

ABOUT US

Organized in 1852, the Presbyterian Historical Society is the oldest denominational archives in the United States and serves as the national archives for the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and its predecessor denominations.

OUR MISSION

The Presbyterian Historical Society leverages its collections and archival work to galvanize the transformative power of history in the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.) and wider community.

SUPPORT OUR WORK

Individual contributions provide support for the programs and services that are core to our mission. They also help us to improve the historic building that houses PHS's state-of-the-art archives and research facility.

PRESBYTERIAN HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Collect. Preserve. Share. Transform.

SERVICES

The Presbyterian Historical Society provides a broad range of services for Presbyterians, scholars, and the general public.

We understand that not everyone can book a trip to Philadelphia to research in our reading room. And, sometimes you need assistance navigating our extensive collections. To make Presbyterian history more accessible, PHS offers a number of services for congregations preserving their records and for individuals seeking information from records in our holdings.

COLLECTIONS

PHS collects records of historic value from congregations and mid councils, national agencies within the PC(USA), and from individuals and families who served the church.

PHS is home to over 40,000 cubic feet of records and 250,000 published titles that reflect Presbyterian, Reformed, and ecumenical history. Our paper and digital collections document the work of the denomination; preserve the voices of ministers and church leaders through sermons and oral histories; and capture the work of Presbyterian mission through sound and video recordings.

HISTORY ONLINE

PHS online resources provide historical background on the Presbyterian and Reformed traditions in America and can be accessed anywhere in the world.

Explore digital exhibits and timelines, download free church bulletin inserts for your congregation, follow our blogs, and engage with important topics in Presbyterian history.
