparation, production, and distribution of these resources, all care should be taken to ensure that the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)’s commitment to ‘give full expression to the rich diversity within its membership’ (G-4.0403) is upheld. This would include the translation of these resources into languages such as Korean, Spanish, and Arabic, and others as appropriate. Furthermore, those creating the resources should reflect the racial and cultural diversity within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).

Rationale

We believe the entire report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church should be approved by the General Assembly. In addition, the report deserves careful consideration through fresh eyes, setting aside the old lenses through which we have grown too accustomed to identify our own “side” and the “side” in opposition.

In the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church report, we find a refreshing and hopeful vision of the church that

- Upholds Scripture and theological reflection as the proper ground for all decision-making within the church;
- Upholds a spirit of community that not only tolerates but benefits from faithful disagreement of views;
- Refrains from coercing those who disagree;
- Commits to serious consideration of agreed-upon standards for ordination in the examination of all candidates.

These are not things the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church has done, but rather things the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church has called upon the church to do. In endorsing the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church report, we recognize it as a call to action, not as a plea for waiting. Much work will be required for us to learn together how to engage actively in the process of discernment for which the task force offers a model.

ACREC ADVICE AND COUNSEL ON ITEM 06-07

Advice and Counsel on Item 06-07—From the Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC).

Item 06-07 calls for the creation of resources for sessions and presbyteries to implement the recommendations of the report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the church. The overture was sent by the Presbytery of Albany.

The Advocacy Committee for Racial Ethnic Concerns (ACREC) advises Item 06-07 be approved with the following amendment (in italics and brackets):

“The Presbytery of Albany overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to instruct the Office of the General Assembly and the Office of Theology and Worship to prepare and make available to sessions and presbyteries resources to aid in the implementation of each recommendation of the report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church. [In the preparation, production, and distribution of these resources, all care should be taken to ensure that the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.)’s commitment to ‘give full expression to the rich diversity within its membership’ (G-4.0403) is upheld. This would include the translation of these resources into languages such as Korean, Spanish, and Arabic, and others as appropriate. Furthermore, those creating the resources should reflect the racial and cultural diversity within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.).”

Rationale

The report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church has important ramifications for all communities and cultures within the PC(USA). It is therefore imperative that any study resources and tools be made available and accessible to all members of the PC(USA) in a way that is culturally relevant and language appropriate.

Item 06-08

[The assembly answered Item 06-08 by the action taken on Item 06-01. See pp. 28–29.]

On the Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church—From the Presbytery of Plains and Peaks.

The Presbytery of Plains and Peaks overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to do the following:

1. To receive the report and recommendations of the Theological Task Force on the Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church with gratitude.
2. To communicate the following questions to the Advisory Committee on the Constitution for its advice and counsel before taking action on Recommendation 5.: [In accord with Book of Order G-13.0112d., the following questions are being referred to the Advisory Committee on the Constitution for response in its report to the 217th General Assembly (2006).]
 - a. Does Recommendation 5. confuse the right of conscience of an individual with the (alleged) right of conscience of a governing body? That is to say, does it seek to apply an authoritative interpretation of a section of the Constitution (G-6.0108) that applies specifically to individuals (i.e., candidates and officers) to the actions of governing bodies?
 - b. Do governing bodies, in fact, have a “right of conscience,” or are they obligated to abide by the explicit mandates of the Constitution?

c. The Preface to the Constitution defines the words, “shall,” “should,” “may,” et al. Is this Preface an integral part of the Constitution, an authoritative interpretation of the Constitution, or something else? May individuals declare or governing bodies allow a “scruple” on matters that are clearly mandated by the use of the word “shall?”

d. Section G-6.0108a says in part, “So far as may be possible without serious departure from these standards, without infringing on the rights and views of others, and without obstructing the constitutional governance of the church, freedom of conscience ... is to be maintained.” What is the meaning of “without obstructing the constitutional governance of the church”? Does this imply that governing bodies are precisely not at liberty to set aside specific constitutional mandates? And, is this construal not affirmed by the historical footnote to G-6.0108b in which the ultimate remedy of conscience for an individual is to withdraw from the denomination, a right not accorded to governing bodies?

e. Relative to the issue raised in the preceding question, is G-6.0106b not clearly intended to constrain the actions of governing bodies rather than those of individuals?

f. Can any judgment or action of a lower governing body be exempted by fiat from administrative and judicial review by a higher judicatory? Is there a distinction between the power of review over the process used in reaching a judgment or action and the content on which it is based?

g. If approved, would Recommendation 5. weaken the constitutional nature of our church by establishing a precedent (and perhaps even a theory of governance) under which lower governing bodies would potentially be free to disregard the explicit mandates of the Constitution in matters other than ordination?

h. If approved, would Recommendation 5. effectively amend the Constitution of our church by overriding the meaning of G-14.0403, G-6.0106b, and other parts of the Constitution, and if so, must it not be submitted to the presbyteries for their concurrence?

Rationale

We are genuinely grateful to the members of the Theological Task Force on the Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church for modeling a way in which our denomination may be able, peacefully and intentionally, to move forward in the years ahead. We appreciate their willingness to undertake a complex process, and to work graciously with one another toward a solution to an issue that has, for too long, distracted Presbyterians from their call to do mission together in God's world.

However, we also think that Recommendation 5. raises significant constitutional questions that demand careful, thoughtful and open consideration before the General Assembly acts to approve its provisions as an authoritative interpretation.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 06-08

Advice on Item 06-08—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) answer Item 06-08 with its response to Item 06-01, Recommendation 5.

Comment

Items 06-08, 06-14, 06-15, 06-16, 06-17, and 06-18 all ask the Advisory Committee on the Constitution to answer certain questions (most of which are similar or identical) in advising the assembly concerning the Report of the Theological Task Force on the Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church. Apart from providing the assembly with advice on the constitutional implications of business before it, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution's role is also to present its recommendations on “questions requiring an interpretation by the General Assembly of the Book of Order” (G-13.0112c and d).

These items of business seek to require the Advisory Committee on the Constitution to frame its advice to the assembly on the task force report in a particular manner rather than bringing new business to the assembly or seeking to amend an item of business before the assembly. The Advisory Committee on the Constitution reminds the assembly, and those who bring these items of business, that the Advisory Committee on the Constitution serves as a resource to the assembly not to individuals or other governing bodies. The assembly, not these individuals and not other governing bodies, is entitled to frame the process by which it decides any item of business before it. The assembly's Standing Rules provide opportunities for persons with different views to make those arguments to the assembly committee assigned the task force report.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution has already released its advice to the assembly concerning this report, and that advice answers a number of the questions raised. Ultimately, however, it is solely the prerogative of the assembly, either in plenary or in the committee assigned the report of the theological task force, to determine how it wishes to consider this report. If the assembly or the assembly committee assigned this report wishes the Advisory Committee on the Constitution to offer additional comment or reflection on the questions this overture, and these requests and communications raise, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution is fully prepared to do so.

Item 06-09

[The assembly answered Item 06-09 by the action taken on Item 06-01. See pp. 28–29.]

On Approval of the Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Purity and Unity—From the Presbytery of National Capital.

1. The Presbytery of National Capital overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to do the following:
 - a. As a matter of urgency and first priority, the Presbytery of National Capital urges the approval of the recommendations of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church (TTFPUP), without amending any aspects of the report.
 - b. Asks the General Assembly to urge ordaining bodies throughout the PC(USA) to enter an intentional time of discernment as they implement the actions recommended by the TTFPUP.
 - c. Asks the General Assembly to urge Presbyterians throughout the PC(USA) to honor one another by implementing these actions prescribed by the TTFPUP.
2. Should the General Assembly fail to approve the recommendations of the TTFPUP without amendment, the Presbytery of National Capital respectfully overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to do the following:
 - a. Provide the following authoritative interpretation: Interpretative statements concerning ordained service of homosexual church members by the 190th General Assembly (1978) of the United Presbyterian Church in the United States of America and the 119th General Assembly (1979) of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, and all subsequent affirmations thereof, have no further force or effect.
 - b. Direct the Stated Clerk to send the following proposed amendment to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall G-6.0106b be stricken?

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 06-09

Advice on Item 06-09—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) with the following comment.

Comment

Item 06-09 recommends that the General Assembly approve the recommendations of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church, or that if it does not, that it approve an authoritative interpretation and propose an amendment to the Book of Order similar to those proposed by Item 04-01. To the extent the overture urges approval of the task force recommendations, it needs no comment by the Advisory Committee on the Constitution. To the extent it alternatively proposes actions similar to those proposed by Item 04-01, the Advisory Committee on the Constitution refers commissioners to its advice concerning that overture.

Item 06-10

[The assembly answered Item 06-10 by the action taken on Item 06-01. See pp. 28–29.]

On Removing and Referring Recommendation 5. from the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, Purity of the Church Report, and Appointing a Task Force to Answer Questions Through the Careful Study of Recommendation 5.—From the Presbytery of Santa Barbara.

The Presbytery of Santa Barbara, with sincere desire to promote the peace, unity, and purity of the church, and concerns that the good intentions of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church will not succeed if their report is received as it currently stands, respectively overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to implement the following two actions:

1. The General Assembly remove and refer Recommendation 5. (lines 1048–1304) of the Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church for the purpose of submitting this recommendation to careful, precise, and intentional scrutiny that will provide for the General Assembly and the larger church well-informed, researched, and substantiated answers to the following questions:

a. Will Recommendation 5. create a de facto state of local option in which the previously held national standards for ordination become locally defined, maintained, and implemented?

b. Will the implementation of Recommendation 5. lead to the effective and practical fragmentation of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and thus the loss of peace, unity, and purity? What is the evidence that such a fragmentation will or will not occur?

c. What are the most likely consequences and effects that will occur—both negative and positive—if Recommendation 5. of the report is received as an authoritative interpretation of G-6.0108? What are the likely costs of these consequences upon the finances, membership, unity, mission, and witness of the church? Can these conclusions be substantiated and soundly justified?

d. How might presbyteries respond or react to ordinations done by other presbyteries and/or sessions that are perceived as violating the national standards of the church? Is this likely to lead to an increase in remedial cases brought before the permanent judicial commissions of presbyteries, synods, and General Assembly?

e. Which standards within the church are most likely to be declared a scruple and thus potentially nonessential doctrine or practice? Is it likely that doctrines and/or practices deemed essential to the life and witness of the church by the majority of the church will be annulled by locally determined standards and/or interpretations?

f. Is it in the best interest of the larger church and pursuant to its peace, unity, and purity, to have standards decided by the ancient, catholic, Reformed, and/or national church annulled through the decisions of lower governing bodies or minorities within the church? How likely and how frequently might this occur?

g. With the tension between the recommendation's reliance upon the standards of the church and the recognition of freedom of conscience and authority of each ordaining body, is it in the church's best interest to more precisely define what is meant by the phrase "essential tenets"? If Recommendation 5. affirms and relies upon national standards, is it not necessary that these be carefully and precisely defined?

h. Will Recommendation 5., if received as an authoritative interpretation of G-6.0108, facilitate or damage the peace, unity, and purity of the church? What are the reasons and evidences for either?

i. How will the implementation and likely effects of Recommendation 5. affect our ecumenical and interfaith relationships?

j. How might the implementation of Recommendation 5. affect or even reverse the church's commitment to ordination of women? Will this recommendation effectively allow sessions and presbyteries to declare this a scruple and thus a nonessential tenet? Should this occur, what effect might it have on the larger church?

2. The General Assembly appoint a task force comprised of members drawn from across the theological spectrum of the church charged with specifically answering the above questions and any others that may be raised through the careful study of Recommendation 5. of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church Report, reporting their findings to the 218th General Assembly (2008).

[Financial Implications: (2006): $12,400; (2007): $46,880; (2008): $16,450 (Per Capita-OGA)] [Committee Action: (2006): $0; (2007): $0; (2008): $0]

Rationale

We value the work of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church (PUP) and believe they genuinely desired to provide a perspective and means by which the church might move forward in peace, unity, and purity. We make no judgments on individual character, motives, or acts, but assume the best, believing that the members of the task force approached their work with good intentions and high hopes for the good of the church. Our concern grows from our belief that these intentions and hopes may not succeed if their report is approved as presented. While numerous concerns might be noted, ours primarily rests with Recommendation 5. of the report. We are concerned, through careful study of the report, the state and history of the church, and responses already made across the breadth of the church, that this recommendation will render the noble goals of the task force impossible and will in fact lead to the loss of peace, unity, and purity, and eventually to the fragmentation of the PC(USA). We hope we are wrong and might be proved wrong through the diligent study of Recommendation 5. and questions it has raised. We believe that only such a study can show the church whether or not such concerns are realistic or, hopefully, unfounded and groundless.

1. The implications of Recommendation 5. are potentially vast, largely unexamined, and may negatively affect the church in ways that are currently unforeseen. It is incumbent upon those in leadership to fully grapple with the implications of their decisions. Obviously no one can predict the future. But decisions of leadership, especially decisions of this magnitude and complexity, require a clear understanding of how they will/may affect the church before they are implemented or declared authoritative. If this is true generally, it is especially so for Recommendation 5. of the PUP report, which is complex and potentially far reaching.

a. We are concerned that Recommendation 5. will enable or allow some form of local option. The church has a right and need to know if local option will in fact occur and what such changes might look like.

b. We are concerned that Recommendation 5. may lead to the fragmentation of the church. If some form of local option actually occurs, with different standards being maintained or, conversely, annulled across the church, we wonder if these differences will not expand into separation and schism. It is the responsibility of the church's leadership to study the possible effects and consequences of Recommendation 5. and whether or not it is truly in the best interest of the church to make this recommendation the authoritative interpretation of G-6.0108. We are concerned that the effects of Recommendation 5. may be irreversible and it is thus of great value to the church to determine before the fact how the church may be affected.

c. This is not about predicting the future as much as learning from the past and discerning the present. Currently the mood across the church is tense and brittle. The Presbytery of San Diego is considering whether approval of the PUP report does not in fact constitute schism. Others are raising similar and even opposite concerns and contemplating appropriate and corresponding responses. It is crucial that the church study, discern, and understand the tensions and results that could or will arise from the implementation of Recommendation 5., and that this is done before it is implemented. Again, this is not about predicting the future. It is not about subjective opinions, hunches, or feelings. It is about discerning the actual state of the church and making rational deductions drawn from facts. Based upon the voting records, acts, and statements issued by presbyteries over the past ten years it is in fact relatively easy to foresee how presbyteries (and thus the larger church) may respond to the passing and implementation of Recommendation 5. We are concerned that the implementation of Recommendation 5. will lead to an increasing number of constitutional standards being set aside and a corresponding increase in remedial cases brought before the church's judicial commissions. We fear that ordination examinations and transfers from presbyteries of different standards will be particularly rancorous and volatile and worry that the peace, unity, and purity of the church will suffer.

d. Recommendation 5. may lead some to relax the standards of the church and others to more carefully, precisely, or narrowly define them. Many will see the ignoring or dismissal of long-held standards as evidence that the essential tenets of the church need to be clearly defined and articulated. Others may see the defining of essential tenets as a denial of the freedom of conscience and limiting of the Spirit. Currently several presbyteries are preparing statements that define their understanding of essential tenets. This is believed necessary for numerous reasons: first, the concept of standards within the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is nebulous at best. We have no single creed or confession describing our belief; we promise to be "instructed and led" by the confessions without any clear definition of what that means, we affirm that there exists "essential tenets of the Reformed faith" (G.14-0207) without ever defining or articulating them. To stem this confusion and provide clear guidance for ordaining bodies some judicatories may hold it necessary to declare, define, and delimit the essential tenets of the PC(USA). Whether or not this will occur and what may result from such actions remains an open question but one with far-reaching implications. We believe this must be carefully researched and addressed by the church.

e. We are concerned that Recommendation 5. will lead to deepening confusion and disagreement over what points of theology and practice will or will not be understood as a standard of the church. It is possible that G-6.0106b will be declared a scruple or nonessential. It is conceivable that issues revolving around the particularity of Christ and his being the only way to salvation may see further challenges. Possible also are debates centered upon the nature, authority, and interpretation of Scripture. All of these have already been the object of debate and all been affected by vastly different interpretations of the constitutional and theological standards of the church. We wonder too if women's ordination will be declared optional and thus set aside under the provisions of Recommendation 5. We are concerned that the implementation of Recommendation 5. will only exacerbate the confusion, disagreements, and points of contention already in the church. In the end, only serious study of past debates, PJC cases, and writings across the church will be able to answer these questions and address these concerns. We hold there is deep need and justification for a task force appointed for this purpose of carefully studying the implications of Recommendation 5.

f. Recommendation 5. may lead to the rejection of standards long held by the catholic and Reformed church. We are concerned that standards, determined, interpreted, and maintained by the vast majority of the church across time and continents, might be annulled and overturned by some judicatories, while others seek to maintain them. We are concerned that this may increase distrust, division, trials, and even schism. We believe it possible that this recommendation may actually deny the church any real peace and unity and we thus urge the General Assembly to appoint and charge a task force to determine whether such concerns are valid or unfounded. For this reason we call upon the General Assembly to seriously study the meaning, implications, costs, and consequences that may come from the implementation of this recommendation before it is declared an authoritative interpretation of the church.

g. It is conceivable too that Recommendation 5., if manifesting in local option, will affect relations with other Christian bodies, missions organizations, and interfaith dialogue. Whether this is so and how it may be so must be studied and ascertained before the recommendation is made authoritative.

2. It is essential that such questions, potential problems, and other unmentioned or unforeseen issues and complexities be studied before this far-reaching recommendation is made an authoritative interpretation of the church. To do otherwise may be seen as an abdication of the responsibility of leadership. We therefore call upon the General Assembly to appoint a wise and balanced task force that will explore the issues raised above as well as any others which may arise through their work, with the charge to report its findings and conclusions to the 218th General Assembly (2008). The purpose of this task force is to seriously consider these questions and related consequences, and ultimately, recommend whether Recommendation 5. should be implemented, amended, or permanently dropped.

The Presbytery of Santa Barbara respectfully but passionately calls upon the 217th General Assembly (2006) to lead the church boldly into genuine peace, unity, and purity. We call upon the General Assembly, in its role as leaders of the church to evaluate with courage and wisdom the state of the church and the implications of Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church with careful attention given to content and implications of Recommendation 5. We call upon the General Assembly to actively protect the peace, unity, and purity of the church and boldly take all steps necessary lead the church into these goals.

COGA COMMENT ON ITEM 06-10

Comment on Item 06-10—From the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

Item 06-10 proposes the appointment of a task force to answer questions regarding Recommendation #5 of the Theological Task Force on the Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church.

The Standing Rules of the General Assembly (K.1.a) require that commissions or special committees can only be undertaken if the work cannot be done by an existing corporation or entity under its assigned responsibilities. A request for the creation of a task force is treated under the Standing Rules as a request for a special committee.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) advises that the Constitution gives clear authority to the Advisory Committee on the Constitution (ACC) to address constitutional and polity implications of all proposed authoritative interpretations and share that advice with the General Assembly, therefore a taskforce is unnecessary.

A task force as described would have financial implications of $75,730 to the Per Capita Budget over the period 2006–2008.

The COGA is a committee of fifteen persons, elected by the General Assembly from across the church, made up of elders and ministers who supervise the work of the Office of the General Assembly.

On Amending G-9.0302 to Give Governing Bodies an Option to Make Certain Decisions by Consensus—From the Presbytery of Detroit.

The Presbytery of Detroit overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to direct the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly to send the following amendment to the Form of Government to the presbyteries for their affirmative or negative votes:

Shall G-9.0302 be amended by adding by adding an “a.” to the current paragraph and adding a new paragraph “b.” to read as follows:

“G-9.0302 Parliamentary Procedure

“a. Meetings of governing bodies, commissions, and committees shall be conducted in accordance with the most recent edition of Robert's Rules of Order, except in those cases where this Constitution provides otherwise.

“b. A governing body may, by a 4/5 vote, choose to decide a matter in plenary, committee, or commission by consensus rather than majority vote. A governing body shall by rule determine the methods and procedures to be used to decide by consensus.

Rationale

The General Assembly Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the church made the following conclusion about the effects of using parliamentary procedure to make decisions:

... [D]ecision-making by up-or-down vote, in which the winning majority takes all, may be ill-suited to situations in which there is a sizable minority or a persistent, substantial division on important aspects of its common life. In such situations, parliamentary methods may exacerbate political infighting and escalate conflicts rather than resolve them. Adversarial debate tends to set positions in opposition to one another and to mask the needs, values, interests, and concerns that underlie those positions. (Final Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church, PC(USA), 2005, pp. 29–30, lines 846–851)

The consequences of deciding some very difficult issues by parliamentary procedure can be so destructive that they prompted the task force to propose that governing bodies “... explore the use of alternative forms of discernment and decision-making as a complement to parliamentary procedure, especially in dealing with potentially divisive issues” (Final Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church, p. 35, lines 1025-1027).

The Book of Order requires all governing bodies, their committees, and commissions to use Robert's Rules of Order, except where the Constitution says otherwise (Book of Order, G-9.0302).

Robert's Rules of Order prohibits suspending any rule governing fundamental rules of parliamentary law or the fundamental rights of members (Robert's Rules of Order, Newly Revised [RONR] [10th ed.], p. 255, l. 3-28. Among the fundamental rights of a member are to make motions, debate them, and vote on them (RONR, p. 3, l. 8–12).

The Constitution states that majority rule is a historic principle of church government, G-1.0400(4), and requires that “[d]ecisions shall be reached in governing bodies by vote, following opportunity for discussion, and a majority shall govern” (Book of Order, G-4.0301e).

The constitutional provisions requiring decisions by vote and the Robert's Rules of Order prohibition of suspending the right to vote together mean that governing bodies may not make decisions by any means other than motion, debate, and vote.

Even though the task force covenanted to seek consensus and used various strategies to build consensus to good end in its deliberations, taking no votes in the development of their report, the decision to approve the final report could be made only by vote.

The task force observed that decisions by debate and vote tend to escalate conflicts and harden positions because of the adversarial presumptions built into parliamentary procedure (Final Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity in the Church, p. 30, lines 850–854). Not mentioned in the report is the lack of motivation for those who believe themselves in the majority to consider any compromise.

The ordinary understanding of deciding by consensus is that there are either no or a limited number of “no” votes. The power of deciding by consensus is that no decision can be made when those opposed refuse to consent.

Where a decision will be reached by consensus, those in the majority must be willing to negotiate and compromise if they are to achieve their goals, a prospect that changes the nature of the discussion.

There are different procedures and methods for using consensus decision-making in groups of various sizes and configurations. Governing bodies should be able to decide for themselves the procedures and methods they will use if they choose to decide a matter by consensus rather than vote.

Unless provision is made that will allow governing bodies to make decisions by consensus, the recommendation of the task force to explore the use of alternate forms of decision-making is meaningless and without effect. The intent of this overture is to make it possible for governing bodies to follow this task force recommendation.

Approved by the Presbytery of Detroit in a stated meeting on January 24, 2006.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 06-11

Advice on Item 06-11—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 06-11 with comment.

Comment

This overture fails to distinguish between a body availing itself of opportunities to explore an issue in a setting that allows the building of consensus and decision-making that requires consensus. The useful pamphlet Parliamentary Procedures in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) provides useful insight into the dangers of decision-making by consensus:

Majority rule is not a mystical or arbitrary concept. It is highly pragmatic, reflecting the reality that whole church, as it acts, can do only that which most of the church is willing to do. Hence the majority vote is a function of unity. Decisions taken by majority vote do not reflect “truth” but, rather, the search for “truth.” Majority rule in this understanding need not be thought of as a “win/lose” situation.

Recent moves to adopt consensus decision-making are antithetical to this principle and also to the basic rights of the individual as listed above and should never be used except in the most routine of parliamentary transactions. At its worst, consensus decision-making is manipulative and overpowering to the rights of the minority because it compels the minority to “break the unity of the body” in order to disagree. Most church members will choose to suppress their disagreement rather than risk this, and, if forced into this dilemma very often, will begin to harbor resentment toward the body. The latter is far more destructive to unity than open disagreement and the freedom of the right to disagree. (Parliamentary Procedures in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), 2003, pp. 4–5)

Contrary to the belief of many, but as recognized by Recommendation 4. of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church, Robert’s Rules do provide for flexibility in building consensus in the decision-making process through the use of a “committee of the whole” process. This mechanism allows much of the flexibility the overture seeks to accomplish without the harm it would cause. The Advisory Committee on the Constitution observes that Robert’s Rules of Order Newly Revised (10th edition) in its discussion of “Committee of the Whole and Its Alternate Forms” [§52, p. 513] provides that, “Each of these three devices is best suited to assemblies of a particular range in size and provides a different degree of protection against disorderliness and its possible consequences.... [Lines 1–4, p. 513].” The numerical size of the body is identified as the key variable in choosing among the options. Furthermore, Robert’s notes that, “...these rules are based on a regard for the rights:

- “• of the majority,
- “• of the minority, especially a strong minority—greater than one third,
- “• of individual members,
- “• of absentees, and
- “• of all these together.” [page xlvii]

Reaching “consensus” outside the discipline of parliamentary procedure as this overture proposes would risk infringing on one or more of these rights.

Furthermore, the overture, if approved, would tend to increase the power of the person presiding, since the moderator determines when consensus has been reached.

The seventh point of the overture's rationale, regarding the task force final vote on its report, might be misunderstood to suggest that the task force ignored Robert's Rules. It did not. The task force used the committee of the whole procedure found in Robert's Rules to build consensus, and then returned to the regular rules of debate to vote on its recommendations. The report of the Theological Task Force on the Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church demonstrates both the value of respectful listening to one another as fellow Christians, and the need for time to work through difficult issues prior to voting under the process prescribed by Robert's Rules. The proposed amendment would not provide either of these qualities.

COGA COMMENT ON ITEM 06-11

Comment on Item 06-11—From the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

Item 06-11 seeks to amend the Book of Order to permit consensus process outside parliamentary procedure.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) supports the comment and advice of the Advisory Committee on the Constitution to disapprove this overture.

Recommendation #4 of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity and Purity of the Church, which related to consensus building, would refer the matter of exploring alternative ways of decision making to COGA (among others). The COGA would welcome such referral.

The COGA is a committee of fifteen persons, elected by the General Assembly from across the church, made up of elders and ministers who supervise the work of the Office of the General Assembly.

On Adopting an Authoritative Interpretation of the Book of Order—From the Presbytery of Palo Duro.

The Presbytery of Palo Duro overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to approve the following as an authoritative interpretation of language used in the Book of Order.

1. The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is a covenant community (The Book of Confessions, 5.124–.141). Section G-6.0108 maintains that, for the sake of the integrity of our common life as a covenant community, it is of great consequence that our leaders adhere to the essentials of the Reformed faith and polity. The Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) has long sought to maintain a healthy balance between requiring adherence to essentials of faith and polity, while permitting our officers liberty of conscience regarding nonessential matters.

2. The preface to the Book of Order states the following:

In this Book of Order

- (1) SHALL and IS TO BE/ARE TO BE signify practice that is mandated.
- (2) SHOULD signifies practice that is strongly recommended.
- (3) IS APPROPRIATE signifies practice that is commended as suitable.
- (4) MAY signifies practice that is permitted but not required.

3. The General Assembly, through its Permanent Judicial Commission in the Londonderry decision (Minutes, 2001, Part I, p. 577, paragraph 12.1028), has determined that every part of the Constitution must be read with force, since the church is a covenantal community (The Book of Confessions, 5.124–.141). In other words, no ordaining body is permitted to selectively disregard or demote a mandate of the Book of Order, for this would break the bonds of covenantal community. This is foundational to the peace, unity, and purity of the church.

4. Thus, regardless of whether or not an individual or lower governing body agrees with the constitutional mandates of the church, the covenantal nature of the church requires that in practice they defer to the discernment of the majority (G-1.0400; G-4.0301e). Protesting and laboring to effect change in the decision of the majority are proper, while defiance and subversion are not. Further, to intentionally void any part of the Constitution of meaning, through reading it in non-plain face language, or by ignoring it, as if the individual interpreter is a constitution unto himself, herself, or itself, is to stand in schism.

ACC ADVICE ON ITEM 06-12

Advice on Item 06-12—From the Advisory Committee on the Constitution.

The Advisory Committee on the Constitution advises the 217th General Assembly (2006) to disapprove Item 06-12, with comment.

Comment

Authoritative interpretation of the Constitution of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) is reserved for those occasions when the Constitution is not clear and needs further interpretation (G-13.0103r). Item 06-12 does not seek specific clarity of the Constitution; rather, it endeavors to acquire General Assembly ratification of a concept, as expressed in the overture's section d), which would dramatically change our current constitutional understanding of the process of renunciation of jurisdiction.

Whereas Item 06-12 seeks resolution of perceived issues about compliance to judicial decisions, adoption of the overture would not achieve that goal.

The overture, in its last section, 4. ("stand in schism"), raises significant concerns that further justify disapproval of Item 06-12. That section could be interpreted as grounds for a church officer renouncing the jurisdiction of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) (G-6.0502). This presents an extremely serious circumstance. The 216th General Assembly (2004), approved the following authoritative interpretation of G-6.0502 regarding renunciation of jurisdiction (Minutes, 2004, Part I, pp. 387–88):

1. In order to presume that an officer has renounced the jurisdiction of this church under G-6.0502, a governing body must follow the following procedure:

a. The governing body must disapprove the work of the officer (Wilson v. Presbytery of Donegal, Remedial Case 206-8, Minutes, 1994, Part I, p. 149, 11.091).

b. The governing body must notify the officer that it has disapproved his/her work and that he/she is prohibited from engaging in such work as an officer of the church (Stimage-Norwood v. Presbytery of Southern New England, Remedial Case 214-7, Minutes, 2002, Part I, p. 344).

c. If the officer engages in the prohibited work after the notice of disapproval and prohibition, the governing body must consult with the officer and notify him/her of the consequences of his/her action, i.e., that his/her persisting in the work may result in a presumption of renunciation of jurisdiction.

d. If the officer persists in the prohibited work after such consultation and notice, the governing body may presume that he/she has renounced the jurisdiction of the church. If the governing body so determines, it shall notify the officer of its decision.

e. The officer has the right to challenge the governing body's determination and to speak on the floor of the governing body in so doing. He/she also has the right to file a remedial case challenging the governing body's determination of renunciation (D-6.0100).

2. The term 'work disapproved by the governing body' relates to the exercise of the vocation of a minister of the Word and Sacrament or the official conduct of church business for which a deacon or elder was elected. It does not relate to particular acts of ministry, or to behavior, that might be considered an offense under the Constitution (D-2.0203). One can be presumed to have renounced jurisdiction because of persisting in disapproved work following consultation and notice, only if the work is engaged in after the disapproval of the work and if it is persisted in following a warning of the consequences. (Minutes, 1994, Part I, p. 387)

Accordingly, Section 4. of this overture is in considerable conflict with the Constitution.

Rationale

Item 06-12 is a disarmingly simple attempt, through the approval of an authoritative interpretation, to resolve the perceived disarray in the church on the issue of compliance with judicial decisions. The overture, though, contains problems in regard to its propriety and constitutional ramifications.

Item 06-13

On Appointing a Special Committee to Address the Constitutional Questions Regarding the Task Force's Proposed Authoritative Interpretation—From the Presbytery of Charlotte.

The Presbytery of Charlotte overtures the 217th General Assembly (2006) to appoint a special committee to address all constitutional and polity questions regarding the proposed authoritative interpretation of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church and to report its findings to the next General Assembly, with no other related action to be taken in the interim.

[Financial Implications: (2006): $12,400; (2007): $46,880; (2008): $16,450 (Per Capita-OGA)] [Committee Action: (2006): $0; (2007): $0; (2008): $0]

Rationale

The Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church has submitted a report to General Assembly, including Recommendation 5, which proposes a new authoritative interpretation (AI) of our Book of Order.

This AI may have serious constitutional and polity implications for the future of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.),

Additional study and deliberation are necessary to determine whether the AI may be constitutionally valid as an exercise of the General Assembly's power under our Book of Order.

Even if the General Assembly has such constitutional power, the wiser course may be to submit this matter to the whole church as a proposed amendment to the Book of Order.

COGA COMMENT ON ITEM 06-13

Comment on Item 06-13—From the Committee on the Office of the General Assembly.

Item 06-13 proposes the appointment of a special committee to address constitutional questions.

The Standing Rules of the General Assembly (K.1a.) provide that the purpose of a special committee must be one that cannot be undertaken by the work of an existing entity.

The Committee on the Office of the General Assembly (COGA) advises that the Constitution gives clear authority to the Advisory Committee on the Constitution (ACC) to address constitutional and polity implications of all proposed authoritative interpretations and share that advice with the General Assembly. Therefore, a special committee is unnecessary. The COGA advises that the cost of a special committee such as proposed in Item 06-13 is $75,730 over the period 2006–2008.

The COGA is a committee of fifteen persons, elected by the General Assembly from across the church, made up of elders and ministers who supervise the work of the Office of the General Assembly.

Letter of Request as Received by the Advisory Committee on the ConstitutionRequest For An Authoritative Interpretation of the Book of Order

By Rich Zimmerman, Pastor

Tualatin Plains Presbyterian Church, Hillsboro, Oregon

The Theological Task Force on the Peace, Unity and Purity of the Church has delivered a report to the General Assembly. Recommendation 5 of the report asks the 217th General Assembly to approve an Authoritative Interpretation of G-6.0108:

5. The Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church recommends that the 217th General Assembly (2006) approve the following authoritative interpretation of section G-6.0108 of the Book of Order:

a. The Book of Confessions and the Form of Government of the Book of Order set forth the scriptural and constitutional standards for ordination and installation.

b. These standards are determined by the whole church, after the careful study of Scripture and theology, solely by the constitutional process of approval by the General Assembly with the approval of the presbyteries. These standards may be interpreted by the General Assembly and its Permanent Judicial Commission.

c. Ordaining and installing bodies, acting as corporate expressions of the church, have the responsibility to determine their membership by applying these standards to those elected to office. These determinations include:

(1) Whether a candidate being examined for ordination and/or installation as elder, deacon, or minister of Word and Sacrament has departed from scriptural and constitutional standards for fitness for office,

(2) Whether any departure constitutes a failure to adhere to the essentials of Reformed faith and polity under G-6.0108 of the Book of Order, thus barring the candidate from ordination and/or installation.

d. Whether the ordaining/installing body has conducted its examination reasonably, responsibly, prayerfully, and deliberately in deciding to ordain a candidate for church office is subject to review by higher governing bodies.

e. All parties should endeavor to outdo one another in honoring one another's decisions, according the presumption of wisdom to ordaining/installing bodies in examining candidates and to the General Assembly, with presbyteries' approval, in setting standards. (The Final Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church. Lines 1048–1072)

A number of Presbyterians are alarmed by many irregular features of this recommendation. This suggested Authoritative Interpretation raises several constitutional questions.

The following questions require, under G-13.0112 c., that the 217th General Assembly Authoritatively Interpret the Book of Order prior to considering recommendation 5 of The Final Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church:

1. Does Recommendation 5 in the final report of the Theological Task Force on the Peace Unity and Purity of the Church propose what can properly be called an “interpretation” of a provision of the Book of Order under G-13.0103 r.?

2. Does Recommendation 5 in the final report of the Theological Task Force on the Peace Unity and Purity of the Church violate G-18.0301 by seeking to amend the Book of Order through some means other than the process prescribed in G-18.0301?

3. Does G-13.0112 c. require that Authoritative Interpretations of the Book of Order be responses to questions?

4. Must an Authoritative Interpretation under G-13.0103 r. clearly state what portions of the Book of Order are being interpreted?

5. Does any portion of the Book of Order allow a General Assembly to interpret multiple provisions of the Book of Order through a single Authoritative Interpretation?

6. Do the provisions of the Book of Order regarding Authoritative Interpretations of the Book of Order require a General Assembly to clearly identify which previous Authoritative Interpretations of the Book of Order would be nullified by any new Authoritative Interpretation issued?

7. The decision in Remedial Case UPC, 1975, p. 254 Maxwell v. Presbytery of Pittsburgh (Rem. Case 1) which is an Authoritative Interpretation of G-6.0106 b., says, “Neither a synod nor the General Assembly has any power to allow a presbytery to grant an exception to an explicit constitutional provision.” The Londonderry decision (2001) reiterated this principle. “. . . there are no constitutional grounds for a governing body to fail to comply with an express provision of the Constitution,” (12.1069). Would recommendation 5 of The Final Report of the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church, conflict with these well established principles of Presbyterian polity?

Commentary

1. The Authoritative Interpretation proposed by the Theological Task Force on Peace, Unity, and Purity of the Church arises out of an erroneous understanding of the word “interpret.” The task force has made its recommendation as though the Authoritative Interpretations of the constitution are like a handbook, filling in the specific details of our rules in a way that is compatible with the letter of the constitution. This is not so. Authoritative Interpretations clarify the actual text of the constitution. The Authoritative Interpretation provisions of the constitution were not created to be used as an instrument of shading meanings or adding new constitutional law to resolve conflicts in which people or governing bodies don’t agree with the policy. Rather, Authoritative Interpretations solve conflicts arising out of less than felicitous, somewhat opaque, or insufficiently thorough wording of the constitution.

2. In addition, an Authoritative Interpretation should never be issued when amending the constitution is a possibility. Authoritative Interpretations only are in order when the meaning sought is already in place within the constitution and the General Assembly wishes to make sure that everyone clearly understands what the constitution already says.

The appropriate vehicle for change is amendment. The dissenting opinion in Blasdell et al. v. Pby of Western Reserve points this out and refers to a string of cases as it asserts that no Authoritative Interpretation can effectively amend the constitution:

Sarah W. Clark, Frances L. Hollis,
Mary Bettis Love, Mary B. Steddom

Recognizing that this case has properly, and of necessity, been decided on the basis of a correct exercise of ecclesiastical authority and the Book of Order’s stated principles having to do with Administrative Review we, nevertheless, offer the following dissent:

We acknowledge that the Book of Order in effect in 1978 at the time the 190th General Assembly’s statement of “definitive guidance” was made, under Form of Government, Chapter XIV, Section 10 (44.10), empowers the General Assembly to interpret the Constitution in such a manner, and that the policy therein enunciated has been reaffirmed by subsequent General Assemblies.

Such interpretations, however, cannot have the effect of amending the Constitution. This issue was settled by Anderson vs. Synod of New Jersey (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1962, Part I, pp. 316.325), Buonaiuto vs. Session of the First Presbyterian Church of Greenlawn (Minutes, UPCUSA, 1974, Part I, p. 317). The Anderson case which upheld a position of the Synod of New Jersey . . .

While dissenting opinions are not authoritative, this one reasons correctly from established decisions and should guide the formation of our principles.

A careful reading of the Task Force’s report demonstrates the flawed reasoning behind their request for an Authoritative Interpretation. The explanation for Recommendation 5 begins in this way:

1074 The most intractable conflicts in the Presbyterian church often result in disputes over 1075 ordination. Therefore, the task force recommends this authoritative interpretation, which 1076 clarifies ordination procedures by emphasizing principles that are, we believe, closer to 1077 Presbyterian tradition than some of our current practices.

By “current practices” the report is clearly referring to practices explicitly following the prescribed pattern of the Book of Order. By “clarifies,” the Theological Task Force must mean “introduces” since they are recommending procedures that are currently not sanctioned. Clearly Recommendation 5 proposes not an interpretation but an amendment of G-6.0108.

3. Recommendation 5 also errs by failing to ask a question. The Book of Order is quite clear that all Authoritative Interpretations answer a question. G-13.0112 c. says,

c. All questions requiring an interpretation by the General Assembly of the Book of Order arising from governing bodies of the church or from individuals shall be communicated in writing to the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly no later than 120 days prior to the convening of the next session of the General Assembly.

There is no question or ambiguity to be addressed by the 217th General Assembly. Therefore, the constitution does not give this Assembly the authority to issue an Authoritative Interpretation.

4. The proposed Peace Unity and Purity Task Force’s request for an Authoritative Interpretation is also flawed by a lack of clarity about what part of the Book of Order is being “interpreted.” The Task Force writes that it proposes to interpret G-6.0108, but in the rationale and discussion it is clear that this interpretation would trump provisions found in other portions of the Book of Order.
